One pocket had been cut open, and in the opinion of Sheriff Purple and Chief of Police Wolff, who were quickly on the scene, the circumstances pointed to deliberate murder. The scene of the crime is an isolated winding woods road, which is scarcely ever traveled, and the person responsible for taking the life of King was well provided with cover under which to make his escape. King was seen alive on Tuesday, and it is believed the murder occurred some time Wednesday.

ARGO SELLS TO EAST JORDAN CO-OPS

Turn Over Flour Mill, Warehouse and Numerous Coal Sheds

One of the largest business deals on record in East Jordan took place last week, when the East Jordan Co-Operative Association purchased the Argo Milling Co.'s holdings in that city.

The purchase comprises the Argo Milling Co.'s 125 barrel flour mill, the coal sheds and ware houses, R. C. Supernaw, manager for the Co-Operative association, will have charge of their new holdings.

Since organizing a number of years ago, the East Jordan Co-Operative association have been handicapped for elevator facilities, and the new purchase gives them one of the best flour and feed mills in northern Michigan.

The flour mill was erected and completed some eighteen years ago, and at the time was the latest word in milling equipment with electrical power. It is located on the lake front and has the advantages of both railroad and waterway transportation, being on the line of the East Jordan and Southern R. R. on one side and deep sea navigation on the opposite.

NEWBERRY WRONGED
DECLARES HUGHES

SECRETARY OF STATE REFUTES PROPAGANDA CIRCULATED BY TOWNSEND'S OPPONENTS.

ELECTION LAW NOT VIOLATED

Senes Bitter Persecution and Attempt To Beamirch Junior Senator's Character.

Washington, D. C.—Distorted versions of the facts regarding the vindication and seating of the Hon. Truman H. Newberry as United States Senator from Michigan, which are being used as propaganda by political speakers in several states, and more particularly in Michigan, where an effort is being made to defeat Senator Charles E. Townsend for re-nomination, are wholly refuted by a remarkable statement, issued by Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, former Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, in answer to a request for facts from the Rev. Hugh B. MacCauley, of Paterson, N. J.

The paragraph in Secretary Hughes' statement which proves most annoying to the antagonists of Senator Townsend and promises to explode the campaign of self-styled purists who oppose him on the grounds that he voted to seat Mr. Newberry, whom the voters of Michigan duly and lawfully elected to the senate, follows:

Evidence Proved False.

"The plain fact is that Senator Newberry was wrongly and most unjustly convicted and his conviction was set aside. Despite the long period of preparation, the rigid investigation, the careful choosing of their ground, the long drawn out trial, the attempt in every possible way to besmirch, and the zeal, ability and even bitterness of his pursuers, their endeavor to establish a violation of the law on the part of Senator Newberry completely failed, and accordingly Senator Newberry stood as a senator duly elected by the people of the state of Michigan and entitled to his seat in the senate of the United States."

Secretary of State Hughes, widely acclaimed as one of the most honest, conscientious and fearless public servants in American life today, was of counsel which presented to the Supreme Court the appeal from the Grand Rapids verdict which unjustly convicted certain Newberry case defendants, therefore he is familiar with all the evidence and the individual views of each member of the Supreme Court.

Vindication Was Complete.

In a lengthy review of the legal aspects of the case the Secretary makes it plain to the lay mind just how complete was the vindication of Senator Newberry under the statutes and constitution of the United States. He declares emphatically "that even the Grand Rapids trial judge threw out the charges of 'bribery,' 'corruption,' and 'purported votes' which have for so long been the stock arguments of propagandists of Democratic and hybrid persuasion."

On the main charge of the indictment, that of conspiracy to violate the Corrupt Practices Act, Secretary Hughes quotes from the opinion of Chief Justice White, who declared that instructions of Judge Sessions to the Grand Rapids jury were prejudicial to the Newberry defense and from the opinion of Justices Pitney, Brandeis and Clark, who held that the Sessions instructions were prejudicial in that they would perhaps have required a conviction even though the involvement of Senator Newberry in the alleged conspiracy had not been proven.

Statute Grievously Distorted.

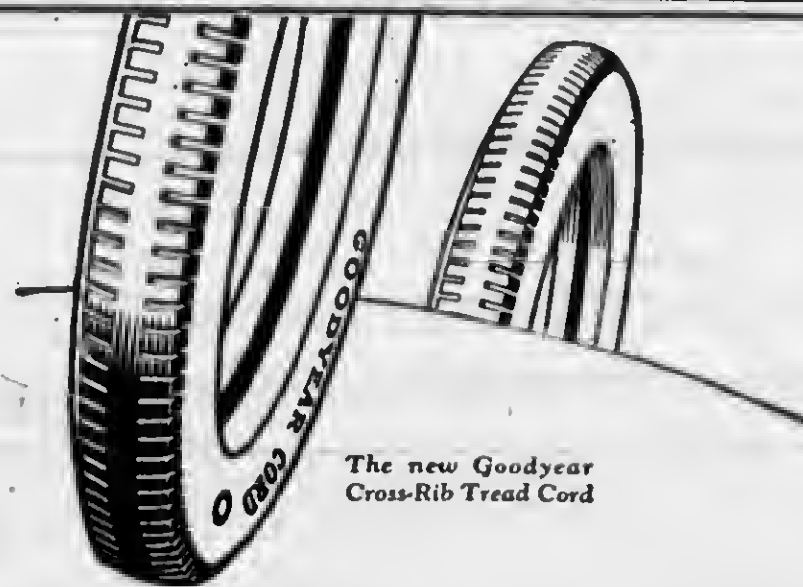

Continuing, Secretary Hughes states:

"The point of the 'grievous misapplication' of the statute (as stated by Justice White) by the trial judge and the grave injury that was done to Senator Newberry sufficiently appears from the opinions of those Justices. I may say that a more extraordinary misconstruction of a statute has never come under my observation and under this construction hardly any candidate could have escaped violating it."

In other words, as Secretary Hughes concludes:

"The conviction of Senator Newberry was obtained under a statute held by the majority of the Supreme Court to be invalid; rested upon a ground which did not involve any finding of the jury of moral turpitude and was effected only by a most serious misconstruction of the statute which exposed him, to conviction regardless of any moral offense upon his part and no matter how high-minded he might have been in his conduct in the campaign."

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord

Discounting the "Discount" in Advance

You don't have to be a shrewd bargainer to get the bottom price on the new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord.

Instead of listing it at a high price, to enable the dealer to attract you with a so-called "long discount," we list it as low as we profitably can. You can see from the figures below that its advertised price is lower than the net price you are asked to pay for many "long discount" tires of unknown value.

We believe the average man would rather buy tires on this frank and open basis, and assure himself a product of recognized worth.

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord is made of high-grade long-staple cotton, and it embodies the patented Goodyear method of group-ply construction.

In design, materials and manufacture it is a representative Goodyear product, built to safeguard the world-wide Goodyear reputation.

It has a different tread from the famous All-Weather Tread Cord—a new tread with a deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern—and it sells for substantially less.

Compare these prices with NET prices you are asked to pay for "long discount" tires

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL By J. E. Jones

Washington's Social Lobby

The prominence given by the press of the country to one of the issues of the Iowa senatorial campaign might almost lead uninformed people to believe that leading public officials, including members of the two branches of congress, are turning in to social butterflies as a result of their residence in the national capital. As a matter of fact Washington is made up of the same kind of people that are found everywhere else in the United States, and senators and representatives are not apt to undergo any particular degree of change by reason of the fact that they live in Washington, where folks and society are about the same as that which they left at home. The correspondent of this paper asked a number of old residents of the national capital, all business and professional people, this question: "What can you tell me about the social lobby of Washington?" In every case the answer was: "I never have seen it, and do not know that there is one." A senator or representative whose custom it was to spend night after night in his home town making the rounds of the card parties, theatres and dances, would likely avoid himself of the opportunities of a large city like Washington to indulge in the same kind of pleasures. It is significant, however, that most men of that kind are unable to secure favorable verdict from the voters to permit them to move headquarters to Washington. On the other hand the hard-headed lawyer or business man who succeeds in the election is usually the man who made it a habit to stay home nights in his home town. When he gets to Washington he brings his fixed habits along with his other old possessions, rents a house or apartment, and settles down to his duties just the same as any other useful citizen. It is safe to say that half of all the men in the two branches of congress do not go out oftener after dark than the lawyers, teachers and merchants of Washington who have nothing to do with political matters. Presumably the "social lobby" works after dark. It is reasonable to assume that if the congressmen who are supposed to be victims of the social siren remain quietly at home and keep away from nightly parties that they are not being lulled into a state of unconsciousness regarding their sworn duty to their state and country.

Of course Washington has a larger number of social gatherings of significance than other cities, but that is merely because there are so many official affairs that are made more interesting by adding a social flavor to the gatherings. In order to meet this situation the President, for instance, is furnished a house that is as big as a hotel. But most men in congress are living on their salaries, and they are not able to splurge much after settling campaign expenses and other demands that continue to pour in from their homes.

The social lobby at Washington may be correctly compared to the social lobby of any city. In all of them there is apt to be suspicion that this lobby seeks favors at official headquarters. The business of the national government is conducted almost entirely in the offices of its officials, and that is where lobbyists, citizens, countrymen, all go when they have political chestnuts in the fire. Politicians are wary men and they are not spoiling perfectly good evenings or social pastimes talking shop after hours, or in permitting themselves to be "worked" by social schemers in full dress clothes.

The subject of the "social lobby" is usually good material for writers of fiction, and it often serves the purposes of political demagogues. Aside from that it is principally bunk.

Tariff Bill in Conference

The tariff bill is now practically a year and a half late on the pre-election expectations of the party in power. All administrations where there has been a change of political power have been committed to a revision of the tariff. But the Fordney-McCumber bill has finally dragged its heavy corpus through both houses of congress and it has been committed to the Conference Committee made up of members from the house and senate. Some bitter controversial points remain in dispute between the two branches. There will be the usual display of fireworks over these matters, after which votes will be forced in both senate and house. After that the President signs the bill and this completes the process of redemption for the party in power.

The "flexible" provisions of the tariff bill gives the President broad authority to increase and decrease duties. Agricultural protective duties have been raised materially, as also have rates on sugar and wool. The chemical schedule carries such high duties on coal tar dyes and synthetic chemicals and explosives as to practically constitute an embargo on foreign dyes. There has been a bitter fight in congress on these latter features of the bill because the German dye manufacturers were trying to beat back into the American market. While they were doing this the chemical interests of the United States undertook drastic measures and congress was told that a great trust had been built up in this country, and that all sorts of corruption existed in relation to it. But the Republicans clothed the infant American dye industry with protection that is so high that the charge has followed that it is an embargo against the Germans.

The Republicans expect to have the bill entirely finished in order to go before the country with it in the fall elections. Careful unprejudiced Washington observers say that in order to do that they "will have to hurry."

The Soldier's Bonus

Those people who have been predicting that the soldier's bonus bill would go through the senate in a hurry evidently did not calculate concerning the great opportunity presented for the display of political oratory by supporters as well as opponents of the proposition. When the house passed the bill the politics of the situation was apparently on the side of the bonus. Since that time the opposition has had time to make itself heard, and a tremendous pressure has been brought against the bill by the business interests of the country, while ex-service men have appeared in surprisingly large numbers to oppose the bill. The polls that have been conducted by magazines and newspapers have likewise showed a great division of sentiment throughout the country, and this no doubt has heartened President Harding who has insisted that if congress passes such a law that it should also provide the means for paying the bonus requirements.

All the wise-acs around Washington are agreed that the bill will pass, but one man's guess is as good as another's as to whether the President will sign the bill or not. If he vetoes it there is a close question as to whether there is a condition in congress that will pass it in spite of the Executive's disapproval. Ordinarily the vetoes of a President are sustained as it takes a two-thirds vote to pass it over his signature. But sometimes, and that quite often in recent years, congress has been very ruthless regarding the President and his vetoes. The fate of the bonus bill is very much in doubt.

Discussing the Message

The President's message on the industrial situation was looked upon in Washington as a most extraordinary document, because it revealed more than any other message of late years a series of rebuffs to President Harding that would have been looked upon almost as treason at other times in recent history. Of course there is all kinds of partisan discussion of the document in Washington, as there is elsewhere, and that does not disturb the national political center. But there is genuine concern in Washington, and it is not the matter of a few days or weeks, over the fact that the representatives of the employing classes and the employees themselves have sought to ignore the head of the nation and to treat his patient efforts with very scarce courtesy.

A scientist named Eddman speaks in enthusiastic terms of "vegetable glow worms," as he calls them, which he observed glowing on the walls and in the crevices of Swedish mines. THE TOURIST MENACE?

Many people do not fully realize the value of the tourist business to this section of the country. In fact so far are some from a realization of the magnitude of the tourist trade that it has been intimated that the business is a "menace" to the country rather than a benefit commercially and otherwise. These people, it is safe to say, look at the matter from a purely personal and selfish standpoint when they should be considering the community interests which are involved.

The tourist business not worth anything?

When, through the activity of the All Year Around club of southern California, that state is annually extending the visit sum of $200,000 for the advertisement of that country as a resort country? At this very time running large advertisements in such publications as Good, Housekeeping, the Review of Reviews, the Saturday Evening Post, the National Geographical Magazine exploiting California's possibilities as a resort country? Would they spend the money if business which it developed was not a paying one for the state and its people?

Is the tourist crop a paying one? Take for example, California. In the state annual report of the Tri-State Development Congress we find that the average annual value of seven of the principal crops of that state—apples, lemons, cotton, wheat, barley, beans and deciduous fruits—net to the state the enormous sum of $148,500,000 for these seven crops, while the tourist crop yields more than $150,000,000 alone.

Colorado was visited last year between June and September by 500,000 tourists, leaving within the state at least $50,000,000.

The Great Lake region—though comparatively new as a tourist objective—is not far behind. The total for Michigan is $75,500,000; for Minnesota the figures are 200,000 tourists with a total revenue to the state of approximately $10,000,000.

No figures for Wisconsin are at this time available, but that the number of tourists coming into upper Wisconsin this season will be more than 200,000, with an average expenditure of $10 each, which is a very low estimate, the amount of money spent by these visitors may easily reach more than $2,000,000.

Does the tourist crop pay?

And yet there is another and far more important phase of the tourist business than merely the actual revenue derived from these summer visitors. And that is the cast benefits derived from the advertising given to this section of the country along other and broader lines.

Is the tourist business a menace? Figure it out for yourself.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

Men and women of the county who are advocating the nomination of A. L. Fitch as Prosecuting Attorney are pointing out the reasons why he should be selected for the place. We are informed that his long acquaintance with the county business would enable him to take up the work of the office without a hitch, and that his long experience in the trial of cases would insure proper and efficient handling of all criminal cases. There would never be occasion for the county to employ additional assistance in the trial of any case, and the Board of Supervisors would find him an able counsellor. In addition it is pointed out that Mr. Fitch is clean, honest and square. All could depend upon receiving fair, just and impartial treatment at his hands. In his campaign, he is not asking the support of any faction, organization of other influence, but stands on the broad ground that if elected he will be the servant of all the people without regard to class or condition. This is in keeping with character of the man and we approve of his attitude.

COUNTY BUSINESS

The people are coming to realize the importance of keeping a keen eye on the conduct of county business. Strangely enough a county is the only unit of our government system that does not have a President, Governor, Mayor or other recognized executive head. Ostensibly, the sheriff is the executive, but custom has made him more of a police officer than an administrative officer. We could never understand the theory of such an institution. There is no official who is charged with the duty of keeping the county ship in a straight course and as a result either the whole crew is giving signals, or the wheel is neglected entirely. This might be all right in fair weather but it is mighty poor seamanship in a fog. Let's look to this business.

TWO STRIKES and THREE BALLS

Everybody in the Hole

Moonshine on Bridge street is helping out the load on the electric light plant these dark nights.

Strange how this moonshine business keeps running into politics.

It's great fun to follow the trail of Mr. Pussy-foot through the political swamp. Talk about cross trails, the trails are crossed and double crossed—mostly double. One of these trails hooks up with Mr. Jones in one of our towns; takes you out into the country a ways, then hooks up with Mr. Brown, and takes you into another principal city. That trail would make you dizzy before you get to the polls.

Zero in law enforcement is reached when the drys vote up and down the ballot thermometer.

That small, fine cross that distinguishes the woman's ballot will likely "dry" up the political atmosphere after the primary election.

If you don't succeed, "dry," "dry" again.

From all indications the Gaylord Boozie Transit Company will soon be able to run a boat on the line through this county.

The auto robe of the boozie runner covers up a multitude of sins. Watch the sag in the springs of incoming automobiles.

Three gallons at $33 1-3 per is about the price of a cheap coffin.

The bait used on the Sturgeon by some local fishermen recently seems to be expensive. Another argument in favor of the dry fly.

Can it be said that the attills of Charlevoix county are still attill.

A new (?) idea—politicians going up in the air.

What would happen of the weather man should go on a strike?

"Are you a tither? A happy tither? Do you turn one-tenth back unto the Lord?"

Well, you should be one, Your duty's not done Until you share your income with him;

For blessings without number he will shower on you, Pressed down, running over, is his promise true.

Are you a tither? A happy tither? Come, be a tither, too."

The Urge of Success. Once the urge of success gets you, there is born a several urge unsatisfied with inferior things. It compels success. The problems that discourage weakness but fire into the blood and make men irresistible. The neighbors wonder how it all happens. It doesn't happen. It's just nature asserting herself and worthy youth coming into his own.—Exclamation.

The "Fearless Victory." According to Plutarch, the "fearless victory" was the name given by the Spartans to the victory won by their king, Archimedes III, in 367 B. C., over the combined forces of the Argives and Athenians, without the loss of a single man on the Spartan side. It is said that as many as ten thousand Argives fell in the struggle.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

To the Voters of Charlevoix County: I wish to announce that I am a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Charlevoix county, and my name will appear on the September 12 primary ballot.

The duties of sheriff are not unfamiliar to me, having served during the years 1915-18. I devoted every minute of my time to county affairs during this period, and will, if nominated and elected, serve the county to the best of my ability.

I will appreciate not only your vote, but your confidence during my candidacy. Pol. Adv. 34tf.

CHARLES H. EMERY FOR COUNTY CLERK

Since Mr. Emery has been County Treasurer $72,000.00 in County Road Bonds have been cancelled and the interest stopped, plans have also been arranged for the incoming treasurer to cancel an additional $30,000.00, so that in April 1923, a total of $102,000.00 of our County Road Bonds will be cancelled, which is nearly one-third of our entire county indebtedness.

Mr. Emery has handled more county money during the past four years than has ever been handled in the same office in any other ten years, because of the County Road Bond issue and the great amount of money expended in construction and maintenance of county highways.

Mr. Emery is a tax payer and has held county office only four years, while his opponent, Mr. Weaver, has been granted eight years in office.

Mr. Emery gave up all other work when elected to the office of County Treasurer and has worked diligently the past four years in the service of all who have come in contact with this busy office.

Compare the record made by Mr. Emery as your County Treasurer with the record made by his opponent Mr. Weaver and then vote without friendship and without malice, but with ability and service as your only guide and my the best man win. Pol. Adv. 35tf.

For County Treasurer

In announcing my candidacy for the office of County Treasurer, I wish to give the people of Charlevoix county all the information possible. I believe that my long residence in the county and the long experience I have had as bookkeeper of a large and important business and the knowledge gained by that experience, will enable me to give to the county the service that the office of county treasurer demands. If elected to the office, I shall devote my attention and endeavor to make every possible saving in expenditures and keep very close watch over the finances of the county. I believe that the people of Charlevoix county are entitled to a real business administration and I ask your earnest inspection and thoughtful consideration at the coming September primary.

Respectfully yours, Grover C. Geneit. Pol. Adv. 35tf.

INTERESTING BITS OF IN- FORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A Grand Rapids judge has ordered that county prisoners must serve out their time in jail, and not work it out in factories, garages and offices, but, of course, the latter form may sometimes be used for the very worst offenders.

A report comes from Midland that during a recent storm there, hailstones fell as large as hen's eggs. In seeking the source of this report, we have already ascertained that it did not start from the farmer who sold the hen's eggs.

In order to save coal, one of the factories at St. Joseph has discontinued blowing the morning whistle. It is just possible, but hardly to be hoped for, that other factories will do this too, in order to save coal, and will keep it up in order to save noise.

President Friday, of M. A. C., says the annual net income of the farming industry in Michigan will increase by $50,000 within the next five years. Now if only the farmers will lay off a little of that hard work, and rest up so they'll be able to enjoy spending it!

Enough whiskey to intoxicate a whole town was taken by Flint police one day last week, states a news item. One assumes naturally, that if the haul was enough to intoxicate the faithful drys, it would have to include two or three bottles of strawberry pop.

A farmer near Kalamazoo while trimming trees found at the base of one of them a reticule containing a large assortment of diamond rings, fobs, gold chains and earbobs. If the farm hand to whom they are supposed to belong can identify them they will be gladly returned.

Uncle George Says:

My heart aches whenever I read advertisements in the bonding circulars of the building of gravel or soft stuff roads. I know what is in store for the people who pay for the construction of such roads.

Paul D. Sngent, Chief Engineer State Highway Commissioner of Maine, in a letter to the Kennebec, Maine, Journal April 13, 1922 said: "In my judgement the proceeds of State bonds for highway roads should only be expended in building roads that are nearly permanent as it is possible to make them. It looks to me like poor business to issue 20 or 30 year bonds to cover the construction of a road that will last only five or six years."

This truism should be indelibly impressed upon the minds of every tax payer and every boy and girl in the United States for the latter are those who will have to pay the bonds. Everything you eat, wear, use, buy, sell or play with has to be hauled over a road at some stage of production or distribution. Bad roads throttle distribution. Good roads facilitate distribution and enhance the social life of any neighborhood. A progressive community must have good roads. A common sense study of fundamentals proves that roads carrying modern traffic must be equipped with a rigid surface strong enough to carry rapidly moving loads of great weight. You can influence your community toward the adoption of a correct policy of highway improvement. It is your privilege and duty to insist that public funds shall be invested so as to insure permanent benefits. Your community will receive dividends in low upkeep, continuous service and genuine satisfaction by investing in Concrete Roads and you will receive the thanks of your community for having "fathered" this Good Concrete Road movement.

Remember—a day's labor and a ton of materials costs as much for a temporary road as for an enduring concrete road. The first will be a liability; the concrete road a dividend paying investment.

Never bond except for a permanent road.

Yours truly,
"Uncle" George H. Van Pelt.

STRAIGHTEN THAT BENT BACK

No need to suffer from that tired, dead ache in your back, that lameness, those distressing urinary disorders. Charlevoix people have found how to get relief. Follow this Charlevoix resident's example.

Mrs. Dan Bacot, 105 Lincoln St. says: "My back was stiff and sore just over my kidneys. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly so I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and got a few boxes. They rid me of the trouble in a very satisfactory manner."

AT THE MOVIES

It affords us pleasure to announce the forthcoming presentation at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday, of Cecil B. De Mille's superb Paramount production, "Saturday Night." This is said to be one of the finest pictures ever produced by Mr. De Mille, and that is saying much. The story was written by Jeanie Macpherson, author of many De Mille screen classics and the cast is practically all star. The principal players include Leatrice Joy, Conrad Nagel, Edith Roberts, Jack Mower, Julia Faye, Theodore Roberts and Sylvia Ashton—all artists of the finest grade.

"Peacock Alley" Coming

It is not often that motion picture fans are given the opportunity to see the latest and most stylish costumes presented by one of the most attractive artists of the screen in a story vibrant with romance and adventure, but that is what Mac Murray's picture, "Peacock Alley," is. It will be shown Saturday and Sunday at the Palace Theatre.

DODGE BROTHERS COMMERCIAL CAR

The car's long established reputation for faithful, low-cost service has not influenced Dodge Brothers in their constant seeking after betterments.

A semi-floating rear-axle is now provided, embodying the latest ideas in rear axle design. The main housing is 75 per cent stronger. One large Timken bearing at the hub replaces two small bearings and gives 100 per cent greater carrying capacity. Larger ring gear and drive pinion make possible a new, tooth shape, giving quiet operation and 45 per cent increase in strength. Larger front and rear propeller shaft bearings more than double the drive thrust capacity.

Conservative changes in body lines have materially enhanced the attractiveness of the car's appearance.

A Triumph for Value

In the past two months Firestone has built and marketed more tires than in any similar period in its history.

This steadily increasing public preference is proof of the recognition by car owners of the greater values offered by Firestone. It is a tribute to Firestone men—all stockholders in the company—all actuated by the operating principle of Most Miles per Dollar.

The high average performance of Firestone Cords is without equal in the annals of tire making and is reflected by the general tendency to specify Firestone for hard service. Taxicab and bus lines, buying tires by the mile, are universally equipping with Firestone Cords.

There are many reasons for the high quality of Firestone tires but chief among the special manufacturing processes are double gum-dipping, thus eliminating internal friction by insulating each cord strand, and air-bag cure, insuring a well-balanced and perfectly shaped product.

Don't speculate in tires—you will find the right combination of price and quality in Firestone. Come in and let us tell you about the service these Cords are giving other car-owners whom you know.

FREE CLINIC FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Held Under Auspices of Boyne City
Rotary Club Thursday

The Rotary Club of Boyne City is back of a campaign to have all of the crippled children of any age in Charlevoix county, or children with any chronic disease, examined at a clinic to be held in the Public Library at Boyne City August 31st, commencing at nine o'clock a. m. Physicians and surgeons of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City will conduct this clinic, which will be free.

After the examination we will be in a position to advise you what can be done for your child, and if you lack funds a way will be provided to care for the expense of treatment.

It is an established fact that seventy-five per cent of the crippled children can be cured.

There will be no operations or treatments given at this clinic. We want to examine your crippled child and by our advice and judgment have the child treated so that these crippled children may be cured, giving them the same chance in life as normal children.

MICHIGAN CROPS IN GOOD SHAPE

CORN DEVELOPING SLOWLY ON ACCOUNT OF COOL DAYS

Oat Harvest Completed Except in Northern Districts and Threshing is Under Way.

All Michigan crops, in general, are in good condition for this time of year, says the semi-monthly crop report issued by Vern H. Church, agricultural statistician. The yields of wheat and rye are disappointing in the south-western section of the state, but good yields are reported in the Thumb district.

Church's report on various crops follows:

"Corn crop is developing slowly due to the retarding influence of cool weather. Local showers have greatly benefitted the drier sections.

"Reports of light wheat yields are general in western and southern counties. Fields are considered better in the eastern district. There is much shrunken wheat in south-western counties. There is much that is of good quality in other sections.

"Rye yields are also disappointing in many sections. Threshing is well advanced.

"Oat harvesting is completed except in northern districts and threshing is under way. The crop is fairly good and much better than expected earlier in the season.

"The potato crop is doing well at the present time although late blight is feared because of the cool and moist weather prevailing over much of the potato belt. Early potatoes are yielding well.

"Beans continue to show good growth except in a few localities where blight is reported. Weather conditions are favorable for a good setting of pods.

"The condition of all truck crops is good except melons. The weather has been too cool for rapid growth of melons.

"Early apples are plentiful and moving freely. There is much scab on certain varieties. Winter apples are a fair crop in all sections and there is much clean fruit in well sprayed orchards. The peach crop promises well and early varieties are being marketed. The quality is good.
Pears and plums are plentiful."

FIRST ANNUAL POTATO TOUR

FIELDS IN ALL PARTS OF COUNTY VISITED

Result of Tour of Great Benefit to Farmers—May hold Similar Event Next Year

The first annual Potato Tour was held in Charlevoix county last Monday and Tuesday, August 21st and 22nd. The tour, consisting of several autos was met at Ellsworth by the County Agricultural Agent, conducted to East Jordan where a very thorough investigation was made of the East Jordan Co-Operative Association and all agreed that it was one of the fine institutions of the state.

From there the tour went to Steve Shepard's place, north of town, visiting his potato field and also his alfalfa field. A very unique demonstration was to be seen there, comparing the value of common and Grim alfalfa. This demonstration proved that everything was in favor of the Grim alfalfa. It is expected that this will be more noticeable as the two fields, which are side by side, grow older. It is generally noticed that the Grim is of a much higher vitality and has greater staying power when once a good stand is established.

The next stop was at the county farm where a very interesting demonstration had been conducted in the use of fertilizers. Of course, the actual results in yield per bushel cannot be obtained until after digging time, however, if tops are any criterion, as to the yield, it can safely be said that the use of a good grade of commercial fertilizer is a mighty good investment.

The next stop was at Peta Kariskin's place, south of Advance, where he had used two different kinds of seed. At planting time there was a noticeable difference in this seed, and it is a great deal more apparent now than then. In the patch of the poor seed the writer observed that within a fifty foot radius, five of the most prominent potato diseases were very noticeable. Mr. Kariskin has some 25 or 30 acres in one piece and has every reason to expect a very nice crop.

The next stop was at the Breezy Point farm, Mr. H. L. Barnum, manager. Here a demonstration was to be seen on spraying and dusting. At this place there was no noticeable difference between the two methods of using the Bordeaux. The field was in excellent condition and an asset to the tour.

Here the tour crossed the ferry, went down the west side of the lake to James Secord's place. At Mr. Secord's place an interesting demonstration in the nature of two different kinds of cover crops plowed under, namely rye, vetch and sweet clover. The complete results of this field will be available later.

The next stop was at Harry Behling's. Although Mr. Behling's patch is small, he has a field of perhaps the nicest top growth on the tour.

Tuesday morning the group left Boyne City at 7:00 o'clock and visited Mr. Otto Kurner's patch where he had a very interesting demonstration involving spring and fall plowing of a timothy sod. Here again the tops showed a decided difference in favor of fall plowing.

From Mr. Kurner's the tour went to Bert Lumley's where another fertilizer demonstration is being conducted, demonstrating the value of commercial fertilizer over nothing, also the value of commercial fertilizer when used with barnyard manure.

From Mr. Lumley's the tour was conducted to F. W. Dilworth's patch at Horton Bay. Mr. Dilworth has used dust entirely in his spray operations during the summer. Mr. Dilworth's potatoes were on new ground and the deductions made were that if dust is to be used where hoppers are a serious menace, one must keep after them very diligently.

FRIENDS HONOR CAPT. AND MRS. PUGH

A delightful farewell was given last Friday evening at the Bartlett House in honor of Captain and Mrs. Pugh, formerly of the local Coast Guard, who left for their home in Ladington, for a short stay, when they will leave to spend the winter in Florida.

About twenty-five friends were present to enjoy a pot-luck supper, with ice cream and cake and after spending a very pleasant evening, departed, wishing the Captain and wife the best of luck in their trip south.

ations during the summer. Mr. Dilworth's potatoes were on new ground and the deductions made were that if dust is to be used where hoppers are a serious menace, one must keep after them very diligently.

From Mr. Dilworth's the tour went to Eugene Stroud's place. Here a very decided check was noticeable of sprayed over unsprayed. Mr. Stroud has been using a high pressure sprayer and the results as far as tops are concerned at present, are very convincing; proving that when hoppers are present, high pressure spraying certainly pays.

The next stop was at Floyd Bartholemew's. Here Mr. Bartholemew had a demonstration in high pressure spraying and dusting. It was the general opinion of those present that results were in favor of the high pressure spraying. The next stop was at Lea Sneathen's. Mr. Sneathen has started some very interesting work involving the use of U. S. grade No. 1 and cull seed. Aside from this, Mr. Sneathen has conducted a fertilizer demonstration, the result of which will prove a very interesting at digging time. These two items of interest in connection with some hill-selected stock, made a very interesting feature of the tour.

The writer wishes that every farmer in Charlevoix county growing potatoes whether certified or common table stock, might have been with us (Continued on page eight.)

OF GRAND RAPIDS ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE

Will Visit Charlevoix at Noon Hour on Thursday, September 28—
Tour Northern Michigan

The Wholesalers Department of the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce will make its 16th annual Fall Trade Tour, September 26, 27, 28 and 29.

The Grand Rapids Wholesalers have 5 fall trade tours, making one of them each year. The territory to be covered this year always calls out more of the wholesalers than any of the others, so another big party is expected for the September tour with every indication of even a larger attendance than has covered this popular route in previous years.

The Furniture City band will accompany the wholesalers on the tour, playing at all day stops and giving concert programs at the evening meetings.

The wholesalers special train will leave Grand Rapids at 6:50 A. M., Tuesday, September 26, making nine stops the first day. The Furniture City Band will open the program at each stop with a band concert, which will be followed by short talks by members of the wholesalers party.

The second day, Wednesday, September 27, opens at Manton at 7:30 A. M., other stops during the day being at Walton Junction, Fife Lake, South Boardman, Kalkaska, Westwood, Antrim, Mancelona, Alba, Elmira, Boyne Falls and Boyne City, where another evening program will be given.

Stops for Thursday, September 28, include Clarion, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Bay View, Bayshore, Charlevoix, Ellsworth, East Jordan, Central Lake, Bellaire, Alden, Rapid City, Williamsburg and Traverse City, where the Furniture City band will give a concert for this wholesalers and their guests from Traverse City and neighboring points.

The bunch will arrive at Charlevoix at 12:15, remaining here for one hour. Preparations are under way to meet the wholesalers with cars and show them the beauty spots of Charlevoix.

Friday, September 29, the fourth and last day of the tour, includes stops on the Pere Marquette south of Traverse City. Secretary Bierce, who was here last week arranging for the tour, reports that a hearty welcome will be ready for the Grand Rapids men at every point along the route.

LOOKS FAVORABLE FOR ALDRICH

CONGRESSIONAL BATTLE GROWS IN INTENSITY

Searchlight Being Turned on Record of Frank D. Scott by Opponent F. B. Aldrich

One of the hottest contested political fights being waged prior to the September 12 primary and in which the people of this community are greatly interested, is the contest between Frank D. Scott, present incumbent and a two term, and Frank B. Aldrich, a Cheboygan county farmer, former representative from that district, for congressional honors.

It will be remembered that Scott defeated Joe Bayliss by a slight margin eight years ago, and four years ago won out against James Wood of Manistique. During these campaigns the upper peninsula gave Scott an overwhelming majority, but the followers of Aldrich are most emphatic in their statement that this year the tables will be turned, and the upper peninsula, practically every county, will give Aldrich a nice majority.

Scott has been severely censured for his attitude taken when voting on the Esch-Cummings bill, a bill which when passed increased freight rates and placed an extra burden on the shoulders of the farmer. He also, according to his record, voted to reduce the tax on the millionaires, again throwing the burden of taxation on the shoulders of the common people.

An investigation of his record shows that so far as the common people of his district are concerned, he accomplished little if nothing in their behalf. His Washington record, as far as can be learned, compares favorably to his record while state senator from this district.

Frank E. Aldrich, who seeks to defeat Scott, is not a vote-dodger or a side-stepper, but a man who has and will do things. He has served two terms in Michigan State legislature and has a fine record for work done in the interests of the common people. He is responsible for the payment of the Michigan Soldier's bonus and is father of the Michigan Trunk Line Highway bill, which is giving us all our good roads at a small percentage of cost to the county.

He has the endorsement of granges throughout the district, laboring men are standing back of him to a man, and a majority of farmers' organizations are with him. If you want a man to Represent You, and not misrepresent you, cast your vote for Aldrich. It's time we had a change.

A. A. WHITE DIES AT LONG BEACH

Former Central Lake Man Expires
Suddenly

Allen A. White, a former business man of Central Lake, died suddenly at his home in Long Beach, California, Monday, according to a telegram received by his son, Guy E. White. Heart trouble is believed to have been the cause of his death as no word of illness had been received. He was troubled with leakage of the heart. Mr. White was at one time prominent in business circles in Central Lake, being affiliated with the Loken, Brown Lumber Co., operating a sawmill at Essex. For several years Mr. White was employed as bookkeeper for the concern which he was affiliated with. The funeral was held Wednesday; the burial taking place at Long Beach—Central Lake Torch.

Mr. White was the father of Guy E. White, engineer in charge of construction work at the new water plant in this city.

COLORED MAN AGAIN IN TROUBLE

Returned to Jail After Serving Thirty Days

Melvin May, colored, who was lately released from the county jail after serving a sentence of thirty days, was again taken in custody Saturday for entering the grocery store of N. J. Rovick at Boyne City. Upon his release May went to East Jordan and walked to Boyne City, where he committed the robbery. Prosecuting Attorney Ruegger was in conference with Judge Mayo on Monday and May will be on his way to Ionia sometime during the week.

BABY SHOW AT COUNTY FAIR

LITTLE TOTS WILL HAVE THEIR DAY THIS YEAR

Fair Officials Take Out Insurance Against Bad Weather—All Set for Week of Fun

Look who's here! A Baby Conference at the Charlevoix County Fair!

Frank F. Bird, bustling secretary of the fair, had been hearing so much about livestock that he began to reflect. The bogs had to be up on their toes with nice arched backs; the milk cows had to show dairy type; the horses had to have good bone, be well coupled, and all the rest of it.

"But why neglect the babies?" asked Farmer Bird, as he pondered. Then he began to smile. "We'll put on a baby show and give the mothers a chance," he told himself, and the Baby Conference is the result of this happy resolution.

And if you are interested in children, don't miss it. A county physician will examine all babies and children up to six years of age free of charge. Miss Charlotte Ludington, director of the northern nursing district, will be at the fair and it is expected that a lay worker from the Department of Health at Lansing, will arrive Wednesday to assist Miss Ludington.

The Baby Conference will be held in the school room of the educational building Wednesday and Thursday of next week, the fair opening Monday and closing Friday. Supplies for the conference have been received from Dr. Blanche M. Haines, director of child hygiene and public health nursing, who writes that all that is now needed is "plenty of babies." Bring on the little darlings!

And here's another batch of good news! The fair association has put the kibosh on the weather jinx by taking out rain insurance of $1,000 per day for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. No sane weather man would start to acting up in the face of such a loss, and it is believed he is down for the count of five full days.

A program at once interesting, entertaining and instructive awaits you and your family and friends. Lend your support to the county fair—your county fair.

Plan to go—and GO!

QUIET WEDDING AT WEAVER HOME

Popular Charlevoix Girl Weds Saranac Young Man

Saturday, September 2, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, occurred the wedding of Miss Marjorie Weaver, daughter of Captain and Mrs. George Weaver, at their residence on Antrim street, to Donald C. Gafney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey M. Gafney of Saranac, Ionia county.

The bride, who has been employed as teacher in the south high school in Grand Rapids, the past two years, is one of Charlevoix's best known young ladies, and the groom is employed by an undertaking firm in Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Finucan, the bride's sister and husband, acted as best man and brides maid. The immediate members of the families of both bride and groom were the only guests present. The parlors in the Weaver home were tastefully decorated with a profusion of flowers, and a wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Clarence W. Long.

It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Gafney will establish their residence in Owosso, where Mr. Gafney will go into business for himself. The young couple have the heartiest good wishes of all who know them.

Visiting Former Friends Here

C. E. Swallow of Lockport, N. Y., is in the city visiting relatives and renewing old acquaintances. Mr. Swallow is a former resident of Charlevoix, having first come here to live over forty years ago. About twenty years ago he left for a few years, again returning and continued his residence here until twelve years ago, when he went East. He says regardless of his long absence, Charlevoix is home to him more than any other place.

ABSENTEES NEED NOT LOSE VOTE

Citizens Away Primary Day May Vote by Mail

No Charlevoix city or county registered voter need lose the privilege of casting his ballot in the Sept. 12 primaries if only he will take proper steps to obtain an absent voter's ballot. Persons who desire such ballots are urged to apply to the city or township clerk immediately, either in person or by mail.

Upon request the clerk will issue a printed application blank. When this has been filled out properly, sworn to before a notary public and tendered to the clerk, that official will issue an absent voter's ballot. This ballot must in turn be filled out, sworn to and returned to the clerk in time to be turned in in the proper precinct on election day. The whole transaction can be handled through the mails if necessary, but should be handled in person if possible. Absent voter's ballots are issued to voters who are kept at home by chronic illness or obliged to be absent from home on election day.

Voters who have changed precincts since last election day must go to their old precincts on Sept. 12, obtain transfer slips and turn them in at the new precinct polling place before they will be permitted to vote.

LOCAL TEAM SHUT OUT EAST JORDAN

O'HARA PITCHES NO RUN GAME ON LABOR DAY

Air-Tight Support Helps Blank Fast
East Jordan Team—Best Game of Year

Supported by all members of the local team from start to finish, Pat O'Hara pitched a three hit, no-run game against the fast and hard hitting East Jordan boys on Labor Day.

An enthusiastic crowd of about eight hundred loyal fans witnessed the first shut-out in the Northern league and great credit is due the Charlevoix team, insofar as East Jordan defeated Harbor Springs on Sunday last.

A peculiar feature of Monday's game, was three hits for each team, East Jordan failing to earn any runs, while the local boys put three over. Davison for Charlevoix scored the first run in the fourth, Hannah and Burden bringing in the other two in the seventh. Both teams were about equally matched, and but for a decision by umpire Dr. Frank of Harbor Springs, president of the league, in the fourth inning, the game would have gone through without a hitch.

In this inning, Hannah running to first, was called safe. East Jordan managers refused to accept this decision and decided to stop the game. Umpire Frank declared Charlevoix winner 9 to 0 on account of the visiting team refusing to take the field. Had it not been for the untiring efforts of our local manager, Leo Powers, the game would have ended and a repetition of the Harbor Springs game would have added another blot to the clean game of base ball.

In earnest behalf of the Charlevoix manager, Leo Powers, we want to say right now, that "Si" is a red-blooded Charlevoix boy, deserving of anything the citizens may do or can do to help him in his unflinching efforts to make Charlevoix the best little place in the world. Please remember that Powers does not get one penny for his work, and it is up to the people to give him their wholehearted support. When the season closes, if the "Boys" are a little short, let us dig down and give them a boost. Think what your little city would be, if it were not for the team.

ATTENDANCE A RECORD BREAKER

CHARLEVOIX MAKES A HIT WITH PYTHIANS.

Annual Pythian Grand Lodge Convention a Success Both in Attendance and Enthusiasm

The annual convention of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters opened at the Inn Tuesday with the largest attendance, both in delegates of each order and visiting members, of any convention held in the state for a number of years. It is conservatively estimated that delegates will exceed three hundred, and visitors will swell the number to over four hundred and fifty.

Delegates began to arrive Sunday, the largest number however, arriving Monday and on the early train Tuesday morning. Little work of the convention was accomplished Tuesday, other than registering of delegates and committee work.

Tuesday was golf day, and those eligible spent a greater part of the day at this favorite pastime. We understand some exceptional scores were made, and the finishing games will be played off Thursday.

Wednesday was devoted to work of the convention, and the election of officers. The invitation of Mt. Clemens was accepted for the 1923 meeting of both the grand lodge and Pythian Sisters.

A move that will result in creating greater interest in the order was accomplished, making provisions for a state deputy chancellor with a salary of $3,000.00 a year, whose duties will be to visit each lodge in the state, assist in membership drives, and devote his entire time and energies toward building up subordinate lodges and increasing interest in Pythianism in the state. Without doubt Chas. W. Lasher will be the appointee.

Amendments were also passed for a Foundation Relief Fund law, providing for three trustees to have charge of the fund.

Wednesday afternoon was devoted to election of officers with the following result:

James C. Wood, Grand Chancellor.
Fred D. Vos, Grand Vice Chancellor.

Ray O. Brundage, Grand Prelate.
W. E. Hampton, G. K. R. & S.
H. N. Clement, G. M. of E.
Wm. M. Wetmore, G. M. of A.
Earl Vrooman, G. I. G.

Thos. P. McKimmie, G. O. G.
Wednesday evening the prize winning essays were read and the winners, Miss Margaret Moore of St. Clair and Miss Bernice Austin of Tecumseh, were each presented with fine gold wrist watches, the presentation speech being made by Hon. Geo. Lusk of Bay City.

Thursday will be devoted to clearing remaining routine business and sightseeing. Visiting delegates will have the opportunity of seeing "Charlevoix the Beautiful" both from land and water, the Str. Bruce having been chartered for hourly excursions, and cars provided for those who wish to take in the beautiful drives and visit various places of interest.

Charlevoix has entertained some four hundred and fifty members of one of the best fraternal organizations in the world. Nothing has been left undone to give them a good time, and judging from outspoken words from our visitors, they appreciate the efforts in their behalf.

When it comes to housing and entertaining a convention crowd, we take off our hats to Manager A. I. Creamer of the Inn. Nothing was overlooked and the crowd enjoyed every facility of this well known and popular summer hotel.

The citizens of Charlevoix extended the hand of welcome to the visitors and have shown the true Charlevoix spirit of hospitality. Come again, Pythians.

BUY WOOD—SAVE COAL SAYS ADMINISTRATOR

Captain G. C. Geiken, local fuel administrator wishes to impress upon the local people at this time, the necessity of buying wood in preference to coal. Wood can be had at a reasonable price and it is to the advantage of the consumer to lay in a supply at this time. He advises that prices on coal will perhaps be normal sometime in January or February.

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord

A Popular-Priced Cord Tire Without a Rival

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord Tire is built with genuine high-grade long-staple cotton as a foundation.

It is liberally oversize—the 4½-inch tire, for example, measuring nearly 5 inches.

The deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern of its tread affords excellent traction even in snow and mud, engaging the road like a cogwheel.

The scientific distribution of rubber in this tread—the wide center rib and the semi-flat contour—gives a thick, broad surface that is exceedingly slow to wear.

This new tire is a genuine Goodyear through and through—in design, in material, in construction.

It costs less to buy than the net price you are asked to pay for many "long discount" tires of unknown reputation and value.

Why be satisfied with less than this efficient tire can give—why take a chance on an unknown make?

Compare these prices with NET prices you are asked to pay for "long discount" tires

POSSIBLE LIFE ON PLANETS

Existence on Moon, Jupiter, Saturn, Mercury, Uranus, Neptune, improbable, Scientists Say.

The possible existence of life on the planets has lately been discussed in a most interesting manner by American astronomers. This is a summary of the conclusions of these scientists upon the question. It is considered that the existence of a high form of life on the moon, Jupiter, Saturn, Mercury, Uranus or Neptune is extremely improbable. Although Venus greatly resembles the earth, it is generally believed by astronomers that the day and the year of the planet are of equal duration. In that case no life can exist upon it. Concerning Mars, astronomers are not agreed as to whether the much-discussed markings are canals or merely earthquake cracks. There are no permanent bodies of water on the planet. The best that can be said is that, although the temperature on Mars is very low, there may be on the planet, to a limited extent, the conditions essential to life; probably only vegetable and low-order animal life, but no beings of intelligence.

Presidential Power

Out of the mass of "strike" suggestions there constantly arises the suggestion that congress should give President Harding "authority to meet any great national emergency." After that the proponents of the idea feel that congress may safely adjourn.

It may be noted that administration newspapers have delegated this idea to their best writers, and the suggestion sounds most plausible as it appears on paragraph one, column one, page one, of the Washington Post and other organs that are supposed to speak for the White House.

Any broad additional authority given the President must come from congress. It ought not to be forgotten that the exercise of this kind of authority by former President Wilson created a tremendous storm of disapproval, and many people believe it was responsible for the repudiation of the Democratic party and the election of Mr. Harding. It was under this measure of unlimited authority that President Wilson took over the telephones, telegraph and cable lines after the signing of the armistice.

The President of the United States is commander in chief of the army and navy, but he never exercises the powers required by an "emergency" without express direction from congress. And congress so lately jealous of the alleged "usurpation" of its powers by the Executive, and composed in a large degree of the same members who flayed Mr. Wilson for that "usurpation of power," is likely to think several times before it passes on to even Mr. Harding, who stands in the highest favor with its members, the authority to deal single handed and alone with the industrial "emergency."

The Political Pitch

The country has become so thoroughly "independent" in politics that Washington wonders what will be the effect of the strike situation on election day. The national capital furnishes a good viewpoint from which to watch the direction of winds and straws. Just at present the straws seem to be whirling in political eddies. The administration acts with regard to the strikes have aroused storms of protest in some quarters, and as vigorous approval in other places. Beside the industrial troubles the Republicans are naturally held responsible for the tariff, soldier's bonus, merchant marine, and varied other present day troubles. The war graft that it was claimed would be plucked to the late Democratic regime have been tardy in development. In the face of these conditions it is natural to have politicians speculating as to what the political harvest will be.

The Congressional Elections

Naturally every man on Capitol Hill is interested in the congressional elections. To begin with the Republicans admit in private conversations that they would function better if their majorities were not so large in the two branches of congress. At the same time they are sure that their political strength has not been impaired. Numerical strength apparently weakens party responsibility and leaves the politicians all shifting for themselves. On the other side of the fence one finds boastful Democrats anticipating new successes at the polls this fall. Their old chieftain, Mr. Bryan, has been at the capital drilling the faithful how to raise the party war whoop. In the different national political headquarters tons of literature is being prepared for the fray. From the amount of editorial material being whipped into shape it would seem that editors throughout the country may soon find their waste paper baskets taxed to the limit.

Uncle Sam Loses Best Lawyers

The government loses another strong team of lawyers. Edward M. Hyzer has left his post as General Counsel of the Shipping Board, and William G. Wheeler, high in the affairs of the railroad administration, has likewise forsaken official duties, and these two eminent lawyers will henceforth be associated in Washington, D. C., in the private practice of their profession.

The return of Messrs. Hyzer and Wheeler to private legal pursuits is an added chapter to the "continued story" which relates the withdrawal of the best lawyers of the country from the public service. The explanation is that the duties are usually burdensome and the scale of compensation too much of a personal sacrifice. Mr. Hyzer was formerly Vice President and General Counsel of the great Chicago and Northwestern railroad system; while Mr. Wheeler was United States District Attorney in Wisconsin for many years before becoming a railroad

General Solicitor and Assistant General Counsel of the Railroad Administration. They have now returned to the lawyer's haven of delight where "the man who first invented work left in unbound and free," and have resumed practice before the Supreme Court, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Shipping Board and the Treasury Department, and other administrative branches of the government.

The Industrial Crimp

For many months the industrial situation has been on the upgrade, and a great era of prosperity was confidently expected for the last half of this year. The railroad strike and the coal mining upheaval have served to disturb practically every form of industry. The announcement of Henry Ford that he would shut down his great manufacturing plants has afforded one of the spectacular features in connection with the present industrial crimp. In administration quarters it has been pointed out that the manufacturing interests can get coal, but no one attempts to deny that "bootlegging in coal" as the Mayor of Detroit describes it, is causing prices to soar. Despite the sensational statements of Mr. Ford those who know the political and industrial situation, are free to state that prospective rising prices in the cost of steel and other raw materials have doubtless been the principal governing factor in retrenchment among some of the manufacturing, at the moment when production had reached its peak and the saturation point was in sight.

"Home Grown" Potash

Prior to 1914 the potash used for American agricultural purposes was among themonopolies stamped "Made in Germany." The Department of Agriculture, in a report on the Searles Lake, California, potash fields, says that the yarns set in circulation regarding the dangers of using American potash for fertilizers is entirely without foundation. On the contrary, the report shows that the potash produced in the United States "is now of the highest degree of purity."

Borah Favors Coal Commission Senator Borah wants a federal coal commission that will undertake to ascertain the facts with reference to coal conditions and to crystallize those facts into recommendations for laws to regulate the industry. In the discussion of the proposal in the senate it has been brought out that numerous "investigations" have been made of the coal industry but only to the effect of crowding the "pig-eon-holes" of congress. The senate is seriously considering the proposal for a commission as the way out of an intolerable industrial situation.

The Modern Girl's Way.

The familiar story of the young man who goes West to build a new home for the little girl he has left behind is reversed in the case of Miss May V. After a three months' stay she will return with her husband to the Canadian west.

Can't Doctor Stumps.

Boring holes in stumps and filling them with saltpeter or something else to hasten decay is a waste of time according to the foresters of the State Agricultural college at Ithaca, N. Y. The holes do give added surface for nature's destructive agents to work on, but only digging, chopping, burning, or blowing out will quickly dispose of stumps that can't wait for the slow process of decay.

As far as the extent of the Pacific goes, its immensity is a drawback to its commerce. If it were half as wide it would carry a much heavier tonnage. THE PROFITEER

More power to the arm that is reaching for the profiteer seeking to mulct the public because of a disaster of industry. There is no more execrable creature in the land today than this type, and by the same token nothing more popular right now could be done by the government officials than to take steps to balk his designs, whether undertaken in an individual or a corporate capacity. At the moment it is the likelihood of attempted gouging in the matter of coal that impels official action but the occasion makes opportuna some reflection on the case of the profiteer as a species.

Profiteering, in the present general acceptance of the term, was a creation of the World War, and having gotten away with it so successfully when the country was ready to stand many things that were not as they should be, the disciples of the infiction have thought that they could keep up the practice for all the future. They purposed to capitalize the minor as well as the greater calamities affecting the country and exact toll on what appeared to be their own misfortunes as well as the public's. It is high time that a halt was called, and if the contempt held by public opinion and the moderate efforts of public servants to safeguard the interests of the population as a whole be not enough something more drastic is in order.

The theory upon which the profiteering system is predicated is a paraphrase of the well understood and now trite saying that "the public pays the tax." The public is the "goat" whatever happens—the innocent bystander that gets it in the neck while contesting elements are engaged in industrial warfare, and that is expecting to go into its pockets with great complacency when strife is settled, to make good the losses of revenue suffered while the struggle continued and add something to boot. The attitude of certain profiteering classes and groups with respect to the public, not only when there are strikes and the like, but in normal times, has been akin to that of the confidant man toward what he terms, the "suckers." And the public has been easy. It has protested—and paid. It has been a worm; and it is time that the worm turned.

Public opinion is a tremendous power when duly concentrated, and it can amplify the good work inaugurated by public officials in connection with an exalting situation by putting the brand of a parish on profiteers in general—the ignominious mark of a practice that becomes more detestable with the lapse of time from the period of its inception and greatest flourish.

As the primary approaches we venture this guess. Senator Townsend will go up to Wayne county with a majority. If the Jackson man gets an even break in Wayne he will win. In other words Wayne county is likely to be the deciding factor. One unusually keen observer of Michigan politics writes Townsend will carry 60 counties.

The talk of beating Governor Groesbeck in the primary is piffle. While there is something of an opposition to the governor he has nothing to worry about so far as the primaries are concerned.

The conference session opens at Albion, Tuesday morning next, at 10 o'clock. There will be about 950 ministers in the gathering. Contemporary with the conference will be held a boy's conference and also a laymen's conference.

At the Fourth Quarterly Conference held last Thursday evening, by a rising vote which was unanimous, Rev. Quant was invited to return the second year. Dr. R. J. Slee presided. The annual report showed much that was encouraging. These notes were taken from it. Notwithstanding only eleven months have elapsed in Rev. Quant's administration, the full budget exceeding $4,000 has been met. The centenary will show payments a little in excess of last year. Added to this almost $900 of improvements have been made, also the advocate subscription has been increased 29 per cent. The membership shows a real increase of 55.

It is prospected that early in the next year the church will put on an evangelistic campaign with evangelist Kerr as the leader.

"Whatever he saith unto you, do it." "Christianity is a relation between persons—God and man." "Baptists have always held to the doctrine of Christ's supreme headship as one of their most precious spiritual possessions. This, more than any other tenet, gives them their distinctive character."

Have you been to B. Y. P. U. prayer meeting lately? If not, come next Thursday evening.

All are cordially welcomed to this service.

We were pleased to have in our midst last Sunday evening, Mr. W. A. Sanford, Miss Ethel Sanford, and Mr. Wells of Detroit. Miss Sanford is the corresponding secretary of the Detroit City Union.

We wish to call attention to the fact that the B. Y. P. U. hour has been changed from 8:30 to 6:30.

AT THE MOVIES

A play that has never failed to thrill American audiences, is George Broadhurst's "Bought and Paid For." And now William de Mille's screen version of it, which comes to the Palace theatre next Saturday and Sunday, probably will thrill them even more effectively.

So well known is the story of this popular play that to repeat it seems quite superfluous. It needs only be said that the picture follows the story of the play with faithful exactitude, diverting only in those slight instances where diversion meant betterment.

For its direction, the picture could not have been in abler hands than those of William de Mille, whose consummate skill in the interpreting of scenes filled with dramatic intensity has led to his becoming one of the foremost producers of the motion picture world. Heading a popular cast are the popular Paramount stars Agnes Ayers and Jack Holt, each possessing a creditable host of laurels. In this support are such favorites as Walter Hiers, the rolynd Paramount comedian, Leah Wyant and George Kuwa.

POULTRY

PULLETS MAKE BEST LAYERS

It Seldom Pays to Keep Hens for Eggs After They Are 2½ Years Old—Young Fowls Favored.

There are people who have the right variety of fowls, who house and feed them properly, and yet who cannot obtain eggs early in the winter because their fowls are too old. It seldom pays to keep hens for laying after they are two and one-half years old; not that they will not give a profit, but that younger fowls will give a greater profit, says the United States department of agriculture. A great many poultrymen who make a specialty of winter egg production keep nothing but pullets, disposing of the one-year-old hens before it is time to put them in the winter quarters.

Flock of White Leghorn Pullets.

The champion of the girls' poultry club of Mississippi keeps nothing but pullets.

Early hatched pullets, if properly grown, ought to begin laying in October or early November and continue to lay through the winter. Yearling hens seldom begin laying much before January 1 and older hens not until later. It is the November and December eggs that bring the high prices. The laying breeds should begin laying when about from five to six months old, general-purpose breeds at six to seven months, and the meat breeds at eight to nine months.

VARIETY OF FOOD FOR HENS

Fowls Easily Obtain Different Things Necessary to Make Eggs and Maintain Body.

Constantly feeding one or two grains only compels the fowls to eat more than they ought to and make their digestive systems work too hard trying to get all the different food elements in sufficient quantity out of this material. By feeding a variety of food the fowls are not obliged to consume so great an amount and they can more easily obtain the different things required to maintain the body and make eggs.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR WORMS

Give Twenty Drops of Turpentine in Milk or Water and Mix in Mash for Morning Feed.

For worms in poultry give 20 drops of turpentine for each 12 adult chickens; less for smaller chicks. Put that amount in one quart of milk or water; mix in mash in morning. No other feed; also put one teaspoonful of copper in each gallon of drinking water.

Candidate for Congress from the Eleventh District

A Cheboygan county farmer with the endorsement of northern Michigan Farmer's organizations, American Legion Posts, and business men of the district. Asks for your support and promises a good business administration.

CHARLES H. EMERY FOR COUNTY CLERK

Since Mr. Emery has been County Treasurer $72,000.00 in County Road Bonds have been cancelled and the interest stopped, plans have also been arranged for the incoming treasurer to cancel an additional $30,000.00, so that in April 1923 a total of $102,000.00 of our County Road Bonds will be cancelled, which is nearly one-third of our entire county indebtedness.

Mr. Emery has handled more county money during the past four years than has ever been handled in the same office in any other ten years, because of the County Road Bond issue and the great amount of money expended in construction and maintenance of county highways.

Mr. Emery is a tax payer and has held county office only four years, while his opponent, Mr. Weaver, has been granted eight years in office.

Mr. Emery gave up all other work when elected to the office of County Treasurer and has worked diligently the past four years in the service of all who have come in contact with this busy office.

Compare the record made by Mr. Emery as your County Treasurer with the record made by his opponent Mr. Weaver and then vote without friendship and without malice, but with ability and service as your only guide and may the best man win.

For County Treasurer

In announcing my candidacy for the office of County Treasurer, I wish to give the people of Charlevoix county all the information possible. I believe that my long residence in the county and the long experience I have had as bookkeeper of a large and important business and the knowledge gained by that experience, will enable me to give to the county the service that the office of county treasurer demands. If elected to the office, I shall devote my attention and endeavor to make every possible saving in expenditures and keep very close watch over the finances of the county. I believe that the people of Charlevoix county are entitled to a real business administration and I ask your earnest inspection and thoughtful consideration at the coming September primary.

Respectfully yours,
Grover C. Genet.

BRISCOE AND FORD MEET HEAD ON

Both Cars Smashed Up and Driver Badly Cut

Two cars, a Ford and a Briscoe, tried to pass each other on the same track on the Charlevoix-East Jordan road, near the Loeb Farms, Monday forenoon, with the result that the driver of the Ford was badly cut by glass and both cars will need considerable repair work.

R. Y. Crandall, herdsman at the Loeb Farms, was the driver of the Ford. He was on his way to the farm and just as he was going down the incline at the Paddock creek crossing, a Briscoe, car, driven by a man from East Jordan, turned the corner east, driving at a terrific pace.

The driveway over the creek is narrow, and the Briscoe skidded in the loose gravel, running into the Ford driven by Crandall head-on. Crandall's left arm was badly cut in two places, one gash requiring eight stitches and the other fourteen. He was taken to Charlevoix hospital and patched up, then removed to the Loeb Farms. The Briscoe driver escaped unhurt, and both men can congratulate themselves on escaping with as slight injuries as were received.

Don't Elect Common Man to U. S. Senate

Thus Pleads Townsend Speaker to the Grangers at Camp Lake

COCHRAN MAKES REPLY

Who are Authorities if Not Newberry Committee Functioning for Townsend

Speaking to an audience of farmers at the tri-county grange meeting at Camp Lake near Sparta, Wednesday, Cassius L. Glasglov of the Townsend campaign committee urged his hearers not to send "a man from the common walks of life to the United States senate," and said he had been delegated by "The authorities in Detroit" to bear the message.

Seated by "Authorities in Detroit" in explaining his appearance on the platform, Mr. Glasglov said:

"I am sent here by the authorities in Detroit." He urged the electors not to send a man from the common walks of life to the United States senate, and "not to retire from the highest legislative body in our land a man of long experience, clean record and unquestionable ability," and warned them not "to send an inexperienced young man in his place."

When he had finished Louis Emmons of Grattan, master of the county Pomona Grange, stepped to Mr. Cochran's aide and asked him if he did not want to reply to those remarks. Cochran accepted the invitation and demanded that Mr. Glasglov make known the identity of the "authorities in Detroit."

"Who are they," he demanded, "who sent Mr. Glasglov here to instruct you grangers how to vote? None other than the organization which put Newberry across, and which now is trying to put Townsend across."

"Mr. Glasglov has been my friend. I trust he will continue to be my friend. Two years ago I supported him for governor because I looked upon him as typifying the best in republicanism. Just how much support did the organization give Mr. Glasglov at that time? None. Yet today I am pained to find him in its ranks. He speaks the organization's language. The authorities in Detroit sent him here, he says. He warns us not to send a man from the common walks of life to the United States senate. I presume we should send an aristocrat—a silk-socked blue blood.

"I thank God that I am a man from the common walks of life, and that you people to whom I speak are from the common walks of life. Where would the great Lincoln have landed had our fathers overlooked men in the common walks of life?"

Mr. Cochran deplored the attitude taken by some persons toward service men. He declared that while military service did not necessarily qualify a man for public office, it certainly did not disqualify him. He commended Major Emery as "the big, earnest, fearless champion of the men in the common walks of life."

He was emphatic in his statement that the senatorial fight is between Emery and Townsend and predicted that Emery would win because the intelligent electorate of Michigan knows that the Townsend committee is "none other than the Newberry crowd, paying as they go. He referred to Secretary Chas. E. Hughes' letter on the Newberry matter as "an unethical interference in a matter entirely the business of the voters of Michigan."

"Even as President Wilson's letter endorsing Ford in 1918 lost Ford thousands of votes, so will Hughes' letter lose Townsend thousands of votes, and John G. Emery will be the beneficiary," he said.

Cochran charged that Townsend recently reversed his position on the adjusted compensation bill and had done so solely because primary day is drawing near.

The temper of the audience was made clear by constant frequent interruptions of applause through Mr. Cochran's address.

Hold Open Meeting

The women of Charlevoix are invited to attend an open meeting of the W. C. T. U., which will be held next Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the Congregational church. "Our Citizenship Duties" will be discussed under the leadership of Mrs. Quant, and Mrs. L. D. Crandall of Chicago will be present and speak.

UNCLE GEORGE SPEAKS TO CARRIERS

Compliments Them on Faithful Performance of Duty

Address of Uncle George VanPelt to the Rural Mail Carriers' Association at the Wolverine Hotel, Boyne City, Michigan, September 4, 1922. Fellow Human Mail Carriers: We are gathered together today to talk over our affairs, to exchange ideas and to promulgate the best interests of our association in which we all take great pride. There is no other kind of business, trade or following which requires greater regularity, in hours, promptness, honesty, integrity or faithfulness than does that of a rural mail carrier. To be sorrow. When you pass out the mourning envelope your sympathizing heart goes out to the family who receives it. In this case tears and sobbing take the place of laughter. Every day with a rural is like a good concrete road. It is always the same through snow or rain, winter and summer, hail or blizzard your patrons are watching for you and you are watching for them.

The only envy I have ever seen shown among you boys is when one gets a few miles of good concrete road built on his route. He knows and so do you that he has it all over you fellows who haven't any. He saves on his tires, on gasoline, oil and his machine just fifty per cent over and above you fellows who have to go over gravel and S. S. (soft stuff) especially the later as concrete is entirely free from all those little sharp edges which cut the tires on the pieces that are constantly breaking off causing the road to be rough and full of chuck holes. Some day it will be considered a crime to build any other kind of a road than a good concrete road. I want to tell you fellows about the concrete road we built in Charlevoix twelve years ago. That it is just as good today as when it was built or when you boys who were in Charlevoix and went over it five years ago. It is only worn three-thirty seconds of an inch in the twelve years and it has only cost one dollar and seventeen cents per year for upkeep and that was for filling cracks with soft stuff. That is one thing that soft stuff is good for and about the only things I know. Those nice new pieces of G and S S (gravel and soft stuff) you went over have been repaired and repaired and built over and over again and they never were worth a D—m—and you can take it from your Uncle George that there is no combination on earth whereby this stuff can be worked up together so that they will never be worth even half a D—m. I want to tell you a little story about a poor lonely maple leaf. In 1916 while building a concrete road in Sioux City, Iowa, this poor little leaf took its flight from its mother tree and fell on a concrete road while the cement was soft and thereby hangs a tale which will go down in history as a positive and undeniable truth. Namely that up to the present time there has been no material discovery red which will make as good, smooth and durable road as will good concrete. Before you leave I will hand you a little leaflet which I will ask you to take to your home newspaper and ask the editor to reproduce it. The better roads we have, the better it is for each one of us and there is no other organization that can do as much for the motoring public in general and for ourselves in particular as will good roads. I mean concrete roads of course. Give my best love to all the boys and tell them I will try and give them a New Year's card. Your truly, Uncle George H. VanPelt.

Notice to Contractors
Sealed bids will be received by the Board of Charlevoix County Road Commissioners at their office in the Court House, Charlevoix, Mich., until 1 o'clock September 16, 1922, for the construction of 11,200 feet of Class B, 12 ft. Gravel Road on what is known as the Norwood Road in Norwood Township.
Work to be done according to plans on file in the County Road Commissioner's office and in accordance with State Specifications and to be completed by Dec. 1, 1922.
The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Not every ginger ale contains Jamaica ginger

All Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is made with Jamaica ginger. The ginger is ground. The flavor is drawn out by a process of dripping a liquid through the ginger. Then this "debased ginger" is thrown away, though it could be used, by another method, for making ginger ale.

It is not solely from virtuous motives that this is done. What would it profit us to save a little ginger and lose some good customers and friends? So you can depend always upon Clicquot. You can be sure that only fresh water from bed-rock springs is used and that every ingredient of Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is absolutely pure.

CHATTERSON DISPOSES OF LOCAL INTERESTS

Thirty Farmers Purchase Ellsworth Produce Co.

A deal that involves to a considerable extent local business interests was put across last week, whereby thirty local farmers and business men became the owners of the Ellsworth Produce Co., having purchased the Chatterton interests.

M. R. Nelson, manager of the local plant for the past eight years, was instrumental in bringing the deal to a successful issue, and will continue in the capacity of manager with the new company.

Mr. Nelson is an experienced and capable produce man, and has been connected with the Chatterton interests for over 21 years, coming to Ellsworth from Mt. Pleasant.

Associated with Mr. Nelson in the new deal are thirty prominent farmers and business men of Banks township, who without doubt will make the venture both successful and profitable. The board of directors are: Geo. Klooster, August VenderArk, Ed. Boss, Lawrence Isaman, Ethan Joliffe and M. R. Nelson. Officers: Geo. Klooster, president; Ethan Joliffe, secretary; M. R. Nelson, treasurer and manager. Capitalization, $15,000.

SALT IS REQUIRED BY COWS
Best Plan to Place It in Boxes in Yard Where Animal Can Lick It at Will.

Salt is required by all animals. The dairy cow requires an ounce or more a day and while she should be given all she needs, she should not be forced to take more than she wants. It is best, therefore, to give only a small quantity on the feed, and to place rock salt in boxes in the yard where she can lick it at will.

VEGETABLE FOOD IS NEEDED
Fertility of Eggs and Vigor of Chicks Is Increased by Feeding Acids and Oats.

The farm flock needs more vegetable food in spring than in winter. The fertility of eggs and the vigor of chicks is increased by the feeding of beets and sprouted oats and any other sort of succulent green food.

British Silver Stamping Explained.

In this country the word sterling, when stamped on silver, means simply that the manufacturer declares the article to be made of silver eleven-twelfths fine; but the British marks, arranged in column, give a sort of history of the article. Usually the first mark that shows where the article was made—for London, a leopard's head; for Birmingham, an anchor; and for Sheffield, famous for its silver, a crown. Dublin has the Irish harp, and Chester uses the city arms. The third mark, a lion, indicates the standard of fineness. The date mark, a letter, usually comes last. Since each city uses a different system for indicating the year when the article was made, it is necessary to know the "plate" of the town in order to find the date of a particular piece.

It Was.

There was an explosion in the powder mill and the proprietor hurried over to ascertain the damage.

"How in the world did it happen?" he asked the foreman of the mill as he viewed the wreck. "Who was to blame?"

"Well, you see, sir," replied the foreman, "it was this way. Bill went into the mixing room and inadvertently struck a match. He—"

"Struck a match?" exclaimed the proprietor in amazement. "I should have thought that was the last thing on earth he would do."

"It was, sir," replied the foreman, sadly.—London Telegraph.

New Cure for Fatigue.

Speaking at the Institute of Hygiene, London, Dr. E. M. Corner, surgeon to St. Thomas' hospital, said that when a person became worked out, run down or depressed the reaction was due to acid in the system. An antidote to acid was an alkaline such as bicarbonate of soda. The amount to be given depended on the patient and should be guided by the reaction under treatment. The use of gas for operations was slowly coming in again and would in time supplant the other anesthetics.

A Dull Life.

"Do you think I shall live until I'm ninety, doctor?"

"How old are you now?"

"Forty."

"Do you drink, gamble, smoke or have any vices of any kind?"

"No, I don't drink, I never gamble, I loathe smoking; in fact, I haven't any vices."

"Well, good heavens, what do you want to live another fifty years for?"—London Mail.

Train Insects to Eat Insects.

An ingenious scheme for ridding our gardens of insect pests has been suggested by a Birmingham entomologist. His plan is to train harmless insects to kill and eat injurious grubs and flies. Experiments which have been made met with considerable success. It is well known that certain insects are the enemies of other creatures which are garden pests. They lay their eggs in convenient spots, often in the actual nesting places of their enemies, and when the young come to life they feed on the eggs. Scientists are attempting to train these insects to feed upon harmful creatures which at present they do not regard as enemies.—London Tit-Bits.

Hair Dressing.

In France women are dressing the hair to make the head look as small as possible. The locks are pulled straight back and coiled at the neck with the greatest simplicity. There is a tendency over there to keep the outline of the head small, but the hair is arranged softly about the face. This is much more flattering to the average woman.

Disqualified.

A teacher asked, as reported by a London comic paper, "What would King Alfred, if he were alive now, think of the home rule bill?" and the boy answered, "If King Alfred were alive now he would be too old to be interested in politics."—Outlook.

SUMMER STEP-SAVERS.

There are thousands of things we can eliminate during hot weather if we just think about them; and the following are some which may be modified to suit each household, or may suggest other ways to save work during the extremely hot weather:

To begin right the family should dress as cool as possible. White is the most popular of all goods, as it comes in thin weaves, washes so well and, if made simply, is not a laundry problem. Green and blue are also cool-looking. Every housewife should provide herself with at least one cool dress for sweltering days. With plaid skirt and waist, or a one-piece affair with a simple belt draped over the plumpness, one will be in style year after year. A cool, fresh-looking housemother will refresh the entire family on a hot, smothering day.

The daily bath being a necessity, and some days scald-daily, the Turkish towel is a great convenience. Let each one take care of his own towels. After giving them a hot rub in the water, hang on the line and turn the hose on them; the sun and air will purify and dry them and the weekly wash will keep them in good condition.

A polished table with dollies, runnery or the decorated oil-cloth covers will save oceans of laundry work. Small lunch napkins, or even the paper kind, will save much work.

Furniture, when repainted, if done in soft gray, may be decorated in various designs, making it most attractive and cool-looking. Cretonnes and summer draperies harmonize so beautifully with such coloring. Black and white is another popular and striking color note used much on furniture this year.

A good wetting of the concrete walls of the house night and morning will cool things off wonderfully. Open the house until well aired in the morning, then close for the day and it will keep much cooler, shutting out the sun by drawing shades and closing blinds.

ROAD BUILDING IN ARKANSAS

Highway Costing $2,000,000 Just Completed Near Pine Bluff in Jefferson County.

A $2,000,000 road has just been completed in the Northern Road Improvement district of Arkansas, near Pine Bluff including 75 miles of asphalt pavement and two-course gravel construction, from Stuttgart and other points to the Jefferson county line. Motor trucks will now be able to pass over this highway with heavy loads of rice from the 90,000 acres of rice lands in that vicinity, affording cheaper and quicker access to the markets. Plans are now on foot for constructing a connecting road with Pine Bluff through Jefferson county.

The Dark Day of 1780.

The "dark day" occurred May 19, 1780. It was so called on account of the remarkable darkness extending over all New England. In some places persons could not see to read common print in the open air. The darkness began about 10 o'clock in the morning and continued until the middle of the next night, but with difference of degree and duration in different places. The true cause of this phenomenon is not known.

Why Cowboy Wore a Handkerchief.

The handkerchief which encircled every cowboy's neck was intended as a mask for occasional uses, not as an article of dress. As the wearer rode in behind a bunch of moving live stock, the still knotted handkerchief's broadest part was pulled up over the wearer's mouth and nose. The mask thus formed eliminated the otherwise suffocating dust and made breathing possible.—P. H. Rollins in "The Cowboy."

P. M. TRAFFIC DELAYED 23 HOURS

Heavy Stone Train Leaves Track Late Sunday

Traffic over the Petoskey division of the Pere Marquette railway system, was delayed twenty-three hours Sunday and Monday, caused by the heavy north bound stone train leaving the track just north of the Belvedere station Sunday afternoon about 4:30.

The accident was caused by the interlocking device failing to work properly after the bridge was swung for a boat. The train was an extra heavy stone run north bound, with engine No. 282. The engine, tender, and two steel box cars loaded with coal were derailed, the engine itself being on the trestle work, the balance of the train on the main track.

The wrecking train arrived early Monday morning and by late afternoon had the engine and cars on the track and the rails replaced. Sunday evening's Resort Special came to Charlevoix, picked up her load and returned to Petoskey, going over the G. R. & I. tracks to Walton Junction, thence to Traverse City.

The failure of the interlocking plant device to work properly is a mystery and the first instance of its kind to happen on the entire system. No blame is attached to the bridge tender or any local employee of the railroad.

DAIRY FACTS

COW-TESTING ASSOCIATIONS

Where Organized a Decided Improvement Has Been Noted in Quality of Dairy Herds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The practice of testing cows to determine their milk and butter-fat production and feed consumption by means of cow-testing associations has become widespread. There are now 452 associations of this kind in the United States, besides many in foreign countries. In most cases each association has one tester and no more cows than can be well handled, but there are some very large ones and some that are much smaller than the standard. The theoretical number of members in a cow-testing association is 20, which makes one member for the tester to visit each working day of the month. A member of such an association is supposed to have not more than 30 cows, as that makes a large day's work. If every member had that number, there would be 700 cows in the association, but few of them have that many.

There is no definite relation between the number of members in an association and the number of cows owned. In California there is one association that tests 4,000 cows and another that tests 4,400, and the number of members are, respectively, 46 and 100. Another in the same state has 86 members and only 1,430 cows; there are 12 associations in California with over Testing Associations Uncover High Producers.

1,000 cows each. Ordinarily the number of cows in an association runs from 300 to 500, the average for the country being 420. The number of herds average 24.8. To have more than one tester in a California practice, and one association in that state has three. In contrast to the large associations in California and a few elsewhere, there are some that are quite small. One in Massachusetts has 9 members and 125 cows; another in Kansas has 10 members and 85 cows; and in Michigan there is one with 4 herds and only 45 cows.

The use of co-operative cow-testing associations has resulted in great improvement in the quality of the dairy cows in the localities where they have been organized by reason of the sifting out of the low producers and the discovery of good cows that might otherwise have been sacrificed.

The United States Department of Agriculture collects statistics of all the cow-testing associations and issues a directory of all those that are active on July 1 each year. It also assists in the organization of associations, working through the county agent if there is one in the community.

COW TESTING IS NECESSARY

Wisconsin Farmer Makes Concise Report of His Experience to the Dairy Division.

What the cow-testing work has meant to one Wisconsin farmer was stated so simply and concisely in a report to an agent of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture, that it is worth passing along. This farmer says:

"The cow testing in the west section of Outagamie county has been carried on with marked success.

"We have become better acquainted. The man who has been taking good care of his cows has also become better known.

"We have learned to know our cows not by what they seemed but by what they actually are, to understand the necessity of selecting better calves from our best cows to be raised for our future herd.

"We have learned to look on the dairy cow not as a necessary part of our personal property but a real live machine, capable of returning values received plus, and that plus depending largely upon the care, feed, and breeding of the dairy cow."

STERILIZATION IS ESSENTIAL

All Pails, Strainers, Separator Parts, Etc., Should Be Sterilized for Five Minutes.

Milk will keep better and make better products if all pails, strainers, and separator parts are sterilized, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Use live steam for five minutes. If you cannot get live steam, boil all utensils for at least five minutes. A simple steam sterilizer for dairy utensils, which can be made by a local tinsmith, is described in Farmers' Bulletin 748, "A Simple Steam Sterilizer for Farm Dairy Utensils." This bulletin may be had on application to the department.

PLASTER FALLS ON MOTHER AND CHILD

Peculiar Accident at Hiller Home Monday Evening

We have chronicled many items wherein people were maimed and injured in an accidental manner, but the happening at the home of E. J. Hiller between twelve and one o'clock Tuesday morning is the strangest yet.

Mrs. Hiller and infant child were sleeping in one of the down-stairs bedrooms, when directly above them the plaster gave way and came down upon them with a crash. In all, the plaster would cover an area of about ten square feet, some of it in pieces several feet square.

One large piece struck on end between the mother and child, while other large pieces fell all about them. But the most fortunate part of the affair was that neither mother or child were hurt other than slight bruises about the head and shoulders of Mrs. Hiller, and bruise on the baby's forehead and slight hemorrhage of the nose.

It is hardly conceivable that, considering the amount and weight of the falling plaster, both mother and child were not either killed or badly injured.

ONE MAN DEAD, FOUR INJURED

SUNDAY'S AUTO WRECK WORST TO DATE

Cheboygan Joy Riders Come to Grief
When Touring Car Overturns
Near City Limits

One man is dead, four others are in the Charlevoix Hospital, three seriously injured and the other cut and bruised, the result of fast driving stimulate by "white mule," or better known as moonshine whiskey. The accident occurred shortly before eleven o'clock Sunday forenoon just east of what is known as the Godbold corner, on the Petoskey road. The occupants of the wrecked car, a Studebaker 6-cylinder touring, were N. A. LaFonde, John Lighthall, Isadore Greiner, William Diekmann and Joseph Greenless, all residents of Cheboygan.

The party was on a joy ride, intending to visit Petoskey, Charlevoix, Boyne City and Gaylord on the trip. According to the statement of LaFonde, driver of the car, they left Cheboygan about 9:45, and had made the run to the place where the accident happened in a trifle over an hour. After crossing the Pere Marquette tracks east of the city, they overtook a Dodge coupe driven by Dr. Cleland Mayne of Cheboygan, who was on his way to this city to spend the day with his parents, Judge and Mrs. F. W. Mayne.

LaFonde, driver, states he blew his horn as a passing signal, and in attempting to pass, the left wheel of the car left the road and he lost control of the car. However, he swung to the right, shot across the road, striking the sod, when his right front wheel collapsed. The result was that the car overturned several times, striking a half inch telephone guy wire and landing overturned against the telephone pole, the force of the impact breaking the pole about ten feet from the ground. From statements of eye witnesses, LaFonde, Greiner, Diekmann and Greenless were thrown out of the car when it overturned, LaFonde landing some forty feet away. Lighthall was found pinned in the back seat.

The injured men were picked up and rushed to the Charlevoix Hospital and given first aid. Diekmann, unconscious when picked up, died a few minutes after reaching the hospital. Lighthall's left leg was broken, scalp torn and a deep gash cut below his left eye. Greiner was badly hurt inwardly and both shoulders injured. Greenless was cut about the head and badly hurt inwardly. LaFonde, driver of the car, suffered the least injuries of the five, his left hand being cut and head and shoulders bruised.

In viewing the wreck it seems impossible that any one of the five escaped instant death. Diekmann, the man who died, sat on the front seat with the driver, LaFonde. He has been a resident of Cheboygan for years, occupation driver of an ice wagon. He is survived by a large family of children.

Greiner, owner of the car, was the proprietor of a soft drink parlor, Greenless a carpenter and LaFonde an employee of Schwartz Bros. & Co., boat builders. Lighthall was the oldest man of the five, and his injuries, while serious, are not as bad as those of Greiner and Greenless.

Eye witnesses of the affair state that both cars were being driven at a high rate of speed, the testimony of two at the inquest being to the effect that they stood and watched both cars, one man saying to the other, "let's keep an eye on them—there's going to be some fun," meaning, as they stated, they wanted to see which car had the most speed. The verdict at the inquest held Monday was "accidental."

Five bottles containing a liquid pronounced by those who recognized its odor as "white mule," (moonshine whiskey) were found in the car. Four of these bottles are in possession of the county sheriff. The other was made way with by someone in the crowd that had collected at the scene of the wreck.

The accident was the worst so far this year in this section. It is simply an illustration that "moonshine" and gasoline will not mix. Whether prosecution will follow is problematical.

THIEVES ENTER A. P. A. STORE

Gain Entrance Through S. M. See Furniture Store

Sneak thieves made way with about thirty dollars in cash from the A. P. A. store on bridge street sometime Saturday night, overlooking in their hurry to finish their midnight raid a roll of bills amounting to several hundred dollars.

Entrance was made through the S. M. See & Son furniture store, probably from the elevator door. From the furniture store they entered the A. P. A. store by using a ladder, pushed through a skylight window, entering the back room.

The manager of the A. P. A. store upon closing late Saturday night, hid his cash and roll of bills in separate places among surplus stock in the back room. The thieves found the cash, but did not run across the larger amount in bills.

It is thought the loss will be confined to the cash, as no goods are missing, nor will be discovered missing until inventory is made.

Bossie Wrecks Auto

Umpire Cooper of the Northern Michigan Baseball league, had his car badly wrecked and received painful cuts about the face and hands Sunday evening on his return from Charlevoix to Levering, after umpiring the baseball game here during the afternoon. A cow stepped into the road directly in front of the umpire's car.

INSPECT YOUR FURNACE PIPES

AS SAFEGUARD AGAINST DISASTROUS FIRES

Eternal Vigilance is Needed to Safeguard These Important Danger Points

In the fall and early winter special attention should be paid to stove pipes furnace pipes, smoke vents and flues. Where these are of metal they frequently rust, come apart or deteriorate during the summer, and when fires are started up in the fall, or they are put to a severe test during the first very cold weather, a blaze is likely to result. Now that fire prevention and safety first have become national slogans, the importance of careful supervision of heating apparatus and flues should be recognized by every good citizen, and a thorough inspection should always precede the first use of heating apparatus.

There is special need of unusually careful attention to flues, smoke-pipes and heating apparatus generally this season, because of the abnormal fuel conditions. Millions of householders will be compelled to use soft coal who have heretofore used hard coal, and the change will necessarily introduce many serious fire hazards, unless great care is taken to see that flues and smoke-pipes are kept clear and that proper safeguards are provided for the other dangers which will develop.

Fires due to faulty furnace pipes and smoke pipes have been unusually numerous this season, especially where there was dampness. Where the surface was already corroded by the heat and fumes, the dampness soon rusted the metal so that a pipe which looked all right on the outside would collapse with the slightest strain. The danger of such pipes in basement, often near wooden partitions and ceilings, is evident, but only an inspection would reveal the interior weakness.

These warnings should be especially emphatic as to dwellings, for basement fires are apt to get under dangerous headway before they are discovered, and when they occur at night life as well as property is endangered. Special attention should also be paid to furnace pipes and smoke vents in churches and schools, because of the large number of people whose lives are at risk. School boards and church trustees, working on the theory of personal responsibility for preventable fires, should pay special attention to these danger points, and if necessary, the metal smoke pipes leading from the furnace to the chimney should be replaced each year to insure safety. An ounce of fire prevention is worth a pound of fire extinguishment.

IN LINE FOR A CARNEGIE MEDAL

CAPT. PETER ANCE SHOWS RE-MARKABLE COURAGE

Save Lives of Harbor Springs Residant and Resorter Drifting in Disabled Launch

The remarkable courage of Capt. Peter Ance, light keeper on what is commonly called White Shoals reef, is told in a story published in the Petoskey Evening News of recent date. Capt. certainly showed himself a real man, possessed with remarkable courage and daring in the rescue of the two men drifting down the straits in a disabled launch. He has little to say regarding his adventure, simply stating it was a part of his duties as light keeper, and makes light of the dangers he encountered. The story follows:

It is reported that steps will be taken to procure a Carnegie medal for Capt. Peter Ance, of the Ilo Aux Galets lights, just south of the Straits of Mackinac for his heroism in saving, single handed, the lives of Alexander Thompson, Jr., son of Alexander Thompson, of Cincinnati, who has been vacationing on Harbor Point this summer and has just purchased a cottage there, and Ray Lamb of Harbor Springs.

"The two young men had gone to Burt Lake to get a launch and bring it to Harbor Point by way of the inland lakes, Cheboygan and the straits, and when south of the straits the motor stalled. They tried rowing, but the oars broke and they cast anchor, remaining all night on the shoals. In the morning a heavy sea came up and they were forced to lift anchor and go with the wind.

"They were in an extremely dangerous predicament when they were sighted by Capt. Ance, who immediately endeavored to induce his men to go with him on the rescue trip. They refused to go, according to reports, and he set out to run his engine and steer alone. He reached the disabled craft and a line was attached, but it parted twice because of the heavy sea. After a long struggle he succeeded in bringing the launch and its two passengers to Harbor Springs after two boats from Cheboygan and two from Charlevoix had been sent in search of the missing boat. Logan G. Thompson, of Cincinnati, who is an uncle of Alexander, Jr., set out from Charlevoix in his new 99-foot cruiser after being notified that the boys were lost. After a vain search he put in at Cross Village where he telephoned Harbor Springs and learned of the rescue."

"Not a Dull Moment During Convention" Verdict of Visiting Sisters and Knights

The 33rd annual session of the Grand Temple, Pythian Sisters, in session last week in connection with the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias, closed Thursday afternoon with the largest attendance in the history of the order.

Three sessions were held Wednesday. The morning session was devoted mainly to greetings, reports and conferring of Grand Temple Degrees to seventy-one past chiefs. During this session the delegates were welcomed to Charlevoix by Mayor Arthur Bergeon, whose hearty greeting was responded to by the Supreme Manager. A report was also made on the financial standing of the order, which was shown to be in excellent condition. An increase of 1,008 members was also reported during the past fiscal year.

The afternoon session was devoted to memorial services, reading of greeting from a committee of Knights, responded to by Grand Chief Jessie Adams. Reports from supreme officers were also read.

The night session was devoted to ritualistic work. Hanna Temple No. 46 of Traverse City and staff from East Jordan Temple No. 65 put on the work in a very creditable manner.

At Thursday morning session, the following officers were elected: Grand Chief, Sister Whitney. Grand Sr., Laura Gilette. Grand Jr., Minnie Mix. Grand Manager, Hazel Defoe. Grand M. of R. C., Jennie Doyle. Grand M. of R. F., Mary Foster. Grand Protector, Mae Hughes. Grand Outer Guard, Sister Hall. Grand Trustee, Sister Swift. Grand Press Cor., Viola Green.

Thursday afternoon the newly elected officers were installed. One hundred and forty-four delegates answered roll call, and the meeting in the opinion of all was the best held in the history of the order.

The citizens of Charlevoix and management of the Inn extended the hand of welcome to visiting Pythian Sisters and Brothers in a manner that won the admiration of all. "Not a dull moment during the convention," was the verdict of all.

NEW CAR LICENSE RULE ANNOUNCED

Certificate of Title Are Now a Necessity Says Clerk

Issuance of automobile licenses hereafter will be supervised more strictly as regards the presentation of certificates of title.

New instructions on the point were received last week by County Clerk Richard Lewis, from Charles Deland, secretary of state, and the Lansing officials bore down on the point that there must be no exceptions to the new regulations.

From now on no branch offices of the secretary of state, such as the county clerk's office where license tags are available for the convenience of the motorists of Charlevoix county, may issue automobile licenses to persons not having a certificate of title from Lansing.

The only exceptions are for cars of 1922 and 1923-model which have been purchased new from dealers and title blanks must be forwarded to Lansing with the applications for licenses in all such cases. Not even the main office at Lansing hereafter will issue license plates for old cars or for machines bought second-hand which are not accompanied by certificates proving legal ownership.

All transfer of plates with machines must be accompanied with certificate of title to the car to be transferred.

KILLED IN SHOT- GUN ACCIDENT

Albert Thompson of East Jordan Victim of Loaded Shotgun

Albert, the 14 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Thompson of Jordan township near East Jordan, received injuries in a shotgun accident, Monday evening, which caused his death a few hours later.

The lad had taken the loaded gun to a neighbor's barn and set it down. The neighbor picked it up, accidentally touched the trigger, and the load of shot entered the lad's abdomen. This happened about 6:00 p. m., Monday.

The unfortunate lad was rushed to the office of Dr. H. W. Dicken of East Jordan, but in spite of able medical treatment, he passed away about 11:00 p. m.

Hunch-back Indian Found Dead

A hunch back Indian, whose name at present is unknown, was found dead Monday morning in the woods at the crest of a hill north of the city park in Petoskey. The coroners decided the cause of death to be an overdose of wood alcohol, and the finding of a label from an "Alcorug" bottle tended to confirm the finding of the authorities. The ground near the spot where he was found showed signs of a death struggle.

CLOSE SEASON WITH SHUT-OUT

LOCALS DEFEAT BOYNE CITY
SUNDAY

O'Hara's Pitching and Air-Tight Support Make Easy Win—Charlevoix Takes Second

The Charlevoix league team wound up the base ball season Sunday when they defeated Boyne City by a score of 5-0, the second shut-out game of the season, and giving them second place in the league.

O'Hara was in excellent form and according to the statements of fans, pitched the best game of the season. He was in danger of being scored upon but once during the game, which was in the eighth inning, but pitched himself out of the hole in fine shape. O'Hara was backed by air-tight support, as has been the case in the last three games.

Hanna at second and Burden at short-stop played excellent ball and were the heavy hitters of the game. Bartell of Mancelona, on first, showed good form and was as asset to the team. "Si" Powers, manager of the team, surprised fans by making numerous hits, but always got stuck in the mud at home plate. "Red" Hicks, of Harbor Springs, a last year's Loeb Farm man, caught a good game and was instrumental in winning the game.

Considering the condition of the field, this game was one of the best of the season. Sunday's game winds up Charlevoix's league games and by winning this game gives them second place in the league, only one-half a game behind the league winner, Harbor Springs.

There is no doubt in the minds of local fans that Charlevoix has the strongest team in the league. Had the weak spots been filled earlier in the season, there would have been no question as to the winning team. The local team has defeated Harbor Springs, the winning team, twice here, and once at East Jordan Tuesday, at the Fair, making three games. They also defeated East Jordan, who defeated Harbor in their last game here Labor Day, giving them an edge on the strongest teams.

The local team and their manager are deserving of all the credit that can be given them. They have worked hard and have given Charlevoix a place in northern Michigan base ball in the eyes of the fans. They have played good clean ball and outside of the usual objections from a few members of outside teams, have had no come-back. We hope that Charlevoix may have a league team each year and believe they should have the undivided support of the citizens of Charlevoix.

TOWNSEND LEADS IN THE STATE

WITH BAKER, KELLEY AND EM-REY TRAILING

Novak, Emery, Cooper and Fitch
Winners of Respective Contested Offices—The Vote

Seldom if ever has the City of Charlevoix polled a larger vote than at the primary Tuesday. In all 719 votes were cast out of a total enrollment of slightly over nine hundred.

The vote was brought out by the contests for the offices of sheriff, clerk, treasurer and prosecuting attorney. Hats off to the ladies. They were certainly there with the votes, in most cases rightly placed, or at least enough to place their favorite candidates in position to win.

Several surprises were sprung and candidates who thought they had everything coming their way, today are sadly disappointed. The old adage that once out of politics, you cannot come back, was smashed to smithereens by the election of Henry C. Cooper for treasurer.

In the race for county clerk, Chas. H. Emery put it all over his opponent, George Weaver. Charles Novak won in a field of four candidates by a close margin.

More than usual interest was shown in the contest for the office of prosecuting attorney. In a field of three, with the track more or less wet in spots, A. L. Fitch won out by slightly over a hundred votes.

Returns from the State

Returns up to 1:00 p. m. Wednesday from Detroit, are as follows: 2,143 out of 2856 precincts give Townsend 117,130; Baker, 92,393; Kelley, 55,645; Emery, 43,830.

For governor, 2,214 out of 2,856 give Groesbeck 188,937; Fletcher, 87,769; Joslin, 30,229.

In Charlevoix county, 18 precincts out of 25 give Scott 1010; Aldrich 682.

Returns from Emmet county state Scott will carry the county by less than 150 votes.

The race between Pailthorpe and Smith for prosecutor in Emmet county, is almost a tie with three precincts to hear from.

The historic Tower of London moves four times daily as the tides of the Thames river ebb and flow. The movement is most pronounced in the part nearest the river. The movement is due to the fact that many tons of water penetrate under the foundations with the rising tide, which movement has the effect of moving upward the whole mass of the tower.

Windfall.

A windfall is an unexpected legacy or money dropped as it were from the sky. The saying originated when the English nobility were forbidden by the terrors of their estates to fell the timber, all the trees being reserved for the use of the royal navy. Such trees as were blown down, however, were excepted, hence a good wind often proved a veritable Godsend.

Real Meaning of Old Saying.

The Englishman's misuse of the aspirate has twisted an old saying in a peculiar fashion. Our forefathers were wont to declare that a person was "as mad as an utter." This has now become "hatter" and most people imagine it has something to do with a manufacturer of hats. As a matter of fact the original "utter" meant "adder."

Here's a Charlevoix resident's statement. Hubert Ackert, mason, 107 W. Garfield Ave., says: "There was a constant ache in the small of my back and nights I couldn't get any sleep. My kidneys were sluggish in action and the secretions were scanty and burned in passage. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store and they fixed me up in fine shape. I haven't had any trouble since Doan's cured me." 50c at all dealers. Foster-Milgum Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Real Cord Tire for Small Cars at a Popular Price

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord in the 30 x 3 1/2 inch clincher type is a tire that the small car owner will warmly welcome.

It gives him, at a price lower than the net price he is asked to pay for many "long discount" tires, every advantage of quality cord tire performance, for it is a quality tire through and through.

It is made of high-grade long-staple cotton; it embodies the reliable Goodyear quality of materials; its clean-cut tread engages the road like a cogwheel.

The scientific distribution of rubber in this tread—the wide center rib and the semi-flat contour—gives a thick, broad surface that is exceedingly slow to wear.

The tough tread stock in this tire is carried down the sidewalls clear to the bead, making it rut-proof to an extraordinary degree.

In every particular it is a representative Goodyear product, built to safeguard the world-wide Goodyear reputation.

Despite its high quality, and the expertness of its construction, it sells at a price as low or lower than that of tires which lack its important features.

The 30 x 3 1/2 inch Cross-Rib Cord clincher $12.50

This price includes manufacturer's excise tax

Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord Tires are also made in 6, 7 and 8 inch sizes for trucks

The Difference of 150 Years

You've heard the story of Paul Revere—how he clattered out of Boston and spread the alarm to every Middlesex village, etc. That was in April, 1775. It was an all night job. Today the Boston papers would slap extras on their presses and in the shake of a little lamb's tail the whole thrilling message would be in each home of the well known county.

This represents the advance of 150 years in the important business of spreading news.

The cry of "Extra—Extra" on the midnight air brings startled folks to their doors as once did the pound of a horse's hoofs and the breathless shout of the rider. Papers have supplanted the courier—multiplied his effectiveness many times—increased his speed a hundred fold.

How far back we would go without newspapers! We would remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but also of much that concerns us just as vitally—news of the very things that have to do with the person, every-day life of each one of us.

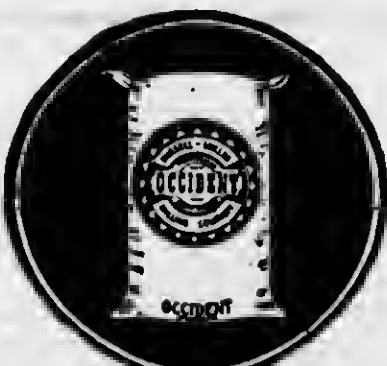

Somebody might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to our comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but we would never know it.

Modern advertising is a boon. It keeps our information up-to-date on the many things we need in order to live a profitable, happy and useful life in this age of progress.

Do you take advantage of this advertising?

GINGER ALE

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL By J. E. Jones

The Future of the Railroad Law

In discussing the Esch-Cummins law Colonel Brookhart, Republican candidate for Senator in Iowa, declares: "The evils of this law will live long after it is expunged." To which Senator Cummins, one of the authors of the law, replies: "If Colonel Brookhart's power were commensurate with his apparent desires, this government would not last a fortnight." Iowa is reported to have become a veritable battle-ground of debate as to whether the transportation act should survive or not. And what is true of the situation in Iowa is likewise true in all parts of the country where the old battle between labor and capital is being fought with the railroad question as the concrete or "horrible example," depicting the advantages of enthroned ovarice manipulating the finances of the railroads; while the accused capitalists retort that they are being held up by shot-gun methods operating in the name of organized labor. There is a lot of heat in the situation, and with a railroad strike and political campaign on hand, it is hardly to be expected that sober, sane thought will have an even chance in the discussion.

A wise writer once observed that facts were for poor men, and by revolving these poor but stubborn facts one finds that not many years ago Senator Cummins was regarded as an extreme radical upon the railroad question. His ideas with reference to government regulation of railroads were assailed by the conservative press as "destructive." The principal points which he secured in the enactment of the Esch-Cummins law were demanded in Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska, and other "progressive states." But progressive politics jump so fast that the new progressive, Colonel Brookhart, is now sure that the author of the railroad law and the law itself is reactionary. Therefore he would "expunge" it. It makes no difference that the transportation act is a very big and very long and a very broad law, dealing with nearly every phase of one of the nation's greatest problems. Its repeal would not be unlike "expunging" the laws with reference to agriculture, finance or foreign commerce, or repudiating the constitution because it does not answer the bill with regard to "state" rights, "child labor," or some other economic desire.

The Esch-Cummins law can never be repealed until a new code of railroad regulatory laws are set up to replace this piece of legislation. It took a great many years to create the transportation act, as one may well understand by looking at the number of pages it fills in a law book. No Congress—no matter how elected, would consider "expunging" the law. But very naturally the law will be amended and changed in many important particulars by the next congress. And many other changes will be made year after year to meet the conditions that exist in the country. Fact that are made for poor men point out very clearly that this is bound to be so!

Radio 'Round the World

This little giant called radio is blazing its trail 'round the world. Jass noonday concerts, market reports and an occasional opera concert broadened through a few hundred miles of that mysterious thing called the ether of space, lend interest and spice to the affairs of life. But that there is something more than joy in the radio voices is being demonstrated in most emphatic ways. The Radio Corporation of America is the leader in the development of radio communication. It carries a heavy traffic in communication with England, Germany, France, and other parts of Europe. The company is putting in great broadcasting stations in the United States to supplement those it already has in operation, and in addition three new stations are to be built in Central America to be operated in co-operation with the United Fruit Company's interests. The new plants each have a broadcasting capacity of more than 2,000 miles. All America will be connected by means of the operation of these stations. The Swedish government has recently awarded a contract for the building of a great broadcasting station in that country to the Radio Corporation, and this will insure direct communication between Sweden and America. In fact the whole world is being rapidly linked together in radio or wireless communication. The Radio Corporation is the great vitalizing force in the industry, and while millions of our population have been playing with and studying the new discovery, this firm, linked with the General Electric and other great interests, has been busy with the problems of development on a world-wide scale, in order that the commercial and scientific advantages of wireless may be realized by the public in as broad a manner as the telephone, the telegraph and the ocean cables.

Harding and Wilson

The personal affairs of Washington's leading citizens, Warren G. Harding and Woodrow Wilson are always of acute interest in the National Capital. They stand in about the same relation to the people of that city as do Mayors and ex-Mayors in the ordinary community. The frivolities of the Hardings on the Mayflower and in their social connections are always morsels for gossips. The Woodrow Wilsons appear almost daily in the indulgence of automobile trips, and on Saturday nights at Keith's vaudeville shows. They are always enthusiastically received by the populace, and there to, let the ex-President understand seems to be a steady determination that "we love you still." Washington is non-partisan enough so that the same people give their applause to both Harding and Wilson. Mr. Harding's appearance would be described by those who see him constantly as "older" than when he went into office. It is known among politicians that he takes his duties very seriously, and naturally the unusually heavy responsibilities that he has faced have made him appear careworn at times. If it were not for the little holidays and relaxations that come into his life Mr. Harding would not be apt to "wear well" physically. But the "friendly conspiracy" of the White House physician and the family of a President has saved many a chief executive of the American nation from a premature breakdown. This "friendly conspiracy" got along very well with Mr. Wilson until he went to Europe, where he renounced his accustomed golf games, only to collapse beneath the weight of overwork and public worries. Perhaps some people are old enough to remember that as a professor at Princeton Woodrow Wilson was a good deal of a bicycle enthusiast, while Warren G. Harding used to pitch quoits and indulge in many of the very ordinary recreations.

Already the political conspirators are preparing to push Mr. Harding into the background of political leadership. "Did you hear about the triumphs of LaFollette, and Beveridge, and Pinchot," they ask—just as though that indicates a collapse of good old Republicanism. And in the Democratic camp the same human gloom-makers specialize on how Reed in Missouri "walloped" Wilson. Of course, they admit, Varaman couldn't help losing in Mississippi, "because John Sharp Williams did not want him for his successor."

There are so many strings to the political bows that it is impossible to guess which way the arrow will fly. But one thing is certain and that is that the real leaders of the two old parties are the President and the ex-President. Even so, it would not be at all strange if these two illustrious gentlemen felt a good deal of concern about the drift in national affairs and wonder when and how the country is to get "back to political normalcy."

There are as many strange bed-fellows as usual in political beds. It seems that a lot of the old progressive Republicans are determined to beat Senator Lodge if possible. Former Senator Moses Clapp of Minnesota is leading a group of opponents of the peerless man from Bay State and he is campaigning Massachusetts against his old colleague in the Senate.

FARM LIVE STOCKRUNTS ARE LOSS TO GROWER

Questionnaire Shows Many Can Be Eliminated by Good Breeding and Proper Feeding.

(Prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

The question, "Why is a runt?" has been answered by hundreds of live stock raisers who have filled in and returned questionnaires, reports sent out by the United States Department of Agriculture. These reports—nearly a thousand of them—show that inferior breeding, poor feeding, and parasites are the three principal causes of undersized and underdeveloped animals. In fact, about 75 per cent of runtness is traceable to these factors. All of these factors are under the control of breeders or stock raisers who by controlling them, ran, in a large degree, eliminate runts, which, according to the reports, constitute 7 per cent of all farm animals.

The information gained from the reports is of much interest and value to live stock owners. Department specialists consider it dependable, for the replies have been received from a large proportion of farmers on the accredited herd list (having cattle free from tuberculosis), and most of the remainder are from farms whose owners are cooperating with the Department of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges in the "Better Stock—Better Stock" campaign. Those who answered the questionnaire are, therefore, interested in the control of disease and the improvement in quality of domestic animals, and, in general, are progressive live stock owners.

In addition to the three principal causes of runtness previously mentioned, the reports show that there are numerous other contributing causes. A summary of the opinions from 783 live stock owners shows that the principal causes of runt live stock are: inferior breeding, 31.6 per cent; inadequate or unsuitable feed, 30.4 per cent; parasites and insect pests, 15.1 per cent; inadequate housing and care, 12.4 per cent; contagious diseases, 4.9 per cent; exposure, 2.9 per cent; accident, 1.0 per cent; other causes, 1.7 per cent. It appears that the breeding of well-selected purebred stock produces very few undersized animals, but that with scrubs—especially when bred—the percentage of runt stock is high.

The reports show that runtness is most prevalent among hogs, the average percentage reported being 10.1. This, moreover, includes a number of farms which reported no runts at all. One farmer who is a breeder of good, purebred hogs and feeding them a variety and plenty of feed, states: "We have not had a runt pig in two years, although the litters sometimes contain from 9 to 11 pigs each."

The results of the inquiry indicate that the size of an animal of good breeding at birth has but little relation to the mature weight where proper feed, care and management are provided. This is shown in a number of cases of successful hog raisers who report that lack of uniformity in fairly large litters has been overcome by proper feeding. A little breeder in Montana reports that proper feeding and care of a runt animal resulted in developing it to such a finish that it took first prize in its class at the state fair.

It appears from a summary of 929 reports that a comparatively small number of animals are born runt, and that most stunting of growth begins a relatively short time before weaning, or soon afterwards. More than 50 per cent of runt live stock appears during infancy or before weaning, according to reports, while 35 per cent shortly after weaning, and only 4.4 per cent at birth.

In reply to a question on the practicability of raising runts to market size 74 per cent of the replies indicate that it is not profitable, 14 per cent answered either yes, or yes with qualifications. Comments show that a well-bred animal, even though undersized, will develop into just as good an animal when it is given an equal chance. "With inherited runtness due to inferior breeding," one stockman declared, "it does not pay. Other cases due to lack of proper feed may be raised with profit."

A reduction of freight rates on Michigan salt has been ordered by the Interstate Commerce commission, but our enthusiasm is tempered somewhat by the fact that it isn't salt that we are going to need next tons of before spring.

A report from Washington says Michigan is the fourth largest producer of pancakes in the union. This sets us to wondering morbidly why that restaurant the other morning served us shortage cakes, probably imported from some other state.

"Fruit—Help Yourself," is the sign posted along some of the roads in western Michigan, where the farmers who can't sell their products have decided to give it away. Now, what will those who thought there was no way to keep automobilists from stealing, say to this.

Gasoline, says a doctor in advice to people on an outing, is highly recommended as a cure for the trouble resulting from contact with poison ivy. Whether there is anything that will relieve the trouble due to contact with the man who sells the gasoline, he does not say.

Complaint has been lodged against a Birmingham beekeeper, and it is supposed he will have to move the bees outside the village limits. The firm that supplies all that strained honey which the farmers sell along the roads might wish to purchase one of the insects, when its old one gives out.

A LULLABY

I'll sing you a lullaby,
I'll sing it soft and low,
I'll sing it when the twilight,
Will softly come, then go.

I'll sing about a birdie
Who lived up in a tree,
I'll sing about a birdie,
Who lived with its old mamee.

All day this little birdie
Flew 'round and 'round the tree,
At night, this little birdie, said
Please sing a song to me.

And the song this mamma birdie sang

Is the song I'll sing to thee.
"Go to sleep my little birdie in your Nest in this mapletree."

You are just a little birdie so go to Sleep in this tree; your just a little bird.

But we don't mind that, do we?
Your but a little bird, so mind your mothers word.

THE SUNRISE

Streaks of yellow, blue and golden,
Now loom in the Eastern sky,
Aurora with her rosy fingers,
Has painted them up there so high.

Now a blinding ray of sunlight,
Come right down where I do stand,
Now the sun, come up quite quickly,
Coming up to light the land.

Now I can no longer watch it,
For the sun it high above,
Now I seek some shade with earnest,
For when its hot the shade we love.
By Billy O'Neill.

AT THE MOVIES

Wallace Reid, popular Paramount star, who has been riding racing cars, touring cars, trucks, and all manner of vehicles for more than a year and has otherwise breezed through his pictures on cushions, has at last struck a snag. In "The Worlds Champion," an adaption of a recent stage success Mr. Reid has drawn the most strenuous role of his motion picture career. The picture will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

The worm turns even in motion pictures and Reid has discarded his dress suit for a pair of fighter's trunks, for he plays the role of William Burroughs, otherwise known as "Gunboat Williams," middleweight champion of America. In the picture Wally has two minor fights and a prize ring battle, to say nothing of a tussle with stevedores and a scrap with steamship officers. Out of it all, however, he emerges a suave attorney-at-law and wins the girl in his customary finished and immaculate style.

COMPILING COST OF PAVING

Figures Secured by Bureau of Public Roads Cover 68,000,000 Yards of Work.

Average costs per square yard of various types of paving for country roads have been compiled by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. The figures cover 68,000,000 square yards of paving constructed with federal aid in all parts of the United States during the period of 1916-21. The costs per square yard are as follows: Sand-clay, 18 cents; gravel, 46 cents; plain and surface-treated macadam, 85 cents; bituminous macadam, $2.10; bituminous concrete, $2.50; plain cement concrete, $2.57; reinforced-cement concrete, $2.74; and brick, $4.10.

These figures cover only the cost of the paving; they do not include the cost of grading, and officials point out that it must not be assumed that roads of the several types can be constructed in any locality at these figures. For example, the cost of bituminous concrete varied from $1.70 in the New England states to $3.13 in the group of states including Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama. In one group of states the cost of brick dropped to $2.40. Costs of constructing these types in the various groups of states have been compiled and can be obtained from the bureau.

POULTRY KEPT AS SIDE LINE

Hardly Any Activity of Modern Farming Which Will Pay Better Than Flock of Hens.

Properly developed and fostered, poultry is one of the most profitable side lines in which most farmers can become interested and, at present, there is hardly any activity of modern farming which will pay better than the maintenance and production of good poultry.

POULTRY NOTES

Spade up the yard frequently.

Get rid of all surplus cockerels.

Feed table scraps and kitchen waste.

Keep the hens confined to your own land.

Fowls stand cold better than dampness.

Hatching eggs should be selected only from healthy, hearty, vigorous parent stock.

Yes, sir, the poultry business of America is more important than we realize.

Two quarts of scratch feed twice a day in the litter makes a fair allowance for 25 hens, if they have plenty of mash and vegetables besides.

Highway Improvement

FEDERAL HELP STRENGTHENS

Much More Accomplished for Country Than Simply Provide Funds for Construction.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Federal aid has come a great deal more for the country than simply to provide funds for road construction, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. One of the most far-reaching results has been its influence in placing the greater part of the highway work of the country in the hands of experienced engineers of state highway departments.

In 1915, prior to the federal-aid act, 70 per cent of the road work was done by agencies other than state highway departments, most of it by county officials. Such a system was bound to be wasteful. Overhead costs were high, engineers were not always employed, systems to serve the best interests of the state as a whole were not developed, and the opportunities for corruption were greater.

With the passage of the federal-aid act of 1916 and the insistence of the government upon the construction of federal-aid roads under the supervision of state departments, existing state highway departments were enlarged and strengthened, and in 17 states adequate departments have been created where there had been none or the existing one was not properly equipped to perform necessary functions.

With adequate departments the work has been shifted to their control until at the present time they supervise more than 60 per cent of the road work. This assures to the taxpayer the services of engineers trained in road work, a centralized authority responsible for the expenditure of funds, and a far-sighted plan of development and financing.

CAKES WITH AND WITHOUT ICING.

Cakes in many families are not considered, unless covered with some sort of frosting, and other families prefer their cakes with none. So that all may be satisfied and still serve an attractive looking cake, the following suggestions may be helpful.

A simple spice cake with or without a few raisins will be very tasty when covered with a generous coating of butter while it is still hot from the oven. Sprinkle generously with powdered sugar mixed with a teaspoonful of cinnamon.

Patty cakes and cookies look better and taste better if they are sprinkled with a bit of granulated sugar just before going into the oven. To make the patty cakes more elegant place two strips of candied orange peel across the top, before sprinkling the sugar.

A loaf cake may be sprinkled with granulated sugar mixed with cinnamon just before putting into the oven. A little trill of coconut put round gem cakes, sprinkling with sugar, makes an attractive ragged appearance when baked.

Chopped nuts sprinkled over the top of cakes before baking adds greatly to their appearance. Crumb cake is a cake covered just before going into the oven with a well-blended mixture of creamed butter, flour, and sugar.

Creamy Frosting.—Boil together one cupful of sugar and one-third of a cupful of water until thick and honey-like, then take out three tablespoonfuls, adding to a beaten egg white and return the rest of the sugar to boil to a long hair when a fork is dipped into the sirup. Continue heating until the sirup is ready, then add to the white of the egg. Beat until stiff, then spread as usual. The frosting will be beautifully shiny on the top and creamy underneath, if made according to directions.

CROP OUTLOOK ON DECLINE

LIGHT RAINFALL INJURIOUS
THROUGHOUT STATE

Fruit of All Kinds is Abundant and Has Ripened Earlier Than Usual

The outlook for the cultivated crops and nearly all others has dropped from five to seven points during August as a result of unusual light rainfall in most sections of the state. This is the outstanding feature of the September report released today by John A. Doelle, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural statistician. As deterioration is usual in most years during August, notwithstanding this decline, the prospects are still up to or above the ten-year average for all crops except sugar beets and sorghum cane for sirup which are one and two points, respectively, below. Fruit of all kinds is abundant and has ripened earlier than usual. The market is stagnant and some fruit does not bring enough to cover the freight charges.

Corn: In the southern and western counties, corn has dried up considerably and late planted fields are ripening prematurely and with but few ears on the stalks. There are also many poorly filled ears. In other sections the crop is doing very well. Cutting for both grain and silage is general in southern and central counties. The present outlook forecasts a total crop of 57,634,000 bushels as compared with 66,417,000 bushels produced last year.

Oats: Threshing is well advanced and about completed in southern and central sections. Yields are fairly good and in the best districts are excellent. The quality is also good except in some northern counties where the crop was more or less injured by rust. The production is placed at 35,837,000 bushels as against 28,100,000 bushels grown last year, and 56,806,000 bushels in 1920.

Spring Wheat: The crop is good in the main producing sections of the Upper Peninsula and northeastern counties. The estimated production is 564,000 bushels.

Berley: The crop of berley is estimated at 5,563,000 bushels which is nearly one and one-half millions more than the light crop of last year. Yields are generally satisfactory and better than anticipated earlier in the season.

Buckwheat: The crop has suffered considerably from heat and dry weather and some of the top bloom has been blasted. A little damage by frost is reported and from two to three weeks without frost is needed to mature the bulk of the crop. The present outlook is for a crop of 622,000 bushels, practically the same production as recorded for last year.

Potatoes: Complaints from some sections are current that the set is deficient although the tubers have attained good size to date. In other sections the outlook is very good. Leaf-hopper damage is severe in a few counties in the fields that have not received proper spraying. The present condition as shown by the reports of crop correspondents is 82 per cent of normal, which is equivalent to a crop of 36,415,000 bushels. The acreage is 24,000 greater than last year.

Hay: The total production of hay, based on the reported yield of 1.40 tons of tame and 1.35 tons of wild hay, per acre, is 4,611,000 tons. The crop was universally large throughout the state and much of it is of excellent quality. There was some damage from rains in the Upper Peninsula and the northern portion of the Lower Peninsula during the cutting season. The yield of timothy is 1.35 tons per acre as compared with 0.90 last year, and a ten-year average of 1.20.

Alfalfa: The acreage of alfalfa has increased phenomenally during the last few years. It is estimated that 342,000 acres were cut this year, producing a crop of 818,000 tons. The acreage reported by the Federal Census for 1919 was 74,000. A large amount has been seeded this year, and probably more than a half-million acres of hay will be cut next year.

Beans: In the central and western counties, the early crop is fairly good, but the late crop suffered materially by disease and dry weather. In the eastern producing sections, the early crop has been injured considerably by disease and dry weather, and the hopes of growers have been transferred to the late crop which will yield a fairly good crop if frost does not interfere. Harvesting, thrashing and marketing have commenced unusually early. The present condition of 78 per cent indicates a crop of 4,517,000 bushels on the 420,000 acres planted this year.

Fruits: The early apple crop was large and much of it poor quality. Prices are low and much fruit has not been harvested. The late crop is of better quality but lighter in yield. It is estimated that the total crop is 72 per cent, a yield of 11,775,000 bushels. The commercial portion is appraised at 1,688,000 barrels.

The peach crop has developed well and in of good quality and generally the fruit is of good size. The production is placed at 1,440,000 bushels. Last year it was 358,000 bushels.

Sugar Beets: The condition of 65 per cent reported last month was maintained during August. The weather has been favorable for the storing of sugar in the beets. There are reports of blight and rotting in a few sections.

Anne Gets a Change of Air

By GRACE CANFIELD

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"Do you realize," Anne's tone was tragic, as though she were recording the obsequies of her last earthly friend, "that I have never, in all my seventeen years of my life, been out of New England?" She brought in the closet a large scale map of the United States, and placed it upon a father's desk, directly under his arm. Then, seating his broad palm, she forced him to illustrate her remarks by a comparison of relative sizes.

"Look at New England," commanded Anne, "and then look at the rest of the country. How do you expect me to be liberal minded, as you say you want me to be, when I have always been confined within the limits of five states—and little, measly ones, too," she dashed in deepest scorn.

Her father protested feebly. He was too much astonished by the sudden onslaught to be able to summon his forces for an adequate defense.

"The New England states are the best in the Union," he declared loyally. "Better than all the rest put together."

"Oh, of course," cried Anne, "every one thinks his own state better than the rest. But that needn't keep him out of the others. How can I to appreciate New England's wonders without needing the rest of the country? And now come her real grievances. 'This place is so provincial,' it would seem, from her tone, that the one word provincial plumed the lowest depths of undesirability.

"People are the same everywhere, my dear," came her mother's gentle voice from the other side of the room. Anne was almost reduced to tears. It was the old argument, and she had no proper reply. How could she know whether people were the same everywhere? She had never seen any except New Englanders.

"Oh, I know they aren't," she sobbed. "I'd die if I thought there were a hundred million people in the country as dull as this old town. It takes only a part of a day to get to New York, but I'd know the difference in a minute. Why, I couldn't help noticing even the change in atmosphere outside of New England!"

Her father and mother exchanged glances over her head. Obviously, the only way to convince this rebellious daughter was to let her see for herself. Her father finally spoke.

"I don't feel that I can afford a long trip just now, daughter," he said. "But supposing I take, say, a day's ride from here, going westward, and you and your mother can stay at some town for a week. Then you can judge how different people are in the wild West."

Anne was a little resentful at the teasing, and she was not at all satisfied with the proposed compromise; still it was something, and in her heart of hearts she was forced to confess that the concession was more than she hoped for at this time.

It was, therefore, with no misgivings at all, but with much elation at the prospect of seeing even a bit of the world, that Anne set out with her family on their day's automobile trip. It was long after dark when they arrived at their destination, so Anne was unable to see the name of the railroad station past which they drove. The next day, however, she learned from the landlady of the town's modest boarding house that the town was called Eastman. It was on this day, too, that Anne began to see life. She was careful not to mention New England in any way, or to join in conversation which might lead up to the subject. She lived in mortal fear lest someone discover that she was a native of that provincial section, and she tried in every way, in her speech, manner and air, to approximate the attitude of those about her, whom she greatly admired.

For it had turned out that her mother had two or three lifelong friends in Eastman, and they cordially welcomed the bright, pretty daughter. Indeed, after the first night, she and her mother were lodged at the home of one of the lifelong friends. They gave parties for Anne, and dances, and bacon and, and seemed to vie with each other in seeing that she had a good time. It was the most gloriously ecstatic week that Anne had ever spent, and for seven delicious days she entirely forgot the existence of New England.

Perhaps her enjoyment was not due so much to the admiring attentions of her mother's friends, or to the gay life of young people, which received her gladly, as to the specific attentions of one Jack Peters, who was altogether the most delightful young man imaginable. He could talk nonsense in a most convincing manner, but he also could, upon occasion, converse with great gravity and seriousness. He and Anne were agreed upon the really important things in life, and they settled, in their hours of intimate conversation, many problems which had long been troubling the world at large.

With the deepest regret, Anne rose on that last morning, and realized that the time had come for her to leave Eastman—and Jack. The blush and the smile which she bestowed upon her mother at this thought, however, might lead one to suppose that she rather expected this last leave-taking not to be a final one.

The two young people managed to get a few minutes together that afternoon, just before it was time for Anne to go. Her father and mother were already in the car.

"Good-by, Jack," whispered Anne shyly, "I like New York lots."

"Do you?" Jack's tone was a little puzzled. "But you have a soft spot in your heart for our old New England, haven't you?" he asked tenderly.

Anne withdrew her hand. "Our own New England?" she stared at him a moment, against. Then, slowly, comprehension dawned on her.

"Jack Peters," she demanded, "what state is Eastman in?"

"Why, you sweet child, in Massachusetts, of course, where else?" Jack laughed.

Honest confession is always good for your enemies.

NOW LIVING IN LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Chapel Family Leave Old Home at Portland, Oregon

Word from Mrs. F. N. Chapel, former resident of Charlevoix, who removed to Portland, Oregon, several years ago, states that she has moved to Los Angeles, California, where her son has accepted a position. She speaks of meeting several former Charlevoix residents, and we print below parts of the letter of interest to our readers.

"My son Franklin graduated in college this spring with his degree as mechanical engineer, and at once took a good position with the Western Electric Co., as inspector. He is soon to be sent to Los Angeles by the company to continue his work for them there. They are pushing him ahead rapidly and he likes the work very much.

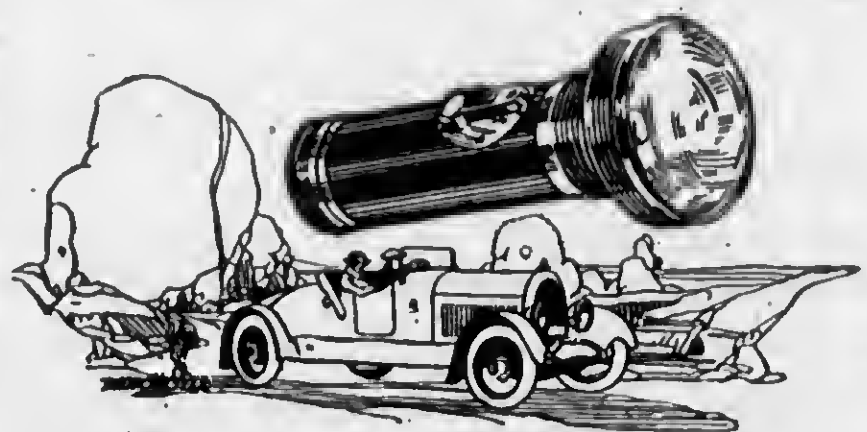

"As there are only the two of us left in our family now, I could not remain here alone so I sold my apartment house, that is, sold the furnishings and gave a five year lease of the building to the same people to good advantage so that I can live comfortably with Franklin, and enjoy home life for the remainder of my life, I hope.

"My thoughts often turn to the old familiar faces in Charlevoix, which has always been the 'home town' to us all. I hope that it may be so that I may go back there to visit before many years, now I am free from responsibility. I am looking forward to seeing a number of old Charlevoix friends in Los Angeles.

We rent our little bungalow of C. D. Woolverton, who used to live in Charlevoix. His wife was Maggie Ross, whose father established the 'old Ross place' across Susan Lake from the road. Mr. and Mrs. Woolverton are both well and their son and daughter are both married and live in Los Angeles. Mr. Woolverton's sister, Mrs. Elmore Mudge and her husband, live near Los Angeles and they write me that Mrs. Mudge's relative, Mrs. Fred Bellinger and husband and family have recently arrived there.

"Mrs. J. A. Mills, who also lives near Los Angeles with her husband, I used to know in Charlevoix as Hattie Risley. Mrs. Wilbur's cousin, and I understand there are many more Charlevoix friends in Los Angeles and San Diego.

"As we have a new car, we are contemplating great pleasure in driving down there through most wonderful scenery of which we never tire, and shall also be able to get around to see the friends when we get there. 'Please extend our most cordial greetings to all the old friends and give them our new address so they may write to us.'"

ABUNDANT CROPS A BLESSING

TOPIC NOWADAYS AMONG THE LEADING AGRICULTURISTS

Forecasts Indicate Another Bumper Crop For This Year—What Will Effect Be?

"Are abundant crops a blessing? This is the subject of an article which appeared in a recent issue of the American Farm Bureau Weekly News Letter.

It goes on to state that as the U. S. Department of Agriculture forecasts indicate another bumper crop for this year they are wondering what effect this will have on farm prosperity. Will big crops with the tendency to drive down prices yield less to producers than small crops or will the additional volume compensate for the probable lower prices?

There are many instances of the larger crops bringing smaller returns. This was true of some products in the year of 1910 compared with the year of 1911.

The potato production of 1910 was 349 million bushels, with a value of 195 million dollars or approximately 56 cents per bushel. In 1911 the production was 293 million bushels with a value of 243 million dollars or approximately 80 cents per bushel.

Let us take some figures in the case of wheat. In the case of wheat beginning with the year 1886 and comparing production and value for each year with the preceding year, it is noted that value moved in the same direction as volume 35 times and in the opposite direction 19 times. This means that the bigger crop brought a higher value and a smaller crop a lower value in 35 years out of 54, which is decidedly over half in favor of volume production. We may not especially be interested in cotton, but nevertheless over a series of 41 years, 22 times the bigger crop brought a higher value and a smaller crop a lower value.

However, these are not fair and just comparisons. The true issue at stake is the buying value of a crop. The money value of a crop, whether big or small is only half the story. The heart of the matter is this: Will the money received for the crop buy more or less of other commodities? Prices of other goods must be compared with the value of the crop. In this way, the purchasing power of the output is measured and the true condition of farm prosperity determined.

Beginning with the year 1913, the Department of Research, which edited this article, has compiled the progress of the volume of production of 12 crops with the total value of crops and also their purchasing

HOW MANY GERMAN MARK DID YOU BUY?

Long, long ago, Charlevoix people, some of them, talked in terms of marks. Today they won't admit it.

When the German mark started its fall it was said that speculation in marks would be profitable, for soon their value would rise, but now the case of the mark is hopeless and though unquestionably many marks have been purchased locally Charlevoix speculators aren't admitting it. This was the statement of a prominent banker.

According to the latest quotation reaching Charlevoix banks, nine cents will buy a hundred German marks. In normal times, before the printing presses in Germany had speeded up, the mark was worth 25 cents and passed as the equivalent of the American quarter.

The franc, the unit of French currency, appears a different thing, however, and the Charlevoix people who speculate in this direction may expect a reward. Francs are exchanged today at 7.92 cents and though there has been little change in several months their prospects of a rise are good. Normally the franc is worth 19 cents.

The kronen of Czech-Slovakia is still more a different thing. It is rising steadily and is now worth double its value of a year ago. January 1.66 cents, a month ago at 2.32 cents and today at 3.55. Drafts in denominations of several hundred dollars bound for Czech-Slovakia have passed through local banks in recent weeks.

power. It was found that there is not a close correlation between the volume and value of production. Demand has been so variable during the period under review that it over-shadows supply as a value determining factor. These variations must be largely explained by the character of demand in those periods.

During this same period (1913 to 1922) the value of the 12-crops combined increased or decreased with volume 4 times. In four of the nine years the larger output did mean a higher value, and the smaller output a lower value. This again signifies the fact that it is the purchasing power of the commodities which should govern our activities.

In analyzing the relationship between value of production and purchasing power it is seen that in 5 of the 9 years since 1913 volume and purchasing power move together. In other words, 5 out of 9 times the greater production would mean more favorable purchasing power, and the decreased production less favorable purchasing power.

Quoting the articles as follows, it states: "The evidence thus far gained from the study of the combined crop figures since 1913 indicates that approximately half of the time farmers are better off during the big crop years and the other half of the time suffer loss. This is true, (Continued on page eight.)

LOEB FARMS STOCK WINNERS
AT BIG FAIRS

Total Amount Won to Date at Fairs Amounts to $1,800—A Farm to Be Proud Of

That Charlevoix county has one of the great stock farms of the country is being weekly attested by the phenomenal winnings of the Loeb Farms exhibits now on the Fair circuit. The total amount won to date is approximately $1,800.00, and it is safe to predict a large increase this week at Grand Rapids, where Holsteins, Belgians, and Durocs arrived Sunday from the Saginaw Fair.

Holsteins only were shown at the Ohio State Fair at Columbus, where three firsts, two seconds, four thirds, one fourth, two fifths, and one seventh were taken in keen competition. There were over 250 in this class.

The winnings on hogs at the Michigan State Fair at Detroit were phenomenal. The Duroc Jerseys there won first and second in all female classes, and Senior, Junior and Grand Champion sows, including three reserve ribbons and one trophy. At Bay City six firsts, three seconds, and three thirds and Grand Champion sow. At Saginaw seven firsts, six seconds, reserve and Grand Champion sow. At Petoskey and East Jordan other trophies were added in friendly competition.

At Bay City the Belgians won eight firsts, one second, one third, and at Saginaw five firsts, two seconds, three thirds. At Detroit four seconds, three thirds, one fourth. The Holstein exhibit at Saginaw landed ten firsts, three seconds and one third, including Grand Champion bull, and at Detroit one first, two seconds, one third, and one fifth.

With Kolrain Marion Finderno completing a record that will make her the second highest producing cow in the world, Loeb Farms seems fortunate in its wealth of fine stock. Its future looks bright.

Grand Rapids completes the fall circuit, after which the stock will be shipped home. It is in fine shape and is coming back with colors flying.

Sprung Surprise on Friends
A report which as far as can be learned is true, tells of the marriage of George Driggett, a well known local boy, to Miss Edn Krimple of Manistee. According to the story, the marriage took place some two weeks ago. When last heard of, Mr. Driggett was at Saginaw, where he has a position as teacher of athletics in the public school of that city, and Mrs. Driggett for the present will remain with her mother.

JUNIOR STOCK JUDGING CONTEST

NEW FAIR FEATURE A SUCCESS IN EVERY DETAIL

Over Fifty Contestants Participate—
Parents Manifest as Much Interest as Contestants

The first annual Boys and Girls Stock-Judging Contest held at the County Fair Thursday, under the auspices of the County Farm Bureau, exceeded all expectations. Following are the results:

Highest score in dairy cattle Jasper Stallard, East Jordan; beef cattle, Nellie Raymond, Deer Lake; sheep, 3 ties, L. Mayne, Harry Chorpene, and Roy Vance, East Jordan; hogs, Jasper Stallard, East Jordan.

Those having the highest score in all four departments were the ones that were declared winners of the various livestock prizes. The judging was based as follows: Placing 50 per cent; Reason for placing 40 per cent; Neatness 10 per cent.

Those winning prizes under those conditions were as follows: First prize, Holstein Heifer calf, Harry Chorpene, East Jordan; Second prize, Duroc Jersey gilt, Merit Shaw, East Jordan; third prize, pen of three Ewe Lambs, Manuel Bartholemew, East Jordan; fourth prize, Poland-China Boar, Jasper Stallard, East Jordan; fifth prize, Hampshire gilt, Nellie Raymond, Deer Lake.

The three teams judging were from East Jordan, Deer Lake and Boyne Falls, East Jordan, first; Deer Lake, second; Boyne Falls, third.

The writer wishes to take this means of again thanking the Fair Association, the Farm Bureau, the banks in the county, the Chambers of Commerce, and the Co-Operative Associations in making it possible to buy the first three prizes. Also thanks should be expressed to Zimmerman Bros. of Traverse City, who donated a Poland-China Boar as fourth prize, and Herbert Chorpene of East Jordan, who donated the Hampshire Gilt as fifth prize.

From a standpoint of interest, it is needless to say that it was sufficient to warrant a contest of similar nature next year. Not only were the parents of children interested, but also many adults were attracted by the crowd and it was only by repeated requests that the adults were kept back so room could be made for the contestants.

The livestock used in the contest was judged by the regular stock judge, Geo. Royce of the Soo, and he also scored all papers and all places were made by him.

It is the sincere and earnest desire of the County Agricultural Agent that this be the entering wedge for considerable work with the boys and girls in the county along better livestock lines. No one can question but what there is a chance for great improvement in the livestock of Charlevoix county, and also what Charlevoix county might be one of the best dairy and livestock counties in the State of Michigan. Now that the interest is started both in the young and the adults, let us maintain our present feeling, and accomplish results which are not only gratifying to all but compensating to all.

Charlevoix Summer Resident Calls
Attention To Needed Improvements About the City

Charlevoix, as well as all resort towns, are usually more or less criticized about the appearance of their streets, private homes, parks, etc. And, as a rule, the criticism is fully justified. It is the duty of all citizens as well as public officials, to see that the town is kept clean and sanitary. If this is not done, have we any right to name "Charlevoix the Beautiful?"

Isaac W. Bernheim of Louisville, Kentucky, one of our well known summer visitors, in a communication to the Courier, comments on the appearance of Dixon avenue. At the same time he hands a well placed left-hander on the city park and its appearance. He scored a hit in each instance. His letter follows:

Mr. Editor:—May I be permitted through the columns of your valuable paper, to call attention of your citizens to some changes which if introduced, would add so very materially to the attractive appearance of your pleasant little town?

I am referring especially to the unkempt and neglected appearance of parts of Dixon Avenue. This forms the main artery over which your incoming visitors enter town and receive their first impression. If the maxim "The first impression the lasting one" is correct, and I am inclined to believe that it is, it would be money into the pockets of your citizens to see to it that Dixon, a most beautiful and dignified avenue, be made the beauty spot of Charlevoix. The pavement, and the grass plots adjoining the pavement, should be kept scrupulously clean during the entire summer; trees should be planted, and the grass should be closely cut.

Park, Clinton, State, and other streets, are a constant source of delight to the visitors. They testify to the thrift, civic pride, and to the sense of the beautiful of the property owners. But, a visit to your City Park again destroys the pleasant impressions; there you face sloth, dirt, untidiness, and the grossest sort of neglect of everything that goes under the appellation of "Park." Charlevoix has a valuable asset in that attractive spot, with its dreamy outlook on Lake Michigan.

The expense of constructing comfortable walks and the maintenance of cleanliness and neatness would add more than one cent to the town taxes. The need of a well kept park is recognized by every American community, because it forms a civic center for old and young, visitors and homefolks; and adds greatly to the enjoyment of outdoor life. And then, don't overlook the adjacent filtering plant; with its outstanding guarantee of a pure water supply—be sure to add this to your Park system. It is part of good policy to show the taxpayers and the visitor, what he is getting for his money.

I am not a fault finder, and if I appear somewhat of a critic, it is because I am interested as a near-citizen.

VISIT CHARLEVOIX ON SEPTEMBER 28

Grand Rapids Wholesalers Here For During the Afternoon

The revised itinerary of the Grand Rapids Wholesalers tour through northern Michigan on September 26, 27, 28 and 29 has been accepted and final details are now being arranged for what promises to be the largest and most successful trade tours taken since they inaugurated these popular trips.

As in previous years, the train will be made up of baggage, dining and observation cars, and the Wholesalers will spend their nights in the sleepers. The Furniture City Band will accompany them on the tour, playing at all stops and giving full concert programs at the evening meetings.

The train will arrive in Charlevoix, September 28, at 2:55 p. m., and leave at 4:25. Arrangements are under way to give them a warm reception and show them true Charlevoix hospitality. Automobiles will meet them at the train and escort them about the city. Tune up your fiver, Mr. Booster, and get in line—let every citizen do his part.

The next stop after Charlevoix will be at Ellsworth at 4:45. From there to East Jordan by auto, and south by train to Central Lake and Traverse City.

CHARLEVOIX IS IN NURSE DISTRICT

ONE OF THIRTY-SEVEN COUNTIES IN NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Miss Charlotte Ludington, Former Tuberculosis Field Worker, to Have Charge of Work

Charlevoix county with 32 other counties of the state comprise the northern nursing district of Michigan, with Miss Charlotte Ludington as director of the district. Miss Ludington was formerly a field worker for the Michigan Tuberculosis society and has a reputation for initiative and a willingness to tackle a hard job.

There are five districts in the state, each headed by a capable and experienced health worker. These divisions have been made on the basis of population, not area.

The northern district comprises the greater part of the southern peninsula of Michigan, including the counties of Antrim, Arenac, Alpena, Alcona, Benzie, Bay, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Clare, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Glandwin, Isabella, Midland, Mason, Mecosta, Iosco, Kalamazoo, Leelanau, Lake, Montmorency, Manistee, Missaukee, Muskegon, Newaygo, Oshtemo, Oseola, Oceana, Presque Isle, Rosecommon and Wexford.

The division of the state into districts for closer health supervision and the provision of nurses has been made possible through funds received by the Michigan department of health under the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner bill.

The district nurses will assist the sparsely settled sections to secure full time nurses and will co-operate with the county, welfare and school nurses of her district.

DO ALL "LIZZIES" LOOK ALIKE? MAYBE

Bob Dewey of Antrim Street bought a new rifle recently. Coming out of the store, he placed his treasure carefully in what he thought was his car. Then he hurried down the street to make further purchases. Harrison Trimble, some time afterwards climbed into his machine and drove off.

When Harrison got home he found a nice shiny brand new rifle in the back seat. Not certain whether this was a black-hand warning or an anonymous gift, Mr. Trimble was considerably puzzled. He decided, however, to wait a few days and see what would turn up. Something did turn up in the person of Mr. Dewey, much worried and also much relieved. Explanations ensued and then some loud "har har" at Bob's expense.

It's toasted. This one extra process gives a delightful quality that can not be duplicated

In Arithmetic, the eighth grade are having "Square Root."

Since the Fair, some of the girls are displaying fancy ear rings.

The third and fourth grades have been writing letters for language work.

The first graders are drilling themselves for speed and accuracy in counting and adding numbers.

The chart class spent some of their time in becoming acquainted. They are not quite ready to start reading from books but in the meantime have been learning rhymes from the board.

In Geography, the fourth grade is trying to learn why food, clothing and shelter are necessary to man.

Several pupils were absent Monday morning, due to the change in time. School will start one-half hour earlier from now on.

There are nine in the eighth grade and we are hoping that they will keep their present spirit and graduate in the Spring, with colors flying.

As some of the pupils in the grammar grades haven't text books, they are getting along as well as can be expected in work assigned for the "State Course of Study" and supplementary books.

This or a similar expression was heard in almost every Charlevoix home where there are children Monday morning. It followed the ringing of the old school bell, as hundreds of kiddies trooped back to their studies after two month's vacation.

Making 20 Years of Racing Serve Car Owners Today

IN the early days of automobile contests, Barney Oldfield—out to win every race—studied tires. His consistent success led other drivers to ask for tires constructed to his specifications.

Twenty years of road and track victories—with a steady and increasing demand for tires as he built them—convinced Barney Oldfield that these speed tests pointed the way to a better tire for everyday use.

The enthusiastic reception of Oldfield Cords by the public proved he was right. Scores of the most prominent dealers in the country—and many thousands of car owners, experienced in the use of tires—bear witness by their decided preference that Oldfield is doing a bigger and better job of tire making.

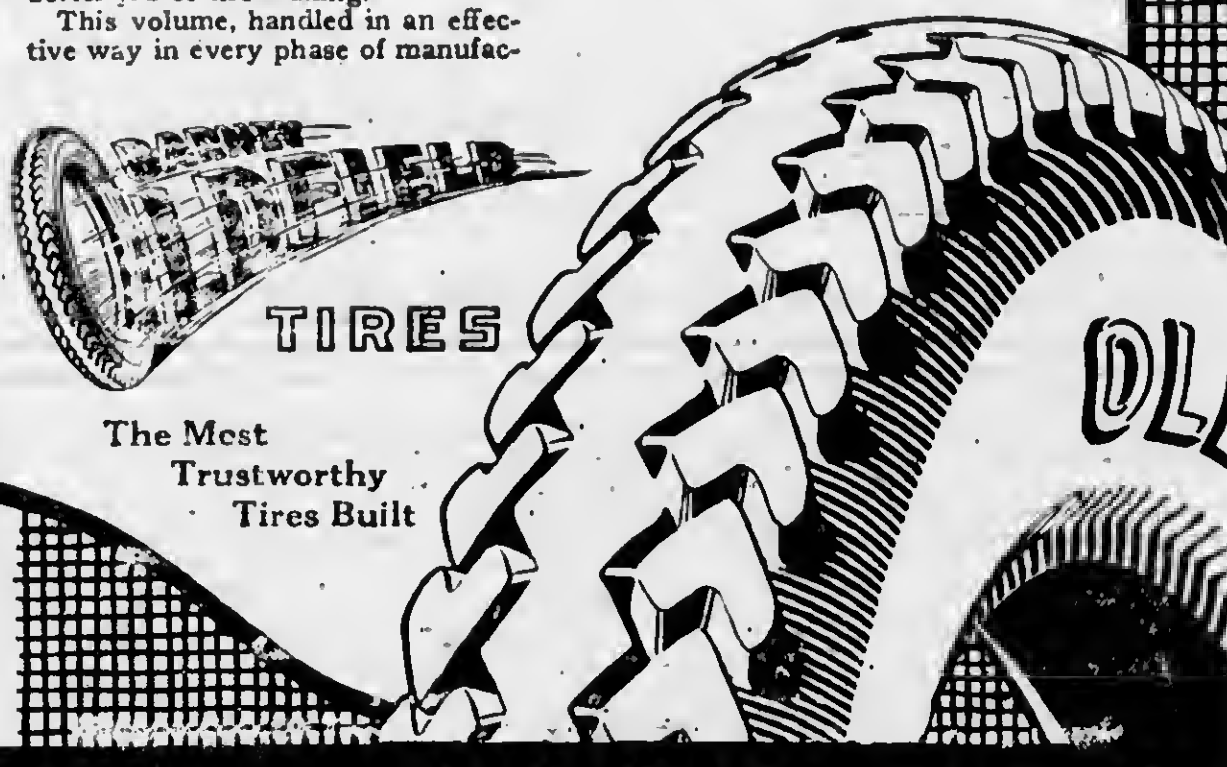

This volume, handled in an effective way in every phase of manufacture and distribution, has resulted in price quotations far below what you'd expect on tires known to be better built and more enduring.

Practically every important race event for three years has been won on Oldfields. The Wichita Test Run in which an entire set of Oldfield Cords covered 34,625 miles on rough roads proves the mettle of the Most Trustworthy Tires Built in everyday driving.

The Master Driver and Tire Builder has given the public a new standard of tire wear and tire cost—a true economy that every car owner should know about.

Your Oldfield dealer has these facts—talk to him.

Port Facilities

The dedication of the new State Pier at Portland, Maine, was heralded as an epochal occasion at the Maine metropolis, and quite naturally the people at the tip "Down East" wanted to hear from their member of the United States Shipping Board. So it came to pass that Commissioner Edward C. Plummer absented himself from his desk at Washington long enough to go back to his home State and make the principal address at the dedication. Mainites have a reputation for plain speech, and Commissioner Plummer upheld all the traditions of his State in that respect upon the happy occasion to which this item refers. What he said at Portland applies with equal force to every port where God has given plenty of water and a breadth and length of it to make the business of shipping feasible. "The future of Portland will be largely what the citizens of Maine—and particularly the citizens of Portland—are determined to make it," observed the Commissioner in opening his speech. "Commerce is the life of any port and commerce ordinarily follows the line of least resistance," he continued. "Therefore, port facilities should be constantly in advance of existing business to the end that more business may be thereby gained. Commerce must be sought; not merely awaited."

Everyone who has traveled along the American coast line or been privileged to make the voyage through the Great Lakes must have been impressed with the absence of port facilities. There are hundreds of towns falling to pieces at the water's edge because "the boats don't stop there" when the only reason for them not stopping is because the citizens of the place have never given aid or encouragement to make their port facilities adequate to handle any kind of shipping business. It is true that these ports have "beautiful harbors" that delight the eye, but the same places have beautiful spots for railroad beds and depots, and they would never think of trying to get along without railroad terminals, or stations. They fail to differentiate between the responsibility of the railroad to build a depot and the responsibility of the community to provide docks, either by and through cooperation with steamship companies or with the support of a State, county, or even municipality. Wherever you find a port with a "city dock," you are apt to find steamboats landing at it, and adding their contribution to the upbuilding of that port.

Portland, Maine, with its State Pier, will have what every port should have—an adequate landing place for ships. Portland says that it will prepare for ships and it has sent out word to the world: Let them come! Commissioner Plummer, who knows what he is talking about, has heartened his homefolks by assuring them that "the ships will come." In his address he pointed out the forward progress of Baltimore, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Mobile, New Orleans, Galveston, Houston, Los Angeles, Portland, Oregon, San Francisco and Seattle, as cities that have looked well to the business of their ports. He emphasized the fact that in all of these cities it has been demonstrated that "facilities attract business—and that ocean business is the public's business. Those who wish business to come must themselves prepare the way."

Employment is Normal

We have it from the authority of the Secretary of Labor of the United States that employment is again normal in this country. That does not mean that every man or every woman has a job, because, as we recall it, statistical sharps have it figured out that there are always a couple of million people unemployed. They are people temporarily out of work from choice or necessity, and others who are jacks of all trades and are constantly shifting employment. When you add the loafers and the bums the total of two million out of a population of more than one hundred million isn't so bad.

The Secretary of Labor has spoken "kind words," and it is heartening to know that we are again back to normalcy in the matter of employment since there were over five million unemployed last winter.

Vetoing the Supreme Court

No one need to lose any sleep over the proposition of an amendment to the constitution of the United States, which will deprive the Supreme Court of the power of setting aside acts of Congress as unconstitutional. The champions of this new thing they call "reform" want to shackle the Supreme Court by providing that through a two-thirds vote Congress may "veto" a decision of the Supreme Court.

Agitation of this kind have usually followed decisions of the Supreme Court that are "unpopular." In the present instance the court is being criticized because of its decision holding the child labor unconstitutional. Therefore those who are displeased would upset the fundamental policy upon which the court is founded. Thus history repeats itself. A hundred years ago Chief Justice John Marshall was writing the last of his great decisions that defined constitutional law. His biographer, Senator Beveridge, points out that only one or two of all these decisions were "popular" with the country. Talk of "vetoes" by congress was always in the air throughout the more than quarter of a century that Marshall was on the bench. Impeachment was threatened time and again. Orders of the court were treated with disdain by southern states, and even Jefferson while president, refused to obey the summons of Marshall to testify in the trial of Aaron Burr. The Supreme Court in those early days was kicked about pretty much as the Railroad Labor Board is being cuffed in these later days. The final success is obtained in enforcing its power should prove heartening to the Labor Board.

The income tax decision in 1896 and the injunctions to stop the great railroad strikes in the early nineties aroused storms of protest against the Supreme Court. To these special cases there may be added a number of rather unpopular opinions, all of which are dwelt upon by men who may fairly be classed as enemies of the Supreme Court. But in all of the storm of protests that are now, or have in past, been directed toward the Supreme Court, the fact and conviction has always been steadfast in the country that the court, while not infallible, has always been extremely able and ever unquestionably above reproach. It may therefore be expected that the talk of uprooting the Supreme Court will gradually subside when the railroad strike is over and the fall elections have burned out the passion and hate in certain groups of politicians.

The Hen Family

The Department of Agriculture has taken notice that the hens of the United States have taken a vacation and thrown the country back upon the necessity of eating into the 9,586,000 cases of storage eggs that wise commission men, speculators, etc., have laid by for the time when hens would not do the laying. In the olden days budding poets wrote lyrics and ballads in honor of the cow, but that was before the days of Borden, Van Camp, and the other milk canneries. Today the hen yields one of the greatest of necessities that goes onto the American breakfast table. It is therefore, a matter of public concern that the quality of her product is threatened, even though the fault may lie entirely with the bird herself. The Agricultural Department observes that "Mrs. Hen has broken down completely under the excessive heat of hot weather and has gone vacationing." It is lamentable, but the Hen should be excused under all the circumstances. She may have been imitating human-kind—and that latter greed has certainly worked the vacation period overtime this summer.

"National Guard" Felling to Pieces
The war department is greatly concerned over the condition of the National Guard, and Secretary of War Weeks expressed uneasiness because "with our Regular Army skeletonized and the National Guard unorganized our country will have no first line of defense." The Secretary has given his official attention to the matter and is forming a special committee, a majority of whose members will be National Guard officers, to make a comprehensive study of the situation in conjunction with the military bureau of the War Department.

Burglars gained entrance to the office of a lumber company at Lapeer and stole 15 cents—and the next day, probably, it would all have been safely transferred to the bank.

Through the county clerk at Muskegon, according to the Chronicle, the local merchants are giving away to each bride a book containing valuable information every bride should know, "such as regulating the gas stove, cooking the turkey, shaking down the furnace and husband."

A stone statue of an army officer, to be unveiled at Saline, is so lifelike that it is said two privates who saw it standing in a doorway as they passed, actually saluted it. The name of the officer who looked so much like a stone statue that this mistake was possible is now being sought.

No Mystery About Prophecy.
Prophecy, after all, is merely the logical continuance of the known into the unknown; and on the data we have, it should be quite easy to prophesy for at least fifty years ahead.

Clear 1/3 more land per dollar with DUMORITE

—the lowest cost explosive

We handle Dumorite, the newest du Pont explosive. This is the dynamite that has cut land clearing costs.

Dumorite has approximately the same strength as regular 40% dynamite, stick for stick, and shoots with the slow, leaving action of 20%. It is the only dynamite of its type.

The du Pont Chemical Engineer has found the way to add 1/3 more sticks to each case. He has increased the purchasing power of your dollar by 30 to 40 cents.

For blasting ditches, we carry a stock of du Pont 50% Straight dynamite.

If you are thinking of clearing more land this fall, stop in. Let's talk it over. Land-clearing costs a lot less now—your dollar will buy more dynamite!

JUST BEYOND.

If there is anyone who believes he will ultimately attain his full desires and be satisfied, it is probable he is doomed to disappointment. We no sooner reach the destination towards which we have been traveling than we note something just beyond which we want still more, and so the race continues. Wealth is the usual aim, altho' there are those who prefer definite achievement in their chosen line of endeavor, who seek fame and power. Money is generally regarded as the basis of success, for its accumulation makes possible the accomplishment of most other desires, particularly in the purchase and ownership of material things. But complete satisfaction is just beyond.

Note for example the $20,000 party just given by Mrs. John Aspegren in order to establish a permanent place in Newport society. Here were riches squandered merely for display and effect to attain the prize of social recognition, the ambition which appeared just beyond after fortune had been won. Despite the extravagance the affair was not a huge success, and only a portion of the invited guests attended. "A little flat despite the magnificence," was the comment of many social registerites.

Thus in the wasting of what would be a fortune to millions the Aspergrens did not achieve happiness, true satisfaction. They moved a step nearer perhaps, and when they do attain that social goal they will not only probably find it an empty reward, but immediately there will spring up rival leadership and another mountain height must be scaled.

While the aim of life will always appear just beyond we must keep striving and struggling forward, for that is the way of the world. But let this be a consolation, if there can be any, to those who are less fortunate, that no matter what rung of the ladder one may be on there will always remain a further distance to climb.

Just when most of us are striving to make both ends meet and save ten or fifteen cents out of every dollar along comes the report of the Ford Motor Co. showing cash on hand of about $145,000,000 and a surplus of nearly $200,000,000, and it makes us feel rather infinitesimal. But at that it is a question as to which is the greater worry, what to do with a hundred million dollars or how to save a hundred pennies.

What Ford has done others might have accomplished, but did not, and we can only wonder at and praise the genius of an individual who in a score of years has created a half billion dollar business out of an original capital of $28,000. That shows what brains, ability and energy will do. The Ford family is now supreme in the control of the gigantic company, but in building up that business others have been enriched, while thousands of average men have prospered and scores of other concerns have been aided. Michigan is the home of Ford and the automobile has been placed in the forefront of American industry and the prosperity has touched most of the inhabitants.

So while we note the Ford millions as we count our thirty cents we ought to be glad we are not faced with the greater worry. Somehow we are not.

THE SCHOOL ARMY

Charlevoix's army of school children begins its annual advance Monday. How successful it will be in its attack upon education depends not only upon its own efforts and those of its leaders, but also upon the home support it receives.

The youthful warriors will need proper nourishment, clothing, supplies and equipment, the most advantageous surroundings possible and the continued interest and encouragement of their elders just as truly as did the lads over seas in the recent war.

We "kept the home fires burning" for our soldiers during the war, we watched their progress day in and day out, we backed them to a finish in every undertaking. We knew the discipline and the routine were good for them and these were some of the chief reasons why the war was won. The school army does not face the same physical dangers and hardships as did the soldiers in the fiercer conflict, but its battles will be no less vital and its victories no less dependent upon the mental, moral and physical backing of the home.

HOME SADDENED BY DEATH OF MOTHER

Mrs. John Fagan Succumbs to Paralytic Stroke

Sorrow came to the community last week with the news of the death of Mrs. John Fagan, on Saturday, at the Lockwood Hospital in Petoskey, following an illness, the result of a severe stroke.

Emma J. Todd was born on Mackinac Island, August 12, 1856, of pioneer Canadian French-American parentage. She came to Charlevoix some thirty-five years ago and was married to John Fagan, February 7, 1890, in this city, where they have made their home since that time.

She leaves, besides her husband, one son, Arthur; two brothers, Frank J. Todd, of Ray, N. D.; Captain A. W. Todd, of Detroit; a sister, Mrs. May A. Luke, also of Detroit, and a number of nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held from See's undertaking parlors Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. C. T. Stout of the Episcopal church officiating, after which the remains were taken to Brookside cemetery for interment.

Among the out of town relatives and friends present were Captain A. W. Todd and Mrs. May A. Luke (who was with her sister from the commencement of the latter's illness), Mr. and Mrs. Al Robinson, all of Detroit, and Mrs. Ethel Hayes of Albion.

Read this and buy one quick. We have 25 men's, boy's and girls bicycles, renters, used but a short time and just as good as new. To close them out, take your choice at practically your own price. Benj. Brown. Adv. 3711.

THURSDAY BIGGEST DAY OF COUNTY FAIR

Largest Number of People on Ground in History

Records of attendance of all past fairs held by the Charlevoix Agricultural Society were smashed on Thursday of last week, when the number of people in attendance is said to have exceeded all previous events. This is saying a lot, for there have been many big days.

The Weather Man was on his good behaviour up to Friday afternoon, when rain fell for about a half hour. This however, did not stop the carrying out of the days program.

All departments made a very creditable showing, especially the exhibits of high bred stock. The school exhibits, as usual, were excellent, showing that splendid work is being accomplished in the schools throughout the county.

Both the night fair and evening dances were well attended and summing up the fair we are pleased to say it was a success. The directors, Secretary Blrd, and everyone who had any responsibility in connection with it are deserving of public thanks.

The Salvation Army will gladly accept any worn clothing, shoes, bedding or furniture for relief work. Leave addresses with Addie Holly. Adv. 3811p.

WHAT THE COUNTRY'S LAW MAKERS ARE DOING

Senate Passes $45,000,000 Water-
Washington, Sept. 18.

The river and harbor bill as it has passed the senate provided for Federal acquisition of the Cape Cod; Mass., and Dismal Swamp, Va.-N. C. canals. Another new provision placed in the House bill provides for the survey of the Tennessee river and its tributaries in Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina. A large number of additional surveys are provided for. As passed by the Senate the bill carries authorization for expenditures totaling nearly $45,000,000, of which $5,000,000 goes to pay for the cash settlement for the Cape Cod canal. In addition the government is authorized to take over $6,500,000 in bonds issued by the Cape Cod Company as part of the settlement. The bill is now in conference with the House.

Coal Supply Up to Railroad
The Geological Survey statement shows that coal mining has been quite satisfactorily resumed under the terms of the Cleveland agreement. The statement says: "The limiting factor in the supply of soft coal has now become transportation. It is true that some thousands of miners are still on strike, notably in the Connellsville and Kanawha districts, but the tonnage offered for shipment by the other mines at work will absorb the available transportation facilities. The demand for coal is active and the prices are high. Under such conditions coal is offered for shipment up to the limit of the ability of the railroads to transport it." Shortly before the middle of September the survey found "the present rate of production is 9,600,000 tons a week. In the corresponding period of 1920 the average was 11,750,000 tons." Later reports received, which are not entirely official, show a marked increase in mining over the statement given out by the Survey.

Foreign Commerce for July
The July statement of the foreign trade of the United States shows the total imports to have been $252,128,207 as against $178,159,154 for the same month of 1921. The seven months ended with July, 1922, showed the imports to have been $1,671,535,975 as compared with $1,498,635,484 for the same period last year. The export record shows the total domestic exports for July to have been $296,651,030, added to which was $4,661,502 of foreign merchandise exported. This compares with 1921 in which the July exports of domestic merchandise amounted to $318,710,369 and the foreign merchandise exported was $6,470,769.

FACTS vs. FICTION

The Attempted Nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment by Misrepresentation Exposed
From the Christian Science Monitor.

BL. CHARLES SCANLON.

General Secretary of the Board of Temperance and Welfare of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America
Pittsburg, Pa.

Fiction—Prohibition was hastily enacted.

Fact—For more than 100 years prohibition was intensively and extensively studied and discussed. No question ever decided by the American people was better understood.

Fiction—Prohibition was the will and act of the minority.

Fact—Before national prohibition went into effect 34 states, acting separately for themselves, had adopted prohibition. More than three-fifths of the people and four-fifths of the territory of the country were under prohibition. The Eighteenth Amendment was submitted by a vote of more than two-thirds of both houses of the United States Congress and has been ratified by 46 of the 48 states or by twenty-three twenty-fourths of them. The only two states which have failed to ratify to date, Connecticut and Rhode Island, have less than one-thirty-fifth of the population and a trifle more than one-five-hundredth of the continental area, and if the water which is included in these states is not counted the area is further reduced by more than 300 square miles.

Fiction—Prohibition was "put over" while America's soldiers were away.

Fact—The Congress which submitted prohibition to the states was elected (November, 1916) five months before war was declared on Germany (April, 1917). American soldiers are not drunkards. They helped Kentucky to enact prohibition after their return in 1919, raised the prohibition majority in Ohio from 28,000 to nearly 42,000, and in Michigan from 68,000 to 207,000.

Fiction—Prohibition is unconstitutional.

Fact—By a unanimous opinion of the United States Supreme Court, 1920, both the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Enforcement Code were decided to be constitutional.

Fiction—More liquor is consumed than before prohibition.

Fact—In 1917, the last year before prohibition went into effect, 600 distilleries in the United States produced 168,000,000 gallons of spirituous liquor. In the same year 1300 breweries produced 1,885,000,000 gallons of beer. The first year under constitutional prohibition three distilleries were in operation and 28,000,000 gallons of spirits were consumed, while beer practically disappeared. The liquor imported was less than one-half of one per cent of the consumption of pre-prohibition days.

Fiction—Prohibition interferes with personal liberty.

Fact—So do the Ten Commandments, according to the testimony of every liar, thief, libertine and blasphemer.

Fiction—Prohibition cannot be enforced.

Fact—The treason and anarchy preached and practiced by the liquor people will of course make patriots and Christians.

Fiction—Prohibition cannot be enforced.

Fact—Prohibition, and every other law for the good of the people, can be enforced by placing men in authority who have the inclination, courage and ability to do what they are paid and sworn to do.

for an invitation from the department, to co-operate with the Chemical Division. The division is beginning to function, and has been established for the sole purpose of facilitating contact between the department and the chemical industry. We want Trade Associations and individual manufacturers in the chemical industry to feel that they can lay their problems before the division with knowledge that their confidences will be respected."

Harnessing Radio

Those people who have regarded radio communications as an interesting toy will do well to inform themselves of the development of this remarkable agency in the field of improving existing means of carrying the written and spoken word throughout the business and commercial world. The recent successful achievements of radio has made it impossible for foreign nations to ever again interfere with America's free communication with the rest of the world. The Radio Corporation of America was formed as a result of a suggestion of representatives of the United States Navy, and that it has been justifying all expectations is indicated by an announcement by Edward J. Nally, its president, who in giving out the news that his concern has made an agreement with the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company whereby every office of the Postal Company in the United States becomes an agency of the Radio Corporation for the acceptance of radiograms for transmission across the Atlantic Ocean and for the delivery of radiograms received from overseas for points in the United States adds by way of explanatory comment:

"This important linking up of radio and wire line services reflects the rapid growth of the Radio Corporation's overseas telegraph traffic since the return of its high power stations by the Government after the close of the World War. These stations transmit and receive radiograms directly to and from England, France, Norway and Germany, and through, connecting stations abroad to and from all countries in Europe, Asia, and Africa. The Radio Corporation now maintains the only direct line of telegraph communication with Germany and Scandinavia; and additional direct service is planned for the near future with Belgium, Holland, Italy, Poland and Sweden, giving to those people the opportunity to communicate directly with their scattered brethren nationals in all sections of the country."

Practically all radiograms transmitted to transatlantic countries have originated in New York City and Washington, D. C. The harnessing of wireless with the land lines gives the whole inland commercial interests equal facilities with those now enjoyed by the national capital and the nation's metropolis. With the coming development of high

CAPT. HENDRICKSEN'S
NEW "FISH HOUND"

Fifty Foot Fishing Tug to Be Christened "Lucille H."

Have you seen the new "fish hound" Captain Charles Hendrickson and his son are building down by the old water works building on Belvedere Avenue? The Courier reporter was on the spot yesterday and gathered the following information about this new leviathan.

Length over all, 50 feet; beam, 11 feet, draft, 4 feet, 6 inches, planked with 5-8 yellow pine below water-line and 1 1-2 inch cypress above; thoroughly creosoted (fifteen gallons of creosote were used for this purpose, Captain Hendrickson stated). The ribs are oak (also creosoted) and the decking is of 1 1-2 inch white pine. She is a commodious craft and will be completely housed—designed to stand the roughest of weather.

Her engine will be a Peerless four cylinder gasoline engine made in Buffalo, capable of developing forty to fifty horsepower. This will be the only motive power, as no provision has been made for rigging.

The captain and his son have been working on this boat for six weeks and expect to launch her some time next week. This a record time for a boat of her size and the owners are to be congratulated on having turned out so workmanlike a job.

When pressed for her name, Captain Hendrickson said that when the usual bottle of grape juice was broken across her bow, "Lucille H." would be painted on her sides. The Captain expects a big crowd to the launching and would like to have all the stores closed during the event. All joking aside, however, the "Lucille H." is a beauty and the launching will be well worth a trip to the water-front to see.

SUDDEN DEATH OF EARLY SETTLER

Christian Neilsen Well Known in This Section

Christian Neilsen, aged 74 years, died suddenly Sunday morning at his farm home in Eveline township, where he had lived for over thirty years.

Upon retiring, Mr. Neilsen appeared in apparently good health, but about 2:30 in the morning expired almost without warning. Death was due to heart failure.

Deceased was born in Denmark and came to Ironton 40 years ago, where he lived until taking up the farm upon which he lived at the time of death. He was a hard working, industrious man, and held the high esteem of the entire community. Left to mourn their loss are the wife, one son, Ole Neilsen, a brother and sister in Denmark, and nine grand children.

Funeral services were held from the home Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, conducted by Rev. C. W. Long of the Congregational church. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST OF THE SOFT COAL HEATERSYou may value this information for being as TRUE as it is STRONGUNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES AND IN VIEW OF THE COAL SITUATION, THIS STORE FEELS PARTICULARLY HAPPY TO ANNOUNCE THE RECEIPT OF SOME OF

The Hot Blast Air-Tight Florence Soft Coal Burners

—The only thing we are sorry about is that there are not as many of these heaters as we wish we had.

—This Store, as you very well know, is not accustomed to superlatives. We know very well whereof we speak when we say that there is nothing else so wholly satisfying for burning soft coal as the "Florence."

NO SMOKE! NO SOOT! NO DIRT! NO CLINKERS!
EVERYTHING IS CONSUMED

At the end of the season's use with soft coal, there will be no soot in the pipe or flue.

—This heater is at the apex of perfection. It has the only jointless leg bottom and base with full radiation and large ashpan that is on the market or that has ever been made in the history of the stove industry.

—This jointless leg bottom and base makes the stove airtight below the grate, which is the only true fire-keeping principle.

—It will be as good a fire-keeper years hence as it was the day you purchased because there are NO JOINTS to open!

—We have heard many of its users declare that the Hot Blast Airtight Florence will heat twice the space that can be heated by any other stove on earth at one-half the cost. Our own experiments and demonstrations verify customer's words. In addition we can say we consider it the most perfect floor heater that has ever been made.

—There are sizes for every purpose.

—They cost no more than common stoves of good material. They fit your purse—and pay back their cost.

—The HOT BLAST AIRTIGHT FLORENCE burns soft coal or slack and all the smoke and gases. No filling up of the stovepipe or flue with soot. No dirt inside or outside the house. It will burn hard coal and all the gases which escape from the hard coal base burner. It will burn wood or sawdust, wet or dry. It will produce half less ashes than any stove we know of with any kind of fuel and leave no clinkers or half consumed fuel.

Final figures, as shown by the official canvass of votes held Friday and Saturday of last week by the county board of canvassers, show some changes in results published in the Courier last week, but not enough to make any material change in the line-up of men chosen to fill county offices. ABUNDANT CROPS considered both from the standpoint of value and purchasing power. This study has taken no account of the increased expense of producing the bigger volume. If the abundant harvest comes as a result of favorable growing conditions, the extra expense would not be large. If it is due to the expansion of acreage, the added cost would be an important item.
A BLESSING

There are indirect influences flowing from abundant crops which are beneficial to the whole nation and react to the benefit of agriculture. With the promise of generous harvests, factories are likely to expand their activities and this will later bring to the farmer a greater volume and variety of finished goods, presumably at lower prices. This will add to his real prosperity."

Charlevoix Won Series
Charlevoix's Amateur League ball team won the series of games played at the county fair at East Jordan. In the game played with Harbor Springs Tuesday, they won by a 8-6 score. On Friday they crossed bats with Boyne City, defeating them in a 9-0 shut-out. This made four shut-outs in the last four games played—some record.

CAPTURES BOOZE RUNNERS HERE

SHERIFF WEAVER SCORES A BULLS EYE

Tools of Toledo Hoeb Ring Working Resorts Arrested Last Week

Clever cooperation between the sheriff and one of his deputies resulted in the capture last week of a gang of boot-leggers who, developments show, have been operating in this territory for some length of time.

Late Tuesday afternoon, Sheriff Weaver was advised over the telephone by Deputy Henry Cook, of East Jordan, that a Studebaker car with four passengers had just left East Jordan headed towards Charlevoix and that these people had been tipped off to him as members of the bootlegging fraternity. The sheriff, thus warned, went at once to the Belvedere station and took up his position where the car must pass entering town. Shortly, along came a Studebaker touring car with a man and three women answering to the description given by Deputy Sheriff Cook. Mr. Weaver let them pass and getting into his own car trailed them down onto Bridge street. Crossing the bridge, the strangers were hitting a pretty fast clip and this, later, gave the sheriff the excuse he needed for "roping" them in.

The suspected party pulled up to the curb on Bridge street and the man got out and walked up the length of the street and came back again, said something to one of the women, who took the wheel started the car and under the sheriff's watchful eye drove up Park avenue to State. Right here is where the sheriff lost track of the man in the case. He couldn't watch both the car with the women and the evidence and the man at the same time. So he followed the car and when it turned off State on to Mason he stopped it in front of the Ed. Ward home and told the occupants that they were under arrest for speeding. The sheriff took advantage of their momentary surprise to lay hold of a suspicious looking suitcase, demanding to know its contents. When they refused to answer, Mr. Weaver escorted the party to his office, where he opened the suitcase and found thirteen quarts of booze with Canadian labels, which afterwards proved to be just ordinary moonshine sailing under false colors.

After he had locked the women up, the sheriff hurried back to Bridge street with a forlorn hope that he might find the man in the case, but the latter had disappeared. His escape was regrettable, but the sheriff really "had nothing on" the party until the discovery of the contraband liquor. At any rate, he had corralled the evidence and most of the culprits.

Returning to the jail, the sheriff questioned the women and found that his unwilling boarders were Mrs. Charlotte Dorkey, age 47, with ten children living at River Rouge; Miss Madeline Dillibaugh, of Cleveland, Ohio, 20 years of age, who had accompanied the party from Detroit as an accomplice and Miss Mary J. Foltz, of Columbus, Wisconsin, 22 years old.

Miss Foltz, it developed, was the innocent victim of circumstances. She had been working at the hotel in Harbor Springs where the party had stopped and upon the closing of the hotel for the season had been invited by Mrs. Dorkey and her company.

X-RAY DISCLOSES

BONE DISEASE

Albert Russell Recovering From Recent Serious Operation

Albert Russell, son of Milton Russell of this city, is recovering nicely from a delicate operation performed on the bone of his left cheek at the Charlevoix Hospital, Thursday of last week.

A previous examination under the X-Ray at East Jordan, where he was taken by Dr. McMillan, showed that the boy's cheek bone was slowly decaying and that an immediate operation was necessary. This was performed by Dr. Clarence N. Smith, plastic surgeon and specialist of Grand Rapids, at a clinic at the Charlevoix Hospital, with very gratifying results.

ANOTHER PIONEER SETTLER PASSES

Isaac S. Webster Dies Suddenly After Short Illness

Charlevoix lost another of its rapidly thinning rank of pioneer settlers Tuesday in the death of Isaac S. Webster, at the home of his son, Amos, on May street. The end came at two-thirty A. M., following a week's illness and at the end of a long and eventful life.

Mr. Webster was born April 1, 1835, in Amboy, Ashtabula county, Michigan, and soon after his marriage to Miss Martha Cratsley, which took place at Fowler, Trimble county, Ohio, the home of the bride, in 1866, he returned to Michigan, settling on a farm in Hayes township in the fall of 1869, later moving to Charlevoix, where after the death of his wife, he made his home with his son, Amos.

He leaves five children—Amos Webster, of Charlevoix; Platt Webster, of Hayes; Harvey Webster, of Warner, Ohio; Frank Webster, and Mrs. Ellie Sheldon, both of Toledo. The deceased was the last charter member of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., under whose auspices the funeral will be held from the Amos Webster home at two-thirty P. M. Thursday, the interment to be in Brookside cemetery.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A MERRY AFFAIR

Mrs. Peter Jensen, 73, Has 16 Candles On Her Cake

Friends, relatives and neighbors gathered last week to the number of forty to celebrate the seventy-third birthday of Mrs. Peter Jensen, of Eveline township.

Mrs. Jensen treated her guests to a delicious and bountiful supper to which Mrs. Ole Neilsen had contributed a fine cake, crowned with sixteen candles, a touching tribute to her old friend, still young in spirit if old in years. The Courier joins with her many friends in wishing her many happy returns of the day.

CREAMER GOES TO BELVEDERE

ALTON M. CREAMER AND FRANK McDONALD SUCCESSORS

Extensive Improvements to Be Started This Fall by New Manager of Hotel

The Belvedere Hotel, owned by the Charlevoix Summer Home Association, and managed for many years by Mr. R. P. Foley, will meet with many changes and improvements. A detailed statement of the increased capacity and improvements to be made to the building will be described in a later issue. Mr. Foley retires from the management of the Belvedere Hotel at the close of the present season.

Mr. Andrew I. Creamer, who has managed The Inn for so many years, has been engaged by the association to manage the Belvedere Hotel for the coming year. Mr. Creamer naturally is the logical man to take charge of the Belvedere because his personal friendship with Mr. Foley and the officers of the association gave him the opportunity to know the Belvedere property better than any other available man. Therefore, he is already taking up the duties as manager for the coming year.

Succeeding Mr. Creamer as manager of The Inn is Frank L. MacDonald, who was born in Michigan; a young man of energy and ability and who has been long connected with The Inn and is thoroughly familiar with its workings. Alton M. Creamer, a brother of the past manager, who also has been associated with Mr. Creamer and Mr. MacDonald as steward for so many years, is an equal partner with Mr. MacDonald in the management of this large property.

Frank H. Alfred, president and general manager of the Pere Marquette Railway Company, which owns The Inn, has appointed these two men to succeed Mr. Creamer in taking charge of this property for the coming year. The guests of both hotels as well as the citizens of Charlevoix will give both these institutions the splendid support they deserve and have had in former years.

Both Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Creamer will return to Highland Pines Inn, Weymouth Heights, Southern Pines, N. C., a winter hotel operated by Messrs. Creamer and Turner.

FALL PROVES FATAL TO CEMENT WORKER

Shocking Accident at Petoskey Plant Tuesday Night

Karl I. Rosencrans, repair man at the plant of the Petoskey Portland Cement company plant, died at about 6:30 o'clock Tuesday night of last week from a broken neck and other injuries received when he fell from a platform at the plant a distance of about six feet to the concrete floor. He struck on his head and left shoulder. The accident happened at about 4:30 o'clock.

Rosencrans and a fellow workman, Maurice Martin, are said to have been leaning against the railing of the platform when the timber broke, precipitating the two men to the cement floor. The accident occurred in the dry-grinding department. Rosencrans was rushed to Petoskey hospital but died within a short time.

SIREN SCREECHES AT HIGH NOON

NEW ELECTRIC ALARM CALLS TOWN TO EAT

Toot, Toot—Not Ding Dong, Will Be the New Toccia When Fire Breaks Out

Residents of Charlevoix and some of the fleeing resorters were possibly alarmed and puzzled last Friday morning and again Saturday noon when the new fire siren on the court house sounded its banshee note. As this performance will be repeated each day at twelve noon for a week or so, some explanation is necessary.

The whistle in question is about to be put in use and for the period mentioned above will be used as a midday signal until the fire department is assured that it will work in good shape. For fire alarms, one full rise and fall of the siren will be the general alarm. For Ward One, this will be the only signal, repeated at intervals. For Ward numbers over one, the highest and lowest register of the whistle will be combined with blasts of intermediate length and intensity of pitch until the full count for the indicated ward is blown. For instance, the signal for Ward One, graphically expressed, will be—highest pitch, lowest pitch, highest pitch, lowest pitch and repeat. For Ward Two—highest, lowest; high, low; high, low; each up and down swing of the siren's note making one count, following the first blow or general alarm, the tone not rising as high or falling as low in scale as on the first or alarm signal. It is not yet decided whether or not the use of the bell will be discontinued, but it is probable that it will be used only in case of something happening to disable the siren, as it cannot be heard at all while the latter is blowing.

The new whistle is a double-head, Sterling Siren Electric fire alarm, Model M, manufactured by the Inter-State Machine Products Co., Inc., of Rochester, N. Y. It works on the turbine principle, the rapid revolution of the blades sucking the air with varying velocity, controlled by a switch located on the second floor of the fire house in the chief's quarters, regulating the speed of the three H. P. motor that drives it. A similar whistle, of smaller size, installed on the fire tower in Boyne City, has been plainly heard here when the wind was in the right direction, so there is little doubt but that Charlevoix's siren will fulfil its purpose.

This whistle was purchased from a fund raised by the firemen through their dances and other entertainments and congratulations on the acquisition of a first class piece of equipment are certainly in order.

Log Shortage

Scarcity of logs, the railroad and coal strikes and the failure to procure lumberjacks for woods work is raising havoc with the lumbering interests in the upper peninsula. Operators say that lumberjacks are at a "premium" at present and that unless conditions change in a month or two companies will be forced to send advertisements broadcast for woodsmen, teamsters, etc.

Only two large lumbering concerns in the upper peninsula are carrying on any logging operations to speak of and hardly enough to handle their own requirements.

ESCAPED PATIENT PICKED UP HERE

Traverse City Inmate Found in a Dilapidated Condition

Sheriff Weaver gathered in a disreputable looking derelict down at the P. M. depot Saturday morning. This individual was acting strangely when first seen by the sheriff and could not give his name or tell where he was from. A memorandum pad of Traverse City State Hospital, requisition blanks found in his pocket furnished the only clue to his identity, though phone communications with the hospital did not afford the sheriff any further information as they could not place him.

He appeared to be about thirty-five years old and was in a terrible dirty condition. When urged by the sheriff to write his name he took the memorandum from his pocket and scrawled the words "monrat, auto, cider, iron." Monday, the asylum authorities called for him and he was taken back to Traverse, as he proved to be one of four men who had escaped from the institution there some three or four days previous.

Royal Neighbors Met

The Royal Neighbors of America met at the home of Mrs. Lawrence McCann Friday evening, September 22nd. The meeting was a special one, called on account of some of the members going away for the winter. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were enjoyed and all report a very pleasant session.

BANKERS FORM NEW ASSOCIATION

FIRST MEETING HELD AT HALL LETT INN

Purpose of Organization to Promote Closer Relations With Depositors and Members

The Charlevoix County Bankers' Association held its initial meeting at the Hall Lett Inn, Tuesday evening, September 26th. Twenty-two members were present at the banquet that preceded the business session. The following officers were elected:

A. F. Bridge, President.
J. A. Hill, Vice President.
G. E. Townsend, Sec'y. & Treasurer.

The following members were appointed on the executive committee: J. H. Porter, Boyne Falls. Archie Livingston, Charlevoix. A. J. Sufferin, East Jordan. D. B. Herrick, Boyne City.

The purpose of the association is to promote a better fellowship among the bankers of the county and between the banks and their depositors, and to provide a medium for the discussion and furtherance of projects that are of interest alike to bankers and business men generally.

The meetings of the association will be held alternately in the different cities of the county, the next being scheduled for the first Tuesday in November, at East Jordan.

VALUABLE DOGS WERE STOLEN

Early Morning Marauders Takes Thoroughbred Hounds

Frank Welch, master and owner of the Welch Riding School suffered the misfortune of having four fine dogs stolen from his barn on Mason street early last Wednesday morning. The door of the barn, strongly wired, had been broken in and the theft was evidently the act of some one who knew the dogs were kept there. Mr. Welch says that to the best of his belief only two persons knew where the dogs were kept. He has offered a reward of $20.00 for the return of the dogs and $100.00 for the arrest and conviction of the thief.

The dogs, 3 thoroughbred Walker hounds, six and a half months old, and one female Blue Tick of five and a half months—was about to ship to a relative, Payden Proctor, of Nashua, N. H. They had been but recently purchased locally and Mr. Welch feels his loss keenly.

LOCAL PIONEER IS INTERVIEWED

STAR CORRESPONDENT MAKES CHANCE FIND

Mrs. Williams' Narrative Rich in Anecdotes of Early Settlers' Struggles

Grace Julian Clarke, correspondent of the Indianapolis Star, tells in an issue of that journal, dated Sunday, September 10th, of a recent interview with our author-pioneer and fellow-townswoman, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney Williams, whom she met as a result of a chance perusal of the latter's book, "A Child of the Sea, and Life Among the Mormons" which she found when on a visit to the Charlevoix library about two weeks ago. The Star's correspondent writes a vivid and interesting account of what Mrs. Williams told her at this meeting in regard to life and conditions in Northern Michigan in the early days and we are reprinting her article verbatim for the benefit of our readers, many of whom are personally acquainted with Mrs. Williams and some, we believe, whose experience touches the times and events which she describes. The article follows:

"While browsing around in the beautiful little library of Charlevoix a few days ago I came across a volume entitled 'A Child of the Sea, and Life Among the Mormons,' which turned out to be impressions of life in this neighborhood beginning with the early eighteenth century, written by Elizabeth Whitney Williams, who kept the light-house first at Beaver Island and later at Harbor Springs, covering a period of forty-three years at this occupation.

She begins by telling of her father, Walter Whitney, ship builder, born in 'York State,' who served in the Seminole wars and later settled at Mackinac Island, where he married her mother, a remarkable woman who lived to be a hundred. Mrs. Whitney was born on the island, the child of British parents, her father having been an officer in the British garrison there. She spoke English and French equally well, also the dialects of the Indian tribes of the neighborhood, and was a typical pioneer of the finest sort, strong of limb, mentally alert, courageous, unselfish, tender and resourceful.

Mrs. Williams' narrative is so simple and straightforward, so utterly without any attempt at fine writing, so manifestly the outpouring of her heart, that I found my eyes glued to the page, and looked so regretful when the dainty little librarian told me it was past closing time that she said I might take it with me to the hotel by merely signing my name on a slip of paper. Parenthetically, isn't a matter for praise and thanksgiving that library rules are so delightfully generous and librarians so amazingly wise and clever?

I took the book and when the others went for the customary dip in the lake I was so absorbed that I did not even see them pass, although they went by my open window, and I had joined them every day up to that time. When I told the librarian next day how much I had enjoyed the volume she quite took away my breath by suggesting that I call on the author, who resided only a short distance from the library. This I proceeded at once to do, and that is how I came to talk with a "real pioneer."

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Mrs. Geo. Lord has been very ill, but is better at this writing.

Isa Alward and family of Ellsworth, and Ed. Scott and family of Charlevoix, were visitors at the Haskin home on Sunday last.

The smiling faces of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Hewitt were seen in Norwood a few days last week. They returned to their home in Jackson, Friday, stating that they would be back early next spring to spend most of the summer with us again.

Parties from here who attended the Traverse City Fair were Ed Gregory and family of Inwood and Fred Hull and family of this place, also Joe Hollebeck and family, John Empey, wife and son, Percy, and family.

Our usually quiet street familiarly known as Turkey Avenue, is now one of noise and clatter, since three large motor trucks began hauling gravel from the Baumback place to the new road on which work is progressing rapidly and when completed will be one of the most beautiful drives in Charlevoix or Antrim counties.

The church bell rang last Sunday and there was a brand new preacher, but few attended church as they did not know there was to be services. Lets have a large attendance next Sunday, as this man does not want to preach to empty seats. He isn't used to it. So lets all be there to extend a welcome hand and make him feel at home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Richardson motored to Traverse City Saturday, returning Sunday. Their daughter, Miss Drusilla, and son, Cecil, and Vera Cooper of Charlevoix, who have been attending the Fair the past week at Traverse City, returned with them. Miss Cooper spent Monday visiting at the Richardson home, returning to Charlevoix Monday evening.

Read this and buy one quick. We have 25 men's, boys' and girls bicycles, renters, used but a short time and just as good as new. To close them out, take your choice at practically your own price. Benj. Brown. Adv. 37tf.

WHAT TO EAT.

It is not necessary to be a graduate of household economics to understand planning a well-balanced ration of palatable and nutritious food; but it is essential that study should be put upon the selection of foods.

for a small amount of food rightly combined will give more energy than a large amount illly combined. Some one has said that the selection and organization of food in the diet is as important as the organization of an army. A properly disciplined force of soldiers is more effective than an untrained mob, we will agree.

One of the essential things to remember is the different groups of foods:

1. Foods which provide protein which builds muscle; these are milk, eggs, cheese, meat, poultry, dried peas, beans and lentils, as well as fish.

2. Foods which furnish us starch and sugar; these are cereals, meats, flours, bread, macaroni, potatoes and such starchy foods; sugar in various forms such as honey, molasses, candies and sweet fruits, preserves, sweet cakes and desserts.

3. Foods which furnish fat. Supplied by butter, cream, olive oil, corn oil, bacon, salt pork, suet and other cooking fats.

4. Foods which supply mineral salts, vegetable acids and body-regulating substances. This is a most important group and has been slighted in the planning of the ration far too often. We find these substances in apples, pears, berries, melons, oranges, lemons and other fruits; in salads of green vegetables, such as lettuce and cress; in greens, like spinach, green peas, tomatoes and squash.

When purchasing supplies for the family table think in terms of these groups. Some housewife will say: "My family will not eat such and such foods, or certain members of my family will not eat the kinds of food necessary for them to keep in perfect health." With rare exceptions this is admitting your own lack of properly training the children to eat the things that they should eat.

Aside from the fact of her close connection with a period which now seems almost as remote as the revolutionary war, she is herself a remarkable woman. Although nearly 80, Mrs. Williams might easily pass for 65, and there shines out of her eyes that light so often seen on the faces of little children, and once in a very great while of grown-ups. Perhaps her lonely lighthouse vigils may account for this, or her love of the water and her intimacy with its varying moods, or the great simplicity of her early life and its closeness to nature. One thinks of those exquisite lines of Wordsworth:

And hers shall be the breathing balm,
And hers the silence and the calm
Of mute insensate things.

Mrs. Williams was seated on her front porch that afternoon of my first call, listening to a neighbor read from a little book, but she welcomed me cordially and we were in the midst of a most interesting conversation when two old friends from Mackinac Island quite unexpectedly walked up and I withdrew, promising to come again, as she invited me to do. The next time I was more fortunate neither psychic neighbor nor old friend from Mackinac interfering. Mrs. Williams was engaged in some household tasks on my arrival which she assured me could just as well be deferred; for she "does her own work," and her house was as spick-and-span as any housemaid could make it.

When she was a child her family lived on various islands (she, too, was born on Mackinac Island), their habitation being determined by the work her father could find at ship-building, milling or fishing. One winter they spent on the Island of Manitoulin, where only one other family remained, at the other end of the island, some fifteen miles away. This family had consisted of three persons, father, mother and son of about 14 years, but the father died in the fall and mother and son refused to leave.

One day in midwinter the boy came to the Whitney home to tell them of the death of his mother and to beg them to help bury her. Mrs. Whitney was just recovering from an illness, but got out of bed and insisted on going with her husband to do what they could for the boy in his trouble. Leaving home at noon (the boy had gone back immediately), they walked along the beach inside the ice banks, where the snow was not so deep and where they felt safer from the wolves. The wind was keen and cut like a knife, and about 2 o'clock in the afternoon it began to snow so as almost to blind them. Presently Mrs. Whitney said she could not go much farther; so they sat down till they heard the bark of a wolf. It happened that there was a deserted shanty about a mile and a half farther, which, unless it had been destroyed, would afford shelter till morning; so their hope was to reach the shanty. But within a half mile of the shanty Mrs. Whitney's strength entirely failed and her husband had to take her on his back.

It was now almost dark and wolves were howling in all directions. He realized that he could not hold out much longer, the wolves were so near he could hear their snarls; his load grew heavier, he threw away his bag of tools and his gun; but just then he saw the shanty. The wolves were at his heels as he pushed the door open, barred it, and then turned his attention to his wife, who had fainted. Mrs. Williams' account of her parents' night in the shanty with the wolves howling and scratching outside, and of the whole expedition is most graphic. They reached John McWilliam's cabin (the family was Scotch) about 11 and found the boy sitting beside his dead mother. "Father made the casket, mother made the shroud," says Mrs. Williams, "and they buried the dear old lady beside the husband she loved. Two Indians came that way on their return from hunting. They helped dig the grave and stayed to bring mother home on their sleds. Mother baked and cooked for John, as they could not persuade him to come home with them." It is significant of the friendly character of those Chippewas that owing to Mrs. Whitney's anxiety, the chief of the tribe, Ossawinamakee, sent two of his men, with their wives and papooses, to live near John till spring, and they nursed him through a serious illness, after which he went to reside with an uncle in Toronto.

The story of Chief Ossawinamakee's daughter, "Marning Star," or Mary, as the Whitneys called her, is one that ought to be given in reiteration with diligent accompaniment. Her lover, the "Southern Bird," was murdered during the festivities which marked her marriage to the young Canadian chief to whom her father had promised her. It was a "marriage de convenience," arranged without consulting Mary and much against her wishes; but the Canadian had much land and belonged to a powerful tribe.

His conduct, however, in poisoning the true lover, greatly enraged the Chippewas, who were devoted to Mary and "Southern Bird," and after his hurried departure they strongly urged war against the Canadian Indians; but Mr. Whitney and the white settlers advised otherwise, saying they would all be wiped out, the Chippewas having lived in peace so long that war had become only a memory with them.

And the old chief and his councilors, wiser than some pathefaces of our own time, followed this advice. Mary was at the Whitney home a great deal, and the children loved her, for she made them beautiful leggings and moccasins, and birch-bark boxes which she decorated with gayly-colored porcupine quills. She sang to them, too. She had marvelous large dark eyes, Mrs. Williams says, teeth like two rows of pearls, and small hands and feet. When I asked her what became of Mary after the death of her beloved she smiled and said she married after a while and many children played round her wigwam, she and the Whitneys visiting back and forth as long as she lived.

I have given only a scant outline of this story as related by my new pioneer friend. The narrative given in detail possesses a simplicity, pathos, romance, tragedy, and religious flavor suggestive of the old Greek drama, and only awaits the touch of the real artist to achieve immortality.

There are Indian tales connected with the early history of our state, but is there anywhere living within our borders a man or woman who can bear first-hand witness to the occurrences they relate? Mrs. Williams remembers the incidents of Mary's wedding and how the Indian girl sat on her bear-skin rug and sobbed as she held the little Elizabeth (now the aged woman) in her arms at the opening of the festivities.

This is only one of many interesting reminiscences, only a part of which are contained in the volume mentioned, which had to be cut to suit the publisher's notions. And here sits this survivor of a bygone phase of our national development within a stone's throw of thousands of tourists who pass placidly along gazing in rapture at endless strings of beads and pretty baskets, without dreaming of this treasure-trove just at hand. An investigating proclivity often leads to rare finds."

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL By J. E. Jones

Industrial Slavery

According to facts gathered by the Federated American Engineering Societies there are upward of forty continuous industries operating more or less completely on a shift system, where 300,000 wage-earners comprise two shifts that work the clock 'round. It will be recalled that President Harding called the officials of the steel industry to Washington a few months ago, and laid before them the humanitarian demand for abolishing the long working day, a "line item" to get the people in their industry onto an eight-hour day. But if they have carried the reform further than the day's public print nobody has heard of it. The engineering society has ascertained that including the families of the wage earners between a million and a half and two million people in this country are dependent upon earnings from shift employment where twelve hours is a day's work. Engineers are apt to be practical men, and in the report referred to above they skip the humanitarian side of the question, leaving that to the editorial "we," and the social reformers, and to the ministers. "The effect of the eight-hour day," according to these engineers, "as compared with the twelve-hour shift operation, on the quantity and quality of production, absenteeism and industrial accidents, has been satisfactory where good management and co-operation of labor have been secured."

Progress of the Filipinos

Commissioner Jaime C. de Veyra of the Philippines, has issued a vigorous denial of the report purporting to come from Manila to the effect that the newspapers of this country are advocating the replacement of the English language with Spanish in the public schools. Mr. de Veyra is unfortunate in that part of his official duties in the National Capital which makes it essential for him to always keep his "lie swatter" at hand. Eight or ten years ago the United States was about ready to admit that the progress of the Filipinos entitled them to their deferred independence. But the settlement of foreigners in great numbers in the Islands has been accompanied by a steady protest from them against independence. Most of these new residents in the Philippines are Americans, and quite naturally these people, for self-interest, prefer the continuance of the rule of their own United States government. Even Commissioner de Veyra has a sympathetic understanding of this harmful American opinion; but he insists that if the new-comers are so fond of government by their countrymen that they should accord respect to the rights of the Filipinos who claim that they should at least have freedom in their native land.

There is a colony of several hundred Filipinos in Washington and a great many of them are attending the universities and other schools of learning. In intelligence they average with Americans. Any one of these representative Filipinos will answer if asked the question, that the Filipinos are now ready for self-government. In support of their claim they have presented statistics of the progress of education that are decidedly interesting. These figures have official endorsement, and from them it appears that during the seven years of Filipino autonomy between 1913 and 1920, that the number of public school buildings increased from 624 to 1,046. During the same period the number of public schools increased from 2,934 to 5,944. From this it would appear that the period of constructing buildings for exclusive school purposes has been inaugurated by the Filipinos themselves. The educational statistics further show that the number of pupils in the different island schools jumped from 440,050 at the beginning of the period of autonomy until there are now nearly a million students. Considering the population of the Philippines it is evident that the percentage of school attendance is about equivalent to the United States. And it must not be forgotten that this condition was not created during the centuries of rule of the Spaniards, or within the more than twenty years of administration of the island government almost entirely at the hands of American officials; but that it was achieved, and was brought about during the years when the Filipinos were told to "go ahead and rule yourselves, subject to the American veto." The results were staggering, and plainly demonstrate that these people have been going forward by leaps and bounds, instead of standing still or slipping backwards as the American commercial propagandists out in the Philippines are reporting back.

Twenty-eight Countries Linked by Radio

Twenty-eight countries of the world are now linked by radio, and the good work goes merrily on. South America and Central America will soon be completely tied into the mysteries of this achievement, and dots and dashes in the code system and the human voice will ere long reach everywhere. Not only is radio communication a formidable competitor with the cables, but it seems certain that the last ocean cable to connect the continents has been laid. Polar expeditions now carry along their wireless: all modern ships are equipped with it; and the latest master-stroke is the arrangement by the Radio Corporation of America with the Postal Telegraph, which places a radio office in thousands of places throughout the United States. In the face of this forward movement in the new science one of the Government agents sent to Alaska to become an "empire builder" has returned to suggest the laying of a cable from Seattle to Sitka. But outside of this single exception the world knows that the twenty-eight countries now linked by radio will be increased until all the world talks by wireless.

The New Tariff

The Republican tariff bill on which the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives began hearings on January 6, 1921, received the final approval of the House on September 15 and of the Senate on September 18. The bill was before the House on its original passage a little less than a month. It was reported to the Senate on April 11, after committee hearings that covered nine months. The original passage (Continued on page six.)

AT THE MOVIES

In "Jungle Romance," the opening episode of "Adventures of Tarzan," to be shown at the Palace theatre on Saturday and Sunday, Tarzan again meets his wild animal friends of childhood days. This serial, the latest and greatest of the Edgar Rice Burroughs novels to reach the screen, is in fifteen chapters and thirty-one reels, the first episode consisting of three reels. Starring Elmo Lincoln, the original Tarzan of the screen, this serial is said to be the last word in animal thrills. In the first episode Lincoln as Tarzan again meets Numa, the lion; Tantor, the elephant; Joe Martin the ape, the ape clan and a host of wild animals in their jungle lairs. Many remarkable and exciting scenes between Tarzan and these wild beasts issue. He fights with naked hands a lion, puts up a valiant struggle against a horde of wild apes and engages in a terrific battle with two of his enemies. A climax which will lift photoplay audiences out of their chairs comes when two lions leap from opposite cliffs on Tarzan, bearing him to the ground. The outcome of this terrible struggle will be shown as part of episode two "The City of Gold," on Wednesday of next week.

Touches of great charm and whimsical character relieve the serious nature of "The Whistle," William S. Hart's latest production for Paramount, which will be the feature at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday. For example, a factory whistle, shown in a close-up, symbolizes the story and sets the title.

Bill Hart, as Robert Evans, factory foreman, is awakened by his small son in the gray hours of morning, by being pummeled and pounded with a pillow "welded" by the youngster.

A beautiful scene of a great dam, the interior of a big factory, lovely grounds of a palatial home, a thrilling fight between Mr. Hart and a burly opponent; a plunge of a limousine through an open drawbridge into a river—these incidents keep the spectators keyed up to a point of tensity. Also the second chapter of "Adventures of Tarzan," "The City of Gold."

Tin Can.
An old lady was crossing the street the other day. A dog ran into her with such force that it knocked her down. Just then a light auto ran over her. A gentleman witnessing the accident came to her assistance. He said: "Lady, did that dog hurt you?" She looked at him a little dazed and replied: "No, the dog didn't hurt me, it was the tin can tied to its tail."

THE WRONG IDEA

A lady visitor standing on the forward deck of the "Manitou" as she slowly swung around to her place alongside of the wharf in Round Lake early one fine morning about two weeks ago, chanced to comment to a fellow passenger on the quietness of the still-sleeping city and the fact that no one had as yet appeared on the dock. "Oh, that's nothing," said he, "you ought to see this place in the winter time deaden a door nail."

The visitor was unable to state whether or not her informant was a resident of the city. It is highly probable though, that he was. We have often heard the statement from the lips of people who have lived here long enough to know better.

"Deader than a door nail" in winter, are we? Apart from the excellent (?) advertising this volunteer knocker furnished the city, was his statement the truth? Is the farmer stagnating because he rests from his labors after the harvest? Is the vast shipping of the Great Lakes decaying because the waters are ice-locked for a few frigid months? Are our schools and churches, our social and fraternal organizations moribund because our resort colony has left us? Deserted streets are no indication of extinct community life. Chicagoans shun the wind-swept stretches of State street and Michigan Boulevard when the mercury drops.

Are we "dead because we have no industries?" Let us see. Charlevoix, like the farmer, rests in the winter, plants in the spring and reaps in the summer and fall. Her crop is resort trade, her industry service. Each year she looks forward confidently to at least a normal crop and never is she disappointed. Can our larger sisters to the south of us, the so-called industrial towns with their half-manned and doubtful "year round" industries (some of which will probably not survive the winter) predict as much for themselves.

No, Charlevoix is not "dead" winter or summer. It may be said of her when the snow flies and the wind howls as the good preacher aptly quoted agent the telephone operator after repeated but fruitless efforts to arouse her to activity, "She is not dead, but sleepeth."

THE EASY WAY

The threatened collapse of Germany, financially, industrially and politically, is attributed more to her crazy currency inflation than to reparations demands or any other cause.

"Unless Germany can stop this inflation of paper money," writes Sir Phillip Gibbs, "she is doomed as an economic power."

Why, then, does she not stop it? The German experts say that they cannot stop.

"They are on the horns of monstrous dilemma. If they stop printing paper money there will be immediate distress and unemployment in Germany, leading to riot and social disorder of which they are in terror. If they continue using the printing press, the call for marks will lead to failure in international trade with the same result in the long run. In either case they do not see a way of escape. The vicious circle is a complete tragedy."

So Germany goes right ahead, dumping paper notes into circulation in more enormous quantities than ever, and so depreciating the value of all outstanding issues more than ever.

Yet German financiers and statesmen all know that they must stop sometime. They merely choose the easier course, though it is the worse of the two.

The fundamental trouble is a lack of moral courage to do the hard thing at once and get it over with. The longer the process is delayed, the more Germany and the rest of the world will pay for this moral weakness.

FOUR HEALTH ESSENTIALS

A health authority reminds his hearers that "the essentials of health are everywhere. They are food, sleep, air and exercise." In an era of elaborate health propaganda these simple essentials sometimes get sadly muddled.

There are organic infectious diseases which cannot be either avoided or controlled by intelligent observation of these four health fundamentals, but they are few. The majority of human beings can keep in prime condition year in and year out just by eating a well regulated diet of plain food, taking regular exercise in the form of walking or calisthenics, for which no apparatus is necessary, getting plenty of fresh air by night and day and taking regular and sufficient hours for sleep.

Exotic health, diet and exercise fads are so common just now that the person who has little time or money to devote to them is apt to think that bodily vigor as an assured and procurable asset is not for him. Yet, even as the doctor points out, the four essentials are everywhere, without reference to locality, occupation or purse. A health regime which elaborates them may be pleasant, but it is not necessary. One which slights any one of them will fail of entire success.

Read this and buy one quick. We have 25 men's, boy's and girls bicycles, renters, used but a short time and just as good as new. To close them out, take your choice at practically your own price. Benj. Brown. Adv. 371f.

Marion Center lost an old and respected resident Sunday of last week when Mrs. Eliza Jane Hapner passed away at the age of eighty-four years, ten months and twenty days, as a result of her extreme age and disease of the heart.

There are also a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

DROVE WHILE DRUNK—GETS STIFF FINE

Norwood Man Disobeys Police Orders and Lands in Jug

Frank Carmel, who says he is from Norwood, appeared in the streets of Charlevoix last Saturday night, much the worse for wear and three sheets in the wind. Chief of Police Weikel, noticed his disordered condition, stopped him as he was about to drive away in his car and forbade his taking the wheel.

Carmel, with moonshine bravado, "stepped on her" with the final result that he appeared before Judge Cooper and paid the latter $50.00 and costs rather than board with the county during the coming month.

Drifts of Sand.

Wherever dry, loose sand occurs, it is being constantly shifted by the wind. It often buries cultivated lands, buildings and forests. On the shores of Lake Michigan, there are drifts two feet deep. Those in Cornwall reach 300 feet in depth, and the drifts of the Gold desert are 40 miles long and 900 feet high in some places. On the shores of the Bay of Biscay, the drifting sand travels inland 16 feet a year; in parts of Denmark, 24 feet, and in southern India, 17 yards.

Cleaning Hint.

When you're cleaning house sprinkle the clothes closets with a little water in which tobacco has been steeped and then sprinkle with a little spirits of camphor. The latter destroys the odor of the former and together they will prevent annoyance by moths.

Points of Low Humidity.

According to the records of the weather bureau, the lowest relative humidity is found in some parts of Arizona, although it is possible that certain sections of the desert in southern California, where there are no recording stations may show lower relative humidity than Arizona.

sage was four months later, August 19. The final action as indicated in the opening paragraph, was the acceptance of the conference report which adjusted the difference between the two branches of Congress. The Republican administration has struggled harder with this tariff than with any of its predecessors, and statesmen in Washington, of all political persuasions, are now hoping the voters will "see the thing in its best light." To say that the measure is good, or bad, only invites argument. But all are agreed that "tariff" is a sort of synonym for "trouble," and most of these troubles are like Nixon Waterman described in "Shreds and Patches," when he said: "For while we've a whole lot of troubles, the most of them never occur."

PRICE CHANGES, MANUFACTURES AND LOANS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26, '22

Wholesale Prices in August

Practically no change in the general level of wholesale prices from July to August is shown by information gathered in representative markets of the country by the United States Department of Labor through the Bureau of Labor Statistics, based on 404 commodities or series of quotations, again registered 155 in August, a repetition of the July figure, which the bureau's weighted index number.

In the group of fuel and lighting materials the estimated prices rose nearly 3-4 per cent. Metals and metal products, due to increased cost of fuel, advanced over 4 per cent. Building materials, clothing, chemicals and drugs, and miscellaneous commodities all showed some advance over July prices.

On the other hand, decreases of nearly 3 per cent took place in the two important groups of farm products and foodstuffs. Among farm products, grains, hogs, lambs, poultry, cotton and cottonseed, hay, onions and potatoes were cheaper in July. Bacon, ham, lamb, mess pork, butter, rye and wheat flour and other foods also averaged less than in the preceding months. No change in the general level was reported for the group of house-furnishing goods.

Prices Changes in a Year

Comparing prices in August with those of a year ago, the United States Department of Commerce Labor states that the general level has risen 9 per cent. Fuel and lighting materials show by far the largest increase, 47 1-4 per cent. Building materials have increased 10 1-4 per cent metals 7 3-4 per cent, farm products 6 1-2 per cent, and clothing

Manufacture of Rubber Boots and Shoes

The Department of Commerce announces that the census reports show a decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of rubber boots and shoes during 1921 as compared with 1919. Twenty-four establishments reported products to the value of $93,625,695 in 1921, as compared with 24 establishments with a total value of products of $116,917,434 in 1919.

These figures do not include the value of the rubber goods, boots and shoes, and heels and soles manufactured in establishments assigned to other branches of the rubber industry. In 1919 the value of such manufactures was $17,597,886. The corresponding totals for 1921 are not yet available but will be included in the bulletin for the industry to be issued later.

The returns indicate that the combined output of all establishments was approximately 66 per cent of the maximum capacity, based upon a demand requiring full running time.

Federal Trade Commission

The Federal Trade Commission announces the issuance of complaints charging unfair methods of competition in maintenance of resale prices, against the following tobacco manufacturers and distributors: American Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Co. Inc., Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Products Corporation, Fink Tobacco Company (a subsidiary of the Tobacco Products Corporation,) and the Cincinnati Wholesale Association.

The complaint charges the respondents with entering into agreements among themselves to fix and maintain uniform price, not which their products shall be resold and to refuse to sell to those who did not resell at such agreed uniform prices.

Foreign Loans in America

In the first few months of the current year the flotation of foreign loans in the American market reached an unprecedented volume, according to the Federal Reserve Bulletin. Funds were plentiful and the demand on the part of both the banks and the investing public for securities absorbed new issues almost as fast as they were offered. More recently, however, banks have been much less willing to tie up funds in long-term investments than was the case a few months ago. The effect of this development upon the market for long-term bonds has been marked. Not only has the volume of new security issues been reduced, but the issues that have lately come upon the market have been scrutinized with more care by the investing public. This has resulted in some cases in a decided preference of investors for domestic issues against foreign bonds, particularly where the latter appeared less secure. A somewhat similar preference for domestic issues has apparently been developing in the London market, as is evidenced by smaller offerings or foreign goods and the slow sale or failure of a number of foreign flotations recently attempted there. The consequences upon the general international situation of this reluctance to lend on the part of the two nations is readily apparent.

Half Year's Production

The survey of business by the United States Department of Commerce says the halfway mark of 1922 reveals the production of almost all important commodities thus far during the year as considerably higher than in the first half of 1921, the prominent exceptions being coal, locomotives and ships. Increases of 50 per cent or more over the first half of 1921 occurred in flooring, buildings, face brick, sugar, rubber tires, and steel, while motor-truck production was 66 per cent above the last half of 1921, the only previous half year for which statistics are available. In comparison with the boom times of the first six months of 1920, the first half of 1922 showed declines in many instances, especially in coal, metals, locomotives and ships, but several commodities made an increase over that period, such as sugar, petroleum, gasoline, flooring and buildings.

The Cotton Movement

Exports of American cotton for the week ending September 15 were 57,912 bales as compared with 128,809 bales for the corresponding week in 1921, according to the Department of Agriculture.

Petroleum

Stocks of crude oil in the United States are still steadily accumulating but drilling activities continue to increase, says the Federal Reserve Bulletin. July production totaled 46,593,000 barrels, as compared with 45,559,000 barrels in June, while the number of new wells completed increased from 1,654 in June to 1,798 in July. Most of the recent increase was due to enlarged operations in the California fields. Daily average production in district No. 12 (San Francisco) increased from 355,274 barrels in June to 373,695 barrels in July. One hundred new wells, with a daily production of 66,195 barrels, were opened during July, in comparison to 68 wells producing 35,985 barrels in June. Development work in the older fields has practically ceased in order to conserve storage capacity and prevent a large oversupply of oil.

The Kansas Industrial Court

"Acting as a court of adjudication," Governor Allen, of Kansas, says in a summary presented to Congress, "the industrial court has rendered 45 important decisions which relate to wages and working conditions in the industries of transportation, fuel and food. Of these 45 decisions, 43 have been accepted, both by employees and employers. 'Probably 90 per cent of the cases have been brought by employees.'"

So satisfactory has the court performed, the Governor declares, that rectly when a railway company and its employees, whose past differences already had been passed upon by the court, met to write a new contract, they struck out all elaborate provisions for rules for conciliation and arbitration, and substituted a provision that all controversies should be referred directly to the industrial court.

Manufacture of Corn Sirup (Glucose) and Starch

The Department of Commerce announces that the census reports show considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of corn sirup (glucose) and starch during 1921 as compared with the year 1919. There were 38 establishments reported for 1921 and the total value of their products amounted to $80,063,149 as compared with the 56 establishments for 1919 with a total value of products of $186,256,260. The decrease in total value of products was 57.0 per cent.

These figures do not include the value of starches manufactured in establishments engaged primarily in other industries, as the data for these starches have not been compiled. The figures for them, however, will be included in a subsequent report.

The decrease in the value of products has been accompanied by corresponding decreases in the number of persons employed and in the total amount paid in salaries and wages during the year and in the cost of material used.

THAT MORNING LAMENESS

If you are lame every morning, and suffer urinary ills, there must be a cause. Often it's weak kidneys. To strengthen the weakened kidneys and avert more serious troubles, use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can rely on Charlevoix testimony.

Mrs. Leo Allard, 210 W. Upright Ave., Charlevoix, says: "Kidney trouble had me feeling miserable. There was a constant, dull, heavy ache in the small of my back and my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I purchased at Metcalf's Drug Store cured me in a splendid manner." 60c. at all dealers. Foster-McLennan Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

BABIES PROFIT BY COOL SUMMER

Michigan mothers and babies scored the third victory of the season over the enemies of infant health and shattered all infant mortality records of the state health department for the past ten years. According to figures given out today by Dr. R. M. Olin, state commissioner of health, 739 less babies under one year, died the first eight months of 1922 than during the same period of last year.

During August of this year 482 babies died while during the same month of last year, 685 infant deaths were recorded, bringing the total number saved last month to 203. During July 143 less babies died than in the corresponding month of last year and June saw a saving of 63. Up to August 1, last year, 5157

The August 1922 infant mortality rate of 60.1 per 1000 living births is a record for the past ten years. The closest mark to the 1922 figure was set up in August 1920 when the rate dropped to 69.7. The average rate for the past ten years is 93.3. The August 1921 rate was 84.7.

The reduction is traced to the cool weather during the past summer and the broadening of educational facilities by state and local health departments. Figures given out by the United States Weather bureau here show that the past summer was cooler than the summer of 1921. Due to the low temperature of August it is expected that the September infant mortality rate which is usually high will be greatly reduced.

The number of births during August more than doubled the number of deaths. There were 8,016 babies born while, 3,075 persons died. This year shows 4418 death or a decrease of 739. Of this number 409 were saved in the three danger months of the year, June, July and August.

The Difference of 150 Years

You've heard the story of Paul Revere—how he clattered out of Boston and spread the alarm to every Middlesex village, etc. That was in April, 1775. It was an all night job. Today the Boston papers would slap extras on their presses and in the shake of a little lamb's tail the whole thrilling message would be in each home of the well known county.

This represents the advance of 150 years in the important business of spreading news.

The cry of "Extra—Extra" on the midnight air brings startled folks to their doors as once did the pound of a horse's hoofs and the breathless shout of the rider. Papers have supplanted the courier—multiplied his effectiveness many times—increased his speed a hundred fold.

How far back we would go without newspapers! We would remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but also of much that concern us just as vitally—news of the very things that have to do with the person, every-day life of each one of us.

Somebody might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to our comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but we would never know it.

Modern advertising is a boon. It keeps our information up-to-date on the many things we need in order to live a profitable, happy and useful life in this age of progress.

A Problem in Arithmetic

the fresh concrete. When the street had hardened and the leaf was removed, a very faint impression remained. It was so faint, in fact, that one thirty-second of an inch of surface wear would have obliterated it.

In 1921, just five years later, the accompanying photograph was taken. As it shows, the impression appears as on the day it was made. During the five years of heavy traffic, the pavement had failed to wear as much as a thirty-second of an inch.

Here is the problem: If five years fails to wear a thirty-second of an inch from a concrete road, how many hundred years will it require to wear out a concrete pavement 8 inches thick?

federates to take a little trip with them; an invitation which she unsuspectingly accepted, knowing nothing of their character or business. The sheriff, of course, was constrained to hold her as witness awaiting the arrival of the federal authorities.

The man who got away, according to Mrs. Dorkey's confession, was Ernest Feeblekorn, of Detroit, better known as "Dutch." He and Mrs. Dorkey, it appears, had been peddling "hooch" for four months throughout the resort region, using Detroit as a base of supplies and making Harbor Springs, Mackinac Island, Charlevoix and other northern Michigan points on regular runs. When arrested, the women had given Harbor Springs as their place of residence.

The car that the party was driving, a seven passenger Studebaker, was found, on examination to have a false bottom, seven inches deep, extending the entire length of the body under the floor. Nothing was found in this secret compartment, however, except some paper and other rubbish. A car, similarly equipped, was picked up in Grand Rapids some time ago and it looks as though the boot-legging profession were trying to introduce a new model of "business car, which might be styled the "Bootleggers' Special."

Sheriff Weaver looked up the license number of the car and found that it had been applied for by one, Oscar Sidebotham, of Toledo, who, further investigation and questioning of the party disclosed, is an illicit liquor trafficker on a large scale, and the employer of Mrs. Dorkey, Miss Dillibaugh and "Dutch" Feeblekorn, who operated under his instructions. The license on the car, the records show, was issued for a Ford car, not a Studebaker.

The prisoners were held until Friday morning, when U. S. Marshall, Andrew Dow and Fred Cronenwett, head of the Western Michigan prohibition organization, arrived and drove the "moonshine" car, prisoners, booze and all through to Grand Rapids, where they will be brought before the Federal authorities. Sidebotham, it is likely, will be involved and possibly convicted on the confession of his agents and it is now up to the government sleuths to locate Feeblekorn, who, it is thought, made his way back to Detroit.

Talk about novice's luck! Witness the phenomenal catch made by Miss Lenore Whitlauer of Detroit, in Pine Lake last week.

Miss Whitlauer, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Beaudoin, accompanied them on a little fishing expedition last Friday morning and easily carried off the piscatorial honors for the season.

The party of three set out in a row-boat for Pine Lake, but finding the water rather rough, hove to near the railroad bridge and commenced fishing. Miss Whitlauer was in the midst of relating to her friends that she had never caught anything of the fish description larger than a perch when something struck her line with a force somewhere between that of a baby elephant falling from the water tower and the P. M. Resort Special traveling at full speed. Miss Whitlauer held on stoutly, however, and Mr.

Beaudoin coming to her assistance the two of them managed to bring the monster near enough the surface to recognize the outlines of a giant pickerel. Mr. Beaudoin got his own line hooked into the big fellow for an extra precaution, but even at this they were unable to get him into the boat. They finally had to row to shore and beach both boat and pickerel. Monster, indeed! He measured three feet and a half over all and weighed 14 pounds.

But this was not the end for Miss Whitlauer. Hardly had she made the next cast with the Surf-O-Reno bait that had proved so fatal to the big pickerel, when a four pound steel-head struck and a landing net had to be borrowed from a nearby boat to get him out of the water.

Rowing back through the channel into Round Lake a three pound bass hit the charmed bait and a few minutes later one weighing five to six pounds came aboard to join his little brother. Up to this time neither of the others had had a strike, with the exception of Mrs. Beaudoin, who had the misfortune to lose a nice steel-head. A half a dozen other boats were in the vicinity whose occupants claimed they hadn't had a nibble since they came out.

Feeling that she had done enough for the honor of Detroit, Miss Whitlauer called it a day and left the fishing grounds, much to the relief of the luckless bystanders who hadn't had a bite.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST OF THE SOFT COAL HEATERS

You may value this information for being as TRUE as it is STRONG

UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES AND IN VIEW OF THE COAL SITUATION, THIS STORE FEELS PARTICULARLY HAPPY TO ANNOUNCE THE RECEIPT OF SOME OF

The Hot Blast Air-Tight Florence Soft Coal Burners

—The only thing we are sorry about is that there are not as many of these heaters as we wish we had.

—This Store, as you very well know, is not accustomed to superlatives. We know very well whereof we speak when we say that there is nothing else so wholly satisfying for burning soft coal as the "Florence."

NO SMOKE!

NO SOOT!

NO DIRT!

NO CLINKERS!

EVERYTHING IS CONSUMED

At the end of the season's use with soft coal, there will be no soot in the pipe or flue.

—This heater is at the apex of perfection. It has the only jointless leg bottom and base with full radiation and large ashpan that is on the market or that has ever been made in the history of the stove industry.

—This jointless leg bottom and base makes the stove airtight below the grate, which is the only true fire-keeping principle.

—It will be as good a fire-keeper years hence as it was the day you purchased because there are NO JOINTS to open!

—We have heard many of its users declare that the Hot Blast Airtight Florence will heat twice the space that can be heated by any other stove on earth at one-half the cost. Our own experiments and demonstrations verify customer's words. In addition we can say we consider it the most perfect floor heater that has ever been made.

—There are sizes for every purpose.

—They cost no more than common stoves of good material. They fit your purse—and pay back their cost.

—The HOT BLAST AIRTIGHT FLORENCE burns soft coal or slack and all the smoke and gases. No filling up of the stovepipe or flue with soot. No dirt inside or outside the house. It will burn hard coal and all the gases which escape from the hard coal base burner. It will burn wood or sawdust, wet or dry. It will produce half less ashes than any stove we know of with any kind of fuel and leave no clinkers or half consumed fuel.

BANK ROBBERY WAS FRUSTRATED

OFFICERS NAB BOLD, BAD MAN IN THE ACT

Early Petoskey Risers Treated to Some Rare Excitement
Last Thursday

Petoskey was treated to some real excitement early Thursday forenoon when police and deputy sheriffs captured Howard J. Burch on the roof of the First State bank where he had been tampering with the skylight. Burch was armed with a heavy revolver, and had a quantity of rope, believed ready for use to drop from the skylight into the bank, a kit of tools, etc.

Bank officials had noticed something wrong with the skylight Wednesday and notified police who found that one light had been loosened and made ready to be removed.

Police guarded the bank all night and were rewarded at an early hour by seeing Burch climb to the top of a nearby building and walk to the bank building. Deputies and police, armed with rifles and shotguns, cut off Burch's escape but made no effort to capture him until about 7 o'clock when police went to the roof of the building and induced him to surrender. He made no resistance.

Police believe that Burch may have been a member of a gang of bank robbers and was to drop inside the bank and open the front door, and that when he noticed the police about the building halted his efforts. Nothing was seen of any suspicious characters about the city during the last two days, however.

Burch, whose home is in Cedar Springs, Mich., was in jail here last October on a charge of stealing an overcoat from the baggage room of the Petoskey station of the Pennsylvania Lines where he was employed as an assistant baggage man. During the last summer he had been employed about Petoskey and Bay View as a painter.

After being disarmed and handcuffed Burch was taken to the county jail. Police report that he had little to say.

In the man's kit, which he had strapped to his belt, was a glass cutter, wire cutters, pair of rubber gloves, strip of cloth such as could be used for a gag, bundle of small cord which could be used to bind a prisoner, a bundle of rope sufficiently heavy to allow the man to lower himself into the bank, and a bag of red pepper to be used about the building to make it impossible for a bloodhound to do any work there.

Nothing was found in the man's room, in a nearby building, except a coat or two, and other articles of clothing.

Bank officials say that the man had loosened quite a large piece of glass from the skylight by cutting the iron and removing the putty.

Officers believe the man went to the top of the building at about 6 o'clock from the adjoining building and that he had planned to drop into the bank and be ready for action when bank workers entered shortly before 9 o'clock in the forenoon. Residents who saw a man leave the bank roof the previous night say that this man was equipped with a long knife and a bundle of rope. He stumbled and fell in leaving the adjoining building in the early forenoon and dropped a part of his equipment. Police have also found a pint glass can in which was a quantity of blasting fuse carefully wrapped.

At the jail, officers declare, Burch said, he supposed he was in for a long time.

When he saw that the bank building was surrounded Burch began measuring the roof and in other ways acting like a workman about to repair the roof, some part of it, or who was investigating the need for repairs. He even called to the deputies and asked why all the excitement, the guns, etc. The man made no resistance when ordered by Chief Wolf to come down off the building and calmly surrendered and submitted to being searched.

Bank employees had been given advanced warning that the officers had a man trapped on the roof and were instructed to stay outside the building until the robber or robbers had been rounded up.

LIZZIE TOSSES 'EM ON HER HORNS

Ford Sedan Rams Two Unoffending Cars Before Roud-up

Saturday afternoon, at about four o'clock, a Ford sedan, heading west, swung around the dummy "police" man at the intersection of Bridge St. and Belvedere Avenue and crashed into a car owned by Lou Moon, of the Palace Theatre, which was parked on Bridge Street in front of the Hallett Inn. Backing out, the belligerent "Lizzie" proceeded down Bridge Street and in front of the Craig Hat Shop rammed a car belonging to one, Smith—a former game warden of Traverse City.

About this time, the chief of police took a hand in it and the hero of two accidents proved to be Edward E. Webb, Petoskey special report correspondent of the Indianapolis News, Louisville Times, St. Louis Star and Kalamazoo Gazette, who has been teaching school in the Loeb school at East Marion.

Both of Lizzie's innocent victims were pretty fairly jammed up and it cost her owner, settling out of court, ten dollars apiece for them, as well as expenses on his own car, which, of course, being the attacking party, were light.

CARS SMASH AT TOP OF HILL

STREET INTERSECTION

Spectacular Accident Sunday Afternoon Is Fortunately Free
From Casualties

Last Sunday afternoon, at one thirty o'clock, a large Studebaker touring car, driven by Ed. Schl. of Cheboygan, travelling west on Hurbert Avenue, collided with a Ford coupe, driven by Robert Sloan, Jr., at the corner of State Street, just at the top of the hill. Mr. Schl. was on his way to the Charlevoix Hospital to visit Isadore Greiner, one of the victims of the accident of September 10th, while Mr. Sloan was coming from the east, up the hill.

Both cars were travelling at a fair rate of speed and the responsibility for the accident has not yet been fixed. Although the brakes on the Studebaker were set, the big car had force enough when it struck to carry the coupe from the middle of the street to the southwest curb, where it pinned the Ford, doubling up the running board and fender and smashing the off rear wheel. Every pane of glass in the coupe was broken and it is remarkable that Mr. Sloan suffered no injury other than a severe shaking-up.

The Studebaker lost the glass from one front light; the radiator was badly twisted and one side of the hood crumpled up. However, it was able to travel under its own power, which could not be said for the Ford—a sad wreck.

Street-intersection accidents are not at all rare but their number could be minimized by exercising greater care when approaching crossings. It is all very well to assume that the other fellow knows the traffic regulations and who has the right of way, etc., but if every man does his own looking out with the perpetual assumption that the person approaching from the other direction may not know beans about the rules or may even be driving while "lit up," or otherwise irresponsible, much trouble can be avoided.

MINNOWS WERE BADLY SCARED

Ray Faulkner Plunged in Among 'Em Sunday Morn

We have heard at our mother's knee, and since those early days from the lips of our spiritual and moral instructors, the evils likely to befall the luckless wight who fishes on the Sabbath day, but last Sunday morning retribution followed close upon sin.

Ray Faulkner, fishing for "minnies" under the swing bridge, in the shuda of the Musselam building, slipped on a wet plank and disappeared into the foaming brine. It was a nice, warm day and the water wasn't cold, but that nice, new pair of pants—oh my! Luckily, the bridge tender was close by and Mr. Faulkner is still with us.

REINDEER HERD IN- CREASED BY 26 FAWNS

State Reindeer Herd of Fifty From Norway Has Twenty Six Fawns

The herd of 50 reindeer which the department of conservation brought from Norway last spring as an experiment for providing a new kind of big game in the northern counties is reported by the department officials to be doing well. The herd in the last several months has been increased by 26 fawns.

It was feared when the reindeer were brought over from Norway, they might not thrive in Michigan because the natural food supply is much different than in Norway, but so far this fear has not been warranted by the facts.

The herd, now on a preserve near Grayling, will shortly be transferred to winter quarters on a fenced-in section—650 acres—about 25 miles north of Newberry, in the Upper Peninsula. And if they continue to thrive in the future as they have in the past it will only be a matter of a few years until the northern counties will be thriving with this large game.

WHOLESALESA VISITED US

LEE H. BIERCE PRESENTS FINE
FLAG TO SCHOOLS

Accompanied by Band, Grand Rapids Association Receives Relations with Customers

Members of the Sixteenth Annual Trade Extension tour of the Wholesale Department, Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce, arrived at the P. M. station in this city at 2:55 P. M., Thursday, and were met by a committee of local business men who conveyed them to town in their cars. The wholesalers were accompanied by the Furniture City Band of Grand Rapids, who, in rendering various selections, fully lived up to their reputation of an A-1 musical organization.

Traffic was stopped on Bridge Street while children from the various schools gathered with their teachers and were addressed by Lee H. Bierce, secretary of the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce, who, at the close of his little talk to the children, presented them in the name of the Grand Rapids Wholesalers with a beautiful American flag. Paul Sloan accepted the gift for the schools and very effectively recited that inspiring poem, "You Flag and My Flag."

The visitors spent the rest of their stay in calling upon customers here. The wholesalers of Grand Rapids have found these tours an excellent method of getting in touch with their customers, as the expense is lower in ratio to the effectiveness than in any other form of publicity. In fact, one of the members confided to a local friend that the expense of the trip to each firm figured only 25¢ per customer.

The party left the city for Ellsworth at 4:25 P. M. They expressed themselves as well pleased with their reception here and left behind them a feeling of optimism and faith in the future of business that is likely to make that future a bright one during the coming year.

CHIMNEY BLAZE IS SOON CHECKED

Slight Damage at Withers' Restaurant Thursday A. M.

The fire department was called out shortly after ten o'clock last Thursday morning and after fifteen minutes of rapid work with the chemical apparatus stifled a chimney blaze on the roof of Mont Withers' restaurant at 319 Bridge Street, and cleared away the smoldering shingles.

Little damage was done, but it is a good opportunity to remind Charlevoix householders that disastrous fires often result from defective or clogged chimneys and flues, especially at this season of the year, when stoves and furnaces, long in disuse, are being started for the first time. See that everything is clean and clear before starting fires. It is better to be safe than sorry.

The new system of ward fire signal was tried out for the first time on this occasion and there was no difficulty in distinguishing the ward number, blown according to the plan described in the Courier's last issue.

Enjoyed Pot Luck Dinner

A party consisting of Lee Smith, Mike Hamlin, A. M. Hamlin, Fred Cartier, Charles Hamlin, Rollie Lewis, A. E. Mason, Judson Markham, George Glados, and their families, motored to the Bliss farm at Cross Village Sunday, where they had a pot-luck dinner. Some of the party then went on to Pellston and Mackinac City and others to Levering. All returned Sunday night reporting a delightful time, but those who visited Levering, reported the roads the worst ever.

Pastor Resigns

Rev. Charles A. Rice, popular pastor of the Baptist church of Charlevoix, has decided to take a much needed rest and is retiring from his pastorate here, having preached his closing sermon last Sunday. His plans for the future are not definite, as yet, but it is probable that he will continue to make his home in this city for some time.

FALL SEASON GOOD TIME TO SEED LAWN

Winter Killing of Weeds Gives New Grass Better Chance

Fall is one of the best seasons of the year to seed a lawn, provided the work is done early enough to give the seed a chance to become developed sufficiently to withstand freezing.

Lawns seeded at this time, between September 16 and the middle of October (are said to develop to better advantage and with less cost of maintenance than spring seeded lawns. This is true because of the fact that any seed present in the mixture sown will germinate and the weeds will be destroyed during the winter months.

Whenever lawns are to be developed under shade trees, great care should be taken, and the date of seeding be made as early as possible in the fall. When seeded late in the fall, the grass is likely to be smothered where large trees drop their leaves, if the leaves are not removed within a day or two after forming a mat. The seed should be adapted to soil and climatic conditions.

MAKE 3,000 MILE FLIGHT

MALLARDS AND BLACK DUCKS TRAVEL TOGETHER

Investigation by Government Bureau Shows Surprising Distances Covered

How far will a migratory bird travel in its fall and spring flights? The biological survey has determined they make flights of at least 3,000 miles.

An investigation has been conducted for several years by the survey by trapping ducks and other strong winged fowl in northern sections, and marking them with light bands bearing a serial number and the legend, "Biol. Surv., Wash., D. C." The numbers on the fowl are recorded and from time to time, hunters bagging some of those marked, report where and when the bird was brought down.

More than 200 such birds were loosed with the hands from Lake Scugog, in Ontario, about 20 miles north of Toronto, and many reports have been received. So far, the record flight is that of a blue-winged teal, banded Sept. 24, 1920, and killed two months and seven days later in a swamp near Port of Spain, on the island of Trinidad. The shortest possible flight the bird could have taken to reach this point, which is off the coast of Venezuela, is 3,000 miles.

In tracing their routes it seemed apparent that the mallards and black ducks traveled together and their course from Lake Scugog was southward along the shores of Lake Erie by way of the St. Clair flats. Here the route divided, the majority continuing southwest, crossing the Ohio, and then to the Mississippi valley where the majority wintered.

The others took a southeasterly route, crossing the Alleghenies and reaching the Atlantic coast by way of Chesapeake and Delaware bays. None of the banded birds were taken.

AGED PIONEER PASSES AWAY

John Monroe, Sr., Passes Away at Northport, October 2.

By the death of John Monroe, Sr., 102, oldest pioneer in the Grand Traverse region, a four generation household receives its first break. Mr. Monroe died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes, 75, where also lived her son, Delbert, 49, and the latter's son, Virgil, 31.

Mr. Monroe was born at Inverness, Scotland, November 20, 1820. His naturalization papers were taken out 57 years ago, at which time he filed a homestead at East Jordan. There he built the first dam over Pine river. He also followed gold mining in Australia and the Klondike. Mr. Monroe, it is said, carried a 500 pound load without effort.

Nina of fourteen children survive and are scattered all over the United States and Canada.

FEAR OF CONTEST IS DISPELLED

CLARK AND MCKAY LEAVE GOR-MAN CLEAR FIELD

Opposition Withdrawn to Maintain Party Harmony—McDonald
For Supreme Court

The Republican State Convention was held in Muskegon at the new armory, on Wednesday, September 27th, with 1,400 delegates in attendance. There were more woman delegates present than at any previous convention in Michigan and many visitors.

All day Tuesday, it looked as though a fight were brewing over the office of State Treasurer, with the present incumbent, Frank E. Gorman, opposed by State Senator Ray Clark of Benton Harbor and Frank McKay, of Grand Rapids, but, after Governor Groesbeck and friends of Clark McKay had been in session most of Tuesday night, it was decided that, in order to continue party harmony, opposition to Gorman would be withdrawn, thereby leaving the way clear for all state officials who were up for re-nomination. The list includes O. B. Fuller, Auditor General; Frank E. Gorman, State Treasurer; Merlin Wilding, Attorney General; and Charles A. Deland, Secretary of State.

Judge John F. MacDonald, of Grand Rapids, was nominated for the supreme court without opposition. Senator Townsend delivered a rousing address, outlining some of the work of the senate during its 1922 session and discussing his campaign for re-election as U. S. Senator.

Congressman Joe Fordney, of Saginaw, gave an interesting address concerning the McCumber-Fordney tariff bill just enacted and lauded the Republican administration in its efforts to reduce the national debt.

Governor Alexander J. Groesbeck also addressed the convention and cited some of the important measures that have been adopted since his taking office as governor.

At the meeting of the delegates for the Eleventh Congressional District, held in the armory just prior to the State convention, the regular business of the district (which comprises fifteen counties in Northern Michigan) was taken up.

Thomas Meggison, of Antrim county, was elected chairman of the district meeting and Charles H. Emery, of Charlevoix, secretary. Charlevoix county was represented by the six delegates named, as having been selected at the Boyne Falls convention, in the Courier's last issue.

Harmony prevailed throughout the sessions and all Republican voters were strongly urged to support their party candidates at the election.

BLACK BASS TO BE PROTECTED

State is Planning Means to Transfer
Fish from Bay to Elk Lake

Black bass are to be protected and increased by a new method at Elk Rapids, according to John Baird director of conservation.

Elk lake is one of the chain of lakes about 70 miles in length whose only outlet is at Elk Rapids, where the power dam of the Elk Electric Co. is located.

Bass from the bay come up to this dam in large quantities and are unable to proceed further. Under the direction of Mr. Baird, the small fish will be taken out in nets and transferred above the dam. Live boxes have been placed below the dam and fishermen catching undersized bass are asked to place them in the boxes so that the employees of the conservation department can carry them over the dam.

Workers transferred 300 bass in one day by this method. Hans Johnson, superintendent of the power plant, has been appointed special game warden and will have charge of the daily transfer of bass.

Entertained at Otto Home

SUMMERY DISHES.

Take a choice of any of these appetizing salad combinations which will supply the family for a week or two:

Hard-boiled eggs with lettuce and mayonnaise; lettuce and cooked asparagus, or tomato with asparagus; tomato stuffed with chopped cucumbers or asparagus; head lettuce with Roquefort dressing; green pepper shredded, mixed with cottage cheese, boiled dressing; watercress and egg; pepper grass, radishes and French dressing; orange and pineapple with French dressing; spinach with eggs and boiled dressing; lettuce with chopped peanuts, onions and French dressing.

Chicken Jelly Salad.—Soften one-half teaspoonful of gelatin in four tablespoons of cold water, add to one cupful of boiling chicken broth, stir till well dissolved, adding salt, pepper, onion juice and celery salt to season. Chill until cold, then add part of this to a cupful of finely chopped cooked chicken in layers with the broth as it hardens, adding cooked egg, carrots or beets cut in shapes to decorate. Let each layer become firm before adding another. Serve unmixed with mayonnaise dressing.

Raspberry Sherbet.—Take one pint of thin cream, one pint of rich milk, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and one pint of raspberry juice, prepared by crushing and straining the fruit. Freeze as usual.

Cream of Spinach Soup.—Wash two quarts of spinach and place in a saucepan over a moderate fire, adding no water. Stir with a fork and leave the kettle uncovered. Cooked in this way it loses none of its flavor and little color. When tender put through a sieve and add to six cupfuls of thin, white sauce prepared as follows: Take one-fourth of a cupful of butter, one-third of a cupful of flour and cook until bubbling hot, then add four cupfuls of chicken broth; cook until smooth and add two cupfuls of milk. Season to taste and serve with croutons.

STRATEGY OF LEE EMPLOYED

Marshall Foch Says If General Was Traitor He Wishes France Had More of Them.

It is hardly to be wondered at that the greatest soldier of the Twentieth century should take occasion to pay his tribute of admiration and affection to the memory of one of the really great commanders of modern times, a soldier whose military genius was equaled only by the purity of his purpose and the splendor of his character, says the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Soldier-like, Marshal Foch employs few words in answering the anonymous "American Patriot" who had telegraphed him at a Virginia town that Robert E. Lee was a traitor.

"If Gen. Robert E. Lee was a traitor," said the marshal of France, "Napoleon Bonaparte was a coward. If General Lee was a traitor, I wish France had more of them. He was one of the greatest military leaders the world has ever known."

In winning the World war, Ferdinand and Foch leaned heavily upon the shoulder of Robert E. Lee. It was "the sword of Lee" that flashed on every battlefield in France from the first battle of the Marne to Arras.

Lee's strategy, revived and employed first by Joffre and later by Foch, held the Hun along the French front, swift to attack again, until at length the Hindenburg line was pierced and the enemies of civilization sued for peace.

In his estimate of Lee, Marshal Foch takes his stand beside Viscount Wolsey, of England, who declared that Lee was "the greatest soldier given to the world since the days of Marlborough."

Blotting Paper for Cleaning Machines.

The use of blotting paper for cleaning machinery has been common for years. The Germans were among the first to employ this method. It is said to be not only cheaper, but does not soil the machine with grease and dirt like some other cleaning materials, and is safer because it cannot catch fire. It is not as readily drawn into the machinery as other cleaning materials, and is not as likely to draw the hands of the operator into danger.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By J. E. Jones

The Growth of Executive Power

The early president of the United States were given limited powers. Very few of them disregarded the narrow construction of their authority and struck out boldly as leaders. Between Jackson and Lincoln there was a period of presidential decline, and after Lincoln there were several presidents whose names are minus of the word.

No matter what has been the theory regarding the non-interference of the executive with the legislative branch of the government the fact remains that Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson made their names "household words" because they grasped the reins of leadership and drove the vehicle of State in the direction they wanted it to go.

In the closing days of the present Congress President Harding upset the expressed conviction of a large majority of its members by vetoing the soldiers' bonus bill. No one complained that this was "unsurprising" of power, as the common viewpoint would have been before the Roosevelt regime. A still more pointed illustration of the growth of "executive power" is shown in the new tariff law. There are four thousand items in the law, and only one of them is beyond the President's power of alteration. Dystuffs alone are fixed both as to their rates and the method of assessment under the American valuation.

Ever since the passage of the McKinley law there has been a demand for a more elastic method of operating tariffs. Commissions and Boards have been formed, but they did not last because Congress was unwilling to surrender its rights in framing tariff bills. The tariff schedules usually existed as long as the party making them continued in office.

It has happened that a majority of the same members of Congress who decried "Executive interference" to defeat "Wilsonism," have for the first time in American history placed the tariff schedules entirely in the hands of the President. It was an expediency on the part of Congress. When it came to a choice between "Commissions," "boards," or the alternative of greater "executive power," the latter method was quite naturally chosen. It is always easy to pass on added responsibilities to one like the President who is the acknowledged leader.

So marked has the tendency been towards the extension of executive power in the Federal government that but little attention has been aroused by the constant transfer of legislative functions to the President. The reason is plain enough. The people have demanded leaders; and whenever there has been a strike, or even a prize fight, the popular clamor has been that the President should interfere. A positive, aggressive man in the White House appeals to popular favor. This has been evident so often in recent years that it has grown to be regarded as perfectly right and proper that the executive power should be increased whenever new tasks of Government are undertaken.

Washington's Building Boom

Seven years ago Washington had a population of about 250,000 people. This has increased to more than 400,000. There was a big exodus following the signing of the Armistice, but when the war-workers left their places were taken by people who have become permanent residents of the Capital. Apartment houses and residences that will house thousands of people are now springing up everywhere in the city, and there is a veritable building boom. One contractor said the other day: "There are 4,000 carpenters in Washington and yet they are so scarce that I can't get one of them." Bricklayers were getting $11 a day and wages of other mechanics are proportionately high. While all this building is going on rents remain at the old wartime peak. But there is a rush to get most of the new buildings done before the last of the year. After that the Rent Board, which is trying to protect the residents of the Capital against extortionate rentals, may find that the element of competition due to a visible supply of places in which to live will help to reduce the cost of living—which is now higher in Washington than it is in most cities of the United States.

Bills That Never Become Laws

In Congress and in the State legislatures the members present their "bills." Webster defines the meaning of this kind of "bill" as "a document containing a petition or prayer." In the last session of Congress there were 4,757 bills introduced, and the number of "prayers answered" was 295, since that number of laws finally came out of the public machine. In the State legislatures there are usually from one thousand to two thousand bills, of which less than ten per cent are enacted into laws.

Thus it will be seen that Congress and the legislatures are engaged principally in killing proposed legislation. That which finally gets by is by no means new legislation. It is in fact, mostly made up of amended laws, or new shapes for old laws.

"Talking Politics"

One might suppose that Washington would welcome a political moratorium inasmuch as Congress has laid aside its work in order that its members may engage in the great national debates incident to the Fall elections. Not so, however! The elections this Fall will doubtless have a strong bearing on the presidential conditions two years hence. A half dozen Democrats are seeking the post of active leader for their party. Administration supporters are trying to clear away the obstructions being placed in the path of President Harding by those who call themselves the new progressives; and who are aided in their opposition to the president Administration by the American Federation of Labor and other dissatisfied organizations.

While most of those who are "talking politics" in Washington are certain that the Administration is very popular throughout the country, they have not such short memories as to forget how President Taft started his political decline during the Congressional elections two years after he assumed office. "Of course that won't happen again," they hear them say. But on the other hand they always find croakers to mock the prophets.

Pershing to Write Memoirs

It has been announced that General Pershing will join the increasing throng of memoir-writers, and a history of his achievements will eventually find its way into public print. General Pershing's official duties are rather light, and no doubt the gallant leader of the American forces in the late war chafes under the restraint of too much social life in Washington. A weathered warrior like Pershing finds it next to impossible to enthuse over afternoon "teas."

Amending the Postal Laws

Inquiring patrons at postoffice windows have frequently "stumped" the postmaster—but not for long, because in every office there is a little black book that furnishes a ready answer to every question. By Postal laws are like human nature inasmuch as they are subject to amendment. There are now 788 of these changes, and in consequence a new book is being compiled. It will include many acts passed by Congress during the last ten years.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

Coal Production in 1921

Final statistics of production as reported to the Geological Survey by the bituminous operators for the year 1921, show 415,921,000 net tons. These figures are exclusive of the output of country banks and of some wagon mines. Were statistics available for the small mines not included, the total output would be raised by not much over 1,000,000 tons.

The value of the bituminous coal produced in 1921 was reported to be $1,199,000,000 as against $2,109,100,000 in 1920. The average value per ton f. o. b. mines declined from $3.75 in 1920 to $2.80.

Contrary to what might have been expected, the number of employees increased in 1921. There was less work but more men to share it. The total employed at bituminous mines was 663,754—an increase of 24,000 men. This figure is not the average number of men at work at any one time, including the weeks or months when the mine may have been shut down; it is rather the number of men on the working force of the mine when it was in operation. Since the effect of the business depression upon the demand for coal did not become acute until February or March, the great majority of commercial mines got at least a few weeks operation during the year, and their working forces were thus counted in the total number of employees. By August, 1921, so many mines had closed down that the total number of men drawing wages in one week had fallen to somewhat between 500,000 and 520,000. Examination of the individual returns shows that in many districts the men laid off at small mines found employment at the large mines. In fact, in some districts, such as Illinois and Pittsburgh, the coal mines absorbed men discharged by the factories or railroads. In still other districts, notably Maryland, the number employed decreased sharply.

The increase in number of employed was confined to the tonnages workers. The number of day-men decreased in almost every state. The total number of surface employees dropped from 110,000 to 96,000, and of underground day-men from 174,000 to 168,000. This shift in occupations reflected, no doubt, the intense competition of a depressed market, as operators sought to eliminate all expenditures not contributing immediately to the mining of coal.

Cotton Harvest in Leading Producing Countries

A cotton harvest slightly larger than that of last year in the three countries that produce between 85 and 90 per cent of the world cotton supply is indicated in reports received to date by the United States Department of Agriculture. The department points out, however, that it is as yet too early in the year to make any definite forecast. The cotton acreage of the United States increased 10 per cent over the acreage planted last year, and production of 10,575,000 bales is forecast. Acreage in Egypt has increased 13 per cent with production forecast at 1,000,000 bales. The area planted to cotton in India up to August 1, which normally represents about 60 per cent of the total crop, is 4 per cent larger than the quantity planted up to the same date last year, and production of 3,300,000 bales is forecast.

Industrial Progress in August

Figures so far received by the Department of Commerce indicate that there was no significant recession in business activity during the month of August, in spite of the dislocation caused by the coal and railroad labor difficulty. There was a marked decline in the production of iron and steel, largely due, no doubt, to fuel shortage. The unfilled orders of the Steel Corporation continued to increase indicating no apparent let-up in the demand for those products.

On the other hand, there was increased activity in the textile industries. The mill consumption of both cotton and silk was the largest for any month in the past two years. The building industry showed the effects of the usual seasonal slump but the production of building materials continued at about the same level as in July.

The practical assurance of good crops has done much to keep business at its high level during the recent trying months. Although prices of farm products are still comparatively low they are better than a year ago; furthermore, this year's crops have been produced at a much lower cost than last year's with a resulting better net income to the producer. The effect of this has already been seen in the increased sales of farm equipment and the larger business by the mail-order houses.

The level of wholesale prices in August showed no significant changes from July. Increases in some commodities were offset by declines in others. Activity in the stock and bond markets increased, with steadily rising prices for these securities.

Freight-car loadings showed a marked increase over the preceding month and were for greater than a year ago. The large surplus of idle freight cars reported by the railroads a few months ago has practically disappeared.

The real progress which business has made this year can best be appreciated by comparing present levels with those a year ago. In almost every instance there is a significant increase which in many cases amounts to 100 per cent or more.

Our Vessels Carry Half Our Cargoes

An analysis of the volume of water-borne tonnage of the United States, just completed by the United States Shipping Board, shows that 52 per cent of the total handled through American ports during the fiscal year which ended June 30, moved under the American flag. There were 37,312 arrivals and departures of vessels carrying 80,231,000 long tons of cargo. Sixteen American ports handled more than 1,000,000 tons each. New York leading with 18,267,007 tons. Forty-nine per cent of the vessels were American vessels.

Our Trade With The Turks

Trade of the United States with Turkey and the Turkish people amounts to over 100 million dollars a year. This figure, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, is based in part upon our own official records and in part upon those of the Turkish government, which puts its imports of United States merchandise in 1920 (the latest year for which its reports are available) at 25,953,000 Turkish Pounds Sterling. The value of its exports to the United States in the latest available year are put at 4,981,000 pounds Sterling.

Our own figures of trade with Turkey, which are based upon trade with the Turkish area (not yet ratified), Treaty of Sevres (not yet ratified), are much less than those of the Turkish government which presumably accredits to the United States many articles of American origin entering Turkey through other countries, while our own figures only include those of the direct trade with the newly outlined and greatly reduced area now officially known as Turkey. OLDER THAN PASSION PLAY Ceremonial Religious Procession That Is Interesting Reminder of Customs of Middle Ages.

Among the vivid contrasts for which Switzerland is famous are the contrasts of climate and religion. Leaving the snowy region of the northern cantons, a few hours brings one to the Gotthard tunnel, which is the gateway of the canton of Tessin, Switzerland's Midi.

This part of the country is still fervently Catholic and the population is given to quaint, processions derived from medieval plays of the Middle Ages, processions which accompany the great feast days of the church.

A very clever American woman has described in the Swiss Tourist Almanac the processions that take place in Mondrisio, near Lugano, on Monday Thursday and Good Friday of holy week. When the sun goes down the little place is lighted by quantities of old lanterns, by illuminated transparencies and arches, and by three crosses that are set up on the porch of the church. The procession marches slowly through the street, witnessed by dense crowds of villagers from neighboring places, as well as many foreigners. In the Thursday procession are seen the three Marys, in their blue robes, the four ladder carriers, who advance eight steps and retire four, the dice throwers, Roman soldiers, executioners with the two thieves, and, in the midst of all, Christ carrying the cross.

On the night of Good Friday the procession is somewhat different. There are pilgrims in red cloaks, felt-hatted boys with high gold crowns, groups of suns, groups of "verginelle" with stars in their hair, and there, on a bier, the figure of Christ, borne by four young priests, the whole performance lighted by quaintly shaped lanterns dating from long, long ago.

This colorful and touching bit of the past is far older than the Passion Play of Oberammergau.

Whence came of "Baby Bunting?"

The old nursery rhyme "Baby, Baby, Bunting," takes its back in its relation to the days when our ancestors clothed themselves in the skins of the animals they killed for food. No baby-linen shops in those days! No baby-linen, either! Armed with bow and arrow, or stone hatchet, the "proud father" of the new arrival must needs slay forth, chase and slay some small fur-bearing animal, skin it and return with the spoil ere baby could be clothed.

The rhyme, then, in some form or other, must date back to the Stone Age. At all events, it is as old as the Norman Conquest. How do we know? Because "Bunting" is merely a shortened English version of "Bentzon," an old Norman-French expression of endearment, meaning "good little one."

Muscle's Restful Charms.

Science appears to have proved that there is a great deal of truth in the old saying that "Muscle bath charms to soothe the savage breast." Muscle is made up of vibrations, and these, it has been found, act with considerable force upon the nervous system.

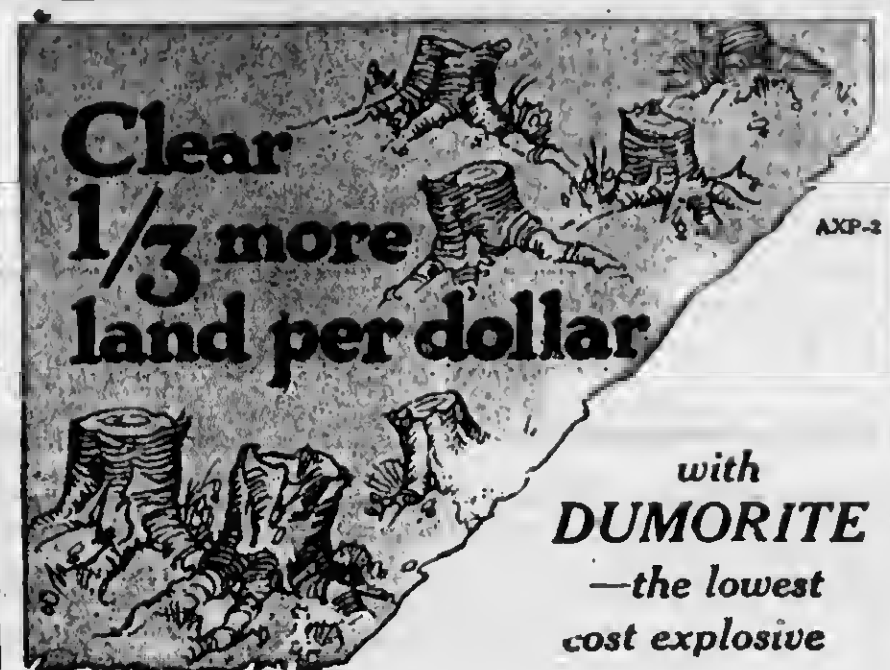

One investigator has been observing the influence of music upon human beings and the lower animals. By the use of a machine that measures the activity of the fingers, he finds that if the fingers are completely fatigued, either by voluntary efforts or by electric excitation, to this point of being incapable of making any mark except a straight line on the registering cylinder of the machine, music of a pleasant kind has the power to cause the disappearance of the fatigue.

Orchids in British Isles.

Glasgow, with 12,000 orchids in four of its public gardens, probably takes the lead among British municipalities. Kew gardens has 1,000 or more different orchids in cultivation, but 10 or 20 times that number are represented in a dry state, stored and classified in the Kew herbarium. Apart from public gardens, orchid growing in the past has been considered the special privilege of the rich.

Painter's Secret.

Use wood alcohol to remove oil paint or varnish when about to redecorate furniture. Apply with soft brush, and after a few minutes scrub off with old clothes. If paint is very thick and dry more than must be given to "soak," and a putty knife may be needed to remove the worst of the old paint. This will remove old finish exactly as well as the preparatory varnish, and is much less costly. Be careful not to inhale the alcohol or get it in the eyes when using it.

Dumorite has approximately the same strength as regular 40% dynamite, stick for stick, and shoots with the slow, heaving action of 20%. It is the only dynamite of its type.

The du Pont Chemical Engineer has found the way to add 1/3 more sticks to each case. He has increased the purchasing power of your dollar by 30 to 40 cents.

For blasting ditches, we carry a stock of du Pont 50% Straight dynamite.

If you are thinking of clearing more land this fall stop in. Let's talk it over. Land-clearing costs a lot less now—your dollar will buy more dynamite!

SAFETY AND COURTESY

According to the president of the American Automobile Association, 50 per cent of all road accidents could be avoided if automobile courtesy prevailed. Considering all the points involved in that one word "courtesy," the statement may probably be regarded as very conservative.

Courtesy in driving means observing all the traffic regulations as to speed, signals and right of way. It means consideration for other drivers and a willingness to regard the normal rights of pedestrians. It means careful driving even on an uncrowded thoroughfare and extra decency in congested traffic.

A good deal has been said about the road hog, and he deserves extermination. There really are fewer of his kind than of sane and courteous drivers, but as in other human relations, the disagreeable and unruly few make all the trouble for the law-respecting and courteous many.

CHILDREN AND BONFIRES

Four little girls were burned to death within three days in one city recently. They were playing around bonfires and their flimsy clothing ignited.

Children love to play around a fire and help tend it, just as their elders do, but they should not be allowed to indulge this passion unless there is some older person present to look out for them. Even then they should be suitably dressed for their employment. Their clothing preferably should be of wool since this is the least inflammable. Girls as well as boys should be clad in close knickers or overalls. The little girl's fluttering skirt is an ever-present menace around a fire.

The fall season with its bonfires of leaves and garden rubbish is especially dear to young hearts. It can be passed with a minimum of casualties and the children can have their full share of glorious fun if the dangers are not overlooked.

THE RIGHTS OF CHILDREN

Former Commissioner of Education Claxton thinks that children have rights, and he outlined some of them in an address before a body of teachers as follows:

"The first right of every child is to be well born. He has, further, "The right to a good name; "The right to health and physical vitality; "The right to a joyous childhood; "The right to induction into an understanding of literature, scientific knowledge, the arts, governmental procedure and religion."

It is not a very imposing list and yet it calls for the finest co-operation between the home, the school, the church and all of organized society outside of these three great branches.

If these rights were secured to every child in this generation, not only would childhood itself benefit and flourish but all the problems of coming generations would be astonishingly simple.

HIGH SCHOOL MILITARY WORK.

Thirty-three high schools in the United States have taken advantage of the provisions under the national defense act of 1916 to give military training under the federal army to high school boys. The work has been particularly successful in Cleveland.

The plan in operation requires every boy in the tenth and eleventh grades unless physically unfit, or unless his parents are "conscientious objectors," to take four school periods of training a week. There are three periods of military training and one of physical training. In addition to infantry drill and various manuals, there are lectures on the army, military courtesy, the rifle, physical training, military hygiene, sanitation and first aid. Signalling, scouting, bayonet work and woodcraft receive attention. An annual field meet at the close of the school year, when all the big schools of the city compete, shows what has been done. No boy can graduate from a Cleveland high school without this training.

Those opposed to military training feared it would create a spirit of militarism, snobbery, contempt for law and order, and perhaps encourage criminal instincts. The general opinion today is that the course has improved the boys physically and morally, given them a sense of responsibility not obtained otherwise and raised the quality of their citizenship. Most of their parents express approval of the course.

The physical education aide of this military work is its most important advantage, in the estimation of most citizens. But the military training in discipline, quickness of action, prompt response to authoritative command, and so on, teaches valuable lessons for youthful citizens to learn.

IMPROVED ROADS

GOOD ROAD SAVES MILLIONS

Men With Tools Enabled to Reach Threatened Break in Levee and Stop Rising Waters.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A federal aid road has just been completed in Arkansas which has already saved millions of dollars to the community in which it is built. Recently during high water in the Mississippi word came to Helena, Ark., that the levee at Old Town, 17 miles away, was about to break. The situation was critical. A few hours' delay and thousands of acres of rich farming land would be flooded, and possibly many lives lost. Helena was the only source of aid, and many men with tools and material were needed. Every available motor vehicle was pressed into service and over 600 men, properly equipped for the work, were in a short time speeding over the new road to save the levee. They arrived in the nick of time and by almost superhuman efforts dammed back the rising waters. Residents say that had it been necessary to make the trip over the old road the levee could not have been reached in time and that the workers would have needed boots rather than motor vehicles.

LOWER BIDS FOR ROAD WORK

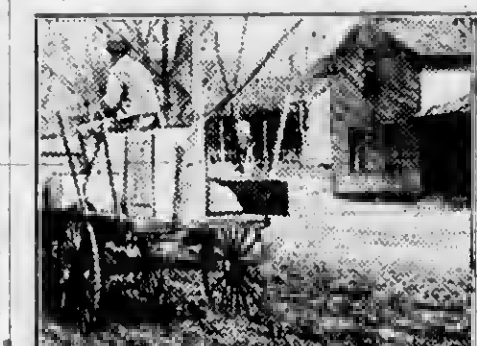

Indications Are That Prices This Year Will Be Materially Reduced Over Last Season.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Early bids for the construction of federal-aid roads indicate that prices during the present season will be materially lower than last season, according to reports received by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. While bids have not been received on any large volume of work, there is, however, enough to indicate a lower level of prices.

Grading has been bid at 20, 23 1/2 and 30 cents a cubic yard in Missouri, Arkansas, and Minnesota, respectively, as compared with an average of 35 cents for the section in which these states are located in 1921.

Prices of reinforcing steel in place range around 6 cents as compared with the 1921 price of 8 or 9 cents and bridge steel at 4 1/2 cents against 7 to 8 cents.

A few bids, for the best grade of concrete, of about $17 a cubic yard have been received in sections where the 1921 price was about $25.

Prices bid for the construction of concrete roads per square yard are as follows: Ohio $15.22, Colorado $22.7, and Georgia $13.8, as compared with an average for the whole country during the period 1919-1920 of $26.7 a square yard.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

An hour a week I give to memory,
That's when the old home paper comes to me—
The only link that binds that life to this
And brings back days that I try not to miss.
I read the personals and learn they made
A right smart showing at the Ladies Aid.
And I can taste again the homemade cake
And spicy cookies mother used to make.
I read with sorrow of the passing on
Of some dear friend I loved in days now gone,
And someone a babe I held upon my knee
Is married now! How old I've grown to be!
I read the ads, and stroll with eager feet
Down that familiar shady wide Main Street;
I see the windows of the Town Bazaar
And nod at folks and ask them how they are.
The paper that the newsboy sells each day
Is lots more clever, I am bound to say.
This town's too big for them to pause to tell That Mrs. Andy Currie's getting well.
But just such items I am glad to see
When the home paper comes each week to me.
Across the miles my lonely spirit wends
To chat awhile with older, dearer friends!

Anne Campbell.

AT THE MOVIES

The adventures of that intrepid pair—J. Rufus Wallingford and "Blackie" Daw, as slick a pair of crooks as ever beat a board bill, will be disclosed in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," a Paramount-Cosmopolitan production, to be shown at the Palace Theatre beginning Saturday. The picture is an adaptation of the famous stage success of the same name by George M. Cohan and is said to be a succession of hearty laughs from start to finish.

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," shows the good fortune that befell Wallingford and Daw in the little town of Battlesburg into which they had ventured to "clean up" the rich citizens. On their arrival in Battlesburg the two decide it will be easy picking. Their persuasive powers wins almost instant success and the wealthy men of the town freely invest in their wildcat schemes.

Wallingford and Daw prepare to depart with their loot, but they find themselves too much interested in two of the town's girls. They remain and the outcome of their scheming forms a surprising and highly entertaining comedy.

The role of Wallingford is assumed by Sam Hardy with consummate ability. Norman Kerry makes a smooth, smiling and suave partner for the chief crook, and Doris Kenyon is the pretty secretary who helps win Wallingford over to honesty. The picture was directed by Frank Borzage, creator of "Humoresque."

Dustin Farnum Due at Palace Theatre

On Wednesday will be presented, on the screen of the Palace Theatre, Dustin Farnum, the Fox star, in a picture called "Iron to Gold," which is reported to have achieved substantial success wherever shown. The advance outline of the story—the work of George Owen Baxter—indicates that its star role is one in which Dustin Farnum should shine. Also the third chapter of the "Adventures of Torzan," "The Sun Death."

Facts About Bees.

A Belgian scientist found that a bee, weight for weight, is thirty times as strong as a horse. The female bee has a set of waistcoat pockets. When she is engaged in making the cells of the honeycomb, tiny flakes of wax are secreted in these little pouches, from which they are removed by her with her jaws, as needed.

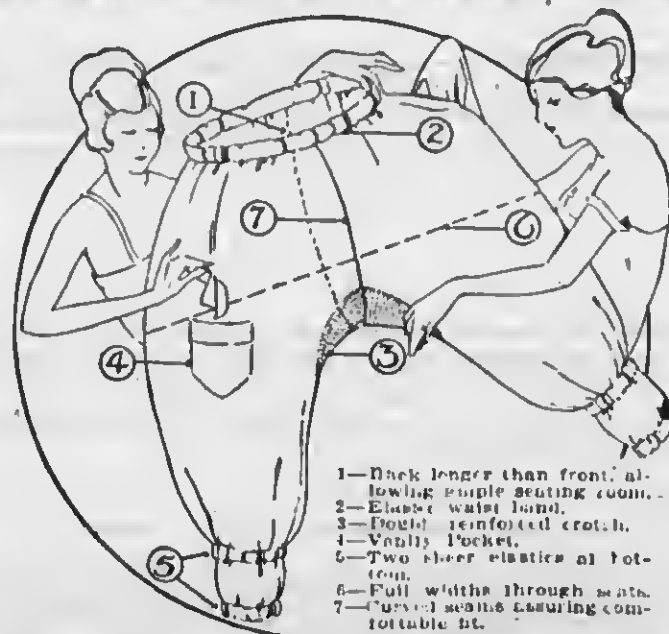

Before Them.

An English lecturer, expatiating on the nature of man, remarked that one point of distinction between human beings and the lower animals consisted in capacity for progress. "Man," he exclaimed, "is a progressive being; other creatures are stationary. Take, for example, the ass. Always and everywhere it is the same creature. You have never seen, and you never will see, a more perfect ass than you see at the present moment."—Boston Transcript.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

When—Sunday, October 8, at 6:30 p. m.

Topic—"The Folly of Procrastination."

Scripture—Ecc. 9:10.

Leader—Edith E. Chew.

Procrastination is the putting off till tomorrow, the delaying from time to time, the things that should be done now.

The right way to begin to walk in the Right Way is to begin right away.

If you intend to be kind or to speaking kind words for the Master, do it now, tomorrow may be too late. Begin now to set aside each day twenty minutes for high class reading—the Bible and other good literature. Begin now, today, to speak to one individual each day about God and Jesus.

"Defer not till to-morrow to be wise. Tomorrow's sun on thee may never rise."—Congreve.

"Life being very short and the quiet hours of it few, we ought to waste none of them reading valueless books."—John Ruskin.

The same thing might be said of doing valueless things.

"Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."—Horne Mann.

Attention! members of the B. Y. P. U. and church. Do not procrastinate longer,—be on hand next Sunday evening at 6:30 and also next Thursday evening at 7:30, for prayer meeting. Come! We need you, the prayer meeting needs you, God needs you. And more than that, you need us, you need the prayer meeting and you need God and his close companionship.

A fellow at Fenton was arrested for being drunk and for driving a car without lights, although he might have argued very plausibly that he was already lit up.

On the closing night of the Flint Moose festival, a young man and woman were married in a Ferris wheel, thus expressing their conviction that life will be one continuous merry-go-round.

A young man has been fined at Grand Haven for bootlegging in order to procure money to pay for his wedding. Possibly, though, more care will be exercised in the future, and he will find that two can bootleg more cheaply than one.

A thief picked up at Lansing said he had been in the profession for 55 years, but intended now to "retire from a life that does not pay." One can't help but feel that if he had worked hard he might have been at the top of his profession by this time.

A young woman of Port Huron declares she can't go out in a public place without being molested by some ignorant man. Most likely the men feel that in such a case, unless ignorance meets with too harsh treatment, it's folly to be wise.

At a recent meeting of the Rotary Club in Holland, each member was called upon for a two-minute talk on the strangest event of his life. As being common to all members, the experience at this meeting of being limited to two minutes for a talk was of course ruled out.

Youth's attention is called to the fact that none of the statutes show great men making a combination shot for the corner pocket.

William Ritchey, 60, who escaped from the Kalamazoo Hospital for the insane, later hanged himself on a tree south of the hospital grounds. A post-mortem was searching for him when his body was discovered.

James Peterson, of Iron River, was the victim of the first hunting accident in this vicinity this season. The accidental discharge of his companion's shotgun caused a flesh wound and the loss of blood caused his death before a physician arrived. Peterson was a former aviator in the Army.

Industrial Progress

The 1922 figures of trade with "Turkey in Asia" no longer include Hejaz, Arabia, Mesopotamia, Armenia, Kurdistan or "Greece in Asia."

The Future of Radio Broadcasting "Printers' Ink" engaged Waldemar Kaempfert to write its opening feature article for a recent issue. Mr. Kaempfert says, in part: "Broadcasting is the life-blood of radio. If it were to languish and die as rapidly as it sprang up, radio would shrink overnight to the stature of 1919; in other words, it would have to rely once more upon the support of a few hundred thousand amateurs. Obviously, not only must broadcasting be continued, but it must adapt itself to the public taste. At present, it costs about $10,000 a month to maintain the Westinghouse Radio Corporation of America's station in Newark, New Jersey, although musicians and lecturers are willing to give their services without charge. The maintenance expenses must be met by large sale of apparatus. Because as yet there is no practical way of preventing anyone with the proper electromagnetic ear from listening to that station, it follows that hundreds of dealers and dozens of manufacturers, who contribute not one cent to the support of broadcasting are dependent for their business existence upon the continuance of its activities.

At present the Radio Corporation of America must act not only as a manufacturer and merchandiser of apparatus, but also as the director of the greatest public entertainment in the world. Never before has a company been compelled to act simultaneously as editor, music-hall director, concert impresario, base ball and news reporter, and general entertainer and educator—least of all, a manufacturing, commercial, or engineering company. Yet broadcasting calls for nothing less than this versatility. Because broadcasting and radio merchandising are bone of one bone and flesh of one flesh, the Radio Corporation of America has had, first of all, to consider the future of the stations that radiate entertainment. The framing of programmes more acceptable than those now offered will take care of itself; the public will unmistakably reveal its desires. Of more immediate importance is the question of maintaining the stations for the benefit of the public and the radio industry as a whole. Who is to pay for broadcasting? There is no guarantee whatever that the numerous stations installed by newspapers, department stores, universities and prosperous dealers will always be operated. That one or two manufacturers should continue to broadcast at their own expense for the benefit of their competitors, is to expect what is impracticable. The industry as a whole must support the few stations that are really necessary. Accordingly, the Radio Corporation of America became one of the leading spirits in the Radio Apparatus Section of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies—the nucleus of an association which will eventually include every responsible radio organization in the country.

Employment in Selected Industries
The United States Department of Labor through the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports the volume of employment in August, 1922, from 2,595 representative establishments covering 1,249,144 employees in 42 manufacturing industries. Comparing the figures for August, 1922, with Industrial Progress Continued . . . those for identical establishments for July, 1922, it appears that in 30 of the 42 industries there were increases in the number of persons employed, while in 12 there were decreases. The largest increase, 30.6 per cent, appears in stamped ware. Fertilizers show an increase of 16 per cent and printing newspapers an increase of 11.5 per cent. Respective decreases of 5.2 per cent, 4.9 per cent, and 4.5 per cent are shown in tobacco (chewing, smoking and snuff), car building and repairing, and men's clothing.

Thirty-three of the 42 industries show increases in the total amount of pay roll for August 1922 as compared with July 1922. The remaining 9 industries show decreases in the amount of the pay roll. Car building and repairing shows an increase of 25.8 per cent, stamped ware an increase of 25.3 per cent and fertilizers an increase of 24.5 per cent. A decrease of 66 per cent appears for tobacco (chewing, smoking and snuff), and one of 3.9 per cent for carpets.

GEMS FROM THE "YOUTH COMPANION"

A Maine woman who has been estranged from her father for six years has learned that he has fallen heir to fifty thousand dollars and is now trying to patch things up. The newspapers report that other members of the family, who, likewise, have been "estranged" from the old man, are also "trying to get in touch with him." "In touch" is just the right expression—the one perfect phrase for which the DeOncourts were always seeking.

Successful roller bearings for trains, for a long time a dream of engineers, seem to have been produced in England. One man pushed with ease a twenty-seven ton coach equipped with the new bearings, whereas, it had taken seven men to push it without the bearings. It is expected that the saving in fuel will be about thirty per cent.

One of the recent "demonstrations" to trap the unvary investor is that of the man with a cheap substitute for gasoline—something he says he can produce for a few cents a gallon. The "inventor" fills the tank of an automobile half full of water and adds his mysterious fluid. The car runs, for what he added was wood alcohol. The chemist is a good man to consult before buying stock in a cheap gasoline company.

Investigations by the Department of Agriculture show that the gypsy moth cannot do much damage in parts of the country where the thermometer goes as low as twenty-five degrees below zero. The eggs that are subjected to such a low temperature do not hatch. Only those hatch that are covered by snow and are protected against the cold.

To "strike oil" in Bolivia according to a handbook of the Department of Commerce, one needs no drill rig. Oil seeps through the soil in many places and forms in pools. The natives dip it up as they would water and carry it away to use for domestic purposes. Such stories of wealth are as alluring to the present generation as the stories of South America gold and silver mines were to the Spaniards of four hundred years ago.

There is nothing in any other country that is comparable to the American athletic coaching system. Even the English cricket trainer, who most nearly corresponds to the American football or track coach, gets only about $30.00 a week and that only during a six months' season—not a very attractive calling to a man of intellectual ability. In Europe coaching is not taken very seriously and the players do not get the careful training that they have in America. If American athletes are unusually successful, some of the reasons are that they begin early, train conscientiously and have expert instruction for a long time.

There are days of dizziness; Spells of headache, languor, backache; Sometimes rheumatic pains; Often urinary disorder; Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney ills. Endorsed in Charlevoix by grateful friends and neighbors. John McCall, 9 E. Uright Ave., Charlevoix, says: "My kidneys were weak and irregular in action and were sore as could be. Dizzy spells bothered me and I would often have to grasp something to keep from falling. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they completely cured me of the trouble."

Remained Faithful to Early Love.
The heart of the great American story writer, Washington Irving, was buried in the grave of the beautiful girl to whom he had given it, when consumption took her from him in his seventeenth year. "She died in the beauty of her youth," he wrote, "and in my memory she will ever be young and beautiful."

Emeralds Among Aztec Treasures.
Among the Aztec treasures of Mexico exquisite cut emeralds were found, and it is from this source that the magnificent emeralds now forming a part of the royal collection of Spain are supposed to have come.

IMMENSE POWER OF MUSIC

There is Almost No Limit to its Influence on the Human Soul.

Muscle! The dictionary defines it as "The science of harmonious sounds; melody or harmony." The title of battle has been turned by the "science of harmonious sounds," and to hear some old familiar melody has often resulted in soothing the troubled heart.

Muscle can call the patriot to the defense of his country; can enliven the worshiper at the shrine; can call the lover to his beloved; can fan into flame the dying embers of the fire in the enthusiast's breast. There is no limit to the power of music over the human soul.

The world needs music—music of the soul; music of the heart; music of the voice; music of the spirit. There are people who can't sing, yet they can be moved to tears; laughter by the words of some shapely melody. Some people sing their way through life, and such people have a wonderful influence on the lives of others. Music can have an almost magical effect in producing the desired results. In fact, the imagination fails to picture a world without music.

Circulation counts—we have it.

ACCIDENT NEARLY PROVES FATAL

Walter McElroy Badly Injured By Shot-Gun

Walter McElroy, living two miles north of Ellsworth, was severely injured by the accidental discharge of a shot-gun the first of the week, it being only a miracle that he was not instantly killed. The index finger of the right hand was torn off and the thumb so badly torn that it will probably have to be amputated.

Reports of the accident vary, but the most reliable one is that a neighbor boy had picked the gun up from where it was standing and was examining it, when in some way it was discharged. In addition to the injured hand, Mr. McElroy received several small shot in the neck and shoulder, showing that the deviation of the fraction of an inch would have ended his life then and there. Probably another case of "didn't know it was loaded."

FAREWELL TO THEIR PASTOR

Ellsworth M. E. Divine Succeeded By Rev. Frook

Nearly one hundred and fifty were gathered together at the M. E. church on Thursday evening of last week, the affair being in the nature of a farewell to Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Clark, pastor of the M. E. church for the past three years and a reception for Rev. and Mrs. Floyd Frook, who take up the work here. A fine program of band music, speaking and singing was enjoyed, followed by light refreshments, served in the church parlors.

Included in the program was a short band concert by the Ellsworth band; a reading by Mrs. Frank Russell; a vocal duet by Mesdames H. H. Elzinga and Edd. Klooster and a vocal solo by little Francis Carpenter. Short talks were also given by Rev. Clark and Rev. Frook.

The Clarks left on Friday for their new home at Pellston and Rev. and Mrs. Frook are getting nicely settled in the M. E. parsonage here.

LOCALS LOSE LAST GAME OF SEASON

Loose Playing and Numerous Errors Give Bellaire Victory

In the last game of the season, likewise the most poorly played one, Ellsworth lost to Bellaire on the Bellaire grounds last Sunday by a 19-9 score.

Neither team showed pep in spite of better pitching than the score would indicate.

Errors on both sides were more numerous than hits and runs combined, while numerous "boners" were put in for good measure.

The batteries were Matthews, Green, Wilson and Edson for Ellsworth and Beechold and Hill for Bellaire.

No better electric light globes than the kind we sell. Try them and see. Charlevoix Hardware Co.—567.

When You'd Weigh Nothing. If the earth turned round in about an hour and a half instead of in 24, things would have practically no weight at the equator. Present speed at the equatorial region is 1,000 miles an hour. At 17,000 man could just keep on the ground.

CHILDREN SET BARN AFIRE

Saw Mother Burn Rubbish and Follow Her Example

Harry Davey, a farmer living three miles south-east of town had the misfortune to lose by fire, his barn, with all contents on Thursday afternoon of last week. The fire was started by the little children of Mr. and Mrs. Davey, who climbed into the loft and set fire to the hay and straw there. After watching the mother burn rubbish which she had been raking in the yard, and gained such headway when discovered that nothing could be saved.

The loss will probably reach a thousand dollars and we understand that the owner carried no insurance.

New "Silent Cop"

A "silent cop" was erected last week at the corner of Main and Centre streets, equipped with electric lights and guide arrows. The outfit is a work of art and a credit to the architect, James Ruis. In addition to being an agent for public safety, the arrows on which are printed the name of adjoining cities with the distance to each are so arranged as to be easily read either day or night by motorists who obey the traffic rules and pass to the right.

BOYS DEMAND BETTER BOOKS

Youngsters Not Content These Days With Anything Dreamed by Old-School Writers.

A Chicago librarian has made the discovery that boys are quitting the so-called "boy fiction" for reading of a different kind. They still read fiction, to be sure, but it is not their chief reading nor is the fiction they read that provided by the old-school writers of boys' books, who had the notion that the youthful masculine mind required and demanded a specially prepared and specially flavored food.

The boys of today, according to this finding are calling for the biographies of Lincoln, Roosevelt and Edison. They are reading Christy Mathewson's "Book of Sports," the "Boys' Book of Mounted Police," the "Boys' Book of Home Science and Construction" and books on camping and woodcraft.

When they go in for fiction they read Mark Twain, Scott, Dumas, Stevenson, Jules Verne and Kipling. They do not read Henty and Oliver Optic.

The only thing at all curious about this is that it should ever have been believed that boys had standardized minds capable of taking anything but spoon food. Boys want first of all the genuine, and it would be strange if they didn't learn where to find it. A boy who has heard of Roosevelt's life in the West is not likely to be content thereafter with the pretended adventures of the old make-believe heroes, whose authors turned out their thrills in New York boarding houses. A boy who has read "Treasure Island" and "Kidnapped" will have small use for Nick Carter.—Kansas City Star.

"Hopeless."
One can do about as she pleases, she little mite of six summers. While her Aunt Ellen heartily disapproves of such "goings on" and never fails to give some well-meant advice, even she cannot always suppress a smile. The assertive young person was playing her mother's expensive victrola and as the golden notes of Mme. Gall-Curci's voice poured forth in her famous "Dinorah" record, remarked: "Say, Aunt Ellen, how can she sing like that?" Aunt Ellen thought this a fitting occasion on which to appeal to the child's better nature and told her that God had bestowed this great gift upon the singer at birth, under the tutelage of famous masters. It had been brought to its present power. Expecting some sweet childish response, she was completely taken off her guard at hearing her young relative rejoin: "Gee! God gave me some dizzy voice!"

Bootleg.

Liquor, shipped to foreign countries for storage on the eve of national prohibition, is gradually being brought back, some by smugglers, some through legitimate channels. The total of this liquor is worth $300,000,000 in the legitimate market, $1,000,000,000 if handled by bootleggers, says John D. Appleby, general prohibition agent in the New York and New Jersey district. At this rate, the bootlegging system takes 233 per cent profits for the risk it runs. This reduces bootlegging to a mathematical basis, operating on the law of averages.

Marks.

If you are holding a basket of German marks the news from Berlin is sad. In the last week of March, Germany added $450,000,000 marks to its paper currency in circulation. This sort of inflation is the reason why German commodity prices advanced an average of 20 per cent in March. When prices are low money is hard to get. When money is plentiful, prices are high. The system gets us, coming and going. It's a gaunting game, with a permanent clean-up only for the gentleman who salts it away while the selling is good.

The Difference of 150 Years

You've heard the story of Paul Revere—how he clattered out of Boston and spread the alarm to every Middlesex village, etc. That was in April, 1775. It was an all night job. Today the Boston papers would slap extras on their presses and in the shake of a little lamb's tail the whole thrilling message would be in each home of the well known county.

This represents the advance of 150 years in the important business of sprading news.

The cry of "Extra—Extra" on the midnight air brings startled folks to their doors as once did the pound of a horse's hoofs and the breathless shout of the rider. Papers have supplanted the courier—multiplied his effectiveness many times—increased his speed a hundred fold.

How far back we would go without newspapers! We would remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but also of much that concern us just as vitally—news of the very things that have to do with the person, every-day life of each one of us.

Somebody might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to our comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but we would never know it.

Modern advertising is a boon. It keeps our information up-to-date on the many things we need in order to live a profitable, happy and useful life in this age of progress.

ECONOMIC SUR- VEY VALUABLE

NORTH COUNTY INVENTORIES ARE BUSINESS GUIDES

Listing Agricultural Lands of This Region Will Prevent Fraud and Save Money

The value of an economic inventory for those counties of Michigan concerning whose future development there is some doubt has been proven beyond doubt, according to Prof. Leigh J. Young, chief of party for the inventory taken of Charlevoix county during the summer just past.

Such an inventory as this would be of value to every county of the state, according to Prof. Young, though its application to these counties of central and northern Michigan particularly which are like Charlevoix county in the matter of uncertainty as to the proper course of development to pursue, is of extraordinary value. This statement is the result of Mr. Young's work as the directing head of the survey, a project which started on June 17 and will be completed Oct. 6.

By means of this economic survey information has been gained and will be tabulated which will point the way for present operation of the country's resources, will furnish proof why certain present endeavors should be abandoned in favor of more promising enterprises, will guide the farmers, lumbermen, resort owners, manufacturers and business men in their promotion of future progress in the county. This information will be used by organizations interested in the development of the state, by the Lansing department of agriculture, conservation and highway department and by manufacturers seeking data on location of raw materials.

In the same manner that it will be valuable to many the survey report will be disappointing to a few and may even cause loss to others. This will be particularly true in one particular, according to the experts who were in the Young party. In Charlevoix county large tracts of land are being held for possible future agricultural development and for sale as such. In many instances the inventory report will list those lands as unavailable for such use, thus effectively taking them off the market save where they are handled by unscrupulous real estate man. Prof. Young's report will indicate positively the use to which such lands can be best put, but in the majority of instances such use involves development requiring many years and the expenditure of considerable capital. Much of the land, for instance, in the eastern part of Charlevoix county is not suited for agricultural use, the inventory recommending that it be either reforested or so developed that it will be attractive to summer resorters. Much of this land is now being held with the view of its future utilization as farm lands and Prof. Young foresees that the inventory report will work hardship in instances of this nature.

According to Prof. Young sentiment among the residents of Charlevoix county was divided, some looking with favor upon the activity of the survey party and foreseeing that its results will be of inestimable value to the county in planning its future prosperity and in substantiating its claim for progress, while others saw only what they claimed to be a useless expense in putting the survey party into the state.

The chief of the party is confident that the expense of the inventory, borne by the conservation department, the department of agriculture, M. A. C. and the University of Michigan, will not reach more than 10 cents per acre. If it will go as high as that figure. The completeness of the work has made unnecessary any future economic expeditions into the state, many of which have gone in in the past for the purpose of determining some particular facts, such as the location of gravel deposits, the amount of limestone, the location of water power or the amount of timber available. These individual excursions have been expensive individually, while this combined effort has cut down the aggregate cost to a considerable extent.

The reception to be accorded the publication of the inventory results will be watched with unusual interest by those who have sponsored the effort. Supporters of the project are certain that political pressure will be brought to bear to suppress or modify that part of the report which will discourage certain exploitation activities or which tend to point out economic weaknesses in the county. Prof. Young is confident, however, that so much of real optimism for Charlevoix county, and for future counties to be inventoried, will be found that those officials at Lansing who believe in a sound economic policy regardless of its present minor disadvantages will exert their power to secure full publication and the assuring of other inventories.

BASS WANDER ABOUT IN SEARCH OF FOOD

The bass, both large and small-mouthed, is a roamer. He is always looking for the place where the most food is, and is fond of variety. You can fish for him night or day, as he is a 24-hour feeder, but early morning and late afternoon is the surest time to get him right.

He is an active rogue and continually rising from the bottom to the surface, at times jumping above the water in pursuit of food. He changes his home and feeding ground as the season passes. In the spring he is found in shallow water in streams and rivers, below rapids and riffles, and as the water warms he dives to deep pools sheltered by logs, weeds or ledges. During the summer he migrates to greater depths, where the water is cool. The same is true of lake bass. In the spring he frequents the shallow places, but later he goes into the weeds and lily pads. The small-mouth bass favors stony bars or shoals varying in depth from two to forty or fifty feet, while the large-mouth prefers weeds and muddy bottoms.

The scenic attractions along this highway are said to be marvelous, because of canyons, dense forests, and the wilderness of the surrounding regions.

UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES AND IN VIEW OF THE COAL SITUATION, THIS STORE FEELS PARTICULARLY HAPPY TO ANNOUNCE THE RECEIPT OF SOME OF

The Hot Blast

Florence Soft Coal Burners

—The only thing we are sorry about is that there are not as many of these heaters as we wish we had.

—This Store, as you very well know, is not accustomed to superlatives. We know very well whereof we speak when we say that there is nothing else so wholly satisfying for burning soft coal as the "Florence."

NO SMOKE! NO SOOT! NO DIRT! NO CLINKERS!
EVERYTHING IS CONSUMED

At the end of the season's use with soft coal, there will be no soot in the pipe or flue.

—This heater is at the apex of perfection. It has the only jointless leg bottom and base with full radiation and large ashpan that is on the market or that has ever been made in the history of the stove industry.

—This jointless leg bottom and base makes the stove airtight below the grate, which is the only true fire-keeping principle.

—It will be as good a fire-keeper years hence as it was the day you purchased because there are NO JOINTS to open!

—We have heard many of its users declare that the Hot Blast Airtight Florence will heat twice the space that can be heated by any other stove on earth at one-half the cost. Our own experiments and demonstrations verify customer's words. In addition we can say we consider it the most perfect floor heater that has ever been made.

—There are sizes for every purpose.

—They cost no more than common stoves of good material. They fit your purse—and pay back their cost.

—The HOT BLAST AIRTIGHT FLORENCE burns soft coal or slack and all the smoke and gases. No filling up of the stovepipe or flue with soot. No dirt inside or outside the house. It will burn hard coal and all the gases which escape from the hard coal base burner. It will burn wood or sawdust, wet or dry. It will produce half less ashes than any stove we know of with any kind of fuel and leave no clinkers or half consumed fuel.

HOSPITAL WEEK OCT. 16 TO 21

FOOD AND FURNITURE DONATIONS WANTED

Gifts May Be Left at Loeb Farms Office or the Charlevoix Hospital

The week of October 16th to 21st will be devoted as "Hospital Donation Week" to gifts of vegetables and food stuffs to the Charlevoix Hospital for the consumption of patients and staff.

Farm folks will be asked to donate vegetables and the townspeople for coffee, tea, spices, canned fruits, etc. Even chickens will be acceptable, but they must be in the live state. Furniture is needed for the nurse's quarters, especially rugs, tables and chairs. There are enough beds, but a great lack of other articles.

Gifts may be brought to the hospital during the week, or left at the office of the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co., corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets. Mason Rose and Meyer Levinson form the committee in charge of donations and these two gentlemen will be glad to answer any inquiries as to what is needed. Receipts will be given for all materials left at the hospital or the engineering office. Cash gifts will be acceptable where the donor cares to make his contribution in this form.

Visitors to the hospital will be welcome to inspect the building, kitchen and wards and it is hoped that many will take advantage of this opportunity to become acquainted with the hospital and its staff.

The matter of visiting hours has given the hospital staff much concern. Most of the patients need rest at times during the day as well as at night and in the past friends and relatives have arrived at inopportune hours; at meal times, during rest hours and when dressings and treatments were being applied. Such a practice is not good for hospital discipline and retards the progress of the patients. Especially is this true in the wards, where the presence of even one visitor, during a rest period, annoys everyone in the room.

To remedy this condition, regular hours have been set from two to four in the afternoon and from seven to eight-thirty in the evening, leaving the entire morning and the intervening periods undisturbed, and visitors will be required to observe this rule, except in cases where people have come from

SAFETY RULES FOR THE AUTOIST

In furtherance of the state department of public safety's campaign to reduce automobile accidents, the department of state from now on will issue printed cards, illustrating the proper arm signals for turns and stops, and outlining a set of safety rules, with every set of license plates issued.

The illustrations show the arm should be bent upward for a right turn, and the arm should be slanted downward at a sharp angle for a stop.

The following "auto suggestions" appear on the card:

Be sure you possess a correct title for your car. The law requires.

Do not drive without your identification card and your driver's license.

The law requires every operator of a motor vehicle to possess an operator's license. Chauffeurs require both operator's and chauffeur's licenses. Violations are punishable by fine or imprisonment. A person must be 14 years of age to procure an operator's license and 18 to obtain a chauffeur's license.

The law requires that all license plates shall be kept clean and plainly visible for a distance of 30 feet.

Do not take chances in passing other vehicles. Sound a warning before you pass. Give the other fellow a chance. You may avoid a bad accident and possible death by taking just a few seconds more time on the road.

Hold out your hand when you stop or turn, whether in the city or country. It is a simple thing to do and may prevent an accident. The driver behind you is not a mind reader.

Do not overlook your lamp equipment. The law requires two front and one tail light.

Drive carefully. The graveyards are filling with reckless drivers and their victims.

a long distance and are pressed for time, or have other urgent reasons for seeing a particular patient immediately.

The present staff of the hospital consists of three nurses, a practical nurse, a janitor and a cook. This week, they are caring for fifteen patients and two brand-new babies. There were six operations and one birth last week and so far this week there have been performed three operations and one birth has occurred. There are only two vacant beds in the building.

Forty-six operations have been performed since the hospital opened and only four deaths have occurred within its walls and these have been hopeless cases, past all surgical or medical aid.

COMMENDED BY HIGH OFFICIALS

CAPTAIN PETER ANCE, IS SIGNALLY HONORED

Receives Letters Personally Signed By Secretaries Hoover and Roosevelt

Some weeks ago, the Courier published an account of a heroic rescue, accomplished, under difficult conditions of sea and wind, by Captain Peter Ance, commander of the White Shoals Reef lightship.

As a result of his deed, news of which found its way to officialdom at Washington, Captain Ance received letters of commendation this week from Secretary of Commerce, Herbert Hoover, and Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Theodore Roosevelt. These letters, personally signed by their distinguished writers are substantially alike and we reproduce below the one received from Hoover.

Sept. 25, 1922.
"P. D. Ance,
Commanding Light Vessel No. 57, (Through Commissioner of Light-houses)

Sir:
Referring to report of assistance rendered by you on August 28, 1922, in rescuing two men aboard the disabled launch, McTavish, which was adrift in a rough sea, the Department is pleased to commend you for the services rendered, which will be noted on the records as part of your official history.

Respectfully,
HERBERT HOOVER,
Secretary of Commerce."

Mr. Ance has stated his intention of having these two letters framed. They will no doubt prove a great source of satisfaction, both to the Captain and his descendants, who will preserve them, no doubt, as family relics of peculiar interest.

AMENDMENTS TO BE VOTED UPON

READ CAREFULLY BEFORE PASSING JUDGEMENT

State Income Tax Proposition to Be Passed Upon—Give More Power to Municipalities

At the election to be held in this state on Tuesday, November 7, 1922, there will be submitted to the electors three proposed amendments to the Constitution of the state, as follows:

A proposed amendment to the Constitution providing that Article XIII be amended by adding a section to be known as section 5, to read as follows:

Sec. 5. Subject to the Constitution the legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, improving and widening of parks, boulevards, public places, streets, alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated, but such bonds shall be lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will empower the legislature to authorize municipalities to acquire land and property in excess of that needed for parks, boulevards, streets, etc., and issue bonds for the payment of same.

A proposed amendment to section 3 of Article X, to read as follows:

Sec. 3. The legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation, except on property paying specific taxes, and taxes shall be levied on such property as shall be prescribed by law. Provisions may be made by law for a tax of not to exceed four per centum upon or with respect to the net gains, profits and incomes, from whatever source derived, which tax may be graduated and progressive and which may provide for reasonable exemptions. For the purpose of such tax, property and persons, firms and corporations, upon which such tax may operate may be classified: Provided, That the legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation for such property as shall be assessed by the state board of assessors, and the rate of taxation on such property shall be the rate which the state board of assessors shall ascertain and determine is the average rate levied upon other property upon which ad valorem taxes are assessed for state, county, township, school and municipal purposes.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will authorize the enactment of an income tax law providing for a tax of not to exceed four per centum upon net gains, profits and incomes, and providing for a classification of property and persons upon which such tax may operate.

A proposed amendment to Article VIII, by adding section 30, to read as follows:

Sec. 30. The legislature may provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts, and confer power and authority upon them to engage in work of internal improvement in connection therewith.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will authorize the legislature to provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts with power to engage in work of internal improvement in connection therewith.

FOREST FIRES UNDER CONTROL

200 ACRES SECOND GROWTH TIMBER DESTROYED

Numerous Fires Near Elmira and in Kalkaska County Reported By Railroad Men

Late Wednesday of last week a serious fire developed in the Thumb Lake district southeast of Petoskey, where an area of 200 acres was burned over. The Cobbs & Mitchell camp crew in that vicinity was called out, and under the direction of Fire Warden Thomas Bryant and Supt. Locke of the logging concern, it is believed that it will be kept from doing any further serious damage, if high winds do not prevail.

In the north end of Emmet county Warden Bryant reported several small fires, which are not of a dangerous kind, and which are well confined to an area in which no loss of live timber is anticipated.

News comes from Cheboygan that several bad fires have been discovered in the Wolverine section where one farm house and a barn have been burned. Fires are also reported in the Mullet Lake region and on Bois Blanc Island.

A number of fires were burning in the Elmira and Kalkaska regions. Railroad men say. Wednesday afternoon fires were noticed in a big swamp just south of Kalkaska. This fire was not far from the Pennsylvania Lines tracks. Several fires were also reported east of Elmira and another between Mancelona and Alba. Railroad workers say that all but one of these fires are east of the Pennsylvania Lines tracks and most of them are several miles back from the tracks.

News from northern Minnesota tells of hundreds of small forest fires in that country. More than a hundred fires were reported near Duluth. Prairie fires are reported near Aberdeen, S. D., where one person has been burned to death.

Later reports from fire wardens, is to the effect that Sunday's rain had about put out the worst of the fires and greatly lessened the chance of serious fire losses.

LEGISLATURE TO RE-ARRANGE DISTRICTS

Northern Michigan Expected to Put Up Hard Fight

Representatives Edward L. Sargent, Rollie L. Lewis and Fred Ming and State Senator William J. Pearson face a hard task at the convening of the 1923 legislature when the work of rearrangement of districts is taken up.

At present, Cheboygan, Charlevoix and Emmet counties have one representative each in the state legislature, and the four legislators face a tough task in endeavoring to maintain that standing, owing to the fact that all three counties show less population in 1920 than in 1910, in spite of the increase in the state as a whole.

The population of the three respective counties is as follows:

Charlevoix	15,788	19,157
Emmet	15,639	18,561
Cheboygan	13,991	17,872

It will be noted that Cheboygan county lost 3,881 in the 1920 census as compared to the 1910. Charlevoix county 3,369 and Emmet 2,922. As each one of the three counties is less in population than the moiety mentioned in the constitution, namely 18,345, the big fight of Pearson, Sargent, Ming and Lewis will be to devise a manner by which these counties can avoid being combined with others. This in itself is an almost hopeless undertaking, in view of the census figures and the limitations in the constitution.

The constitution requires that the legislative representative and senatorial districts be rearranged. The new apportionment must be made with the 1920 federal census as a basis.

LOCAL SHOP GETS LARGE CONTRACT

Sanitary Engineering Co. Making Metal Fish Boxes

The Sanitary Engineering Company of this city has a contract with the Robbins Fish Company, of Charlevoix, and Chicago, to furnish them with 700 galvanized iron fish freezing pans.

These boxes are 32 inches long, 17 inches wide and 3 1-2 inches deep. A special machine for forming them had to be purchased and they are fastened at the four corners with two rivets to a corner. The joints are then soldered. Each box is fitted with a cover that slips down over the bottom part so that the whole affair looks like a cloak or suit box, such as the tailor throws in with your Sunday suit.

Each box will hold approximately thirty-five pounds of fish apiece. They are designed, when filled, to be piled in tiers in a storeroom where the temperature will be lowered to a point at which the fish will keep to the best advantage.

Mr. Powers, manager of the Sanitary Engineering Company, states that the contract will not be completed much before December 1st, and it is probable that an even larger quantity of these boxes will be required by that time.

ADrift 36 HOURS WITHOUT FOOD

CREW OF "ALICE K" HAS HARROWING EXPERIENCE

Father Dorotheus, Indian Missionary, Makes Gallant But Fruitless Attempt At Rescue

Adrift on Lake Michigan 36 hours in a disabled cabin launch and without food until picked up late Friday evening by a passing barge, was the thrilling experience of Capt. Guy Robie, owner and operator of the launch, "Alice K." father Dorotheus Phillips and four small Indian children.

The sextet left St. James, Beaver Island, Thursday for Petoskey, where Father Dorotheus, Indian missionary on Garden Island, planned to place the children in the Indian school at Harbor Springs. During the cruise the ship got off its course in dense smoke and fog. A broken connecting rod in the ship's engine also put the boat completely out of commission. The anchor rope failed to reach bottom until the boat drifted some hours before a strong east wind when the weight became fast in a rock ledge.

The party remained in this perilous position all night, keeping watch for passing ships which might come upon them in the fog and holding out hopes that the wind would remain calm. Hunger became evident and the children were given the few apples which had found their way on the cruiser.

Friday morning when the fog and smoke cleared, the stranded party discovered that they were anchored near Isle Aux Galets lighthouse, north of Cross Village. Father Dorotheus took the cruiser's small boat and attempted to tow the ship to Good Hart, but when night again fell they were still too far from the mainland to attract attention.

With the water too deep for the anchor the boat again drifted until the party was discovered by the crew of the lumber barge Odd Fellow, bound from Beaver Island to Petoskey with a cargo of lumber. The boat was taken in tow, reaching Petoskey at midnight Friday.

LOCAL ODD FELLOWS ENJOY FINE SUPPER

Guests of Horton Bay Brothers Saturday Evening

Horton Bay I. O. O. F. lodge entertained the Charlevoix County Social Club at their hall last Saturday night. Over one hundred Odd Fellows from East Jordan, Charlevoix and Boyne City were present.

After the business meeting a short program consisting of recitations and songs was given, and this, in turn, was followed by one of the chicken suppers for which the Horton Bay lodge is so justly famous.

The next meeting of the club will be held in the Boyne City I. O. O. F. Temple on January 2nd. If the weather is more favorable on that date than it was last Saturday there will be several hundred county Odd Fellows in attendance.

NEW CENTERBOARD CRAFT BUILDING

BELLINGER'S BOAT AUXILIARY KETCH TYPE

Same Design As Famous "Typhoon" That Crossed Atlantic In 1920

Will Bellinger is building an auxiliary cruising ketch in the yard back of his store on Bridge Street. This craft will be 35 feet long, and 12 feet beam. She is equipped with a centerboard and will draw either three feet of water or ten to twelve feet, according to whether the board is up or down.

The keel and frame are of white oak, and the planking, all to be creosoted. The cabin will be of the regulation hunting type, equipped with four berths, toilet and galley. The engine has not yet been selected, but Mr. Bellinger advises that it will be of a heavy duty type to deliver about ten horsepower.

Mr. Bellinger is building the boat for his own use according to a design of William Atkins, naval architect of Montclair, N. J. She is the same type (but ten feet shorter) as the "Typhoon," also designed by Mr. Atkins, that crossed the Atlantic from New York to Liverpool in 1920, sailed by William Washburn Nutting, of New York City. The ketch rig is of English origin and, for the benefit of the landmen among our readers, the outstanding feature of this rig is that the rear or mizzen mast is set forward of the steering wheel, as distinct from the yawl rig where it is stepped in rear of the wheel.

The owner expects to launch this boat some time next June. In order to accomplish this feat, it will be necessary to build a skidway across the back end of the Mussalem property, down the bank and over the boardwalk leading to the life saving station, into the channel. Mr. Bellinger says he launched a thirty footer from the same spot some time ago and anticipates no trouble with the next one.

Mileage Book Act

Railroad representatives before the Interstate Commerce Commission attacked proposals to establish a system of interchangeable mileage books for passengers transportation over all lines. By a recent act of Congress the Interstate Commerce Commission was authorized to require the issuance and sale of such books by all railroads and to fix a reasonable rate.

Representatives of organizations of traveling salesmen, appeared and asked a reduction of 33 1-3 per cent in transportation costs by means of the proposed new mileage facilities.

A. M. Loeh, president of the national council of Traveling Salesmen associations, said the roads should sell coupon books at a one-third discount, and argued that the policy would increase the amount of travel materially. David K. Clink, secretary-treasurer of the International Federation of Commercial Travelers Organizations, representing, he said 676,000 traveling men, made a similar argument.

Postmasters Hob-Nob

Organization of postoffices in each community through personal contact of the postmaster with his subordinates, and gaining of as wide information about the business of his community as possible, were proposed as aims for every postmaster by Postmaster General Hubert Work, in an address before the 1,000 delegates who attended the National Association of Postmasters of the United States at the National Museum. Membership includes first and second class postmasters.

Mail Service Loss Cut $96,702,287 For Year

The cost of the mail service for the fiscal year of 1922 was $60,815,400.36 more than was received in revenues, according to the statement of expenditures and revenue receipts, made public by Postmaster General Work. This is a decrease of $96,702,287.75 from 1921, when the mail service was operated at a loss of $157,547,688.11.

During the fiscal year 1922 the Postoffice Department collected in revenues $484,853,740.71, an increase of $21,362,266.01 over 1921, when the receipts were $463,491,274.70. The total cost for handling of the mails for the two periods, respectively, was $545,668,941.07, and $621,008,962.81. This was an increase of 4.61 per cent in revenues and a decrease of 12.13 per cent in expenditures.

Price-Fixing in Tobacco

The Federal Trade Commission has issued formal complaints against the American Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Company, and The Association of Wholesale Tobacconists of Milwaukee, manufacturers and distributors of tobacco and tobacco products.

The Commission charges the respondents with unfair methods of competition in the maintenance of resale prices by entering into agreements among themselves to fix and maintain certain uniform prices at which their tobacco products shall be sold.

Hog Island Shipyard

Hog Island soon will be the flat field it was before Uncle Sam invested $270,000,000 there. Where once an army of 36,000 men were building high-class vessels there now is a detail of fifty men armed with oxyacetylene torches and other instruments with which the demolition of the gigantic ways and other equipment is being wrought. The work of dismantling the mammoth machinery of war is progressing at a rapid pace.

Twenty-five of the fifty huge ways, representing high engineering skill, are already down, and the general appearance of the yard is that of a tornado-swept place. It is expected that some large manufacturing or storage plant will be erected on the place after the government has cleared it off.

Life Insurance

Reports compiled by the Department of Commerce from the principal life insurance companies showed a small seasonal decrease in the new business written in July. The total life insurance written by these companies, which represent about 77 per cent of the total insurance outstanding, has amounted to $3,670,837,000 in the first seven months of 1922. This is an increase of 8 per cent over the same period last year. The largest increase has been in group insurance which for the seven months is 117 per cent greater than a year ago. New industrial insurance has increased 15.6 per cent over the same period of last year.

Motorcycles and Bicycles

The Department of Commerce announces that the census reports show considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of motorcycles and parts during 1921 as compared with 1919. Twenty-two establishments reported products valued at $1,567,970 in 1921, compared with twenty establishments for 1919 with a total value of $28,609,327.

The number of completed motorcycles decreased from 59,122 valued at $16,161,623, in 1919 to 26,591, valued at $4,438,706 in 1921.

The returns indicate that the combined output of all establishments was only approximately 44 per cent of the maximum capacity, based upon a demand requiring full running time. The percentage of output for individual establishments ranged from 20 to 90 per cent of their maximum capacity.

Census reports also show a marked decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of bicycles and parts during the year 1921 as compared with 1919. Twenty-four establishments reported products valued at $9,529,779 for 1921 as compared with 31 establishments having products valued at $24,496,568 for 1919.

The number of complete bicycles decreased from 470,675, valued at $12,277,341 in 1919 to 149,192, valued at $6,218,394 in 1921.

The returns indicate that the combined output of all establishments was only approximately 38 per cent of the maximum capacity, based upon a demand requiring full running time. The percentage of output for individual establishments ranged from 20 to 90 per cent of their maximum capacity.

Manufacture of Firearms

Census reports show that in 1921, 18 establishments reported as being engaged in the manufacture of firearms, and the total value of their products amounted to $12,510,302, as compared with 25 establishments and the total value of products of $30,181,370 in 1919. The decrease in the total value of products was 58.5 per cent. The statistics do not include establishments operated by the United States Government. In March, the month of maximum employment, 5,201 wage earners were reported, and in December, the month of minimum employment, 3,752, the minimum representing 72.1 per cent of the month of maximum employment.

Manufacture of Typewriters and Supplies

The Department of Commerce announces that the census reports show considerable decrease in the activities of establishments engaged in the manufacture of typewriters and supplies during 1921 as compared with the year 1919. Seventy-four establishments reported products valued at $41,621,047 for 1921 as compared with 88 establishments having products valued at $52,737,661 for 1919. The decrease in the total value of products was 21.1 per cent.

The decrease in production has been accompanied by corresponding decreases in the number of persons employed; in the total amount paid during the year in salaries and wages, and in the cost of materials. There was considerable fluctuation in the monthly wage earners in 1921. In January, the month of maximum employment 16,101 wage earners were reported, and in August, the month of minimum employment 9,012—the minimum representing 56.0 per cent of the maximum employment. A classification of the wage-earners shows that 11,257 or 84.6 per cent of the total number were employed in establishments where the prevailing hours of labor per week were between 48 and 54. For 1,759, or 13.2 per cent of the total, the prevailing hours were 48 or less; and for 293, or 2.2 per cent of the total, 54 or more.

7,504 Cars Sold to Poland

The War Department announces the sale of 7,504 European-type railway cars to the republic of Poland for the sum of $4,802,560. The cars are stored in yards in Norfolk and New York, and because of difference in type and gauge are not available for use on American railroads, having been built during the war for use of the American army in France. They were sold under sealed bids, eleven offers being received, of which the Polish offer was the highest. The bulk of the cars are of the gondola type, although there are some flat cars and a few special type continental box cars.

Nation Drying Up

Putting a kick in prohibition is casting the government around $10,000,000 a year and will take at least a decade. So says Federal prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes. The prohibition machine is knocking a bit now, Haynes admits, but the knocks are chiefly from knockers who are feeling the pinch of enforcement activities. Millionaire bootleggers are in the past, he says. They were thriving a year or so ago, but now there aren't any such things.

DODGE BROTHERS
BUSINESS SEDAN

Exceptional interest has been aroused by the practical arrangement of the interior.

The entire rear compartment furnishings—seat, seat cushions, back cushions, seat frame, foot rest, carpet and all—can be removed from the car in a few moments.

The front seat is then tilted forward, giving a gross clearance of twenty-two inches through the rear doors.

In this way, a space of sixty-four cubic feet in the rear compartment is made available for loading.

When the rear seat fixtures are back in place, the interior is complete and attractive in appearance. Its convertibility is not apparent to the eye.

Business men, farmers, salesmen, campers, tourists and everyone who has occasion, at times, to carry bulky articles or luggage, will readily appreciate the great utility of this construction.

ABOUT CONDUCTING FAIRS
Every fall we hear a slight rumble about the way county fairs are conducted. Usually the bulk of the complaint is from a combination of transient preachers and well meaning but misguided women. In the first place the fair cannot be successfully operated along the same principles as a camp meeting. With the fair the big hazard is the weather and these concessions are even more essential in poor weather than in good weather with which the society has been favored the last two years. We want to go on record as saying we sincerely believe Charlevoix and Emmet county are as free from vicious, immoral or corrupting influences as it is possible to make it in these days of short skirts and too much gas. We have a proper regard for these folks who are so deeply concerned less the stranger within our gates makes away with all the dimes (the popular church collection coin) but let us say to them "our heart has not turned back." Further let it be said in defense of this quasi-respectable criminal type who blacken their characters trying to snare away a blanket from these wary operators for a thin dime that if we were to circulate a petition to buy another cow for a poor old lady who had sustained the loss of her best milker, please assign us to the blanket brigade rather than some of these cash and carry critics who use their criticism as a public notice of their religious fervor. As for the charity, most of these reformers are high test proof. Doesn't David say of the liberal man:

The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies.
Not one, not even the complaining clique, wants to see a proper respect for law and order more than the Courier. Remember what some fine old timer said a long time ago about the mote of your optic. If your own mote isn't bothering your conscience you are headed in the right direction. Most of us have a conscience and whether we always follow it or not it always functions and is, as a general thing, quite likely to be correct on moral questions. Brother Seneca said it all a few thousand years ago in this fashion.

The first petition that we are to make to Almighty God is for a good conscience; the next for health of mind, and then of body.

"WAGE SLAVES"
There is a great hue and cry from certain quarters these days, about our modern "wage slaves," meaning, of course, laboring men.

Men who hired out to work, receiving for their toil, the compensation agreed upon, are said to be mere "wage slaves," in fact, but little above the men who were bought and sold in the market places of past years.

We confess our inability to understand the reason for such comparison, unless these advocates of revolution would have us regard every man who works for a living as a "slave," and unless they are trying to outlaw all honest toil.

But what are the facts in the case? Is the man a slave, who has the right to vote upon all questions relative to the affairs of his city, state and nation?

Is the man a slave who owns his own home, and is the head of one of the families which make up the community in which he lives?

Is the man a slave who is privileged to choose his place of employment, and to sell his labor where it will bring him the largest returns?

Is the man a slave, the members of whose family mingle on a social equality with the people of his neighborhood?

Is the man a slave, the members attend the public schools, and receive the same instruction, and enjoy the same educational opportunities as the children?

Is the man a slave who owns stock in the industry in which he is employed, and thereby has a voice in shaping its policies?

Is the man a slave who can return to his fireside at the close of the day, for an evening at home, or with his family, enjoy the entertainment in the public parks, or in places of amusement of his own choosing?

Is the man a slave who by the use of his brains and by his industry, is privileged to climb to the highest positions in the factory where he is employed?

Is the man a slave who can say truthfully to his son, "Study hard, my boy; you may be the President of the United States some day?"

All of the above and much more applies to the average American workman, whose standard of living is unexcelled in any nation, and whose liberal wages is enabling him, not only to lay aside money for the future, but also to secure interest in the industries of the community.

Let any reasonable person turn over the pages of history, and read from the record there the meaning of the word, "slave." Let him contrast for one moment, the condition of the poor, ignorant human being who possessed nothing, received nothing, and could hope for nothing, the human slave of the past, let him compare, we repeat, the state of such a poor unfortunate with the unlimited opportunities presented to the American laborer, and he will never again apply the term "slave" to the workers in American industries, moreover, if he is sincere, he will forever close his ears to the asinine ravings of the Radical agitators who are insulting the employed men of today by branding them "wage slaves."

A MUTUAL CONCERN
Those who think that America is not concerned with the stabilization of Europe should think again. According to Herbert Hoover, American food markets will be overwhelmed before long by European buyers seeking foodstuffs. Drought and disturbed economic conditions have led to serious crop shortages in most of Europe. It is said that the wheat crop alone is more than 160,000,000 bushels short.

The prospect of this great market for America's surplus crops would be more than encouraging if conditions in Europe were anything like stable. As it is, there are some of the nations which can buy and pay promptly or give dependable assurance of payment later, but many of them in need of American supplies cannot.

It has been pointed out many times that American prosperity depends to a great extent upon European markets. The present situation emphasizes the truth of the statement. Here is Europe needing our produce; its transportation would mean business for our ships; and yet the economic and financial situation abroad is such that only the most optimistic can see any promise in the outlook.

It is evident for selfish reasons if for no other that Europe's concerns are ours and that any reasonable part we can play in bringing them into order will mean money in our pockets no less than relief abroad.

HUMAN VALUES
An official of the Methodist church says that there are 30,000 vacant pulpits in the United States today "because ministers are paid approximately the same as street-sweepers, and they have no assurance that they will live in reasonable comfort after their useful days are over."

This may not be altogether true. Some of the 30,000 pulpits may be empty because there are too many pulpits—too many rival churches in fields where such rivalry no longer means anything but duplication and waste.

Otherwise, the situation is about as represented, and is a standing rebuke to present-day society for its strange inversion of values.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK
That every city should have such a boosting spirit, that no visitor could escape its influence.

That you should think how your city happened.

That it reveals a story of progress and development.

That it reveals a story of action and achievement.

That no boom has furnished the formula of success.

That constructive work, plus faith and action, have made your city what it is today.

That there has not been a broken link in the steady growth of your city.

That it was first started by men with a vision.

That you have the same class of men in your city today.

That the real growth of a city broadens with the development of business for the city business men and that of the surrounding country.

That the opportunity for your city to become a bigger, brighter and better city is here now.

That it is time that every citizen make a personal investigation of his city and its resources.

That he should join the live citizens—that are putting his city forward and do his share.

That the cities that act are the cities that prosper.

That every city should be progressive and have a forward vision.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Michigan Allowed $24,000
Michigan has been allotted $24,000 of the $400,000 of federal funds allowed the states co-operating with the government in protecting forest lands from fire. The state will expend an equal amount, it is estimated.

Killed in Auto Wreck
Speeding to keep ahead of a car attempting to pass, then swerving to avoid a collision, Walter N. Millard, one-armed piano tuner, lost control of his car as he was driving to his East Bay home late Wednesday afternoon of last week and was pinned underneath and badly mangled when his machine tumbled twice. He was rushed to a hospital, but died an hour and a half later without recovering consciousness. Mr. Millard had frequently visited Elk Rapids, being piano tuner for Grinnell Bros. Traverse City house.

Hillman Hard Hit by Fire
Five business places, in Hillman were obliterated in a recent fire, causing a property loss estimated at $10,000 while no one was injured.

The business places destroyed were: John Doll's harness and repair shop, William Murphy's meat market and grocery, Rodney Walker's restaurant, Chester James' restaurant and J. J. Alexander's blacksmith shop.

The four buildings occupied by these stores were burned to the foundations, together with their contents. Nothing of importance was saved.

The buildings were grouped together on the east side of the main street, just north of the Hillman bridge. Thousands of autoists who visited the scene of the fire from surrounding cities and towns found only a few smoldering embers marking the place where these five stores had stood the night before.

All of the buildings were of frame construction except Alexander's blacksmith shop, which had solid concrete walls, but even these failed to save it from being gutted.

The blaze was discovered shortly before 5 o'clock between Walker's and Murphy's places, and spread quickly to adjacent stores. The volunteer department responded, but was handicapped for one-half hour by lack of water pressure. After the full pressure was obtained, the water from two hose lines proved sufficient to cope with the fire.

The fire was so intense that Thomas A. Lake's garage across the street was set afire, but these flames were extinguished before they got to the building proper. Telephone poles across the street were also set afire, and likewise saved.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By J. E. Jones

Official Optimism and Pessimism
Someone once remarked that a pessimist is a woman whose husband is an optimist. Another kind of a pessimist might be the man who constantly reads the hot air reviews of industrial conditions made by political chiefs within the government, and then tries to reconcile the cheering news thus obtained with the cold facts he finds in the statistical statements. Last winter when the President's Unemployment Conference was trying to find work for five million idle workmen, the Federal Reserve Board, the Department of Labor, and whole flocks of Congressmen were telling the country what good times we were having.

Some fantastic author has written a story about "A Corporation With a Soul," and the Steel Corporation thinks so much of the optimistic romance that it has printed a booklet and sent it broadcast into a pessimistic world. The average of eight leading steel products is now $52.50 per ton, against an average $42.12 at the low point last February. Rails have been advanced from $40 to $43. Record long-hour work days continue in the steel industry, but that there is a "soul" concealed somewhere, is proved to the satisfaction of the heads of the steel trust, even though they were forced to make an advance of 20 per cent in wages to common labor. Reference is lacking that there was a scarcity of labor and that laborers in the industry were deserting to take positions in more congenial employment.

"The practical assurance of good crops has done much to keep business at its high level during recent trying months," we are told in the "Survey of Current Business" prepared in the Bureau of the Census. So much for the optimist. But the Department of Agriculture has the statistics under its nose and therefore it is the pessimist. "The farmers world stays out of joint," says this authority, and referring to the facts in the case the Department comments: "His purchasing power has lately dropped to just about its lowest point since the war—the quantity of farm products that would buy $100 worth of other things in 1913 will now buy $64." Is it any wonder that the farmer, representing the greatest basic industry, has grown pessimistic while living among the optimists who are reaping their harvests in the building trades, and in the cotton and woolen mills, and among manufacturers of clothes and shoes?

It is a little difficult at times to distinguish the true conditions when the official optimists are trying to jolly the country and keep everyone happy, while at the same time the great statistical-gathering forces of the country are presenting realities so pessimistic, that they stick out like pinkies on a gooseberry bush.

Radio and the Farmer
As radio continues to make its place in the practical work-a-day world, it develops that old laws are still working and that the importance of all innovations in science or the arts prove their usefulness to certain branches of society, or the population, in exact proportion to the difficulty encountered in doing or getting equal benefits or advantages in some other way.

The people in the large cities had the first "whack" at radio communication. Concerts, lectures, market and weather reports, came to be broadcasted so that people walking along the streets got the benefit. During recent weeks the smaller towns and the country districts have been setting up their radio outfits. And now that the cavin has been passed to everybody the question regarding whom radio in its practical application will most benefit, hits pretty straight in the direction of the farmers. For a quarter of a century fate has been working for the farmer. It is inconvenient for the farmer to be continually running to town, and therefore the inventors and the pioneers in industry have been taking the towns out to the farm. The government got into this forward movement early by introducing rural free delivery of mail, and when this was loaded down with parcel packages and the old horse and buggy struggled under the heavy strain, automobiles became marvelous additional advantages, better living and better business conditions. The telephone connected up the entire country, and space ran up the white flag of surrender.

In the progress of radio it developed that the broadcasting of agricultural, market and weather reports, instructions in agricultural methods, supplementary instructions to pupils in the public schools, and entertainment such as high-class concerts, have a very practical and useful place in country life. Communities without ministers have only to "listen in" on Sunday mornings to hear sermons that surpass those preached in the days when Henry Ward Beecher's name was a household word. Thus not only the town, but the whole country, is commanded for the benefit of the farm homes—because it is inconvenient for their occupants to "always be running to town."

Cleaning Up Stock Frauds
An energetic grand jury in Washington has been returning indictments against concerns that have been using the mails to promote stock-selling schemes. A gullible public that has long since forsaken merchants doing business on the policy of "let the buyer beware" has been lending itself as a prey to stock schemes where worthless mining and oil stocks, imitation manufacturing enterprises, and other sorts of blue sky, have been the bait to separate honest people from their hard-earned savings. This kind of a game cannot be carried on without a certain amount of use of the mails. In consequence Federal statutes are supplemental, and sometimes more effective than state laws, in reaching the financial fakirs. Large press associations are giving considerable publicity to the methods employed by the Washington authorities in the hopes that good example set in the Capital City may be followed to route the rascals in other localities.

Golf Becoming a Poor Man's Game
Hundreds of acres of land have been set apart in the park system of the National Capital, in Columbus and Akron, Ohio, and Chicago, for golf courses. In a single summer has been transformed the sport of golf for the prosperous, to the recreation for all. Thousands of devotees of both sexes have taken up the game in Washington, and the town is in the tree-tops of enthusiasm over golf. It reminds one of the days when only the rich owned automobiles and the poor man kept a horse. But now only the rich can afford the luxury of a horse, while the parking space is crowded by the poor men's cars. A few golf sticks and balls do not cost much more than a croquet set or a tennis racket. Armed with these implements the "common citizen" is equipped to enter the rich-man's game of golf, and any town can provide grounds for a golf course.

Woman's "Paramount Issue"
Miss Alice Paul, leader of the National Woman's Party, has issued a statement from her Washington headquarters, saying that women voters are demanding that the suffrage victory be carried to its logical fulfillment in the granting to women of "complete political, legal and civil equality with men." It may be a valuable tip to some of the politicians to learn from Miss Paul that "candidates who wish to appeal to the woman voter will adopt such a plank in their platform."

AT THE MOVIES

"Over the Hill," the William Fox production of one of Will Carleton's "Farm Ballads," which broke the best record of any screen attraction that ever visited Broadway, playing there one solid year in six different theatres, will be seen at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

The story of "Over the Hill" was adapted from Carleton's poems by Paul H. Sloane, who wrote a screen story that has defied criticism in this form of entertainment. The story has to do with the adversities of a typical American family, the mother of which is called upon to bear the brunt of all the shortcomings of her little flock. The principal characters, aside from the mother, are a lazy father and six lively kids—one of whom is destined to figure as the "black sheep." As the story unfolds, the youngsters are seen growing to manhood and womanhood, and eventually leaving the homestead to set out into the world for themselves. The story is worked up to one of the most beautiful climaxes ever devised and one that is said to stir the emotions of men and women as they never before have been stirred by a stage presentation. There is also abundant comedy in the picture, and the production can well be said to meet the entertainment needs of every member of any family, young and old.

DEATH TAKES WELL KNOWN R. F. D. CARRIER

Donald Patterson Succumbs to Long Illness Saturday Evening—Funeral Wednesday

Donald Patterson was born at Dexter, Ontario, Canada, on March 24th, 1858, and died at his home at Ellsworth, on Saturday, October 7th, 1922, following an illness of nearly four months.

The death of Mr. Patterson came as a decided shock to the community, for while it was conceded that he would not live more than a few months, or possibly weeks, the end was unlooked for so soon.

Deceased had been a resident of Michigan ever since 1884, with the exception of about four years spent in Grand Bend, Canada, following his marriage in 1889 to Miss Fannie Fallis, of Grand Bend. In 1893, he with his family returned to Michigan and settled at Newberry, where Mr. Patterson followed his trade of blacksmithing until 1899, when they came to Ellsworth, where he resided until the time of his death. He started as a rural mail carrier out of Ellsworth in 1907 and remained at this work until ill health forced him to discontinue in June of this year.

He leaves beside his wife, three sons, Donald Jr., of Ironwood, Mich.; William, of Ellsworth; and Dewitt, of Detroit, and one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Hunter, of Detroit, as well as four brothers and three sisters, all living in Canada.

With the death of Mr. Patterson, the family loses an ideal husband and father, and the community loses one of its most highly respected citizens, a man who was a friend to all and to whom all were friends.

The funeral service was held Wednesday at two o'clock, from the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. E. E. Clark officiating, and the body will rest in Boss cemetery, and the sympathy of the friends of this community as well as those whom he has made during his long years on the route, is extended to the bereaved family.

A POOR POLICY

Caretakers on the North Side are commencing their usual summer-end complaint about people in flivvers and people on foot, town people and country people who enter up on resort property, almost before the last departing trunk has been loaded on the train, and strip the flowers from the beds with ruthless disregard of property rights, but a sometimes almost ridiculous fear of detection. Valuable perennial plants and bulbs meet with the same fate as their less expensive and shorter lived fellows and in some instances shrubbery planted one day has been dug up before daybreak the next.

Some of these petty thieves have been caught in the act and advance all kinds of reasons for their depredations. In one instance, some local women were surprised by the pander of a vacant property in a wholesale clean-up for decorations to be used at a coming social function.

In the great majority of cases, these people would be welcome to the flowers if they would ask for them, thereby giving the caretaker a chance to make selection of the plants that could be spared without loss to the owner or damage to the permanent year-round growths, but it seems they prefer to pilfer.

This conduct on the part of our townspeople and their farm neighbors does not make for pleasant feelings, when the resorter returns next season and finds some or perhaps all of his pet plants dug up by the roots. It is a jarring note in the otherwise perfect harmony of environment and service which a resort region that hopes to hold its popularity must insure to its summer patrons.

Has a Real Grievance.

In ill health, a Detroit man threw himself out of a window. He will recover, the doctor says, and just as soon as he is strong enough he is going looking for the fellow who told him that jumping out of a window is good for it.

The Difference of 150 Years

You've heard the story of Paul Revere—how he clattered out of Boston and spread the alarm to every Middlesex village, etc. That was in April, 1775. It was an all night job. Today the Boston papers would slap extras on their presses and in the shake of a little lamb's tail the whole thrilling message would be in each home of the well known county.

This represents the advance of 150 years in the important business of sprading news.

The cry of "Extra—Extra" on the midnight air brings startled folks to their doors as once did the pound of a horse's hoofs and the breathless shout of the rider. Papers have supplanted the courier—multiplied his effectiveness many times—increased his speed a hundred fold.

How far back we would go without newspapers! We would remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but also of much that concern us just as vitally—news of the very things that have to do with the person, every-day life of each one of us.

Somebody might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to our comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but we would never know it.

Modern advertising is a boon. It keeps our information up-to-date on the many things we need in order to live a profitable, happy and useful life in this age of progress.

Do you take advantage of this advertising?

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Was it raining? Well, we assure you it was, but it was not raining tears. We were all there cheering for old C. H. S. and we know that rain or shine, Harbor Springs (or any other line up) can't score on Charlevoix's foot ball team.

Don't forget the game with Onaway next Saturday, October 14. Be there with your megaphones and help us yell. Mr. Merrill of Boyne City, will referee the game.

Natives around Mason and Clinton Streets need not be alarmed when they see Miss Vincent racing around the corner, on Monday morning, followed by a troop of girls. We were not chasing her because of that long assignment for type-writing. It was only the physical training class.

Mass meetings are being held from time to time for various purposes, but for one reason—to get acquainted with each other. Mr. Hamilton says that's the only way to succeed as a school. We believe him! Talk about the pep and life—well, you heard what we did to Harbor Springs, and we're ready to do it again, anytime.

Chapel services were especially interesting Monday morning. The sixth graders of Central School sang a new Michigan song which we all enjoyed very much.

Mr. Hatch, former Mathematics teacher in Charlevoix High School, visited our schools Monday.

The yearly system of school visiting is being done in the fall this year. Mr. Hamilton explains that this is done so that the new ideas gained from other schools may be put in practice this year. Miss Harrington and Miss Wilson visited the East Jordan and Boyne City schools on Tuesday of this week.

M. S. T. A. Charlevoix teachers have one hundred per cent membership in the Michigan State Teachers Association. The meeting this year will be held at Cadillac, on October 26th and 27th.

A banner is being made that each month will be given to the room having the highest percentage of attendance and no tardiness. This is given to Central School rooms, only.

Amid a vast shower of tears and cries of poignant distress, the "Great and Silent Order of Bugs" was organized and disbanded, after their dance Saturday night. They disbanded for the reason that they believed they could thus co-operate more successfully with the best interests of the school.

The Bug Club was the first of 1922's sensations and was made up of eleven little Bugs, a Big Bug, a Lady Bug and an assistant Big Bug. By a Bug.

Rodger Babson has recently said: "People desire spiritual help from religion. It is spiritual power for which they really hunger.—The greatest of undeveloped resources is faith; the greatest unused power is prayer.—Jesus recognized these facts and preached them two thousand years ago. For a century or two they were taken seriously and the church prospered thereby. During later centuries, however, we have become so engrossed in material things that we have forgotten the great spiritual power to which we owe so much. Steam, electricity and other powers have taken the place of the Holy Spirit, the greatest of all powers.—This means that those interested in the revival of true religion should devote their energies to reviving the spiritual power of the church."

ARRESTED FOR ILLEGAL FISHING

Game Wardens Pick Up Offenders on Boyne Creek

Mistaking the balmy fall weather for the haleon days of spring, Dan Baker of Boyne City and Wm. Drake of Traverse City went trout fishing Thursday of last week in the Boyne creek between Elmira and Boyne Falls, and when Capt. Gagan and Sergeant Anderson of the State Police came upon them they had already captured about thirty trout varying in size from three inches up. They offered no excuses, and plead guilty before a Justice, who fined each of them $25 and $4.95 costs.

57 to 0 Our Favor
Charlevoix High School cleaned up on Harbor Springs last Saturday afternoon on the gridiron here to the tune of 57 to 0.

The visiting team was too light for the heavy backs of C. H. S. and failed to gain much ground against their veteran opponents. Our boys showed perfect co-operation between line and backfield and played a snappy game. Surprises are in store for any team that picks them for an easy mark.

HELPS TO SUSTAIN PRICES

One of the Big Factors in Construction of Good Roads Planned for the Coming Year.

One of the factors that will help to sustain farm prices is the large amount of road building planned for this year. The government will spend a larger sum for this purpose than ever before, and states and counties will co-operate to the extent of their financial abilities.

Money for Good Roads.
In Washington a bill authorizing $140,000,000 for good roads for the next two years was recently passed in the house by a vote of 230 to 31. The measure provides that $65,000,000 shall be available by June 30, 1923, and $75,000,000 by June 30, 1924.

Good Roads in Quebec.
During 1921 the province of Quebec constructed 416 miles of good roads. More than 4,000 miles of highway are now being kept in perfect repair in Quebec province.

HAM, EGGS, AND GREEN OLIVES

Friends pop in for a meal and no meal is ready—what woman has not been in this predicament? This recipe solves the problem nicely: Eggs, bread, butter and a bottle of green olives always on hand, parsley in the garden, ham in the corner store—and you have everything you need.

Put one-half pound boiled ham through the food chopper and fry in a little butter. Add six eggs and mix thoroughly. Stir in one cup chopped Spanish green olives and one teaspoonful minced parsley. Serve hot on buttered toast. It's delicious.

After you've done the best you can it's astonishing how much better you can do if you have to do it.

SUPERVISORS HOLD QUIET SESSION

"Big Willie" Throws a Bomb into The Arena

The County Board of Supervisors is in session at the court house this week.

Nothing startling outside of the usual routine of business is reported so far, except a resolution introduced by "Big Willie" Gallagher, of St. James, this morning, providing for a continuous session, from 9:00 A. M. to noon and from 1:30 P. M. to 5:00 P. M. This may have a tendency to reduce the time allotted to the more genial social features of the session and should have met with considerable opposition, but we have not heard as to that. Further details as to the proceedings will be available next week.

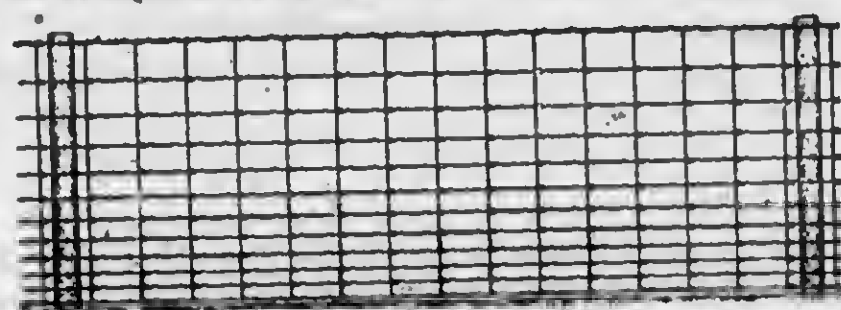

All joking aside, however, the Board has a lot of hard work ahead of it and will shortly be buckling down to business in earnest.

BOARD CLOSES BUSY SESSION

MANY IMPORTANT MATTERS WERE TRANSACTED

From Repairs to Ironton Ferry to Voting Three Mill Road Tax.
—List is Long One—

The regular annual October session of the county Board of Supervisors, which opened October 9, at the court house in this city, and adjourned Tuesday afternoon, was not marked by any strikingly unusual features. Many important items of business were, however, disposed of and we have endeavored to catalog those of the most general interest to our readers.

Two members of the Board have passed away since the last session—Edward B. Ward of Charlevoix and Frank Clute of Evangeline township, for whom the Board at this session passed a resolution of condolence. Their places have been filled, however, and the present incumbents will hold the same positions on the various committees as their predecessors.

One-tenth of one mill of the assessed valuation of Charlevoix county was voted to the Charlevoix County Agricultural society to pay county fair premiums and reduce indebtedness for improvements made in the fair properties, also, the sum of $729.17 for advertising purposes.

Permission was granted to repair the scow at the Ironton ferry, which is to be redecked and widened some four feet. A Delco lighting plant is to be installed so that the signal lights may be maintained on both sides of the ferry. The docks on both banks are to be repaired by the necessary piling and filling. It is estimated that the work will cost only fifteen hundred dollars.

A petition of L. B. McLean, for permission to build a bridge connecting the west side of Holy Island with the mainland, was granted.

John Burns and Lyman E. Benton were nominated for Superintendent of the Poor. They tied on the first ballot and on the second Mr. Benton won by two votes. The term is three years.

A. J. Duncanson and William L. Fuehrer were elected school examiners; the former for two years, the latter to fill vacancy for one year.

Grover Genett, William F. Tindall and Newman Goodman were elected county canvassers for the term of two years.

Motion that County Agent have charge of the Agricultural department of the County Poor farm was tabled.

Permission was given for the making of repairs on the Court House roof, tearing the old cells out and converting the resulting space into extra office room. Steel screens on the jail windows are to be painted and the court house offices will receive some small repairs.

The sum of $1,500.00 was voted to the County Farm Bureau to defray expenses already incurred in its efforts to eradicate tuberculosis and an additional $500.00 to complete the work. $1,800.00 was granted the County Agricultural agent for the expenses incurred by his department.

Long tours by automobile are of frequent occurrence and many people of this region, as well as in other parts of the country, are in the habit of taking them, but few make the journey that Walter Yemmans, of this city, has just completed.

Some four weeks ago, Mr. Yemmans, accompanied by his wife and three children, packed their camp equipment in the faithful Oakland six and started out. Bangor, Battle Creek, Marshall to Jackson was their Michigan itinerary, thence south to Coldwater and over the Fremont pike to Cleveland, then on to New York. Arrived at Geneva, after the three years.

RETAIL MERCHANTS OF CITY UNITE IN GIVING PEOPLE A HARVEST OF DOLLAR DAY SPECIALS

One Hundred Dollars in Cash Prizes Given to Ford Owners Who Visit City on Dollar Day—Tune Up That Ancient "Lizzie" and Win a Prize

"Dollar Day," Saturday, October 28 will be "Smile Day" to residents of Charlevoix and surrounding territory.

Why? you ask. Because Charlevoix merchants have planned a carnival of bargains for the trading public for miles around. The thrifty housewife has learned that when Charlevoix merchants announce a Dollar Day, it means a genuine bargain day and that it pays to purchase what is needed on this day.

Staple merchandise at greatly reduced prices will be the magnet that will attract shoppers from all directions, and will make shopping economical in Charlevoix on this day.

The word bargain is often misconstrued. When you speak of a bargain, some folks associate cheapness with value. The bargains Charlevoix merchants will offer on this day are standard goods, such as you use every day, at sale prices that have backed the word bargain off the counters. If you do not believe this visit the stores of Charlevoix on Dollar Day and convince yourself.

The price of every bit of merchandise offered to the public on Dollar Day is certified and guaranteed to be genuine bargains, at or below the wholesale market value. Could anything be fairer to the buying public? Think this over. You buy things when you can get them at the right price as a rule, and a visit to Charlevoix, Saturday, October 28, will convince you, whether you buy or not, that the values cannot be duplicated on the market today. And you want to remember the offerings will be so varied that some merchants will have what you want, and you can buy it at Dollar Day prices.

Your pocketbook is your best friend. When you extend favors you extend them to your friends. Why not be friendly to your purse and spend your money where it will go a long ways. You will have this opportunity on Dollar Day.

ADDITIONAL DOLLAR DAY FEATURES

Dollar Day will be "Lizzie" day, as well. If she limps, get some hay wire and stay her up. If she leaks, invest in a stick of Beeman's or Wrigley's and plug up the hole. Grease her up with a little laundry soap and get in line for the big parade. If she will roll at all, you have a chance to keep up with the band wagon.

The prizes will be awarded by competent judges. All competing Fords must enter the parade, which will assemble in front of the Argo Milling Co. on River street, and proceed south on Bridge street to S. Orlovski & Son's store, thence west to State street, thence north to Clinton street, thence east to Bridge street, thence north to Park avenue, thence west on Park Avenue, where they will disperse. The parade will start at 10:30 standard time.

If you are the owner of an old Ford, crank 'er up and spend the day with us. The judges award the prizes to the following:

The noisiest Ford.
The most dilapidated Ford driven by the fattest man.
The Ford containing the largest family of children.
The oldest model Ford coming from the longest distance.
The best decorated Ford.
The Ford operated with the most attachments.
The Ford carrying the largest number of people and weight.
The slowest driven Ford (a race of about two blocks).
The Ford driven by the best looking woman.
The funniest looking Ford.

A complete list with the prizes offered will appear in next week's issue of Charlevoix papers. There will be substantial prizes for all entries. Book your entries at the Charlevoix Courier office.

Fire Hose Burst

Sam Shonts, tinner for Bonthron, parked his Ford touring car in front of the shop Monday morning without noticing that an innocent looking length of fire hose lay in the gutter just alongside his wheels. In fact, there was nothing really noticeable about it—until later.

Workmen repairing the leaking water main under the bridge had attached the hose, earlier in the morning, to the hydrant in front of the Craig Hat Shop and at the time Sam parked his car it was carrying a full load. The "nigger in the woodpile" was a weak spot in the hose just under Sam's car.

This "let go" shortly after Sam started to work, and spouted a young Niagara up through the bottom of the car for five minutes before the irate owner, running out of the shop, discovered that his "Lizzie" was getting the most complete washing she had ever experienced. We have printed everything connected with this episode except what Mr. Shonts said when he discovered it and there we draw the line.

REVIVAL MEETINGS

AT M. E. CHURCH

Rev. Hawkins W. Kerr of Ypsilanti,
The Leader

The Methodist church of this city will next Sunday begin revival meetings. This work will be carried on by Pastor Quant and wife and Rev. H. W. Kerr of Ypsilanti. The local church will organize a chorus choir. Revival Gens, a new song book just off the press, will be used in these services.

The Methodist people and the evangelistic team extend a hearty invitation to all to participate. Come early and have a good, old fashioned sing and hear a good gospel preacher.

Rev. Kerr held a very successful revival service in Potoskey last year and will follow this meeting at Charlevoix with one at Boyne City.

Beginning this Sunday all day and every night throughout the week except Saturday, services will be held. Week night services begin at 7:30.

"FULMAR" GOES TO STURGEON BAY

Capt. Sam Rose in Command With Crew of Two

Maybe you've noticed the big white tug-like steamer tied up to the Wilbur dock for the past few days.

This is the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries tender, "Fulmar." Captain Sam Rose, who has been commissioned by the Bureau to take her into dry-dock at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., dug up his old steam boat papers and sailed away at six o'clock Tuesday morning with Henry Martin and Harold R. Jones as a crew.

The "Fulmar" will be laid up at Sturgeon Bay just long enough to be scraped and painted and have her stern bearings gone over, when she will be brought back here to go into spawning work under the direction of the Bureau of Fisheries.

Capt. Rose said that if nothing happened they would make the run from Charlevoix to Sturgeon Bay in about nine hours. They were well stocked with groceries and ought not to suffer if it takes a little longer.

BOY NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH

SON OF L. B. ATCHISON STRUCK BY CAR

A. B. Weyant's Quick Work in Getting
His Victim to Hospital Saves Life

A near-fatal accident occurred last Saturday evening at about half past seven o'clock, when Robert, the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Atchison, of this city, was run over by a car, driven by A. B. Weyant, freight agent for the Pere Marquette R. R. and badly injured.

The accident occurred on Antrim Street, opposite Hooker's Garage. Mr. Weyant had stopped at Erickson & Olmstead's garage for gas and was proceeding slowly west on Antrim St. to the corner of State, where he expected to round the dummy policeman and return to Bridge street on his way to the Charlevoix Hotel, where he stays. As he approached the corner, he noticed a man coming down Antrim street towards him pushing a cart or a wheelbarrow, but on the wrong side of the road. Mr. Weyant swerved to the center of the road to avoid him and as he did so, little Bobby Atchison, who had stopped, on his way home with the "funny paper" to show his grandpa, to play hide and seek with a little girl friend of his, ran out from behind the big tree that divided the roadway leading to the Standard Oil filling station, where he was hiding, and directly into the path of the car.

The street, although it was long past sundown, was unlighted and Mr. Weyant claims he did not see the boy at all and that he never came within range of his lights.

The first he knew he had hit anything was when he felt the jnr as the car passed over the boy's body. He thought at first that he had run over something that had dropped from the cart he had just passed, but he threw on the brakes quickly, however, and getting out, found the boy lying under his rear fender. Mr. Weyant rushed the lad to the hospital, assisted by Mrs. Simmons, who witnessed the accident from the doorway of her father's shop on Antrim street. The latter had already telephoned the hospital when Mr. Weyant arrived and the boy was taken in, put to bed and three hypodermics administered to stop the hemorrhages from his lungs, which were pretty severe. A hurry call was put in for Dr. Armstrong and through the clever work of the telephone central he was finally located and arrived at the hospital within fifteen minutes after the accident occurred. It was not thought possible to (Continued on page eight)

DON'T FORGET YOUR DONATIONS

VEGETABLES AND GROCERIES ARE ACCEPTABLE

Leave Materials At Hospital or The Loeb Farms Office on Bridge Street

Don't forget that this is hospital donation week and gifts of groceries, canned fruits and vegetables will be received at any time during the week at the Loeb Farms office on Bridge Street or at the hospital, where receipts will be given for everything brought in.

Vegetables of all kinds and canned fruits are needed badly and the appeal is made particularly to our rural readers who have these things to give. Both the farmer and the townsmen are urged to co-operate heartily with the hospital committee to make Donation Week a success and put the hospital in good shape to meet winter demands. Remember, you may be the next patient and one of the first to benefit from your own generosity and that of your neighbors.

Bring live chickens, eggs, potatoes, cabbages, carrots or onions. If in doubt as to whether a certain article will be accepted or not, call up the head nurse at the hospital or either of the two committeemen, Meyer A. Levinson and S. M. Rose. If you prefer to give cash, it will be all right.

Since the hospital has been opened to the public, it has rendered a great service and filled an imperative need in a highly efficient manner. The efforts of the staff are worthy of the community's highest appreciation and this week has been set apart to afford you, as an individual member of the community, an opportunity to show it. Don't be backward.

Good food is of the utmost importance to the convalescing patient and constitutes a prime factor in the restoration of health and vigor. Sick folks need soups and broths and tender, well-cooked vegetables to supply the bodily elements wasted by disease and the shock of operation. No less is this true of the nurse who cares for the patient and who is under considerable nervous and physical strain. Upon her health, bodily tone and clearness of mind depends the welfare—sometimes the very life of a patient. All gifts of food brought in, therefore, should be of the best grade and in A-1 condition. Your individual contribution may not seem much or very important in itself, but in the aggregate it will play a great part in the saving of life that is precious, of health and strength that others depend on for their support, or that is needed for the doing of some important work in the community—possibly (who knows?) the life of one who is indispensable to your own happiness.

THEY ALMOST GOT A HUNTING LICENSE

All smiles were a young couple who walked briskly in the county clerk's office and applied for a license. They didn't tell the clerk the kind they wanted—they thought he would surely know—but because the clerk had been kept busy lately handing out hunting licenses he at once proceeded to fill out one of the latter.

The preliminary questions went O. K., such as, "Your Name? Are you a citizen of the United States, etc." The climax came when the clerk asked the young man to raise his right hand while he read: "I do solemnly swear the above statements made by me are true, and that I am familiar with the game laws of Michigan," etc.

At this point the surprised man exclaimed, "Yo gods! I don't want a hunter's license, I want a marriage license!"

The above is a true tale. It took place in a certain county clerk's office. The county clerk is a busy man these days, not only taking care of his routine work, but in addition to these duties he acts as clerk to various boards that meet in the fall. He is liable to mistakes as all county officials are, and we hope this blunder will be overlooked.

AUCTION SEASON IS NOW ON COURIER ADVERTISES FIVE SALES

THE AUCTION SEASON IS ON THIS WEEK IN EARNEST. We publish five auctions scattered over Charlevoix and Antrim counties, north, east and south from Charlevoix.

2. The Courier furnishes you an auctioneer, arranges for the date, the clerk, the bank, and all other details in connection with the conduct of an auction sale.
3. Everybody looks in the Courier for auction advertising, and, if they do not find it there, conclude the advertisement they were looking for was not run elsewhere.

Were you at the game Saturday?

"Many a whisper makes a front seat," says Miss Belding.

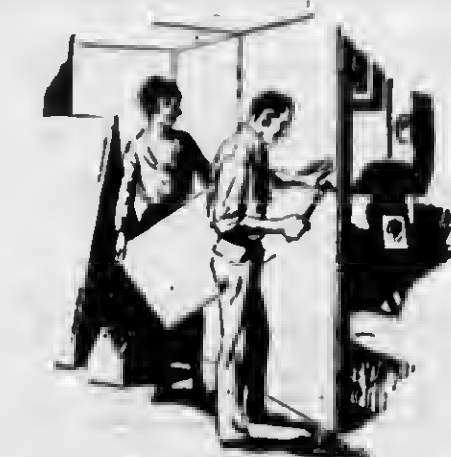

Last Saturday C. H. S. met and defeated the hard-fighting Onaway team 6 to 3. The game was the hardest fought, that has been played on the local grounds for some time. Onaway scored the first score in the first quarter and in the second quarter Charlevoix followed with a touchdown. The Charlevoix team was greatly surprised at Onaway's team and thought they would have an easy time, and by bull dog fighting they held the visitors the remainder of the game and came

Infant Mortality

The department of Commerce will soon issue a bulletin, based on 1921 figures compiled by the Bureau of the Census showing for each state and each city in the birth registration area the number of births and the infant mortality rate, together with figures for 1920 for comparison. These 1921 figures for a population of 70,425,705 show 1,714,261 births, 825,511 deaths at all ages, and 129,588 deaths under 1 year of age, which give a birth rate of 24.3 per 1,000 population, a record low death rate of 11.7 per cent. In 1920 the rates for the birth registration area were: Birth rate 23.7 per 1,000 population; death rate 13.1 per 1,000 population; and infant mortality rate 86.

For the States the lowest 1921 infant mortality rate (51) appears for Oregon, and the highest (98) for Delaware; for cities of 100,000 population or more the lowest mortality rate (50) appears for Portland, Oregon, and the highest (114) for Fall River, Mass.

Exports of Refined Sugar Break All Records

The world is increasing its dependence upon the United States for refined sugar. Our exports of refined sugar in the current calendar year, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, will far exceed those of any earlier year in the history of our refining and export trade. In fact, the total quantity of refined sugar exported in the seven months of the current year for which we have now a record is greater than in any full year preceding and is 30 times as much as in the year preceding the opening of the war.

Prior to the war, says the Trade Record, when Europe was producing all of its own sugar requirements from beets, our exports of refined sugar were extremely small, amounting in the year immediately preceding the war, the calendar year 1913, to only 52,000,000 pounds with a value of less than $2,000,000. In 1914, with the war conditions which prevailed in the great beet producing area of Europe, Russia, Germany, Austria-Hungary and in a lesser degree France and Belgium, our exports of refined sugar amounted to 390,000,000 pounds, or nearly 8 times as much as in the year immediately preceding its opening. In 1915 the total advanced to 963,000,000 pounds, in 1916 1,577,000,000, in 1917 1,011,000,000; in 1919, 1,475,000,000, dropping to a little less than 1,000,000,000 pounds in 1920 and 1921 but enormously increasing in 1922, so that the total for the 7 months for which we have now a record is 3 times as much as in the same period of the preceding year and actually more than in any full year since we came to the front as an exporter of refined sugar. Estimating the exports for the remainder of the calendar year upon the figures for the latest months, it seems quite apparent that our total exports in the year ending with next December will be fully 2 1/2 billion pounds as against the former high record of 1 1/2 billions in 1916 and 1919. In the 9 years since the beginning of the war, our exports of refined sugar have aggregated 9,371,000,000 pounds, valued at $574,000,000, while in the 20 years preceding the war the grand total was only 625,000,000 pounds, valued at $25,000,000.

Flour-Mill and Gristmill Products
A census bulletin has just been issued that shows the total quantity of grain ground by all flour mills in 1919 represented an increase of 15,355,230 bushels, or 1.8 per cent, over the amount reported in 1909. For the merchant mills the increase was 23,778,332 bushels, or 2.9 per cent, but the quantity reported for the custom mills showed a decrease of 8,423,102 bushels, or 12.6 per cent. As the custom mills, as a rule, keep no exact records of the amount of grain ground, their reports as to this item are largely estimates based on the receipts for toll. Of the total quantity of grain ground both in 1919 and 1909, more than 90 per cent were reported by the merchant mills.

Wheat was the principal kind of grain used both in 1919 and 1909, the amount ground in 1919 being an increase of 115,198,962 bushels, 12.22 per cent over the reported for 1909. The relative importance of wheat increased during the ten-year period, the proportion which it formed of the total quantity of grain reported being 69.9 per cent in 1919 and 57.7 per cent in 1909.

Corn was the next grain in importance, the quantity reported in 1919 represented 15.5 per cent of the total amount of grain used, but was a decrease of 107,121,481 bushels, or 43.8 per cent, as compared with the quantity reported for 1909, when it formed 28 per cent of the total amount of grain used.

Oats, barley, rye, and buckwheat, in the order named ranked next in importance in number of bushels reported. From 1909 to 1919 there were increases in the quantity of oats and rye used of 20.8 per cent and 32.6 per cent, respectively, while the quantity of barley showed a decrease of 7.5 per cent, and that for buckwheat 34.4 per cent.

The total quantity of wheat flour reported for 1919, 133,670,672 barrels, represents an increase of 26,562,211 barrels, or 24.8 per cent, over the quantity reported for 1909. In the production of corn meal and corn flour, however, a decrease of 12,398,376 barrels, or 45.6 per cent, is shown for the decade.

Steel Merger Abandoned

The Federal Trade Commission announces the dismissal of its complaint against Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, Republic Iron and Steel Company, and Inland Steel Company, in which it was alleged that the proposed merger of the companies was an unfair method of competition. The complaint was dismissed upon the filing with the Commission of a formal statement by attorneys of record for the three companies, that the merger had been abandoned.

Production of Electricity

The production of electricity by public-utility power plants in August again broke all previous records with an average daily production of 131,100,000 kilowatt-hours, exceeding the record for June of 127,800,000 kilowatt-hours by about 2 1/2 per cent and the July rate by about 5 per cent, reports the United States Geological Survey. As the output of electricity by water power is falling off, due to the usual seasonal decrease in the water supply, the increased demand for electric power was met by fuel-generated power.

A comparison of the relative amounts of the different fuels consumed in June and August, after converting the different fuels to a comparative basis, shows that the production of oil and gas used by public-utility power plants in the production of electricity was about 15 per cent greater in August than in June. Evidently the scarcity of coal has increased the use of oil and gas.

The record-breaking output in the production of electricity for August was due, no doubt, to the increase in the domestic and commercial lighting load brought about by the activity in the building industry which has continued during the summer months with but little decrease and by the demand for power by the industries which has probably been augmented by some of the industries turning to public-utility plants for power when unable to operate their own power plants through lack of coal.

Big Damage Suit Follows "Peanut War"

Suit for the recovery of $3,650,000 three-fold damages under the Sherman anti-trust act has been instituted in a United States District Court by the Peanut Growers' Exchange against a score or more individuals and concerns, members of the National Peanut Cleaners' and Shellers' association in Virginia and North Carolina.

The action, which involves the largest amount of damage ever claimed in the courts of Virginia, is an outgrowth of the so-called "peanut war" with the growers' organization on the one side and the cleaning and shelling concerns on the other. In brief, the defendants, are charged with conspiring to render the exchange insolvent through alleged manipulations of the market price of peanuts. It is alleged that during October, November and December of last year, the defendants kept the price of peanuts higher than conditions justified, in order to induce the plaintiff to advance money on the crops of its 5,000 grower members beyond what the crops would bring when ready for sale.

Then on January 1, it alleged, the defendants dumped large quantities of peanuts on the market to depress the price so that the advances made by the exchange should exceed the market value of the peanuts put up as security. It is further alleged that the defendants sought to induce banks and other agencies that had advanced money to the growers' exchange to call the loans and that the exchange had been represented as insolvent. Actual loss of $1,200,000 is claimed, and under the Sherman anti-trust law damages to the extent of three-times the amount of the actual loss may be claimed.

Skunks Lead Raw Fur Exports

The total foreign fur trade of the United States in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922 was nearly twice as great in value as in 1912-13, according to the Department of Commerce. The value of raw furs exported was actually more than twice as great as in the last pre-war year.

Exports of raw furs for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, exceeded $21,100,000, considerably more than double the value of the shipments for the year ending June 30, 1921. Over one-half of this total went to the United Kingdom while Canada and Germany each took be-

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS SEDAN

With this car, Dodge Brothers have literally created a new type of sedan.

They have combined open car ruggedness with closed car protection and smartness.

They have demonstrated, once for all, that a sedan can be as practical and almost as inexpensive as an open touring car.

The body is built of hand-welded steel because steel is sturdy, and will take a permanent, oven-baked finish, eliminating forever the cost of repainting.

The seats are upholstered in attractive, genuine Spanish blue leather, because leather will wash and wear.

To further enlarge the car's usefulness, the rear seat, back and side cushions, seat frame and foot rest are quickly removable, giving sixty-four cubic feet of flat loading space in the rear compartment. The manifold uses made possible by this unique feature are readily imagined.

The top and rear quarters are of non-rumble, fabric construction, conforming with the present attractive vogue. From cord tires to curtain cords, the fittings, inside and out, are distinctive and complete.

In fact, every detail of the car emphasizes its striking adaptability to business as well as social use.

A POOR POLICY

Caretakers on the North Side are commencing their usual summer-end complaint about people in flivvers and people on foot, town people and country people who enter upon resort property, almost before the last departing trunk has been loaded on the train, and strip the flowers from the beds with ruthless disregard of property rights, but a sometimes almost ridiculous fear of detection. Valuable perennial plants and bulbs meet with the same fate as their less expensive and shorter lived fellows and in some instances shrubbery planted one day has been dug up before daybreak the next.

Some of these petty thieves have been caught in the act and advance all kinds of reasons for their depredations. In one instance, some local women were surprised by the gardener of a vacant property in a wholesale clean-up for decorations to be used at a coming social function.

In the great majority of cases, these people would be welcome to the flowers if they would ask for them, thereby giving the caretaker a chance to make selections of the plants that could be spared without loss to the owner or damage to the permanent year-round growths, but it seems they prefer to pilfer.

This conduct on the part of our townspeople and their farm neighbors does not make for pleasant feelings, when the resorter returns next season and finds some or perhaps all of his pet plants dug up by the roots. It is a jarring note in the otherwise perfect harmony of environment and service which a resort region that hopes to hold its popularity must insure to its summer patrons.

EASTERN NEW YORK BURIED IN THE MUD

Mrs. Kohler Reports Good Roads But Heavy Rain-Fall

Word was received, under date of October 10th, from Mrs. Benona Bartlett Kohler, who drove through to Lockport, N. Y. last month, accompanied by her husband and mother, Mrs. Nettie Bartlett, to the effect that rains in that part of the country have been exceptionally heavy and we quote from her letter: "We arrived here all O. K. Had a wonderful trip. Roads were good. After we left Michigan, we had nothing but concrete or brick pavement through Ohio, Pennsylvania and into New York. It has been raining for the past four days and clay is ankle deep in our front yard, even where the grass and flowers are growing. Some mud! I prefer Michigan sand, always."

BAKER TO STICK TO OLD PARTY

Announces Will Support All Republican Candidates

Herbert F. Baker, state senator and runner-up in the primaries in the contest for United States senator against Senator Charles E. Townsend, last Wednesday night publicly announced that he will support the Republican party in the coming election.

"I am a Republican and will support that ticket from top to bottom," he told a party of newspaper correspondents and friends. Baker branded as a lie the story circulated that he will throw his support to Woodbridge N. Ferris, Democratic candidate.

Referring to the recent Iowa convention, where certain Republicans bolted their party, and announced their support of the Democrats, Mr. Baker declared he is "not that kind of a Republican."

Mr. Baker's announcement that he will support the Republican ticket is seen here as puncturing the bubble tossed into the air recently by those of the opposition party that Ferris could count on the support of the Baker following.

While Mr. Baker did not explain to what extent he would aid his party in the election, it was expected by politicians that he would make some talks during the campaign.

Serve America Support the Constitution

This is the message of the star posters which we see in many windows.

The Eighteenth Amendment has not yet been given a fair trial, but the lawless and anti-social character of the wets has been clearly demonstrated. No loyal American will knowingly break the law.

OVER THREE THOUSAND MILES

descent of a long hill, which bore the debris of several luckless mishaps where unfortunate motorists had failed to heed the sign-board warning to go into second speed, the long drive of 184 miles down the Mohawk Valley began, through Syracuse and Rochester into Albany, where, at the well-known three point road, the blue sign points to New York City and the lights of Broadway, the red to Boston and the white pointer directs the travellers into the heart of the White Mountains. They took the red road and camped for the night by the roadside, just thirty miles outside of Boston. The next morning they passed through the city on their way to Gloucester, forty miles the other side of the city of Beams and Culture, which they reached that evening, having made the trip in just eight days.

After a visit of two weeks with friends in Gloucester, the family started on the return trip by the way of Salem, descending on their way the famous Hairpin Curve into South Adams, Mass.

From the top of this hair-raising declivity five states and nine cities can be seen. The states are New York, Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Tourists descending the Hairpin, which is three miles long, are warned to go into second speed and apply the brakes. On the upgrade, Mr. Yemmans states, it is a frequent occurrence to blow out a radiator reaching the top, if the cap is not quickly removed. Coming down is about as bad and the garage men in the town near the foot of the hill run out to block your wheels so that your brakes may be released before they set hard and fast.

From South Adams, the party made back by the way of Albany and Watertown, taking the Five Point Highway into Niagara Falls, and from there home, eight days from Gloucester.

Mr. Yemmans figures that he covered 3,060 miles on this trip. His total expense for gasoline and oil was $30.00. He suffered one blow-out in New York state and had no further trouble on the trip until he struck that delightful detour between Norwood and Charlevoix, which is the pride and joy of the local motoring fraternity; where he broke a spring. He commented favorably on the methods of road building in the East where there are no ditches such as we are familiar with, no crown to the road and supporting shoulders to the edges of the concrete to prevent crumbling away.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 24—Metro presents Alice Lake in "The Infamous Miss Revell," a drama of sacrifice and romance, in which Miss Lake gives the most striking portrayal of her striking career. Also a comedy, "Chicken Heated."

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25—Metro presents Viola Dana in a comedy drama, "Glass Houses," the story of a girl who didn't want to reform the man she had to. One of Miss Dana's best pictures. Also the fifth chapter of the "Adventures of Tarzan," "The Flames of Hate."

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL
By J. E. Jones

Should Nations Pay Their Debts?

The United States is among the countries of the world flooded with German marks that were bought on the optimistic speculative theory that Germany would redeem its shillings currency. In old Austria visitors have to carry along a "trailer" in order to transport enough of the native currency to pay their hotel bills and other expenses. Czechoslovakia may be a hard word to spell, but it is one of the very few European nations that maintains its currency at par.

The rates of foreign exchange, always bad in Europe, are at the present time all shot to pieces. In the language of the United States high discounts in the rate of exchanging money represents low financial morale in the country that shaves its own paper. An individual or corporation that would insist on deducting twenty, thirty, or even ninety cents from every account when presented for payment would be called a dead-beat, or handed some similar epithet. But we were told to be more charitable in discussing the fact that the government of the United States has borrowed eleven billions of dollars from the people of our country and turned it over to European countries that are now asking that the debts be avoided. If this is done our own people will have to replace the money by some form of taxation, for the carrying on of our own public affairs, and no matter how invisible this taxation system may be, or how harmless—the fact remains that Americans will have to make up the eleven billions unless the Europeans pay their honest debts. And the worst of it is that having endorsed all this European paper the Europeans are inviting us to settle the account at "the bank." Who that has endorsed notes promiscuously for friends has not cursed his ill-luck for just such reason?

Debts Relieve the Peace Doves
Senators McKinley of Illinois, Spencer of Missouri, and Harris of Georgia, have recently returned from Europe, and they advocate voiding the war debts on account of the prevailing "economic" distress. The question is not a party matter, as is shown by the fact that republicans and democrats are equally divided in their opinions. These Senators have simply concluded that the debts are uncollectable, and they are ready to splash red ink all over the credit side of Uncle Sam's ledger.

Theodore Burton, former Senator and now Representative in Congress from Ohio, thinks differently. He has just returned from Europe, where he went as a member of the Allied Debt Commission. He has made a personal report to President Harding, and in a public statement he takes the high ground that the cancellation of national debts "would throw doubt on national credit." Mr. Burton may be a little late with his "doubts," but he is timely in observing that "if these debts were cancelled it would lead to an expansion of the military and naval establishments of other countries, and thereby bring a threat of war and all the waste it entails." Evidently Mr. Burton finds Europe still itching for a fight, and the belief is rather general that a flock of European countries are in deep mourning because of the blessings of poverty that have disabled them from participating in the scrap that has been entertaining the Greeks and the Turks.

Foreign securities to the amount of three and a quarter billions of dollars have been sold in the United States since 1919, and four billion dollars more has been contributed outright by Americans to relieve European distress during the past three years.

The United States is in nowhere near as big a hurry to collect its debts as the borrowers were to get the money; and it is more than probable that European charity like the soul of John Brown will keep "marching on." Chairman Madden of the House appropriations committee sees virtue in the European debts, and agrees substantially with Senator Burton. "If we held out hope that these debts would be cancelled," says Mr. Madden, "they would be encouraged to go on spending for war machinery." We don't want to encourage any such mistake.

The Sea Goes Dry
Attorney General Daugherty has decided that booze and salt water will not mix, and in accordance with his opinion President Harding has declared that the ocean must be dry—at least so far as shipping board ships and vessels coming to our shores are concerned. The Eighteenth Amendment provides: "The manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited."

The late Chief Justice White in an opinion upholding prohibition, said: "Read it in the light—and the subject with which the amendment dealt and the purpose which it was intended to accomplish." Now finally we have a unanimous agreement, in which the three great branches of the government—the legislative, judicial and executive—agree that "read in the light" the Eighteenth Amendment means what it means. It must be acknowledged that "this is going some," and that the crowd of official Federal converts is now wholly assembled, despite recent political events in some state, which tend to indicate that many "wets" are still unconvinced.

There Are No "Congressmen"

There aren't? What has become of them? What should destroy Congress so quickly? There were the facetious questions that passed around in Washington a few days ago when the clerk of the House of Representatives, after a vigorous search through the musty records of his office, declared that there were no official sanction to be found anywhere for the word "Congressman." Apparently it must have started as a colloquialism, like "you all" in the south, and "idear" in New England, or "erick" in the west. The constitution sanctions the use of the words "representative" and "member" as designating those persons composing the house. Frequently one sees in print reference to "senators" and "congressmen," which is entirely wrong, since correct usage would sanction nothing less than "congress," as meaning both bodies, or "senators and representatives." Custom may make the usage of these terms correct in time, quite as it has the word "American" as applied exclusively to the residents of the United States. When father was a boy Canadians and Mexicans used to call themselves "Americans," but they have been forced to give up their claims, and now our northern cousins call themselves Canadians, and we call the Mexicans a number of things.

The Hallucination of Profiteers
After the armistice the shipbuilders, the airplane constructors, and other government contractors, sought to defend the exorbitant hauls they had made upon the United States treasury. The hallucination of who have collected more than their share from the government is that "keeps is keeps"—showing thereby that the theories of their marble-playing days still live in the vision of maturo munda. The country was horrified when it was learned that the best part of a billion dollars was spent in aircraft construction with rather negligible results. Finally the government has instituted a suit against the Dayton Wright Airplane Company for $2,408,267, alleged overpayment on contracts. The president of the Dayton-Wright concern has issued a lengthy statement showing how there cannot possibly be anything to the charge. Shipbuilders have made similar vigorous denials when accused of overcharging "a bit." But the public will undoubtedly be willing to have court decisions on some of these many cases that have attracted such widespread attention in the past two or three years.

AT THE MOVIES

Thomas Meighan Coming
We know of no screen star who is more popular than Thomas Meighan, the athletic Paramount star who scored so heavily in "The Miracle Man," "The Easy Road" and "The City of Silent Men." When it is announced that Mr. Meighan will be seen in another crook role, the public response is generous. We are therefore glad to inform you that Mr. Meighan will be seen at the Palace theatre next Saturday and Sunday in "White and Unmarried," the scenes of which are laid in this country and Paris. It is a thrilling picture and was directed with splendid success by Tom Forman. Jacqueline Logan, Grace Darmond, Walter Long and Lloyd Whitlock head an unusually clever supporting cast. You cannot afford to miss this excellent photoplay.

From now on you will need wool garments. Let us outfit you with underwear, socks, gloves, mittens, etc. Benj. Brown, Adv. 421f.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

Mrs. Rice leads us in our devotional service next Sunday evening, October 22, at six o'clock. The topic will be "Reverence and Worship" with scripture taken from Psalms 111:1-10.

What is reverence? What will it do for us?

Reverence for the fine reveals character.

Reverence for the High and Holy will help us to keep ourselves fit for that which is good. To make a joke of duty, of purity or worship is to open our minds and our lives to that which is low and mean. Do you?

Young people, learn real reverence. Reverence is essential to all Worship. Oliver Wendell Holmes, the physician-poet, when past seventy years of age, in a letter to a friend, writing of his attendance the previous Sunday at the village church, said "There is a little plant called reverence in a corner of my soul's garden, which I like to have watered about once a week." We have such a plant. Do we keep them watered properly?

Next Sunday evening the B. Y. P. U. will begin at 6 o'clock instead of 6:30.

The B. Y. P. U. prayer meeting meets on Thursday evenings at 7:30 as usual. Let's see you there next Thursday.

R. F. D. CARRIER VACANCY TO BE FILLED

Patrons of R. F. D. Review Present Situation

The subject of rural carrier to succeed the late Mr. Patterson is receiving considerable attention at the present time. The loss of Mr. Patterson, for many years our faithful and efficient carrier, will be more keenly felt as the days pass by. No matter the kind of weather, he could be depended upon. Faithful, good natured, ever ready to accommodate, his place will be hard to fill.

His successor must be named and we understand that his son, Will Patterson, who at times has acted as substitute, will take the civil service examination necessary to qualify him for this position. Could a more fitting tribute be bestowed upon the Patterson family than the naming of this young man to succeed his father? Could the patrons of the route pay a higher tribute to our deceased carrier? We believe not, and in our opinion he should be given the opportunity of taking this examination without opposition. Will Patterson is clean-cut, honest, capable and competent. The record of his father would be an inspiration to him to do equally as well. Think it over, rural patrons, and we believe you will come to the same conclusion the writer and a host of friends have arrived at.

St. Joseph, the sum of $350.00 was voted. This institution cares for the children of indigent parents and receives orphans for adoption.

Three mills on the dollar for road construction purposes and $5,859.14 for the building of three tool houses was appropriated for work on the Ironton Ferry road, the East Jordan and Advance road, the Eveline Orchard road, the Sequenota road and the town line road between Eveline and Wilson townships.

Report by the committee on the Swing Bridge over the Charlevoix channel at Bridge Street showed that the expense of maintenance of this bridge, for the past year ending September 30th, has been $3,448.59, of which Charlevoix county pays one half and the city one-half. The contract with the bridge tender was renewed at a figure of $1,700.00 per year. It was found necessary to install new gears, wheels and track for the bridge to swing on and the committee's suggestion to enlist the aid of the State in this matter, on the ground that the bridge is a part of state trunk line M-11, was endorsed by the Board.

The sum of $76,249.76, or six dollars on each $1,000.00 of assessed valuation, was appropriated for county expenses and $38,124.88, or three dollars on each $1,000.00 of assessed valuation, was appropriated for the purpose of paying off the County, Road and Federal Aided bonds and the semi-annual interest on same—this fund to be known as the County-Sinking Fund.

The County Treasurer was also authorized to borrow not to exceed $15,000.00, to be credited to the contingent or general fund for payment of necessary general fund disbursements.

The meeting was adjourned at three p. m. Tuesday. It has been an unusually busy session, due chiefly to Supervisor Gallagher's resolution creating a real working day for the members of the Board.

ANNUAL K. of P.
HUNT WEDNESDAY

Supper to Follow in Castle Hall
Thursday Evening

Local members of Pine Lake Lodge No. 122, Knights of Pythias, have again chosen captains to select teams for their annual game hunt, which will take place Wednesday, October 25.

This event is one of the most popular events of the lodge season and is usually enjoyed by a large representative body of Knights. Never has a K. of P. hunt been a failure in a point of pleasure or in the amount of game captured.

The game supper will be held at the K. of P. hall on Thursday evening, October 26, at 6:30 sharp, and all brothers and their wives and children are invited and expected at the supper. The losing side must prepare the game and serve the supper. All game must be presented at Milton Block's market before 6:00 p. m. on the day of the hunt.

Members are cautioned regarding the killing of pheasants, as the season is yet closed. Also remember to procure your license to shoot game, to avoid eating your gameless supper in the jail. The list of points for game killed follows:

Partridge 25; rabbits (either kind) 10; bear 500; wolf (state bounty included) 500; well-fatted chickens (not flappers) will be accepted from the stay-at-homes, 25; corn fed turkeys will be accepted from the "too busy members" (?) and score 50 points.

We have a full line of Patrick's and Soo Woolen Mills products in Pants, Jackets, Shirts and Overcoats. None better—they are noted for their wearing qualities. Benj. Brown. Adv. 42tf.

BABY BOY LOST IN WOODS 24 HOURS

Infant Son of Ed Metcalf Braves Peril and Exposure

Last Tuesday noon, three and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Metcalf, wandered away from his home about a mile west and south of Kemp's corners on the East Jordan-Charlevoix stone road and became lost in the woods.

The family and neighbors hunted for the child all Tuesday afternoon and night. Wednesday morning, the authorities were notified and a posse of several hundred men under the direction of Sheriff Weaver and Under-sheriff Cook took up the search which continued Wednesday until three o'clock in the afternoon, when the youngster—a mere baby, was found in the highlands of the woods beyond Monroe creek—more than a mile from his home.

The child, too thinly clad for the sharp October winds, was numb with the cold, when found. In his wanderings, he had crossed a deep branch of the creek, where a misstep would have proved fatal. The hand of Providence must have guided the little one safely through his perils.

PARK GROUNDS

Little Patch On Channel Bank to Be Beauty Spot Next Year

When our summer visitors return next year, they will mark a decided difference in the appearance of the little park on the channel bank in front of the lumber company's office.

Pearl Simmons, assistant bridge tender, puts in all his spare time nowadays in beautifying this little spot, trimming the hedges and cleaning up the grounds. The yard where Elmer Johnson used to park his chickens has been ploughed, raked and seeded and next year a neat hedgerow of young cedars will line the bank along this yard. One of the small buildings has already been removed and the larger chicken house will be used as a tool house for the bridge crew. The improvement of this little patch of ground will not be very extensive, it is true, but every little bit helps and it is a good sign. Spells progress, you know.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 30. NUMBER 43

TWELVE PAGES.

COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1922

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

Dollar Day

C'MON, FOLKS, LET'S ALL GO TO TOWN

CHARLEVOIX IS THE PLACE, SATURDAY THE TIME—BIG DOINGS THERE

"Ma Get In The Back Seat With Willie; Janey You Sit With Pa, Buzz The Crank, Jim—Hooray, We're Off!"

Dollar Day, Lizzie Day, Smile Day—the day when your dollar will go as far as your tin "bug" will take you. Some of the "smiles" will come from funny stuff you will see in the parade, others from delight in the bargains you will get. Smile anyhow—its contagious.

Try for the prizes. Chronic speculators should enter the slow race. This will give their engines time to cool off and the crowd a chance to note their license numbers. That old bus of yours that stumbles along on three legs and coughs with one lung may mean seven bucks velvet to you. Cut-out fiends will be right at home in the noisy race. If your troubles have all been little ones, enter the large family contest and get some of your money back. Borrowing the neighbor's kids, however, is strictly taboo. Anyone living east of May Street on the south side should win the muddiest prize, hands down.

No consolation prize has as yet been offered. Possibly the judges will let the loser ride in the Ford with the best looking girl. This offer is not open to ladies, as harmony is desired—no hair pulling.

Saturday, October 28th will be the big day. Come and bring the family and leave your cares and worries at home. If you follow directions, as above, and smile all day, they won't be there when you get back. They will all be over visiting your neighbor who couldn't spare the time to come to the big doings.

All competing Fords must enter the parade which will assemble in front of the Argo Milling Co. on River street at 10:30 a. m., and proceed south on Bridge street to S. Orlovski & Son's store, thence west to State street, thence north to Park avenue, thence east to Bridge street, thence south on Bridge street to County Bank building where the following prizes will be awarded by Judges M. B. Hooker, W. E. Byers and J. M. Foster:

- $10.00 in cash for the oldest model Ford coming from the longest distance.
- $10.00 in cash for the best decorated Ford.
- $12.00 in cash for the Ford containing the largest family of children.
- $12.00 in cash for the Ford operated with the most number of attachments.
- $8.00 in cash for the Ford carrying the largest number of people and weight.
- $5.00 in cash for the slowest driven Ford (a race of about two blocks).
- $5.00 in cash for the Ford driven by the best looking woman.
- $7.00 in cash for the muddiest looking Ford.
- $7.00 in cash for the most dilapidated Ford driven by the fattest man.
- $10.00 in cash for the noisiest Ford.

Charlevoix merchants have certainly gone the limit to give folks real bargains on dollar day. If you knew what some of their dollar specials have cost them, you would wonder, as we do, how they manage it. But they are really trying to co-operate to make the day a success and it is a source of gratification to observe the fine spirit of helpfulness and civic devotion with which they have met the requirement of the occasion, not only as regards to offering of bargains but in the practical assistance they have rendered on the program.

SAVED FROM SINKING CRAFT

A. MOORE AND WIFE LOSE EVERYTHING WITH BOAT

Their Schooner, "Friendship," Now a Derelict Somewhere On Lake Huron—Caught in Gale

The Detroit News for Wednesday, October 18th, carried an account of a thrilling shipwreck, in which Mr. and Mrs. Allie Moore, well-known former residents of this city, played the role of hero and heroine. The article follows:

"Caught in a gale on Lake Huron Tuesday and facing the danger of their floating home sinking beneath them, Allie Moore and his wife, Alma, hoisted distress signals and were rescued by a big freighter after a remarkable piece of seamanship on the part of the master of the freighter.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore, whose home is in Charlevoix, Mich., own and sail the 38-foot schooner Friendship. It has been their home for a long while. In the summer months, Mr. and Mrs. Moore used to take children on cruises on the Friendship and teach them to swim.

Moore and his wife decided to come to Detroit for this winter, he expecting to find a position here while his wife kept house aboard ship. They proceeded down the lakes as far as Au Sable, where they were wind-bound two weeks. They were accompanied by a huge Great Dane-Husky dog.

At 7 a. m. Tuesday, Moore thought it safe to cross Saginaw Bay and head for Pointe-aux-Barques, on the opposite side of the bay. After a few hours a stiff gale arose, and Moore lowered all canvas except the jib. Even then the Friendship seemed unable to stand up under the blow, so he cut the two lifeboats adrift and threw a canoe overboard. But the gale blew the little craft off its course and out into Lake Huron. Water was coming in over the stern, and Moore, who was at the tiller, worked his best to dodge the big waves, but without avail.

Distress signals were finally hoisted. Mrs. Moore, with life preserver on, worked feverishly at the pump to keep the Friendship free of water.

The freighter L. B. Miller, of the Columbia Steamship Co., Capt. William Hagen, of Marine City, in command, finally hove in sight and saw the distress signals. A tremendous sea was running, and it would have been dangerous for the big ship to lower a lifeboat, so Capt. Hagen maneuvered his vessel in such a manner as to bring it directly alongside the floundering little schooner. (Continued on page eight)

RACING LIZZIE COMES TO GRIEF

COULDN'T BUCK COAL WAGON OFF THE ROAD

Indian Lad, Hurlled From Bicycle To Ditch, Is Showered With Flying Coal

A peculiar accident occurred Sunday night at about half past six. One of the Argo's horse-drawn trucks, driven by Walter Vosburg, with his brother, Guy, as a helper, was returning along Ferry Avenue from a trip to the coal sheds near the Standard Oil tank-yard. The wagon was heavily loaded with coal in sacks and Guy Vosburg sat on top of the load in the rear of the truck with a lighted lantern in his hand. About ten or twelve feet in the rear of the truck, on his bicycle, rode an Indian boy, about twelve or thirteen years old, the son of Peter John, a helper at the Argo mill.

Jack Bird and Vern Moyer, driving Fords, were racing each other, travelling north from the Co-op building, where they had turned to go back to town. Guy Vosburg saw them coming at a terrific clip and felt trouble threatening. He stood up on the load and waved his lantern violently, at the same time yelling to the Indian lad to get off to the side of the road. Bird saw the light on the coal drey and slackened up. Moyer (who claims he didn't see the light) kept on. A car was approaching from the opposite direction and cut off his only way of escape from collision around the left hand side of the drey. The Indian boy swerved to the side of the road, but too late to get clear. The fender of the onrushing car struck him fair in the back, hurling him into the ditch, and wrecking his wheel. Then came the crash.

Walter Vosburg, the driver, was thrown clear of the team. Guy, not so fortunate, landed on the "whiffletree," under the horses' heels. The force of the collision broke the rear axle on the wagon and the neck-yoke on the harness. The horses, being a well seasoned team, did not run and this fact probably saved Guy Vosburg from death or serious injury. A whole barrage of flying coal hammered the luckless Indian boy in the ditch, whose terror really exceeded his injuries.

Bird rushed the boy to the hospital, where it was found that no bones were broken. It will probably be some three weeks yet, however, before he is out and around again. Outside of a few cuts and bruises, Moyer and the Vosburgs were unhurt. The Ford was badly wrecked, and, with the wagon it struck, is now undergoing extensive repairs.

Moyer's claim that the drey carried no light was denied by Bird in police court Monday morning. It was clearly up to Moyer to settle, in view of the circumstances, and this he has agreed to do.

AUCTION ADVERTISERS KNOW COURIER REACHES THE PEOPLE

If a person wishes to place a certain proposition before the people, they invariably use the newspaper with largest circulation, the one read by the largest number of people, and the one that they know is looked for each week by those desiring to acquit themselves with coming events. The Courier is recognized everywhere as an advertising medium of this kind. Merchants liberally patronize its columns for they get results. Farmers advertise auction sales for the same reason. They know it is the official auction sale medium of northern Michigan. This week's issue contains five auction sales. The total issue of twelve pages is filled with exceptional Dollar Day bargains. Read, figure your saving, and patronize the merchants who offer them.

SHOT DOWN BY HER HUSBAND

VICTIM OF HIS INSANELY JEALOUS FRENZY

Mrs. Alta L. Loper Joyce Now Dying in New Bedford, Mass. Hospital With Many Wounds

The New Bedford (Mass.) Herald, for Monday, October 16th, carries an account of a suicide and attempted murder, in which Mrs. Alta L. Loper Joyce, formerly of this city, figures as the victim of her husband's jealous madness.

Mrs. Joyce, who will be remembered here as Alta Loper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loper, former residents of this city and now of Flint, Mich., has been living with her husband, Peter Joyce, an automobile mechanic, whom she met during the war in Detroit and married in Pennsylvania, in the city of New Bedford, at the home of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Schallup. They have one child, Peter J., Jr., a boy of three and a half years.

The cause that prompted the crazed husband to turn a 22 calibre target revolver upon his young wife, piercing her body with five bullets and then ending his life with the same weapon, appears to have been the long developed jealousy of a suspicious and erratic nature.

Previous to the outbreak that left her husband a corpse and herself in the hospital slowly dying of many wounds, Mrs. Joyce had parted from her husband twice during the short duration of their married life but had each time returned to him. It seems they had quarreled constantly and there had been many distressing scenes due to Joyce's unfounded suspicions of his wife, and, on one occasion, prior to his marriage, he had attacked officers, who arrested him on a disorderly conduct charge, with a pair of shears and was examined to ascertain his sanity, but had been released.

The shooting, which occurred on Sunday evening, October 15th, was the direct result of a quarrel, following a visit which Mrs. Joyce made to the theatre with a party of friends. When she returned home, her husband started to upbraid her and after his harangue had continued unabated for a half an hour, she left the house and went to a neighbor's, where she remained for the night. Her husband hung around this neighbor's yard off and on for all of the following day. Once, catching sight of his wife at an upper window, he enticed her to come down, which she refused, but as he continued to remain on the premises, she finally went out in the yard and talked with him but still refused to return to her home.

At about seven that evening, Joyce, watching his chance, when the owner of the house was entering, forced his way in. Mrs. Joyce, who was aware from his loud and excited demands to know the whereabouts of his little son, who had followed the mother to the neighbor's, that her husband was in the house, ran to the phone and called up the police department. Joyce, catching sight of her at the phone through an open door, drew his gun and commenced firing. One shot entered her right shoulder, three her right thigh and the fifth embedded itself in her spine in the neck. It is the last shot that the physicians believe will prove fatal, as from the last reports received by the unfortunate young woman's sister, Mrs. Frank Coatta, of this city, she is sinking fast with almost no hopes held out for her recovery.

Joyce reserved his last shot for himself. Death came instantly, the bullet crashing through his brain. Statements made by his wife in the hospital, later, developed the fact that Joyce had carried the gun constantly with him in a holster slung over his shoulder and had threatened her with it several times.

Latest advices received by relatives of Mrs. Joyce here, state that she died early Tuesday morning at St. Luke's hospital in New Bedford. Her little boy is being cared for by her husband's parents.

LAUNDRY OPEN THE YEAR ROUND

Soon to Open up for Season in New Location

Charlevoix from now on will have a laundry open the year round. Such is the decision of Messrs. Sorensen & Gimble, who are about to install new fixtures in the old Courier building, at rear of postoffice, with the expectations of being ready within the next two weeks or so.

In regards to laundry work, the city has been extremely fortunate in having men who thoroughly understood this line of business, and whose work prove very satisfactory. The work of the Troy laundry has the reputation of being excellent, and Messrs. Sorensen and Gimble will maintain this reputation in the new plant.

Announcements will be made later when the move is made and fixtures installed. In the meantime the work will be done at the former plant.

GUM-DIPPED CORDS

Most Miles per Dollar

Everywhere You Hear It - Firestone Builds
the Finest Cords

HARDLY a day goes by but some one goes out of his way to tell us that Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords are the best tires built.

Cords—as only Firestone builds them—will give you many extra thousands of miles of wear. And for fall and winter driving there's nothing like them. The strong, resilient Firestone case of gum-dipped cords, can stand the hardest punishment.

With the reputation Firestone Cords hold, it is not surprising that so many motorists in this community have made them standard equipment. The demand for Firestone Cords in the last few months has broken all records.

Prices were never so low as they are now. Perhaps never again can mileage be sold so cheaply.

Decide now that you will get Most Miles per Dollar. Drop in any time and let's talk this over.

A Revolving Fund For Farmers

Secretary Hoover of the Commerce Department and Secretary Wallace of the Agriculture Department believe that the time of stress for farmers has passed. In their opinion there is no need for an appropriation of $50,000,000 by Congress to "help out the farmers." These two eminent experts in agricultural conditions look with favor on a bill that will be presented to the next Congress by Senator McNary of Oregon, that will provide a revolving fund of $12,000,000—

$1,000,000 for each federal reserve district. The purpose of the bill seeks to make the above total sum available for short-time loans to farmers on warehouse certificates and similar securities. The successful methods that have provided an "elastic" credit, in the operation of the federal reserve act, are sought to be applied in the new legislation. Varying seasons and crop periods in different parts of the country make it possible, it is thought, to chase the twelve millions from one part of the United States to another, so that each farm section may have temporary benefits from it. Of course this bill does not contemplate supplying any of the demands for mortgage and other long-time forms of credits. That is quite a different matter.

There are more "political farmers" in Washington than most any other class of advisors. These many representatives of the agricultural interests justify their activities on the ground that the farmers more than any one class of our citizens have suffered from the disturbed industrial and financial conditions of the country. One hears very little about the "farm bloc" nowadays, but the men in the two branches of Congress who composed it are not at all backward in answering questions considering it and concerning the claim that "they got all they want after."

The Great Lakes Navy

The government of Great Britain has authorized the Dominion of Canada to negotiate direct with the United States in the framing of the new treaty to regulate naval strength on the Great Lakes. Twenty years ago the United States maintained the armed "tub" Michigan as a training ship for our fresh water sailors. Canada had a similar "tub" of its own. Fortunately these two ships never went to war—at least we never heard that they did. Just what the present naval strength of the two countries may be along the Great Lakes is uncertain as the above twenty-year old report seems to be about the latest news regarding hostile equipment. Such as could be used for fighting purposes by the two countries that are neglecting the opportunities of armament along hundreds of miles of waterways, and Washington is said to house military strategists who worry a lot because there is an unfortified border line to our north that is four thousand miles in length.

The new treaty between the United States and Canada will replace the treaty of 1817, under which peace and prosperity have been maintained for over one hundred years. It is understood that there is at present no official desire to increase the naval armament on the lakes, and that only a sufficient number of ships for military training and customs law enforcement are to be provided for in the new arrangement between the two great neighbors of North America.

The Coal Fact Finding Commission

Seven representative men appointed by President Harding constitute a commission for the purpose of getting at the basic facts regarding the coal industry. That there are "niggers in the coal pile" is beyond question. The Federal Trade Commission, a great branch of the government that collected pertinent facts with regard to industry, the trades, and trade practices, started a similar investigation to that which is now being carried forward by order of the President more than two years ago. The Trade Commission sought to obtain figures showing the amount of return on the capital investment of the coal operators. It is said that the Commission carried its investigations to the point where it was about to disclose the existence of profiteering of the most sensational kind among some of the operators who had been quarreling with the miners, and "putting up poor mouth" in their attempt to make the public believe they could not afford to pay decent wages to their workmen. Nevertheless the Federal Trade Commission succeeded in finding out that some of the West Virginia and Pennsylvania companies earned from 24 to 25 per cent on their investments in 1919. For the first nine months of 1920 the range was from a profit of three per cent for one company to a profit of 268 per cent for another company. Other official estimates showed that for 1920 the range of profit on investment varied from four per cent to 357 per cent.

The Federal Trade Commission was enjoined by coal operators from proceeding with its investigations, on the ground that the act of Congress creating the Commission did not technically provide the authority it had assumed in demanding certain classes of information pertinent to an analysis of the coal situation. As a result the Commission was unable to do much more than "scratch the surface." With the additional power conferred on the President's Coal Fact Finding Commission it is believed that such a body will be able to follow up the lead of the Trade Commission and get at the bottom of matters in such a way as to uncover the profiteers and the inconsistencies that are responsible for the upheavals in the industry that proved so detrimental to legitimate capital invested in coal mining, and to the more important welfare of the great masses of workmen employed in coal mining.

British Boze

Secretary of State Hughes recently asked His Majesty's Government at London to negotiate a new treaty with the United States permitting the authorities of each Government to search vessels of the other up to a distance of twelve miles from the shore. The purpose of the suggestion was to prevent the smuggling of British booze. Britain declined the proposal and held out the encouragement in a note to our Secretary of State that the smuggling of liquor is only temporary, and a condition "which will no doubt be suppressed by the United States authorities within the not distant future." It is explained in Washington that British diplomacy is hard-boiled against joking, and therefore we must take King George's government seriously in its prophecies regarding the "not distant future."

Another horn to the bootlegging dilemma on the high seas concerns the Bahama Islands, where the booze shipping industry has been waxing fat on profits. The British government has shown its friendliness to the American efforts in coping with the Bahama situation by warning its Governor to put his house in order. In still another instance the British have shown their willingness to help by preventing the changing of registry of American and other foreign ships seeking to cover their movements in smuggling liquor into the United States.

Our English friends have shown no indication that they intend to give up their own 'alf and 'alf, or forsake the Scotch mist; but by their co-operation they are evidencing the proper respect for the rules regarding liquid refreshments on our side of the mighty ocean. Under all circumstances their observation that the illegal sale of liquor in the United States will be "suppressed" and that "within the not distant future" is very encouraging to the prohibition enforcement officials.

The American Cow Abroad

One of the appetites acquired by Europeans for succulent American foods during the World War was for condensed and other canned milks. The result is that the American cow is called upon to produce for export eighteen times as much milk for canning purposes as before the war.

Four automobiles and all the accessories from another were stolen in the downtown districts of Grand Rapids one night. It has been estimated that on a single large truck the accessories could have been hauled quite as well on all four of the automobiles, and with a good deal less trouble.

A burglar who took $200 worth of tires from a Flint garage rang up $200 "paid out" on the cash register; but he is not considered a steady-going, trustworthy burglar, as he neglected to punch the time-clock.

Resolution of Condolence

Resolution of Condolence on the death of Edward B. Ward and Frank Clute.

We the committee to whom was referred the matter of drafting resolutions of condolence, submit the following:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst, two esteemed and honored members of this Board viz. Mr. Frank Clute of Evangeline township, and Mr. Edward B. Ward of the City of Charlevoix;

Now therefore be it resolved, that in the death of these two valuable members, we, the Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix county, now in session, deeply miss their sound judgment and genial smile.

Be it further resolved, that we extend our sympathy to the bereaved families; in this, their hour of trial.

Be it further resolved, that these resolutions be printed in the Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan local papers, and a copy be sent to each of the bereaved families.

Mrs. W. L. Cowan, 210 Antrim St., Charlevoix, gave the following statement October 25, 1911: "I had been subject to severe backaches and pains through my kidneys. I was also annoyed by the irregular action of my kidneys. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they brought much relief." On May 4, 1920, Mrs. Cowan said: "I always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for they certainly are a fine kidney medicine. PSEUDO (?) EARL GOES TO HIS TRIAL

"Lord Dunblane's" Case Now Before Circuit Judge Sample Here

A. J. W. Greig, who calls himself "the Earl of Dunblane," went on trial here today, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. It is alleged that he promoted and then wrecked the Title Guarantee & Casualty Co., in which scores of northern Michigan people had invested their money.

Judge George W. Sample, of Ann Arbor, is sitting on the case, in place of Judge Mayne, Assistant State Attorney General O. L. Smith is assisting the prosecutor, while Greig will be defended by Lisle Shauhan, Leonard T. Hand, state insurance commissioner, H. N. Duff, executive officer of the state securities commission and W. R. Oates of the state insurance department, are witnesses for the prosecution.

Beyond the selection of a jury, nothing of consequence has transpired since the trial opened Monday morning. A later issue of this paper will contain details at greater length.

LOCAL DAIRYMAN ADDS TO HIS HERD

Purchases Pure Bred Holstein-Friesians from Loeb Farms

"Nothing but the best will ever satisfy me," says Wm. Withers, of the Marion Center Dairy farm, concerning his recent purchase of pure bred Holstein-Friesian stock from the Loeb Farms.

"Holsteins are milk producers, and this is what we dairymen want. I am nearing the goal I have tried to reach for years." Mr. Withers' recent purchase of four pure bred Holstein-Friesian cows and a "Ormsby" bull bring him nearer to owning a herd of this kind than ever before. His dairy farm is a model one and is well worth a "once over." Mr. Withers is to be congratulated, both on the purchase made, and his idea of what a dairy herd should be.

VOTERS URGED TO REGISTER EARLY

October 14, and Saturday, October 21, the township clerk is obliged to be at his office from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. of each of these days for the purpose of registering voters.

In this city, any voter who is not registered, can do so on any day, from 8 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., by going to the city hall where Deputy City Clerk Payton will register you.

The last day when any voter, in this city, or in any township, can register is Saturday, October 28. After that date, neither a township or city clerk can register a voter. So to be safe, if you are not already registered, you better attend to it today. You must go in person and see personally the township or city clerk in order to be registered.

The requirements as to qualifications for voting are that one must be an American citizen, a resident of this state for at least six months, and of a township or ward at least 20 days, and must be properly registered.

It ought to be obligatory for every qualified voter to cast his or her vote. The theory of a representative government like ours is that majorities rule. But if a considerable percentage of voters are indifferent in the exercise of the franchise, it may be that a actual minority, interested enough to vote, may win an election.

NOW is the time for you to register if you have not already done so.

Cold weather means warm clothing. We have an unusually good line of underwear, gloves mittens, socks, etc. Benj. Brown. 42tf.

KALKASKA STATE BANK ROBBED

BURGLARS CARRY OFF SAFE-
TL DEPOSIT BOXES

Entrance Made Through Rear Window and Gas Torch Used to Burn Hole in Safe Door

The Kalkaska State Bank, at Kalkaska, Mich., was robbed early Thursday morning of last week, robbers entering through a rear window, taking the entire outfit of safety deposit boxes, but failing to get into the vault where the cash and other valuable securities were kept. A big hole was burned in the vault door, supposedly with acetylene gas torches, but the door failed to open.
One safety deposit box was dropped in the rear of the town hall as the robbers were carrying them to a waiting automobile.

Manager Blegner, of the bank, reported having passed the bank at about 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night and noticed that the light on but did not notice anything wrong with the interior of the bank. Officers of the bank believe that the job was done some time between midnight and early morning.

The bank building is located on the main street of the village, just across the street from the village hall and one block north of the Pennsylvania Lines depot.

The Kalkaska bank was one of the string of state banks owned by interests headed by C. W. McPhail, of Ludington, who was formerly interested in Emmet county banks. Mr.
McPhail is the president. L. V.
Bloomer, of Kalkaska, is vice-president and manager; A. J. Maynard, vice-president; and M. S. Johnson, cashier.

The bank's capital is $25,000, and it has a surplus of $5,000. Its deposits are said to be about $300,000.

It is believed that it will be some days before the exact extent of the loss will be learned. The bank had no record of what the safety deposit boxes contained and will only learn the value of what was in them by consulting with patrons of the bank using the boxes.

Latest news from Kalkaska is to the effect that so far the men who robbed the bank had not yet been captured. Officers are said to have traced the robber's car to Grayling and then to Roscommon. At the latter place the trail was lost, and, it is believed, by officers, that the robbers changed cars there.

The acetylene gas tank used by the robbers in their effort to burn a hole through the vault door, is said to have been stolen from a Traverse City garage Wednesday night.

Sheriff Sherwood, of Kalkaska county, believes that the men who robbed the Kalkaska bank are members of the same gang that robbed the South Boardman and Williams burg banks last spring.

wish can attend the lecture by Dr.
James McGraw, in the Congregational church at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Men are gradually becoming civilized. You never see a "hard-boiled" white shirt any more except with evening dress, and not always then.

Probably nothing in the long run proves more inconvenient than "a marriage of convenience."

The railroad strike is losing some of its terror. It the trains stop, there can be no cheap excursions.

Girls struggle just as hard to be married as they struggle afterward for freedom. It's always what you haven't that you want.

CHEBOYGAN STOCK FARM IS SOLD

A. E. MONTGOMERY, OF MOLINE, ILLINOIS, BUYER

Place Was Owned for Several Years
By Leonard Freeman—Plan Developments

The famous Black River Stock farm, containing 27,000 acres of land in Cheboygan county, has just been purchased by A. E. Montgomery, of Moline, Ill., from Leonard Freeman, of Flint. Mr. Freeman operates a string of ice cream factories and creameries, including one in Petoskey. Regarding the sale the Cheboygan Tribune says:

There is included in the sale to
Mr. Montgomery all the live stock, consisting of 3,000 head of breeding cows, horses, cattle, all farm implements, and all of the 1922 crops, representing about 700 tons of hay and about 10,000 bushels of grain, etc., the total value of which is about $350,000.

This is the largest transaction in agricultural lands ever consummated in Michigan, and no doubt, is one of the best equipped ranching propositions in the state, due to the fact that connected with the cut-over lands, which furnishes unlimited grazing, is the improved lands that furnish feed for carrying live stock through the winter.

The improved lands are equipped with enormous barns. For instance, one sheep barn has a capacity of 4,000 head of sheep and cattle. One barn has a capacity of 500 head of cattle, and there are many other barns with a total capacity of carrying through the winter 6,000 or 8, 000 head of sheep and 1,000 head of cattle.

There is growing on the lands now about 200 acres of alfalfa, which produces three crops a year. These were all hardwood lands and the soil is clay.

Mr. Freeman has owned the lands about ten years and has demonstrated very fully that beef and muf-ton can be produced on the good cut-over lands in northern Michigan cheaper than in any other locality in this country. Mr. Freeman has carried as high as 500 head of sheep and lambs at one time on these lands.

Mr. Montgomery, the purchaser of the ranch, is a successful manufacturer at Moline, Ill. He is president of the Montgomery Elevator company, engaged in the manufacture of freight and passenger elevators, and is more or less experienced in cattle and sheep ranching.

Use Hysgrade, gas filled electric light globes. Everybody is talking about how long they last. Any kind you want. Charlevoix Hardware Co.

SUCCULENT SALADS.

Salads using lettuce for the main portion of the salad should not be mixed until just before serving to insure the crispness of the lettuce. Lettuce should be washed, drained and wrapped in a cloth. Old curtains, good for nothing else, make fine salad cloths. Wrap the lettuce in the cloth and lay in the ice chest, then it will be always ready.

Tomato and Cucumber Salad.—A very simple but attractive salad is one arranged on a long dish or platter. Place the sliced cucumbers in overlapping slices and a few tomatoes also sliced and arranged in the same manner. Let each serve himself taking one or both. Pass the dressing with the salad.

Pear Salad.—Cut peeled and quartered pears into eighths and arrange on lettuce with a little chopped apple and celery. Sprinkle with shredded almonds and serve with a rich mayonnaise dressing.

Pineapple and Cheese Salad.—Place a ring of pineapple on a crisp leaf of curly lettuce and fill the center with a ball of cream cheese softened with cream and sprinkled with paprika. Serve with a mayonnaise or, better, dressing.

When the canned pineapple is used as is the common custom, the juice thickened slightly and mixed with olive oil and a dash of lemon juice makes a very palatable dressing to serve with the salad.

Cucumber Boats.—Wash long cucumbers and shape in the form of a boat hollowed out. Sprinkle with seasoning and fill with salmon mixed with the chopped portion taken from the centers. Serve on lettuce with any desired salad dressing.

New Beet Salad.—Chop new beets very fine and mix with a dressing colored pink with the liquor of the beets. Season with chopped onion and the usual seasonings. Serve on head lettuce with a spoonful of the dressing on top of the salad.

BANISHED BOOK AND THE BAD BOY

TOPIC OF ADDRESS AT CONGRE-GATIONAL CHURCH

Dr. J. S. McGraw Said to Be Outstanding Speaker of National Reform Association

"An evangelist to the nation" in the person of Dr. James S. McGraw, general secretary of the National Reform Association, is to address a public meeting in this city Sunday afternoon. This address is to be delivered in the First Congregational church, the Rev. Dr. Long, pastor, on the particular theme "The Banished Book and the Bad Boy."

Dr. McGraw is said to be an outstanding speaker of this National Reform Association, whose object is to Christianize the institutional life of our country—carry its teachings and principles of the Christian religion into the entire social fabric.

With this object in view, the Association's representatives are in all sections of our country insisting on training the youth in our public schools—the country's own training school for all its youth—in Christian morality. They insist that inasmuch as the Supreme Court of the country explicitly declared in 1892, "This is a Christian nation," the nation in its schools should familiarize its youth with what is Christian in its own life and character; as for example the nature and character of the oath, with its solemn appeal to God as one shall answer at the last great day, which is required of witnesses, jurors and public officials generally. This, it is contended, is essential to desirable citizenship in a Christian country.

Dr. McGraw has spoken in practically every state of the union and has also traveled abroad. He is said to have an inborn talent for public speaking, an acquired ability to link great principles with passing events and enough Irish wit coupled with an irresistible enthusiasm to inspire his hearers with his own sincerity and exalted faith in the cause he represents.

He will also speak at some length of the great World Christian Citizenship conference to be held at Winona Lake, July 1-8, 1923, under the auspices of the National Reform Association.

Mrs. Moore bravely climbed a 12-foot ladder that the Miller lowered. A dozen willing hands on the Miller reached over the side and lifted her over to safety.

Moore couldn't desert the dog, and the Miller's crew agreed to rescue it, too. The men lowered a heavy line, which Moore fastened around the dog in the manner that elephants are raised aboard ocean liners, Dick, the dog, was hoisted to the freighter's deck. Moore, himself, then climbed aboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore were put ashore by the Miller at Detroit today.

"Everything we own is aboard the Friendship," said Moore. "All our clothing, the canned fruit and other provisions that my wife put up for the winter are there, because the boat was our home. Until I get a job we will have nothing but the working clothes we wore when we were saved."

Moore said the Miller tried to take the Friendship in tow, but that the line parted, and the schooner finally drifted off. Moore hopes it is still afloat and says that if vessel captains knew it was a family home they probably would be more likely to pick it up and tow it to some port. There is a possibility that the derelict was blown toward the Canadian shore, in which event he hopes Canadian coast guards will take the boat in charge and notify him. He will be waiting word of his "home" at the J. W. Westcott Co.'s office, Detroit.

LEAK OF LONG STANDING REPAIRED

One-Third of North Side's Supply
Running to Waste

Extensive repair work has been done on the north side water main for the past two weeks.

Examination shows that this main has been leaking at a point near the south side of the channel for the past four or five years. The extent of the leak can be imagined when it is known that almost a third of the total volume of water pumped through this pipe has been running away into the waters of the channel, more or less, during the above-named period.

Four lengths of pipe have been lifted and the leak patched by the pouring of hot lead around the joints. This work has been done by Mason Rose, diver, and a gang working under the direction of Clarence Bridge and Morris Ackert.

During the time the pipe has been disconnected, the north side has been supplied through lengths of fire hose weighted to the bottom of the channel with chains. New fittings have been installed on the south side of the abutment to take care of this hose and render unnecessary its attachment to a street hydrant. On the north side, however, the hose has been attached to one of the nearby street hydrants. No appreciable diminution of pressure has been noticed, however. It is expected that the work will be completed within the next two or three days.

DROPS DEAD ON WAY TO HOUSE

Earl Baumbach Stricken Suddenly
Friday Noon at Antrim

Earl Baumbach, twenty years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Baumbach, of Antrim City, dropped dead Friday noon, just as he was going to dinner.

Mr. Baumbach was working on the farm of Mrs. Josie Simon, near his home, digging potatoes. He had complained of feeling badly that morning, but still kept at work. On his way into the house at noon, he suddenly crumpled up in a heap, gasped once or twice for breath and expired. Dr. McMillan was called, but the young man was beyond all earthly aid. Heart failure was given as the cause.

Earl was the oldest son of his parents, a hard working young man, respected and well liked in his neighborhood. He was born June 7, 1902 and had lived in Antrim City all of his life. Besides his father and mother, five sisters and one brother survive him.

The body was taken to the home of the deceased's father and the funeral was held Sunday, at two-thirty p. m. at the Antrim school house, Rev. Mr. Frook, who preached a fine sermon, officiating. Six young men, friends of the deceased, were selected as pall bearers, and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Clark, Mrs. Thomas Guyer and Mr. Joliffe formed the choir. The remains were taken to Antrim cemetery for burial.

Rubber boots and all rubber goods repaired. Re-soling of all rubber wear. Made just as good as new. All work guaranteed. Benj. Brown. Adv. 43tf.

YOUR LOCAL NEWSPAPERS

We have learned that there are a few community newspapers in the state that are about to suspend publication because of a lack of local support. Whether your local publisher is near bankruptcy or is prospering, he should have every encouragement from his constituency.

No one is perfect. No person is doing all he possibly could do were he able to employ his talents to their fullest extent. Further, each person has his strong as well as his weak points. Most people can do one single thing better than the majority of others. One man can swing an axe, or milk a cow, or talk, or keep still a little better than his neighbors can.

Now, speaking in a personified way, it is just so with a local newspaper. There is not a single publication that is doing everything a newspaper could possibly do in its territory. But it is hard, very hard, to find one of these sheets that is not functioning in at least some one of a score or more—of—useful ways. The very nature of its work and the very condition for keeping such an institution as the local newspapers alive presumes that a service is being rendered. In fact, service is the only real stock in trade that a newspaper can have.

One of the things your local issue does is to tell of the happening around home. It interprets the acts of the community for you and for the other members of the town and the surrounding country. It brings together the extremes. The good things and the bad things, the refined and the vulgar, the prosperous and the failures, the democrats and the republicans, the pious and the bolsterous, those to be emulated and those to be despised, all these are here reviewed, not on the stage made up and powdered for show, but in actual life. Through his local sheet, the citizen sees his community as a reality, a living, breathing, working thing.

And it helps men to understand themselves and their places in the community. How much better do men know the workings of their own mind and heart through reading the accounts of various acts and thoughts and aspirations of the men and women who live around the corner or on section twenty-three. Their extreme ideas are modified and brought down to where they can find common ground upon which to build. The local newspaper has been a mighty force in driving out ignorance, superstition and suspicion and replacing it with information and confidence.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

Children have very delicate digestions, easily disturbed by too much "dosing." Treat croup and colds "externally" by using—dence and hope in mankind. And this, understanding the fact that scandal, dishonesty, thieving, assaulting and murder are here mirrored to the public which it serves. It is the great light that shineth out to the community—the light of publicity that makes hard the life of those cancerous germs of hatred and malice and revenge and spite and jealousy. These unkind spirits cannot stand the light, they weaken under its searching rays.

While doing this, the local newspaper keeps the community spirit burning. It never allows the taper of community interest to go out. The merits of the local team, the abundance of resources of men and materials, the local capacity for expansion and development are everywhere reflected on the pages of this local sheet. Sometimes, yea often, there is exaggeration, overstatement, much cry and little wool, but this enthusiasm keeps the Joneses and the Smiths and the Browns a little more on tiptoe for the home town. It just balances the downward pull of outside attractions and the burden imposed by the disgruntled and pessimistic individuals who form a certain small per cent of all progressive communities.

Support such an institution as the local paper? There is no alternative. No American could think otherwise. Without it democracy is impossible. The very fundamentals upon which the fathers built our great nation will give way without the free intercourse of ideas and the unhampered building of community ideas. You may not like the editor, but for your own sake and the sake of the community you cannot afford not to give every species of encouragement to at least one of your local papers—Michigan Farmer.

Haven't you been in houses where lovely flowers stood all about, and everything was spick-and-span, but the library table was strewn with papers and magazines of the trashiest description? BETTER YIELD OF SUGAR BEETS

STATE REPORTS REVEAL CONDITION OF CROPS

Early September Rains Cause Considerable Damage to Beans and Potatoes

Many crops showed some improvement during September, and all except oats, sugar beets and alfalfa seed are better than the ten-year average in actual or prospective yields according to the report issued by J. A. Doelle, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Heavy rains during the first half of September caused extensive damage to beans and some injury to potatoes on heavy soils. All crops have matured well and there was little frost damage except in portions of the Upper Peninsula and northern counties of the Lower Peninsula.

The corn crop has matured exceptionally well and promises better than an average crop although not up to that of last year. Dry weather in August shortened the ears in many sections, especially on light soils in southern Michigan. The October 1 condition of 84 per cent indicates a total production of 60,552,000 bushels, including as grain the acreage cut for silage.

The yield of spring wheat is estimated to be 15.5 bushels per acre as compared with 9 bushels last year and a ten-year average of 14.2 bushels. This yield gives a total production of 52,000 bushels.

The result of an inquiry relative to the amount of wheat marketed to October 1 show that approximately 35 per cent had left the farms of the State prior to that date.

Reports indicate an average yield of 33.5 bushels per acre of oats, giving a total production of 51,447,000 bushels or about three and one-half millions less than last month's estimate based upon condition reports. The quality of the grain is mostly good averaging 92 per cent as compared with a ten-year average of 89.

There was about an average yield of barley in the state, producing a crop of 5,551,000 bushels. The acreage is less than last year but the yield of 25.7 bushels per acre is eight bushels greater.

The buckwheat crop was shortened by the blasting of the top blooms in many fields and by some frost damage in northern and central counties. Correspondents report a condition of 78 per cent which presages a crop of 639,000 bushels.

Digging of late potatoes is under way, and in many sections the yield is not up to earlier expectations. There has been some loss from blight and rot on heavy lands, and some damage from leaf hoppers. The crop is of generally good quality and slightly better than indicated by the condition reports of September 1. The present estimate is for a crop of 37,274,000 bushels as compared with 27,200,000 last year. This crop has only been exceeded twice, in 1909 and 1914. A large acreage is partly responsible for the greater production.

Unfavorable weather during the first half of September damaged many fields of beans while being harvested, reducing both the yield and quality. Present indications are for an average yield of 10.6 bushels per acre and a total production of 4,504,000 bushels. While the yield was greater last year, the total production was only 2,972,000 bushels because of the much smaller acreage planted. The early crop is showing a very light pick, but the portion harvested during the wet period will pick heavily.

The condition on October 1 of clover seed averaged 90 per cent. The acreage is large and good yields are reported. Weather conditions have been favorable for harvesting. The seed is unusually free from weeds and of good quality.

The condition of sugar beets is 82 per cent as compared with 85 per cent last year and 84 per cent the ten-year average. Blight is prevalent and some rot is reported. The sugar content is below normal at this date. The estimated production is 707,000 tons.

Fruit: The apple crop is being harvested. Baldwin are a light crop in many orchards and localities and the Northern states not yielding up to the normal in some orchards. Other varieties are mostly good. The outlook at present is for 71 per cent of a crop for the state as a whole. The quality is good in the majority of the commercial orchards but there is much inferior fruit elsewhere and some will not be harvested.

Stop the Leaks—Save Coal—Be Warm and Cozy

To save money and coal, inspect your house, says the Commerce Department's Housing Division, and do these things:

Stop all the unregulated drafts through the house.

Use storm doors and storm or double windows in cold climate, if practicable, at least on the side of the house facing the prevailing cold wind.

Plug cracks around or in all windows and doors. Use felt, if necessary, under outside doors. Reset hinges on doors if necessary.

See that there are no cracks in window casings or between walls and casings, or between the sash. Tighten sash locks. Use putty and weather strippings where necessary.

Inspect windows and walls of attic. Dead air in an attic keeps the lower stories warmer. Plug up any openings from attic between walls.

In basement plug any opening from outside or between walls. Cover furnace and steam and hot water heating pipes, if practicable.

Close openings between walls and use newspapers under the carpets if there are drafts through the floors.

Study manufacturers' directions as to care of furnace. Replace cracked or broken grates. Examine dampers of fireplaces. When fireplaces and stoves are not in use dampers should be closed. Clean chimney and stove pipes periodically or whenever necessary.

Lock windows when closed. Draw shades, if practicable. Turn off heat in rooms with windows left open and in unused rooms. Remember that good ventilation is possible without large openings.

Remember that thermometers are better gauges of heat than are the various members of a family, each with his own idea of want. Sixty-eight to seventy degrees is a normal, healthful temperature for a room in which people live.

Remember that these suggestions imply a possible saving of millions of tons of coal this winter.

World Will Have Less Wheat This Year

Total world wheat production, excluding Russia and Mexico, is now estimated at 3,012,293,000 bushels by the United States Department of Agriculture, based on official and unofficial estimates from reporting countries. The revised estimate for the same countries last year was 3,049,047,000 bushels. The previous estimate for this year was 3,093,870,000 bushels.

Adding to the world production figures the stocks on hand in so far as they have been obtained, a total available supply of 3,192,037,000 bushels for use the coming year is indicated, compared with 3,273,588,000 bushels during the past year.

Manufacture of Rubber Belting and Hose

The Department of Commerce announces that the census reports show a considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of rubber belting and hose during the year 1921, as compared with 1919. In 1921 there were 17 establishments reported and the total value of their products amounted to $14,741,194, as compared with 15 establishments and a total value of products of $34,210,540 in 1919. The decrease in the total value of products was $19,469,346, or 56.9 per cent. These statistics do not include rubber belting and hose manufactures in establishments assigned to other classifications.

In February, the month of maximum employment, 3,296 wage earners were reported, and in September, the month of minimum employment, 2,638, the minimum representing 80 per cent of the month of maximum employment. The average number of wage earners employed during the year was 2,999 in 1921 as compared with 5,826 in 1919. A classification of wage earners shows that there were 3 wage earners employed less than 44 hours per week; 1,741, or 53.1 per cent, were employed in establishments operating 48 hours per week; 534, or 17.8 per cent, in establishments where the prevailing hours of labor were 48 to 54 hours per week; 499, of 15.0 per cent, 54 hours per week; and 272, or 9.1 per cent, were employed in establishments where the prevailing hours of labor ranged from 54 to 60 hours.

Talking to a Million By Radio
Grantland Rice tells an interesting story of sending his report of the great baseball battle in which the New York Giants defeated the Yankees in the world's series, to a million people.

"We have been asked to tell just how it feels to talk to a million people, scattered over two hundred thousand square miles, in a single address," writes Mr. Rice in the New York Tribune.

"After the first pleasant shock, when we discovered that no one could answer us back or cut in with a winning argument, the rest of it was something of a thrill in this respect at least:

"After the first inaugural statement it was as simple as talking to one man, a dumb man who wasn't deaf; as simple as asking for a cigarette or ordering a peck of potatoes from the grocer over the phone.

"The most intricate contrivance in the world, to one unversed in mechanics or electricity as we are, had suddenly become the simplest thing in a highly complex age. If we had ever been addicted to public speaking we might have missed the ringing applause from our audience. Still, there were moments when we almost felt, by overworking the imagination, that we could take the cheers for Frish and Neff and Bush as personal tributes at the conclusion of some ringing outburst of eloquence, such as 'Kelly strikes out.'

"Our imagination, possibly, should also have encompassed the great crowds and the distant spaces waiting for the story of each play. There was an early flash of this, but after a single inning it was just as if we had been doing this same thing for twenty years, showing again how quickly human nature adjusts itself to the ways of science and the sudden shocks of modern existence, where the impossible takes place every fifteen or twenty minutes through the day."

Production of Lumber
Approximately 40 per cent less lumber was cut in Colorado, South Dakota, and Wyoming during 1921 than in the preceding year, according to preliminary statistics just released by the Department of Commerce. These figures are the result of a careful census of the lumber industry in these states conducted by the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, acting in co-operation with the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture.

Lath production fell from a yearly average of 10 million to 1,288,000 and 368,000 shingles were manufactured as against an average output of 600,000. The total lumber cut for 1921 was 73,600,000 board feet. Western yellow pine made up approximately 69 per cent of this cut, spruce 13 per cent, and lodgepole pine 11 per cent, while the remaining 7 per cent consisted of Douglas fir, white fir, and a very small quantity of aspen.

The falling off in lumber production in these three states is attributed by the Forest Service to the general depression in the industry which has particularly affected the larger producers. The output of the small mills is fairly stable, showing a decrease of only 12 per cent from the 1920 figures.

Half a Million Motor Vehicles in Canada

It is conservatively estimated that the number of passenger cars and trucks in use in Canada at the present time number approximately 500,000 says Consul Johnson, Kingston, in a report to the Department of Commerce.

A classification of owners of cars in the Province of Ontario shows that out of the total of 181,978 passenger cars registered in 1921, over one-third are owned by farmers.

American Telephones in Foreign Countries

Shipments of electrical equipment during August shows that American telephone equipment continues to hold its own in foreign markets, $261,385 worth being shipped during August. This is a substantial increase over the July figures, although not equal to the amount exported during the earlier months of the year.

Retail Cost of Food for One Month

The United States Department of Labor has completed the compilation showing changes in the retail cost of food in 26 representative cities of the United States.

During the month from August 15, 1922, to September 15, 1922, 20 of the 26 cities increased from 1 to 3 per cent.

Retail Cost of Food in One Year

The Department of Labor reports decreased cost in the price of foods for the year period, September 15, 1921, to September 15, 1922 as follows: Kansas City, Norfolk, and Scranton, 12 per cent; Indianapolis, and Manchester, 11 per cent; Dep. (Continued on Page 12.)

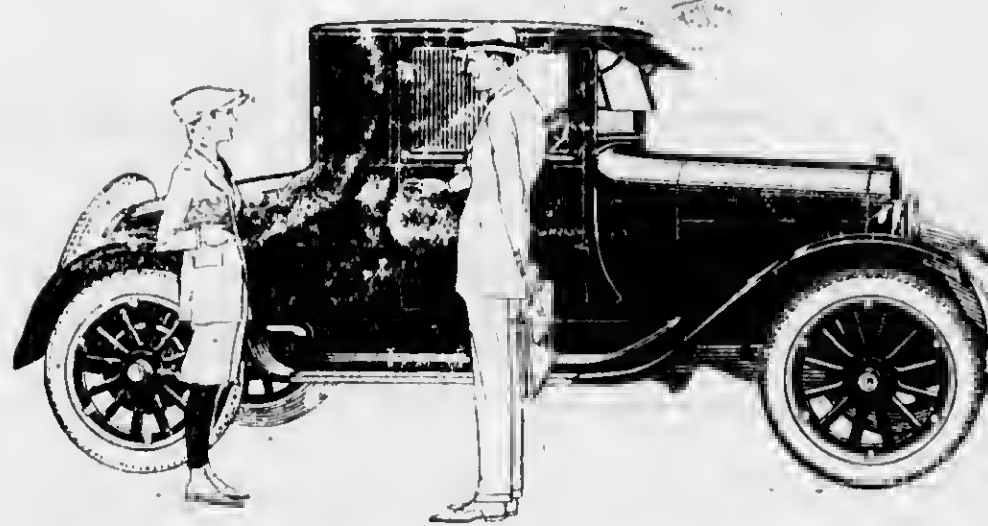

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS COUPE

With this coupe Dodge Brothers have proved once for all that a closed car can be as sturdy and practically as inexpensive as an open roadster.

This is largely due to the all-steel body—the first ever marketed—which admits of lower cost of manufacture through standardized machine production. Unlike wood, the steel surface will take a finish of enamel, baked on at high temperature. This process results in a permanent lustre, and eliminates the trouble and expense of repainting.

The wide straight seat is upholstered in genuine Spanish blue leather, durable and readily cleaned.

THREE VIEWS OF PROTECTION OF MICHIGAN GAME

A Farce and a Disgrace

A rumor has reached us of a down-river citizen seen to come out of the woods with a bag of 42 partridge. This happened a few days ago, about a month before the so-called State Department of Conservation allowed the bird season to open. Thanks to the influence of lower Michigan deer hunters who have a pull at Lansing the season does not open until October 15, and it remains open until the fellows from the more thickly populated portion of the state come up for deer. During their first few days in camp they take their time, leisurely set the camp to rights, wait for the first snow and kill partridge.

We natives here to not think this over-lapping of seasons is right. Our protests have gone to Mr. Baird frequently, but to no avail. Most of us it is to be hoped and presumed, obey the law which we do not sympathize with, and wait until the 15th of October. Others, however, argue that inasmuch as the season should open early, and doesn't, they are justified in a little pre-season shooting, and inasmuch as they are going to shoot before it opens, they might as well begin now.

So the natives who break the law, slaughter the birds in the early fall, and the deer hunters from lower Michigan slaughter them in the late autumn, and the rest of us kill the legal limit—if possible—between times, and the life of the partridge is a short and snappy one indeed.

Drastic measures should be taken against the out of season law-breaker. The season should open October 1 and close in 30 days, if not in 15 days. The law should be fair and reasonable and it should be enforced. If these things do not come to pass, the partridge will pass for a certainty. And our children will know them only as we know the dodo.—Soo Evening News Editorial.

in the vicinity of Cheboygan this year, more perhaps than at any time in years, while the reports from farther south and particularly that belt struck by the heavy sleet last winter are to the effect that there are no partridge there, and many of the hunters there believe that the season should be closed in those counties to protect what few birds escaped after the storm. Up here the birds had a good winter and got through in fine shape and there are thousands of them this fall. There were also a great many birds last fall and it was expected that the hunters could clean them out in short order once they got hunting them, but it seems the birds were able to care for themselves once they got used to what a gun shot meant, and in consequence not so many birds were killed as was thought there would be after the first day's shooting. We believe the hunters have been pretty honest about bird hunting this fall and that but few have been killed out of season. It seems that the public is getting well educated to the fact that we cannot expect to have any good sport of this if we go out at all times of the year and shoot indiscriminately, and that people generally frown upon acts of this kind and one so doing is quite apt to get himself in trouble with the state.—Cheboygan Democrat.

Protect Deer

Lake county has enjoyed an unique distinction in the last five years. It has been the only county in the lower peninsula in which deer have thrived in considerable numbers. True, Wexford has a few deer. Around Houghton Lake a fair-sized herd has managed to survive from one hunting season to another. But in Lake county deer have flourished, because they have been protected. No deer hunting has been allowed, with the result that the small herd of five years ago has grown to some 200. It is no infrequent thing for fisherman wading down the Pere Marquette river to hear a whistling rustle in the tangle along the bank and to see a doe rushing to cover. Now the question comes up of whether the closed season shall be continued. The original five-year period ends this year. The one answer to this question should be in the affirmative.

Fortunately for the people of the rest of Michigan, many in Lake county want to continue the closed season. Director of Conservation John Baird, who will conduct a hearing on the matter at Baldwin next Tuesday, also is reported to favor continued protection for the deer. The only danger is that the "pot hunter" type of citizen, which exists in every county where there is big game, will protest and win the right to kill Lake county's deer. That would be a loss to all of Western Michigan.

Our wild life will endure close to modern civilization only if carefully protected. Should Lake county, only 65 miles north of Grand Rapids, be opened to hunters the fine herd of deer would not last through two seasons.

If protection is continued under the same alert conservation agents who have made the ban on deer hunting real, Lake county should become in a few years virtually a wild animal park of rare value to the state. In this connection it also might be wise to protect the few bears remaining in this section, except for the fact that it would be difficult to convince the average city dweller that the Michigan black bear is as harmless as experience has proved him to be.—Grand Rapids Herald editorial.

THE USELESS "GOOD CITIZEN" WE MEET

There is a certain type of man in every community who poses as a good citizen. He breaks no laws, lives morally, pays his honest debts and is never tangled up with the laws in any manner. But he lives of himself, by himself and for himself only and exclusively. When the call is issued for volunteers to take hold of the end of progress and give a boost, he never answers. When calamity has befallen people in certain localities and charitable humanity flies to their rescue, he is never one of their number. When money is needed to gild the spire of public enterprise, his name is never on the list. When he sees some neighbor stuck in the mud, he goes around to avoid him. In fact, if he were standing on the sidewalk and should observe the Ship of State fast sinking in the surf, never a line would he throw. He didn't bore a hole in the side of the vessel that lets in the water, so it is none of his concern what happens. But were all mankind fashioned from this manner of clay, have you ever thought what would happen? There would be no churches, no hospitals for the sick, no institutions for the unfortunate, nor rest rooms for the weary. Civilization would roam in jungles and the strongest would rule. He is not a good citizen, but gets all-fired mad if you say so.

GOVERNOR ALEX J. GROESBECK

Michigan's chief executive and candidate of the Republican party for re-election November 7. Under Governor Groesbeck have been inaugurated changes in the state administrative policy that have resulted in the saving of more than $1,800,000 to the taxpayers in the present year. Economy and strict accounting of every detail of state expenditure have brought this about. Even greater results are expected in the next two years.

QUESTION OF COAL PRICES

The price of coal is a current topic of conversation, and it will continue as such throughout the entire winter. It is easy to talk, to find fault, to lay blame here, there and the other place. It is more difficult to find facts and figures, to substantiate such argument. What is more certain to fall than the price of coal is the thermometer, and in falling will only serve to increase a demand for fuel which is already heavier than it usually is at this time of year. The reason is obvious. The mines have been tied up for months by reason of the strike and large users of coal have been unable to do summer buying that has, been their custom in times past.

Coal prices, like the prices of every other commodity, are governed by the age-old economic law of supply and demand. The present coal need in the country is 500,000,000 tons a year. Production figures up to September 15, reveal that although the mines are being operated at full blast, production has not exceeded 276,000,000 tons. This leaves 224,000,000 to be produced between now and the end of the year—an average of 15,000,000 tons a week. The feat is impossible of execution, for even if the mines could be forced to this production, the matter of transportation would interfere and the railroads would find it impossible to furnish sufficient car service to move this output of coal to market. The crop movement at present is heavy and later the usual cold weather car shortage will prevail.

So those who say that coal prices are too high and that they must be lowered may find that they are only deceiving themselves. The coal operators are doing everything within their power to fill the public demand, but there are times when matters go beyond the range of possibility and this is one of them. No legislative interference can remedy the situation. In fact, such interference will tend to make matters worse. The expectation of government interference only served to drag out the coal strike and to bring matters to their present state. Had the laws of business prevailed the strike would have been over sooner than was the case and the production of coal would have been several months in advance of what it is at present. Then there would have been some reason for lower prices. The only thing that can be done at present is to permit matters to adjust themselves according to the laws of trade, and if this is done the public will benefit. If the government or other agencies take a hand, matters will only become worse for the condition will be artificial and not natural. It would be well for those who are prone to indulge in criticism of the coal companies to give some consideration to facts and figures and likewise to have due regard for the future.—Chicago Journal and Commerce.

FERRISISM

Somebody has to pay a rental of $300 to let Mr. Ferris speak in Orchestra hall on his last visit to Detroit. Was that wicked?

Somebody has to find money to finance Mr. Ferris' whirlwind automobile tour through the upper peninsula and his other traveling expenses and his campaign literature. Is that wicked?

Somebody, if we know anything about the publishing business, has to provide sustenance for Mr. Ferris' party organ, The Michigan Citizen. Is that wicked?

Mr. Ferris does not think so. Mr. Ferris thinks it is right and lawful for him to campaign for election with a party committee to hold the bag, but wrong and unlawful for Mr. Townsend to campaign for nomination with a personal committee to raise the funds. If Mr. Ferris does not think so he is talking through his hat.

Mr. Townsend's committee spent $30,000 to nominate him, and spent it in precisely the same way that Mr. Ferris' party committee is spending its money to elect him. Mr. Townsend is guilty of precisely the same "violation of law" that Mr. Ferris charges against Mr. Newberry. But Mr. Ferris does not say so. Why is it that Mr. Ferris is so loquacious on Newberryism and so dumb on Townsendism?

The only conceivable answer is that if he attacked Townsendism, the truth about the whole Ferris theory of Newberryism would stand naked before the eyes of the voters, who would perceive therein only an overworked scarecrow. And that, ladies and gentlemen, is what you might appropriately call Ferrisism.—Detroit Saturday Night.

MICHIGAN NOW
IN FRONT RANK

NEW LAPEER HOME WILL, EN-ABLE IT TO FULLY CARE
FOR UNFORTUNATES.

Under the present Republican state administration, Michigan has taken a forward step that places it in the front rank of commonwealths for humane progress and public welfare work.

By expending about $400,000 for extensions to the Michigan Home and Training School at Lapeer nine new buildings are being completed that will care for 775 patients. Before the present year ends the institution, for the first time in many years, will be without a waiting list.

No other state can boast this achievement. By furnishing institutional care for this class of unfortunate in the ratio of one for every 1,250 inhabitants, Michigan takes rank in this particular among the foremost states of the union.

Dr. H. A. Hayes, medical superintendent of the school, speaking of the benefits of the new additions, said:

"We have every reason to be grateful to the people of Michigan for their generous support of this work. Among all the states of the union Michigan holds one of the foremost places in its provisions for the care of its unfortunate. The city of Detroit has one of the best school systems in the country and in its skillful organization it watches the mental development of every child. This is the ideal toward which all public education should be directed. When we are prepared to recognize at an early age those who are subnormal and mentally retarded and to assist them to make their way in the world with such efficiency as they are capable of, we shall spare the unfortunate much suffering and social harm and loss."

255,266 Quit Jobs

More than a quarter of a million—approximately 255,266—railroad workers left service in the national strike last July, according to statistics made public by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This represented the decrease in the actual working forces in maintenance of equipment occupations between June 15 and July 15, but the railroads reporting, which included practically all the country's rail mileage, still had in service in the shop crafts on the later date 220,749 men. The total number of all railroad employees on July 15, as found by the Commission, was 1,467,824, or 217,590 less than the total one month before.

YOUR LOCAL NEWSPAPERS

We have learned that there are a few community newspapers in the state that are about to suspend publication because of a lack of local support. Whether your local publisher is near bankruptcy or is prospering, he should have every encouragement from his constituency.

No one is perfect. No person is doing all he possibly could do were he able to employ his talents to their fullest extent. Further, each person has his strong as well as his weak points. Most people can do one single thing better than the majority of others. One man can swing an axe, or milk a cow, or talk, or keep still a little better than his neighbors can.

Now, speaking in a personified way, it is just so with a local newspaper. There is not a single publication that is doing everything a newspaper could possibly do in its territory. But it is hard, very hard, to find one of these sheets that is not functioning in at least some one of a score or more of useful ways. The very nature of its work and the very condition for keeping such an institution as the local newspapers alive presumes that a service is being rendered. In fact, service is the only real stock in trade that a newspaper can have.

One of the things your local issue does is to tell of the happening around home. It interprets the acts of the community for you and for the other members of the town and the surrounding country. It brings together the extremes. The good things and the bad things, the refined and the vulgar, the prosperous and the failures, the democrats and the republicans, the pious and the boisterous, those to be emulated and those to be despised, all these are here reviewed, not on the stage made up and powdered for show, but in actual life. Through his local sheet, the citizen sees his community as a reality, a living, breathing, working thing.

And it helps men to understand themselves and their places in the community. How much better do men know the workings of their own mind and heart through reading the accounts of various acts and thoughts and aspirations of the men and women who live around the corner, or on section twenty-three. Their extreme ideas are modified and brought down to where they can find common ground upon which to build. The local newspaper has been a mighty force in driving out ignorance, superstition and suspicion and replacing it with information and confidence.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

dence and hope in mankind. And, this, understanding the fact that scandal, dishonesty, thieving, assaulting and murder are here mirrored to the public which it serves. It is the great light that shineth out to the community—the light of publicity that makes hard the life of those cankerous germs of hatred and malice and revenge and spite and jealousy. These unkind spirits cannot stand the light, they weaken under its searching rays.

While doing this, the local newspaper keeps the community spirit burning. It never allows the taper of community interest to go out. The merits of the local team, the abundance of resources of men and materials, the local capacity for expansion and development are everywhere reflected on the pages of this local sheet. Sometimes, yes, often, there is exaggeration, overstatement, much cry and little wool, but this enthusiasm keeps the Joneses and the Smiths and the Browns a little more on tiptoe for the home town. It just balances the downward pull of outside attractions and the burden imposed by the disgruntled and pessimistic individuals who form a certain small per cent of all progressive communities.

Support such an institution as the local paper? There is no alternative. No American could think otherwise. Without it democracy is impossible. The very fundamentals upon which the fathers built our great nation will give way without the free interchange of ideas and the unhampered building of community ideas. You may not like the editor, but for your own sake and the sake of the community you cannot afford not to give every species of encouragement to at least one of your local papers—Michigan Farmer.

Haven't you been in houses where lovely flowers stood all about, and everything was spick-and-span, but the library table was strewn with papers and magazines of the trashiest description? BETTER YIELD OF SUGAR BEETS

STATE REPORTS REVEAL CONDITION OF CROPS

Early September Rains Cause Considerable Damage to Beans and Potatoes

Many crops showed some improvement during September, and all except oats, sugar beets and alfalfa seed are better than the ten-year average in actual or prospective yields according to the report issued by J. A. Doelle, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Heavy rains during the first half of September caused extensive damage to beans and some injury to potatoes on heavy soils. All crops have matured well and there was little frost damage except in portions of the Upper Peninsula and northern counties of the Lower Peninsula.

The corn crop has matured exceptionally well and promises better than an average crop although not up to that of last year. Dry weather in August shortened the ears in many sections, especially on light soils in southern Michigan. The October 1 condition of 84 per cent indicates a total production of 60,552,000 bushels, including as grain the acreage cut for silage.

The yield of spring wheat is estimated to be 15.5 bushels per acre as compared with 9 bushels last year and a ten-year average of 14.2 bushels. This yield gives a total production of 52,000 bushels.

The result of an inquiry relative to the amount of wheat marketed to October 1 show that approximately 35 per cent had left the farms of the State prior to that date.

Reports indicate an average yield of 33.5 bushels per acre of oats, giving a total production of 51,447,000 bushels or about three and one-half millions less than last month's estimate based upon condition reports. The quality of the grain is mostly good averaging 92 per cent as compared with a ten-year average of 89.

There was about an average yield of barley in the state, producing a crop of 5,551,000 bushels. The acreage is less than last year but the yield of 25.7 bushels per acre is eight bushels greater.

The buckwheat crop was shortened by the blasting of the top blooms in many fields and by some frost damage in northern and central counties. Correspondents report a condition of 78 per cent which presages a crop of 639,000 bushels.

Digging of late potatoes is under way, and in many sections the yield is not up to earlier expectations. There has been some loss from blight and rot on heavy lands, and some damage from leaf hoppers. The crop is of generally good quality and slightly better than indicated by the condition reports of September 1. The present estimate is for a crop of 37,271,000 bushels as compared with 27,200,000 last year. This crop has only been exceeded twice, in 1909 and 1914. A large acreage is partly responsible for the greater production.

Unfavorable weather during the first half of September damaged many fields of beans while being harvested, reducing both the yield and quality. Present indications are for an average yield of 10.5 bushels per acre and a total production of 4,504,000 bushels. While the yield was greater last year, the total production was only 2,972,000 bushels because of the much smaller acreage planted. The early crop is showing a very light pick, but the portion harvested during the wet period will pick heavily.

The condition on October 1 of clover seed averaged 90 per cent. The acreage is large and good yields are reported. Weather conditions have been favorable for harvesting. The seed is unusually free from weeds and of good quality.

The condition of sugar beets is 82 per cent as compared with 85 per cent last year and 84 per cent the ten-year average. Blight is prevalent and some rot is reported. The sugar content is below normal at this date. The estimated production is 707,000 tons.

Fruit: The apple crop is being harvested. Baldwins are a light crop in many orchards and localities and the Northern states not yielding up to the normal in some orchards. Other varieties are mostly good. The outlook at present is for 71 per cent of a crop for the state as a whole. The quality is good in the majority of the commercial orchards but there is much inferior fruit elsewhere and some will not be harvested.

Stop the Leaks—Save Coal—Be Warm and Cozy

To save money and coal, inspect your house, says the Commerce Department's Housing Division, and do these things:

Stop all the unregulated drafts through the house.

Use storm doors and storm or double windows in cold climate, if practicable, at least on the side of the house facing the prevailing cold wind.

Plug cracks around or in all windows and doors. Use felt, if necessary, under outside doors. Reset hinges on doors if necessary.

See that there are no cracks in window casings or between walls and casings, or between the sash. Tighten sash locks. Use putty and weather strippings where necessary.

Inspect windows and walls of attic. Dead air in an attic keeps the lower stories warmer. Plug up any openings from attic between walls.

In basement plug any opening from outside or between walls. Cover furnace and steam and hot water heating pipes, if practicable.

Close openings between walls and use newspapers under the carpets if there are drafts through the floors.

Study manufacturers' directions as to care of furnace. Replace cracked or broken grates. Examine dampers of fireplaces. When fireplaces and stoves are not in use dampers should be closed. Clean chimney and stove pipes periodically or whenever necessary.

Lock windows when closed. Draw shades, if practicable. Turn off heat in rooms with windows left open and in unused rooms. Remember that good ventilation is possible without large openings.

Remember that thermometers are better gauges of heat than are the various members of a family, each with his own idea of what. Sixty-eight to seventy degrees is a normal, healthful temperature for a room in which people live.

Remember that these suggestions imply a possible saving of millions of tons of coal this winter.

World Will Have Less Wheat This Year

Total world wheat production, excluding Russia and Mexico, is now estimated at 3,012,293,000 bushels by the United States Department of Agriculture, based on official and unofficial estimates from reporting countries. The revised estimate for the same countries last year was 3,049,047,000 bushels. The previous estimate for this year was 3,093,870,000 bushels.

Adding to the world production figures the stocks on hand in so far as they have been obtained, a total available supply of 3,192,037,000 bushels for use the coming year is indicated, compared with 3,273,588,000 bushels during the past year.

Manufacture of Rubber Belting and Hose

The Department of Commerce announces that the census reports show a considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of rubber belting and hose during the year 1921, as compared with 1919. In 1921 there were 17 establishments reported and the total value of their products amounted to $14,741,194, as compared with 15 establishments and a total value of products of $34,210,540 in 1919. The decrease in the total value of products was $19,469,346, or 56.9 per cent. These statistics do not include rubber belting and hose manufactures in establishments assigned to other classifications.

In February, the month of maximum employment, 3,296 wage earners were reported, and in September, the month of minimum employment, 2,638, the minimum representing 80 per cent of the month of maximum employment. The average number of wage earners employed during the year was 2,999 in 1921 as compared with 5,826 in 1919. A classification of wage earners shows that there were 3 wage earners employed less than 44 hours per week; 1,741, or 53.1 per cent, were employed in establishments operating 48 hours per week; 534, or 17.8 per cent, in establishments where the prevailing hours of labor were 48 to 54 hours per week; 499, of 15.0 per cent, 54 hours per week; and 272, or 9.1 per cent, were employed in establishments where the prevailing hours of labor ranged from 54 to 60 hours.

Talking to a Million By Radio

Grantland Rice tells an interesting story of sending his report of the great baseball battle in which the New York Giants defeated the Yankees in the world's series, to a million people.

"We have been asked to tell just how it feels to talk to a million people, scattered over two hundred thousand square miles, in a single address," writes Mr. Rice in the New York Tribune.

"After the first pleasant shock, when we discovered that no one could answer us back or cut in with a winning argument, the rest of it was something of a thrill in this respect at least."

"After the first inaugural statement it was as simple as talking to one man, a dumb man who wasn't deaf; as simple as asking for a cigarette or ordering a peck of potatoes from the grocer over the phone."

"The most intricate contrivance in the world, to one as unversed in mechanics or electricity as we are, had suddenly become the simplest thing in a highly complex age. If we had ever been addicted to public speaking we might have missed the ringing applause from our audience. Still, there were moments when we almost felt, by overworking the imagination, that we could take the cheers for Frish and Neff and Bush as personal tributes at the conclusion of some ringing outburst of eloquence, such as 'Kelly strikes out.'"

"Our imagination, possibly, should also have encompassed the great crowds and the distant spaces waiting for the story of each play. There was an early flash of this, but after a single inning it was just as if we had been doing this same thing for twenty years, showing again how quickly human nature adjusts itself to the ways of science and the sudden shocks of modern existence, where the impossible takes place every fifteen or twenty minutes through the day."

Production of Lumber

Approximately 40 per cent less lumber was cut in Colorado, South Dakota, and Wyoming during 1921 than in the preceding year, according to preliminary statistics just released by the Department of Commerce. These figures are the result of a careful census of the lumber industry in these states conducted by the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, acting in co-operation with the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture.

Lath production fell from a yearly average of 10 million to 1,288,000 and 368,000 shingles were manufactured as against an average output of 500,000. The total lumber cut for 1921 was 73,600,000 board feet. Western yellow pine made up approximately 69 per cent of this cut, spruce 13 per cent, and lodgepole pine 11 per cent, while the remaining 7 per cent consisted of Douglas fir, white fir, and a very small quantity of aspen.

The falling off in lumber production in these three states is attributed by the Forest Service to the general depression in the industry which has particularly affected the larger producers. The output of the small mills is fairly stable, showing a decrease of only 12 per cent from the 1920 figures.

Half a Million Motor Vehicles in Canada

It is conservatively estimated that the number of passenger cars and trucks in use in Canada at the present time number approximately 500,000 says Consul Johnson, Kingston, in a report to the Department of Commerce.

A classification of owners of cars in the Province of Ontario shows that out of the total of 181,978 passenger cars registered in 1921, over one-third are owned by farmers.

American Telephones in Foreign Countries

Shipments of electrical equipment during August shows that American telephone equipment continues to hold its own in foreign markets, $261,385 worth being shipped during August. This is a substantial increase over the July figures, although not equal to the amount exported during the earlier months of the year.

Retail Cost of Food for One Month
The United States Department of Labor has completed the compilation showing changes in the retail cost of food in 26 representative cities of the United States.

During the month from August 15, 1922, to September 15, 1922, 20 of the 26 cities increased from 1 to 3 per cent.

Retail Cost of Food in One Year
The Department of Labor reports decreased cost in the price of foods for the year period, September 15, 1921, to September 15, 1922 as follows: Kansas City, Norfolk, and Scranton, 12 per cent; Indianapolis, and Manchester, 11 per cent; Den-

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS COUPE

With this coupe Dodge Brothers have proved once for all that a closed car can be as sturdy and practically as inexpensive as an open roadster.

This is largely due to the all-steel body—the first ever marketed—which admits of lower cost of manufacture through standardized machine production. Unlike wood, the steel surface will take a finish of enamel, baked on at high temperature. This process results in a permanent lustre, and eliminates the trouble and expense of repainting.

The wide straight seat is upholstered in genuine Spanish blue leather, durable and readily cleaned.

THREE VIEWS OF PROTECTION OF MICHIGAN GAME

A Farce and a Disgrace
A rumor has reached us of a down-river citizen seen to come out of the woods with a bag of 42 partridge. This happened a few days ago, about a month before the so-called State Department of Conservation allowed the bird season to open. Thanks to the influence of lower Michigan deer hunters who have a pull at Lansing the season does not open until October 15, and it remains open until the fellows from the more thickly populated portion of the state come up for deer. During their first few days in camp they take their time, leisurely set the camp to rights, wait for the first snow and kill partridge.

We natives here to not think this over-lapping of seasons is right. Our protests have gone to Mr. Baird frequently, but to no avail. Most of us it is to be hoped and presumed, obey the law which we do not sympathize with, and wait until the 15th of October. Others, however, argue that inasmuch as the season should open early, and doesn't, they are justified in a little pre-season shooting, and inasmuch as they are going to shoot before it opens, they might as well begin now.

So the natives who break the law, slaughter the birds in the early fall, and the deer hunters from lower Michigan slaughter them in the late autumn, and the rest of us kill the legal limit—if possible—between times, and the life of the partridge is a short and snappy one indeed.

Drastic measures should be taken against the out of season law-breaker. The season should open October 1 and close in 30 days, if not in 15 days. The law should be fair and reasonable and it should be enforced. If these things do not come to pass, the partridge will pass for a certainty. And our children will know them only as we know the dodo.—Soo Evening News Editorial.

in the vicinity of Cheboygan this year, more perhaps than at any time in years, while the reports from farther south and particularly that belt struck by the heavy sleet last winter are to the effect that there are no partridge there, and many of the hunters there believe that the season should be closed in those counties to protect what few birds escaped after the storm. Up here the birds had a good winter and got through in fine shape and there are thousands of them this fall. There were also a great many birds last fall and it was expected that the hunters could clean them out in short order once they got hunting them, but it seems the birds were able to care for themselves once they got used to what a gun shot meant, and in consequence not so many birds were killed as was thought there would be after the first day's shooting. We believe the hunters have been pretty honest about bird hunting this fall and that but few have been killed out of season. It seems that the public is getting well educated to the fact that we cannot expect to have any good sport of this if we go out at all times of the year and shoot indiscriminately, and that people generally frown upon acts of this kind and one so doing is quite apt to get himself in trouble with the state.—Cheboygan Democrat.

Protect Deer

Lake county has enjoyed an unique distinction in the last five years. It has been the only county in the lower peninsula in which deer have thrived in considerable numbers. True, Wexford has a few deer. Around Houghton Lake a fair-sized herd has managed to survive from one hunting season to another. But in Lake county deer have flourished, because they have been protected. No deer hunting has been allowed, with the result that the small herd of five years ago has grown to some 200. It is no infrequent thing for fishermen wading down the Pere Marquette river to hear a whistling rustle in the tag-elders along the bank and to see a doe rushing to cover. Now the question comes up of whether the closed season shall be continued. The original five-year period ends this year. The one answer to this question should be in the affirmative.

Fortunately for the people of the rest of Michigan, many in Lake county want to continue the closed season. Director of Conservation John Baird, who will conduct a hearing on the matter at Baldwin next Tuesday, also, is reported to favor continued protection for the deer. The only danger is that the "pot hunter" type of citizen, which exists in every county where there is big game, will protest and win the right to kill Lake county's deer. That would be a loss to all of Western Michigan.

Our wild life will endure close to modern civilization only if carefully protected. Should Lake county, only 65 miles north of Grand Rapids, be opened to hunters the fine herd of deer would not last through two seasons.

If protection is continued under the same alert conservation agents who have made the ban on deer hunting real, Lake county should become in a few years virtually a wild animal park of rare value to the state. In this connection it also might be wise to protect the few bear remaining in this section, except for the fact that it would be difficult to convince the average city dweller that the Michigan black bear is as harmless as experience has proved him to be.—Grand Rapids Herald editorial.

THE USELESS "GOOD CITIZEN" WE MEET

There is a certain type of man in every community who poses as a good citizen. He breaks no laws, lives morally, pays his honest debts and is never tangled up with the laws in any manner. But he lives of himself, by himself and for himself only and exclusively. When the call is issued for volunteers to take hold of the end of progress and give a boost, he never answers. When calamity has befallen people in certain localities and charitable humanity flies to their rescue, he is never one of their number. When money is needed to gild the spire of public enterprise, his name is never on the list. When he sees some neighbor stuck in the mud, he goes around to avoid him. In fact, if he were standing on the sidewalk and should observe the Ship of State fast sinking in the surf, never a line would he throw. He didn't bore a hole in the side of the vessel that lets in the water, so it is none of his concern what happens. But were all mankind fashioned from this manner of clay, have you ever thought what would happen? There would be no churches, no hospitals for the sick, no institutions for the unfortunate, nor rest rooms for the weary. Civilization would roam in jungles and the strongest would rule. He is not a good citizen, but gets all-fired mad if you say so.

GOVERNOR ALEX J. GROESBECK

Michigan's chief executive and candidate of the Republican party for re-election November 7. Under Governor Groesbeck have been inaugurated changes in the state administrative policy that have resulted in the saving of more than $1,800,000 to the taxpayers in the present year. Economy and strict accounting of every detail of state expenditure have brought this about. Even greater results are expected in the next two years.

QUESTION OF COAL PRICES

The price of coal is a current topic of conversation, and it will continue as such throughout the entire winter. It is easy to talk, to find fault, to lay blame here, there and the other place. It is more difficult to find facts and figures to substantiate such argument. What is more certain to fall than the price of coal is the thermometer, and in falling will only serve to increase a demand for fuel which is already heavier than it usually is at this time of year. The reason is obvious. The mines have been tied up for months by reason of the strike and large users of coal have been unable to do summer buying that has been their custom in times past.

Coal prices, like the prices of very other commodity, are governed by the age-old economic law of supply and demand. The present coal need in the country is 500,000,000 tons a year. Production figures up to September 15, reveal that although the mines are being operated at full blast, production has not exceeded 276,000,000 tons. This leaves 224,000,000 to be produced between now and the end of the year—an average of 15,000,000 tons a week. The feat is impossible of execution, for even if the mines could be forced to this production, the matter of transportation would interfere and the railroads would find it impossible to furnish sufficient car service to move this output of coal to market. The crop movement at present is heavy and later the usual cold weather car shortage will prevail.

So those who say that coal prices are too high and that they must be lowered may find that they are only deceiving themselves. The coal operators are doing everything within their power to fill the public demand, but there are times when matters go beyond the range of possibility and this is one of them. No legislative interference can remedy the situation. In fact, such interference will tend to make matters worse. The expectation of government interference only served to drag out the coal strike and to bring matters to their present state. Had the laws of business prevailed the strike would have been over sooner than was the case and the production of coal would have been several months in advance of what it is at present. Then there would have been some reason for lower prices. The only thing that can be done at present is to permit matters to adjust themselves according to the laws of trade, and if this is done the public will benefit. If the government or other agencies take a hand, matters will only become worse for the condition will be artificial and not natural. It would be well for those who are prone to indulge in criticism of the coal companies to give some consideration to facts and figures and likewise to have due regard for the future.—Chicago Journal and Commerce.

FERRISISM

Somebody has to pay a rental of $300 to let Mr. Ferris speak in Orchestra hall on his last visit to Detroit. Was that wicked?

Somebody has to find money to finance Mr. Ferris' whirlwind automobile tour through the upper peninsula and his other traveling expenses and his campaign literature. Is that wicked?

Somebody, if we know anything about the publishing business, has to provide sustenance for Mr. Ferris' party organ, The Michigan Citizen. Is that wicked?

Mr. Ferris does not think so. Mr. Ferris thinks it is right and lawful for him to campaign for election with a party committee to hold the bag, but wrong and unlawful for Mr. Townsend to campaign for nomination with a personal committee to raise the funds. If Mr. Ferris does not think so he is talking through his hat.

Mr. Townsend's committee spent $30,000 to nominate him, and spent it in precisely the same way that Mr. Ferris' party committee is spending its money to elect him. Mr. Townsend is guilty of precisely the same "violation of law" that Mr. Ferris charges against Mr. Newberry. But Mr. Ferris does not say so. Why is it that Mr. Ferris is so loquacious on Newberryism and so dumb on Townsendism?

The only conceivable answer is that if he attacked Townsendism, the truth about the whole Ferris theory of Newberryism would stand naked before the eyes of the voters, who would perceive therein only an overworked scarecrow. And that, ladies and gentlemen, is what you might appropriately call Ferrisism.—Detroit Saturday Night.

MICHIGAN NOW
IN FRONT RANK

NEW LAPEER HOME WILL EN-ABLE IT TO FULLY CARE
FOR UNFORTUNATES.

Under the present Republican state administration, Michigan has taken a forward step that places it in the front rank of commonwealths for humane progress and public welfare work.

By expending about $400,000 for extensions to the Michigan Home and Training School at Lapeer nine new buildings are being completed that will care for 775 patients. Before the present year ends the institution, for the first time in many years, will be without a waiting list.

No other state can boast this achievement. By furnishing institutional care for this class of unfortunate in the ratio of one for every 1,250 inhabitants, Michigan takes rank in this particular among the foremost states of the union.

Dr. H. A. Hayes, medical superintendent of the school, speaking of the benefits of the new additions, said:

"We have every reason to be grateful to the people of Michigan for their generous support of this work. Among all the states of the union Michigan holds one of the foremost places in its provisions for the care of its unfortunate. The city of Detroit has one of the best school systems in the country and in its skillful organization it watches the mental development of every child.

"This is the ideal toward which all public education should be directed. When we are prepared to recognize at an early age those who are subnormal and mentally retarded and to assist them to make their way in the world with such efficiency as they are capable of, we shall spare the unfortunate much suffering and society much harm and loss."

255,266 Quit Jobs

More than a quarter of a million—approximately 255,266—railroad workers left service in the national strike last July, according to statistics made public by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This represented the decrease in the actual working forces in maintenance of equipment occupations between June 15 and July 15, but the railroads reporting, which included practically all the country's rail mileage, still had in service in the shop crafts on the later date 220,749 men.

The total number of all railroad employees on July 15, as found by the Commission, was 1,467,824, or 217,590 less than the total one month before.

"EARL'S" TRIAL IS UNDER WAY

VETERAN ATTORNEYS LOCKING HORNS FIERCELY

Battle Rages Over Identity of Funds
In St. Ignace Bank—Greig
Cool and Composed

A. J. W. Greig, who styles himself "Earl of Dunblane," and who maintains his unimpeachably correct attire despite his long sojourn behind bolts and bars, is an interesting character. On trial for alleged embezzlement of two $500.00 payments made to him by Mrs. Mary E. Miller, of this city, specifically, and on the general charge of having appropriated some $90,000.00 received from various persons for stock in the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co., of which he was president, Greig sits calmly beside his counsel in all the glare of white spats, black-corded pince-nez and gorgeous yellow cane while the opposing counsel growl and wrangle over the evidence like two fierce bull dogs worrying a bone. His carefully tailored and daintily manicured person presents a strange contrast to the balance of the courtroom assemblage, attired in homespun, with the sartorial carelessness of a region where everybody works and elegance of garb is taken as a sign of "room to rent upstairs."

The "Countess," Mrs. Sara C. Turngren Greig, daughter of a wealthy Chicago contractor, a dapper, attractive little woman, arrayed in expensive furs, sits beside her husband in the courtroom, visits him in the dingy jail cell and, according to Greig's own statement is help-mate and comrade par excellence.

The earldom of Dunblane, to which Greig lays claim, on information which the state's agents have secured, expired more than one hundred years ago, at the death of the last male heir and reverted to the crown. It is probable, however, that Greig is descendant of a nated, Scottish family.

According to the records of heraldry, the Greig family is a branch of the Clua McGregor, whose chieftain, Rob Roy McGregor, was one of Scotland's most dangerous outlaws, for whose misdeeds the Scots king, James II, put his followers under the ban of the realm, even forbidding them to use the name of McGregor. The "Earl's" claim to be the sixth son of the Marquis of Dunblane, of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, has not as yet been substantiated. His country place, of 1,700 acres at Choboygan, is a princely estate in itself and quite fittingly expresses the aspirations of the titled adventurer.

The trial of the debonair promoter and stock salesman, which has already consumed more than a week, commenced on Monday, October 23rd, at the court rooms in this city, with Judge George W. Sample, of Ann Arbor, presiding in place of Judge Mayne, who was holding court in Bellaire at the time the trial opened. Two legal veterans, Lisle Shanahan, of Charlevoix, and assistant State's Attorney General Ora L. Smith are crossing swords on opposite sides of the case and the sparks have already flown a plenty; Shanahan being counsel for the defendant and Smith acting in collaboration with Ervin A. Rueggesser, prosecuting attorney. Leonard T. Hand, state insurance commissioner, appointed receiver of the defunct company; H. N. Duff, executive officer of the state securities commission and Major W. R. Oates, of the state insurance department, are on hand to assist the prosecution with their expert advice on insurance regulations and to tell what they know of the proceedings attending the incorporation of the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co., which Greig headed as president at the time of his flight into Canada.

Monday and Tuesday were occupied largely with the selection of the jury while Wednesday almost the entire day was taken up with the identification of canceled checks and other documents with which the defense is bolstering up its contention that Greig's St. Ignace bank account was company money and not personal funds.

During the identification of the canceled checks, by Arthur S. Simpson, auditor for the company under the receivership, which was continued Thursday, O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general, pointed out that even if the defense succeeded in showing that the funds deposited in the First National Bank of St. Ignace were not Greig's personal deposits but company moneys, deposited by direction of the higher officials, the action taken was none the less fraudulent, inasmuch as the Securities Commission had ordered that all of the company's funds be kept in the Merchants Bank of Detroit, where the home offices of the corporation were located, and the deposits at St. Ignace were, therefore, obviously made to evade the order of the commission. Smith and Rueggesser objected to the admission of the canceled checks as evidence, but Judge Sample ruled that they might be marked as exhibits for the present and that later it might be proved by the defense that the funds at St. Ignace were really company money.

Shanahan contended that Greig, who spent most of his time selling stock, was ignorant of many of these deposits; that they were frequently made by directors of the company from the home office in Detroit and that the "Earl" signed checks against this account only when directed to do so by his superiors.

During the argument over the admission of the checks, the jury was excluded from the courtroom.

On Friday, Frank J. Noonan, of Detroit, was called to the stand by the prosecution. Noonan went to

FIGHT TO BETTER RURAL EDUCATION

SUCH SHOULD BE AIM OF ALL

Cadillac Meeting Remarkable Success—McKinney President
Next at Traverse City

That the rural school problem is the only educational tangle in Michigan that is not yet straightened out was the consensus of opinion expressed at the annual institute of the fifth district of the Michigan State Teachers' association which adjourned its Cadillac meeting Friday afternoon following the most successful gathering of its kind ever held in northern Michigan.

Almost every church in Cadillac, the opera house and one moving picture house were turned over to the teachers for their meetings, and the ladies of the various churches provided cafeteria meals. There were meetings morning and afternoon both Thursday and Friday, with an evening Thursday. County school commissioners called their teachers together for discussions of the work in their respective districts. The Cadillac Chamber of Commerce was untiring in its efforts in behalf of the visitors.

The next institute will go to Traverse City.

The association elected Superintendent McKinney, of Evart High school, president, and Commissioner Hornsby, of Grand Traverse county schools, secretary.

Of the 2,000 teachers in the district 1,200 attended.

"We are now living in 60-mile-an-hour age," said T. E. Johnson, state superintendent of public instruction, in the course of his address, "and we must equip our children to live it. It was not long ago when men boasted of their 12-mile-an-hour horses, but now the farms are equipped with all conveniences of the city. The rural schools, however, have not improved in like proportion.

"It is not strange that the country youth who goes into the city and works all day in the factory leaves his labor at night fagged and goes out to seek excitement. It is up to us to equip him with a mind that will give him the culture that will cause him to desire and enjoy pleasures less harmful than those in which he now partakes."

Power For Commissioners

Superintendent Johnson expressed pleasure that beginning in 1925 all Michigan teachers must have at least one year of schooling above high school, and predicted that it will not be long before four years beyond high school will be required. He advocated more power for county school commissioners and more assistance, and added that the teachers of Michigan should insist that the next legislature give commissioners (continued on page seven)

The Home Store or the Chain Store— Where Shall We Trade?

In rural centers and small towns like Charlevoix, all over the United States, a problem has arisen from the competition of the "chain" or branch store. Wherever the local merchant depends largely upon a permanent and fixed population for his living, rather than the passing favor of the transient, as in the cities of first-class size, this problem assumes large proportions, but, as a compensation for its severity, a greater variety of arguments may be advanced in favor of the "home-town" merchant whose trade depends upon the patronage of an unchanging and definitely limited number of families.

Having assumed that such competition exists and is keenly felt by the merchant who has, as a rule, spent many years, or possibly a life-time, building up his business in a community, we may examine the reasons for this competition and measure the chances which the local man has of overcoming the price advantage of the outsider.

The branch or "chain" store, as it is familiarly known to us, is usually a corporate enterprise. From a central office and warehouses located in one or more of the larger cities of the country, a vast number of retail stores, dotted all over the map, are controlled and supplied. If we can imagine a vast general store, not housed under one roof but split up into equal parts, a clerk and a counter to each and these parts scattered from Michigan to Florida and from San Francisco to New York we will have some conception of the "chain" store.

As a rule, the corporation maintains a chain of stores merely to serve a location in a town; most often a building that has been vacated for some time and may be had at a low rental. The manager of this store, it must be understood, is little better than a "glorified" clerk. He has no option, whatever, as to prices, window trim or arrangement of stock. Even his advertising is mapped out for him by the sales department at the home office. As Dollar Day, as a yearly institution in Charlevoix, has fairly won its place. The results cannot be measured alone in terms of dollars and cents. The value of social contact between the town merchant and his country customer and the development of a wider mutual spirit of cooperation and helpfulness far transcends the mere cash-receipts attitude towards the scheme. In weighing the fruits of such an enterprise, the dollar must not be held too close to the eye. The temporary blindness thus produced easily become chronic and has checked the growth of many a seemingly prosperous community.

These two gentlemen entered the ice business last fall, and indications are that they have made a success of it. The new storage building will furnish sufficient capacity for all the ice they need to furnish Charlevoix's citizens the very best in this line of summer necessities.

Greatly Enjoyed

Dollar Day in Charlevoix, Saturday, was a success both from the standpoint of sales made by the local merchants and the crowd which gathered from the city and surrounding districts to witness the parade and take advantage of the exceptional bargains offered.

The parade started on schedule time and was well conducted, furnishing considerable amusement to the onlookers.

The prizes for the various events went to the following contestants: Muddiest Ford, Jack Bird.

Ford With Most Attachment, Norman Bamour.

Most Dilapidated Ford, William Hartwell.

Ford With Largest Family, W. H. Baker.

LARGE NUMBER GAME LICENSES ISSUED

Small Game Hunters Out This Year in Large Numbers

More small game hunting licenses were issued up to the present this year than have been issued in this same period for a number of years. This denotes a large number of sportsmen in the woods, the majority of whom are reporting fair sized hags.

Licenses to hunt deer are now being issued, the two Nowland brothers of near East Jordan being the first ones to obtain them. Deer season opens November 10th and continues until November 30th. The license which entitles the holder to take one male deer costs $2.50. Parties of six may also secure a camp permit which entitles them to kill one buck for camp use.

Non-residents may hunt under a special non-resident license. These licenses are more expensive than those issued to residents, as the small game license costs ten dollars while it costs a resident but a dollar. The non-resident license to hunt deer costs fifty dollars.

Local parties are organizing for their annual outing in the upper peninsula, and the usual number will represent Charlevoix in this territory.

MILK PRODUCTION IS STAGGERING

LOEB FARMS COW ESTABLISHES A WORLD'S RECORD

Kolrain Marion Finnerne Now Second Highest Milk Producing Cow in the World

Kolrain Marion Finnerne, the great cow owned by Loeb Farms, completed her yearly test last Thursday, October 26, and thereby established a world's record east of the Rockies, which makes her second highest milk producing cow in the world. Fifteen supervisors and two professors officiated during the test.

Marion's test of this year was made at the age of six years, one month and eight days, so she is just in her prime. Her production is staggering. Milking 365 consecutive days without missing a feed or requiring any more attention than other cows in the test room receive, Marion produced 55,339.7 pounds of milk containing 1,278.58 pounds of butter. She had 178 days in which she milked over 100 pounds of milk per day, and had an average of over 100 pounds of milk for 335 consecutive days.

Marion is a beautiful, almost white Holstein-Friesian cow of gentle disposition. She is well known to many residents of Charlevoix county and is of course a center of attraction to the many visitors to the farm.

Marion is royally bred, being by Finnerne Pride Envy, son of the old-time world's record cow, Finnerne Pride Johanna Rue. Her dam is Kolrain Eleanor-Pontine Korndyke, who, first time on test as a seven and one-half year old, gave 26,995.4 pounds of milk containing 1,143.71 pounds of butter in 365 days.

In blazing her name indelibly on the pages of Holstein history, Marion advances the fame of Charlevoix county as a dairy section and of Loeb Farms as an institution closely identified with the agricultural development of Northern Michigan.

For Marion's performance has pleased no one more than Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Loeb, owners of the Loeb Farms. Mr. Loeb's forecasting eye saw the possibilities of the county and backed his judgment with great confidence. As a result Charlevoix now has at its door one of the finest stock farms in the world.

It is Mr. Loeb's wish to further develop the resources of this section and to co-operate with neighboring farmers to the fullest extent. This is being done daily as opportunities are offered.

Marion's record is being published in a large number of newspapers and periodicals throughout the world. All these stores mention Charlevoix. In this way Charlevoix is receiving advertising of the very best kind. Hats off to Kolrain Marion Finnerne and to John Knudsen, the man who milked her four times daily for 365 days.

"HYACINTH" LOSES HER FIRST MATE

GEORGE BROWN DROWNS AS LAUNCH CAPSIZES

Ditlefsen and Nowland Effect Heroic Rescue of Survivors in South Fox Disaster

When the government light-house tender, "Hyacinth," arrived in this port Thursday morning, she brought the sad news of the loss of her first mate, George Brown, well-known in this city, who was drowned off South Fox Island, at noon, a week ago Tuesday, when the "Hyacinth's" launch in which he and two others were trying to make the island in a heavy sea, capsized and sank.

The "Hyacinth" left Charlevoix Tuesday morning for South Fox Island, with a new gasoline boat installed for the use of the light-house keeper there. She arrived at her destination, the light-house, which is on the west side of the island, at about eleven o'clock, and hove to about a half mile off shore. The ship's thirty-foot launch, manned by first mate George Brown, chief engineer John McCauley and seaman Joseph Conklin, started out from the "Hyacinth," towing the new boat, considered to be the light-house keeper, with quartermaster Lawrence Ditlefsen and seaman Andrew Nowland to mind her helm. A tremendous sea was running and as they neared the shore the cross-currents which at this point set in from three directions, made their progress extremely difficult.

Deeming it inadvisable to attempt a landing against such odds, Brown, who was steering, decided to turn back and put the tiller over. As they came about, the launch was caught in the trough of the sea and capsized, throwing the three men into the water.

McCauley and Conklin were fair swimmers, but Brown only an indifferent one. Encumbered by heavy boots, slicker and sou'wester, he had little chance from the first. Carried shoreward by the current and wind, Ditlefsen and Nowland in the new boat bore down on the struggling swimmers, throwing out lines, preservers and every piece of detachable cabin furniture. Ditlefsen, in his frantic efforts to assist his unfortunate comrades, fairly gutted the launch of every moveable thing that would float. Aboard assisted by Nowland, he managed to get a line to McCauley and Conklin and bring them aboard. The luckless Brown, who was every moment drifting farther and farther away, finally sank before their eyes.

In the meantime, Captain Maynard, standing by as near as he dared with the "Hyacinth," was endeavoring to float oil barrels with lines attached to the spot where the crew of the ill-fated launch were battling with the waves, but the current defeated his attempts. The light-house keeper had also put out in his boat to go to their assistance, but found it impossible and turned back.

It was about noon when the launch capsized and Captain Maynard, seeing that he could do nothing further to aid in the rescue, rounded the southern end of the island and anchored off the lee shore. In the meantime, the new light-house boat with the four survivors had drifted ashore. In beaching the boat the chief engineer strained his back severely and Nowland suffered a slight injury to his knee. Joe Conklin was badly done up by exposure, and Ditlefsen was also slightly disabled.

A search party was sent to the island from the "Hyacinth" and with the survivors and the light-house keeper patrolled the beach for the rest of the afternoon, as it was thought the body might have drifted ashore on the west shore and become wedged in the rocks.

The "Hyacinth" lay at her anchor until seven o'clock Wednesday morning, when her safety was menaced by a change in the wind. Captain Maynard moved his vessel to a position just off the south end of the island and the search was continued until about five o'clock that afternoon when the patrol was recalled from (Continued on page two) their fruitless work and the "Hyacinth" weighing anchor, started for Charlevoix.

She arrived off the channel mouth here at about nine o'clock Wednesday night, but Captain Maynard decided not to attempt to enter the harbor and proceeded to Harbor Springs, where they lay up for the night, returning to Charlevoix Thursday morning.

Up to the time of the writing of this article, the body has not been recovered. On a second trip to Fox Island, made last Saturday, a portion of the wrecked launch was found on the east shore of the island, which leads to the belief that the body, when found, will be located on that side.

Brown, whose home was on Staaten Island, N. Y., had a wife and daughter, living in Manistee. He was highly respected and well liked as an officer and his loss is keenly felt by members of the "Hyacinth's" crew.

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS COUPE

The approach of winter emphasizes the all-year usefulness of the car.

Wind and sleet beat in vain against the weather-stripped doors and windows. A floor radiator keeps the interior as warm as a room. The windows are readily adjusted for ventilation.

Underlying these seasonal comforts, is the satisfaction owners feel in the car's exceptional sturdiness.

The body proper is a hand-welded steel unit. It is now generally known that this novel construction has made possible Dodge Brothers enamel finish (instead of paint) which is baked at high temperature on the surface of the steel.

The trimness and grace of the body lines are enhanced by a non-rumble fabric top and rear quarters fashioned in the present attractive mode.

Genuine Spanish blue leather upholstery, wide snug-fitting doors and roomy luggage quarters heighten the impression you instantly get of the car's distinctive fitness for service, either business or social.

"EARL" TRIAL IS UNDER WAY

work for the Title Guaranty & Casualty Company of America in October, 1920, as a bookkeeper and was later made secretary of the company. In answer to the questions of Assistant Attorney General Smith, he testified that he and Greig had occupied adjacent offices at 431 Griswold Street, Detroit, in the Campau building and that in the spring of 1921, Greig, as president of the company, had ordered him to open a new set of books. He told the court that the old books had contained a list of all stock subscriptions up to that time and that Greig's idea in opening the new set of books was to show only such transactions as tallied with the amount for which the Casualty Company was responsible to the Securities Commission, or eighty-five per cent of the total receipts, plus the fifteen per cent allowed by the commission for expenses of stock sales. The old set showed subscriptions in excess of this amount and it was the "Earl's" intention that this excess should not show on the new books. In order to accomplish this, Noonan testified, it was necessary to go back over the old books and pick out enough of the transactions to transfer to the new books to agree with the total that the company showed on deposit with the commission.

Some time after this, according to Noonan's testimony, state insurance examiner, L. J. Trainor, appeared on the scene and was ushered into Greig's office. After a while, Greig came out of his office and instructed Noonan to take the stock registry of the new set of books in to Trainor for the latter's inspection. Noonan entered Greig's office with the new book, leaving the ledger of the old set on his own desk. When he returned, both Greig and the ledger were gone, and Noonan states that this was the last that he saw of any one of the three old books until more than a year later, when Simpson, the receiver's assistant, produced them from the vault of a lawyer whose office was on the same floor with the company's office in the Campau building.

Noonan was asked if he ever ran across in any of the books, an entry for the two $500.00 subscriptions made by Mrs. Mary E. Miller, of Charlevoix, but replied in the negative.

H. N. Duff, of the securities commission, was on the stand all of Friday morning and part of the afternoon. His statements developed the fact that the commission had been suspicious of Greig from the very first, as he had been connected with two other enterprises, the Buss Creamery Company, of Ironwood, and a chemical concern in Manistee, where the stock had been heavily "watered" with circumstances pointing to Greig's instrumentality in the "watering."

New characters appeared before the footlights, Saturday, in the names of Dayton W. Closser, general counsel and director of the Great Lakes Finance Corporation, with offices in the New Telegraph building, Detroit, and M. F. McDonald, Detroit attorney.

Mrs. Sara Turngren Greig, "Countess of Dunblane" and wife of the defendant, arrived in Charlevoix from Cheboygan Saturday morning and entered the court-room in the middle of the session. Judge Sample ordered a recess and the business of the court was suspended while Greig and his wife retired to an ante-room for a few minutes' chat. After the adjournment of court at noon, she spent the balance of the day with her husband in his cell at the jail.

Noonan, whose quizzing at the hands of the prosecution had occupied the greater part of Friday afternoon, was again called to the stand for cross-examination and to identify records of the company, showing the payment of certain bills, and checks signed by Greig, per his private secretary, drawn on the St. Ignace deposits, to a total of $1,000.

Noonan was asked by Shanahan if it was not true that Closser, who was one of the original incorporators of the Title Guaranty & Casualty Company, had occupied an office in the same suite with the company offices when Noonan was first employed by Greig. The witness admitted that this was so. He further testified that McDonald's office adjoined the company's suite in the Campau building and that it was in a vault in this office that the discarded records, spirited away by Greig on the occasion of the insurance examiner's visit, were subsequently found. Noonan disclaimed any knowledge of a plan by Closser for the taking over of the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co. by the Great Lakes Finance Corporation. He did admit, however, that the salaries of Closser and McDonald, as counsel, as well as those of Greig and himself, were paid out of the proceeds of stock sales.

At one point during the cross-examination of the witness for the state, it developed that in a certain instance he had received a pawn ticket for a diamond ring as payment for a certificate of stock, but as no money was left to redeem the ticket, no certificate was ever issued.

Shanahan demanded, Saturday, that all of the correspondence between Greig and other officers of the company, which had been seized by the State Insurance department, be produced, stating that it would be used by the defense in an endeavor to prove that Greig was acting under the direction of Closser and McDonald at all stages of the game.

The prosecution stated that they would call but one more witness before resting the case. This was generally accepted to mean that Greig would take the stand in his own behalf.

Sheriff Weaver received through the mails Monday a warrant for Greig's arrest, signed by Police Magistrate C. F. Maxwell, of St. Thomas, Ontario, which was accompanied by a letter from D. T. Augustine, chief constable of Aylmer, Elgin county, Ontario, asking that the "Earl" be held for the Canadian authorities, if acquitted here.

The charge against Greig in Aylmer is that he embezzled $350.00 paid to him by a resident of that place for stock in the Title Guaranty & Casualty Company. This transaction took place September 19, 1921. The letter accompanying the warrant states that Greig will be extradited to Canada if he is released here.

The proceedings on Monday indicate that the "Countess" Sara Greig's wife, would be called to the stand by her husband's counsel in his behalf, some of the conversations between Greig and Noonan having, it is alleged, taken place in her presence. She might be able to impeach some of Noonan's testimony, it was thought.

Noonan occupied the stand all day Monday and was subjected to cross-examination up until the adjournment of court. Shanahan's questioning was designed to show that Closser and McDonald—not Greig, had been the prime movers in the company's affairs, McDonald having succeeded Closser as general counsel for the company.

Documents purporting to be the original stock subscription and voting proxy of Mrs. Mary E. Miller, on whose complaint Greig is being tried, were produced by the defense in an effort to show that Greig had made no attempt to conceal the fact that Mrs. Miller had subscribed for stock and that the subscription had become a part of the company's records, although, it is alleged, he appropriated her payment of $1,000.00 to his own use.

Noonan, whose testimony began Friday afternoon, was on the stand all day Tuesday, subjected to Shanahan's cross-examination and the direct questioning of Asst. Attorney General Smith. The trial is moving very slowly and it is possible that night sessions may have to be held, in order to finish the trial by the end of the week.

Smith showed Noonan a telegram, addressed to the latter at Detroit, and signed by Greig at New York, under date of February 21, 1922, containing this statement: "We purpose to put everything on the books now"; asked him to identify it and tell what it meant. Noonan answered that he understood it to mean that they were to turn in all unreported stock subscriptions to the company. Smith asked how they had been treated prior to that time. STREET PERILS

Automobiles have brought a new peril to child life. The number of little folks who are run over by motor cars is large. Many drivers, of course, ought to be much more careful. But parents know the danger, and they will have to teach children to protect themselves. Teachers should have Safety First Talks, and instruct the children about the dangers of the street.

Streets have never been a suitable place for a playground, and they are less so now than ever before. Most of the youngsters who flock around in the highway could just as well play in back yards and vacant lots. But they like the excitement of the street.

A burnt child dreads the fire, and few children are ever hurt on a kitchen stove. They can be equally well taught to look out for motor cars.

There are in many places, neighborhoods where there seems to be no room for children to play unless they go on the street. Perhaps land owners in those neighborhoods are too fussy about trespassing by children. It is, of course, exceedingly annoying where the kid crowd makes a regular custom of crossing peoples' grounds on their way to school and elsewhere. But warning the youngsters off one's land when they come over occasionally and make a little noise, is rather hard.

Land owners who allow children to play over their vacant lots and back yards to a kindly act. The parents should appreciate it, and teach the children to reciprocate by avoiding all acts of mischief and to refrain from causing any disorder. Children need some place to kick up in, and if there are no back yards and no open ground they have to take the street, with its many hazards.

ROBBERS FIRE ON MACKINAW MAN

Pair of Desperadoes Make Escape From Village Marshal

Officers have found no trace of the two young desperadoes who last Wednesday attempted to slay Marshal Boone, of Mackinaw City, who had placed them under arrest as they boarded the car ferry.

Marshal Boone had arrested the two men as they were attempting to cross the Straits with a borrowed car, and they had submitted to arrest without offering resistance. He was unarmed at the time, and while in the act of placing them in the city bastille, one of the men pulled an automatic revolver shooting directly at the abdomen of the officer. Fortunately for the marshal it was loaded with a blank cartridge, and the shot resulted in only an ugly burn.

The escaped men were dressed in gray caps, khaki colored corduroy trousers and leather topped hunting boots, one of them wearing a blue shirt.

They are believed to be working their way south through the country. The car filled with the plunder from the Indian River robbery broke down near Alanson, and the robbers succeeded in borrowing a car at Alanson, in which they attempted to make their get-away at Mackinaw City.

It is now believed that the two men were trapping in the upper peninsula and came south to steal supplies. On their car they had 17 sacks of flour, several hundred pounds of sugar, stolen goods from summer cottages, etc.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Louis Geroux, Inveness township farmer, Emmet county, learned that beautifully constructed bird houses attract other things as well as birds. The junior Geroux constructed a beautiful bird house last spring and had it placed in the top of a high tree in the Geroux yard. Last week he induced his father to climb the tree to see what kind of birds had used his building. The father found out. A swarm of honey bees has found the place a handy hive and had stored their winter supply of honey there. Now the Geroux family has the honey and the bees have a regular hive for a home.

A business man of Harbor Beach has sold his store and will go on the vaudeville stage as a sleight-of-hand performer. This should be a relief to any of his business customers who may have suspected him of having something up his sleeve.

Two boys were recently caught in the act of throwing stones through the windows of the school house at Eastlake. From the outcry which followed a little later, it may be assumed that boys who live in thin trousers shouldn't throw stones.

The numerous reports from the upper peninsula of grown-ups as well as children being pursued by wolves to their very doors prove one thing very clearly. Inasmuch as all naturalists agree that except in case of desperate hunger wolves flee not only from the sight but from the very smell of man—in view of this fact the reports prove that either some of the aggressive dogs of the region, or some of the men who are keen to have the wolf bounty system restored, should be muzzled and tied up at home.

The capital punishment bill will come before the next legislature with good prospects, with public sentiment in its present state, that it will pass. Michigan was the first state to abolish capital punishment, doing so at the legislative session of 1847. Today eleven states, including Michigan, have substituted life imprisonment for the death penalty.

A farmer at Yates says he is at a loss to understand why his hired man has disappeared taking with him his—the farmer's—horse and buggy. Because the farmer did not have an automobile, is our solution.

A lawsuit is threatened in Sault St. Marie because one house is leaning over against the one next to it. If walls had ears, as the old saying goes, they'd probably all be leaning over this way, trying to go to sleep.

A young man who laughed too loud in a Bay City court room at a remark of one of the jurors was fined $50. This should teach people to be more careful not to use in the wrong place the laugh they intend for the judge's jokes.

A Shine in Every Drop

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By J. E. Jones

Regulating the Rich

There has been a merry passage of arms between Congressman Frear and Secretary of Treasury Mellon over the former's suggestion that an additional tax of twenty-five per cent be levied against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey - because that company has declared a stock dividend of 400 per cent. Mr. Mellon gets the better of his critic by showing that the earnings of the company already have been taxed, and that a further assessment would therefore be double taxation. "The declaration of a stock-dividend is not significant," says the head of the treasury, and he brings a decision of the Supreme Court to his assistance in showing that a stock-dividend is "merely book-keeping that does not affect the aggregate assets of the corporation or its outstanding liabilities." It is quite natural for the country to growl a good deal whenever the Rockefeller oil interests annex another corner of the world's wealth; but there must be something inconsistent about this general tendency since there is seldom anything but commendation when the equally prosperous Henry Ford pulls the same little financial stunt. When the rich Rockefeller interests increase the value of their oil stock four hundred per cent and own up to it by issuing new certificates of wealth to their shareholders, the proletariat world knows something is going wrong; but let the fellow described by George Eliot as "a serious awe whom none take seriously," and "obliged in this fool's world to earn his nuts by hard buffoonery," have the luck to "strike oil" and become a millionaire instead of a pauper over night, and—oh, that's different! His stock goes up so fast that it is only proper to speak of it as "wonderful," and it cannot be measured in percentage. Evidently the man who sits on the lid at the United States Treasury is hard-boiled when it comes to making a case against "book-keeping."

Scientific Tariff Revision

There is always an army of several thousand kinds of notions about tariff rates before a bill finally gets through Congress. And now that the tariff bill measure is a law the different dissatisfied business interests have started in to note their appeals with the Tariff Commission. This new commission has hardly had time to get its official feet beneath the mahogany, but nevertheless it is swamped with petitions to alter rates. The burden of the protest call for tariff revision downward, though there are some instances in which the upward trend meets favor. It is the understanding in Washington that the commission will determine what petitions it will, or will not, take up; and then proceed rather deliberately to the business of determining whether any economic conditions have changed enough to warrant going back of the schedules fixed by Congress. Where the petitioners succeed in convincing the commissioners the process of changing the tariff rates will be threshed out, and tariff changes put into effect through executive orders. President Harding is optimistic that the elastic features of the law will lead to scientific tariff revision during his present term of office.

America's Big Failure

There is a perfect storm of agitation in favor of unloading such shipping business as is controlled by the United States government onto private interests. The subsidy advocates say that the government is hampered by the seaman's law by reason of which American sailors are given the protection of a sort of trade unionism that enables them to get more pay than the sailors on foreign vessels. This is given as one reason why our ships do not pay. Another theory of the American failure at running a merchant shipping business is traced to the prohibition law. Still another story tells of the discriminations of the British government against our ships. All these reasons, we are told officially, afford the explanation of the great American fizzle, which it is proposed to wish unto private individuals. The panacea for remedying the above evils has not been broached. All one hears is—get rid of the ships.

Warfare Against Cancer

Cancer is now killing one out of every ten persons over forty years of age. The American Society for the Prevention of Cancer declares that "open warfare by open discussion will mean the prevention of many needless deaths." Taken at the very incipency a cancerous growth can be stopped and the victim saved. Because of this established fact in the medical world the physicians of the entire country have organized one of the greatest campaigns of education ever attempted, and during the week of November 12 to 18, it is expected that every intelligent person in the country who will give the time to listen can hear a physician tell how cancers are discovered, and their spread stopped.

Billions of Untaxed Securities

American genius early discovered George Washington as an uncommon child because he "could not tell a lie," but Diogenes is still out with his lamp looking for the rare bird who wants to pay the last penny due the tax collector. A generation ago no boy was looked upon as having completed his education unless he had helped "coon" watermelons. Up until a remarkable recent date most ocean travelers thought themselves lacking in some element of cleverness possessed by their fellow humans until they had "smuggled." Human nature must still have a few flaws because when it comes to tax-dodging we have an almost universal malady that is likely never to be cured. President Harding has several times directed attention to the biggest case in point, and it is announced that one of the policies of his administration will be to insist on another constitutional amendment that will prohibit further tax-exempt securities from being issued. No one seems to know just how this munia for "tax-exemption" securities started, but it is suspected that when enterprising American cities offered new factories "free taxes" that they sowed the wind that led to the ultimate whirlwind represented by the issuance of twenty million dollars worth of tax-free securities.

Lazy money has grabbed at tax-exempt securities with the result that the public revenue has not only suffered, but the whole industrial situation of the nation has been affected because new capital for development has been curtailed.

Law-making cannot reach the new national evil and it can be cured only by the major operation of a constitutional amendment. But Mr. Harding has given orders to prepare the instruments, the anesthetics and restoratives for a severe case of surgery; and the country will doubtless wish him every success when he starts carving the artful tax exempt dodger.

Pretty Dull in Washington

With Congress at recess, the coal and rail strikes over, and only the quarrelling of the Attorney General and the head of the American Federation of Labor for excitement, it is small wonder that copy writers in the National Capital find news so scarce. Mr. Daugherty declares that he is "attorney-generalizing" this country in a first-class manner, and he says that he will insist on the House of Representatives taking up the impeachment charges that have been lodged against him by Representative Keller. "Impeachment" is usually cheap talk, and doubtless Mr. Daugherty is convinced that the best way to put the opposition to him in a hole is to insist on action with reference to the charges now on file in the House. It is safe to say that about all that can come of such a matter will be a little discussion in the House someday, in which Keller will be the principal bone of contention because he has stirred up an inconvenient mess.

As I was concerned," the witness replied, "they did not belong to the company."

The prosecution endeavored to show by this testimony that from last February, until he left for Canada and up until his arrest in Montreal in August, the "Earl" lost no time in crowding back into the company records large numbers of stock subscriptions which had previously been held up. Among these belated entries was the subscription of Mrs. Miller, of Charlevoix, in the amount of $1,000.00.

A long list of subscriptions which Greig turned in following his trip to New York and the telegram to Noonan were made part of the evidence.

It is the contention of the defense that the Miller subscription and others had been reported promptly by Greig, but were not entered upon the books at the proper dates because of contrary instruction issued by other officers of the Company from the Detroit office. It was Shanahan's endeavor to show that Noonan, as secretary, took orders from Closser and McDonald as well as from Greig.

It is probable that the prosecution will rest its case today. Shanahan, has not yet stated what other witnesses he intends to call besides the "Earl." Up to Tuesday night, he had not decided whether or not he would put the "Countess" on the stand in her husband's behalf.

FIGHT TO BETTER RURAL EDUCATION

the right to say to rural school boards, "If you do not provide adequate schools I will, and charge the cost on the tax roll, and you must use the books specified and employ only teachers that I recommend."

According to Superintendent Johnson there is in some counties only $1,000 assessed valuation behind each child, and in others there is from $6,000 to $8,000. He would equalize these funds and would provide more money for the training of teachers.

President E. C. Warriner, of Central Normal school, was very positive that the rural school problem was the only educational problem that Michigan has not yet solved. The cities are better off than the country, he said, because they have better supervision and a willingness to pay the bills, whereas rural districts have little supervision and in many of them the taxpayers will not provide adequate funds.

Rural Schools Need Help

"I taught Michigan rural schools nearly 40 years ago," said President Warriner, and last month I visited 15 Michigan rural schools. In some I found conditions exactly like they were 40 years ago. It is impossible for any teacher to handle eight grades well. If her time is divided evenly there is seven-eighths of the time during which the children are not under her espionage. This tends to inactivity, and inactivity is the great bane of the rural school.

My second indictment is the program made necessary by having one teacher for eight grades. There are 330 minutes in each school day, and I found a teacher conducting 33 10-minute recitations. She was producing no tangible results. There should be more co-relation of subjects.

The most hopeful sign I have discovered is that a much larger percentage of rural pupils go to high school now than formerly.

"A good one-room, eight-grade school is an impossibility as long as the eight grades are being taught by one teacher," continued Superintendent Johnson. "Consolidation is the only solution, and this should be coupled with county unit system. We need county boards of education elected at large, and of something like seven members. The salaries of school commissioners long have been a disgrace to the state and should be increased. Also, the commissioner should have an assistant to aid weak teachers."

Probably the most picturesque talk given in the rural section was that of M. S. Pittman, of the state normal college at Ypsilanti.

Put Her On A Pedestal

"If I had my way," said Dr. Pittman, "I would say to a new teacher, 'I will give you one grade in a city school. If you make good on that job I will give you two grades and increase your pay. If you again do well I'll give you four grades and increase your salary again, and if you make good on that job I'll put gold slippers on your feet, wings on your shoulders, set you up on a pedestal, and let you have an eight-grade rural school at the highest salary paid teachers in Michigan.'"

Albert S. Cook, state superintendent of Maryland, said that in his state the law forced a higher salary for rural teachers than was paid city teachers.

More than a score well-known educators spoke at the various meetings. There were demonstrations in teaching silent reading, music, drawing, home economics and other subjects. The elementary and high school meetings were of absorbing interest. There was a meeting of the Parent-Teachers association, and one gathering devoted to an entire afternoon to a discussion of the flapper at home, in school, and in public life.

By the time a man learns something about an automobile it's time to buy a new one.

FARM LEADERS URGE STATE INCOME TAX

Says It Would Ease Tax Burden Now Borne By Real Estate

The Michigan State Farm Bureau, the Michigan State Grange and other farm organizations are urging their members to vote yes on the proposed state income tax measure which will appear on the ballots in November. Such a measure would place on the tax rolls an enormous wealth in stocks, bonds and other intangible property paying practically no state tax at present and would thereby relieve the enormous tax burden being carried by farm and town real estate, the farm organizations declare.

According to the Farm Bureau, five to ten billion dollars in stocks and bonds and other intangible property in Michigan is paying no state tax. On the other hand five billion dollars in farm and town estate, less than half the wealth of the state, has been carrying the entire annual state tax of $20,000,000. Hence, farmers hold that a state income tax at a fair and reasonable rate, would greatly relieve the heavy tax burden carried almost solely by real estate and would more justly distribute the tax burden.

tax-payer or the chain-store corporation? Right, Johnny, go up to the head of the class—you have the answer. Can the local merchant take the output of a factory, can he ship in his goods in car-load lots? The chain store does this. Furthermore, the "chain" store has the benefit of expert service in its buying department—men whose business it is to have their ears constantly to the ground to catch the trend of public desires and be instantly alert to satisfy them. The local merchant may be a good hearted chap, a worthy, public spirited citizen, but he is seldom an expert outside of his own line. Certainly he cannot compete with the highly trained big salaried buyer of the "chain" store corporation.

Turning to the matter of service, what do we find? The "chain" store does not deliver. No, you say, this makes the goods cheaper. Sure it does, but remember this fact the next time you pass old Bill Jones' store, where you traded for so many years before the new shiny cut-rate emporium came to town. Your arms are full of XYZ goods on which you have saved two cents a pound here, three cents there and a cent some place else. "By George," you say, "I forgot the kerosene for the oil stove and the XYZ store doesn't keep it. Well, Bill will help me out—Bill, old scout, send me up a couple of gallons of kerosene, will you? Right away, before supper, if you can. Sure, fine! Atta-Boy!" And Bill goes out, cranks up the old ole fiver and burns five cents worth of gasoline to deliver thirty cents worth of kerosene which probably cost him twenty-six cents, to say nothing of the rest of his overhead and the interest on his money invested in the business. Puzzle—where does Bill get off at? Maybe, you ask Bill to put in some lettuce, a box of fresh strawberries or some other perishable delicacy with the kerosene. This makes it a little better. Good old Bill! He took the risk of having the stuff go bad on his hands so that you could pick it up on your way home from the XYZ store where they don't take any risks on perishable goods—simply don't handle them, that's all.

Here's another thing to remember. Next time you buy in an XYZ store (of course, we expect you will trade there once in a while in spite of this article) note where you save on the price, as compared with the other stores. You will find, if you keep watch that it is on staples, the same as you can get at any store—sugar, cheese, butter, oatmeal, breakfast foods. These are a few cents cheaper. Now, notice before you leave the store, if you are not urged to buy something with the XYZ brand on it. Maybe it is coffee, tea, or spice, or possibly soap. Here's where the chain store gets back the few cents it let you save on the staples. The branded goods are factory-output stuff, bought at prices impossible to the home-town merchant, but which net a handsome profit to the corporation running the "chain" store.

The plea of this article is simply this: Don't forget your home dealer or make him take the dirty end of the grocery business simply for the sake of a few cents saving. Give him a reasonable share of your patronage, remember that he pays taxes, that he owns property here, his children receive their schooling in our schools. Remember also, that he stands back of every movement for civic improvement with his time and money. This is certainly more than you can say for the "chain" store magnate, isn't it?

Come to the chicken-pie supper at the Baptist church Friday evening. Bill 35c.—Adv. 4411.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The foot ball squad arrived in Portland Thursday noon and received a hearty welcome from the whole city. Friday afternoon the game was played on a very sandy field, which fact accounts, in part, for our defeat. Our team being a little disorganized, Portland carried off the honors, 39 to 0. Portland was surely surprised to see such a clean playing bunch of fellows. Our boys were royally entertained at the school house in the evening.

On Saturday they proceeded to Ann Arbor where they witnessed the big Michigan-Illinois game and acquired a good deal of the "pep" of the university. During the Portland game so many players were hurt that it kept the coach, Altenburg, busy with his "medicine case." On a drop kick "Doc" Todd got through the line, jumped in the way of the ball, then stumbled and before he could pick himself up, coach Altenburg was on the field with his medicine case. He thought "Doc" was laid out. He should have known better. The wanderers returned, some on Sunday night and other Monday morning. While leaving Reed City one of our team, not sure of his direction, hailed a passing pedestrian. He: The way to Big Rapids? She: I hey your pardon? He: To Big Rapids. She: No! I don't want to go to Big Rapids.

John: I heard Portland phoned Charlevoix.

J. C.: That was just a joke that went around.

Joe: It sure was a one sided joke. Charlie: We didn't get a chance to laugh.

"What is sadder than the man who loses his last friend?"
"The student who works for his board and loses his appetite."

Twenty-five new books have been received for the high school and new book cases have been ordered. When these arrive the school library will be re-catalogued by the English Department.

Next Saturday Charlevoix has a game with Mancelona, at that place. It will be a good game, for Mancelona has a good fast team.

Chapel Monday morning—Miss Vincent talked on the importance of the commercial department. Miss Cotton spoke of time, and its usage. Mrs. Rose listed the uses of, and abuses of the American flag, and told us of the origin of Hallowe'en.

The grades are having their annual Hallowe'en parties. Even the faculty had their party in the kindergarten room last Monday evening.

GHOST WALKED THE SOUTH BEACH

Shuddering But Delighted Guests Were Led Wild Chase

A very unique and interesting Hallowe'en affair was held at the home of Mrs. Hurley Oels, on Clinton Street last Monday evening.

Invitations, signed by "The Old Witch," were sent out to about twenty-two ladies to meet the writer at her big bonfire on the south beach at the witching hour of seven-thirty. No one knew who their ghostly hostess might be, but all assembled, as directed, and were led a merry chase by the unknown sorceress, who was correctly garbed and masked, a la Hans Andersen, Grimm and Mother Goose, up hill and down dale, through the park and the school yard and finally by devious ways into her own back yard and into the house where her mystified followers found pumpkins, black cats, ghosts and everything just awful scary.

The evening was hilariously spent, performing Hallowe'en stunts and enjoying the feast prepared by their hostess. All present expressed the hope that such hospitable ghosts might often frequent our shores.

REMAINS BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL

Friends Pay Last Regards to Slain Woman

The funeral of Alta Loper Joyce, victim of her insanely jealous husband, and who died from gun shot wounds in a hospital at New Bedford, Mass., Tuesday, October 24, was held from the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Conto, Jr., Friday afternoon of last week, Rev. H. R. E. Quant of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

Mrs. Charles Loper of Flint, mother of the slain woman, was with her daughter, who was conscious until the end came. The little son, Junior, has been adopted by Mrs. Loper.

The many beautiful floral tokens and attendance of friends at the funeral showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

WRECKAGE FLOATS UP ON THE EAST SHORE

Part of "Hyacinth's" Launch Found on South Fox

On the "Hyacinth's" trip to South Fox Island, Saturday, a part of the launch that was lost in the gale of October 24th, when George Brown, the first mate, was drowned, was found on the lee or eastern shore of the island.

From the condition of the wreckage when found it looked as though the launch's engine had jammed itself clear through her bottom under the terrific pounding of the waves.

The location of the shattered half of the launch leads to the belief that the body of Brown will be found on the east side of the island, when the luke finally gives it up.

Buy Your Furniture and Stoves Now and Save Money

We are receiving letters every day advising us of advanced prices. The factories who have not already advanced their prices will do so before January 1st, 1923. This means that on all merchandise bought for the next years market we will have to pay from 10 to 20 per cent more than the same goods on our floor has cost us, and of course the consumer will have to pay the price if he buys.

You may say, why this advance in prices? "I thought prices were going down." Answer: Plate glass has advanced 25 per cent since the new Tariff Law was passed. Furniture lumber has advanced from 10 to 20 per cent during the past two months. Labor in many cases is higher than it was a year ago, and the unions are asking still further advances. With these facts before you, you must not expect but what merchandise will cost more.

Furniture at our present prices are as much a bargain as it would have been at 25 per cent discount last summer. If you are going to need furniture either this fall or next year, it will pay you to buy now.

We have a fairly good stock and want to unload by January 1st to make room for new goods which we must buy in January. This is not a loss to us as we have acquired the merchandise in stock at prices which makes it possible to sell during this year at last Spring's prices.

GREIG TRIAL WAS ADJOURNED

FINAL BATTLE OPENS AGAIN
ON NOVEMBER 13

Miss McCarthy, Greig's Secretary, To Testify—"Earl" Will Take Stand in Own Behalf

Wednesday, November 1st, was given over at the Greig trial to the examination of Arthur S. Simpson, assistant to the receiver for the company.

A startling revelation was made during the testimony of this witness to the effect that a book of duplicate stock certificates were kept at the office of the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co. to be issued to investors whose money, it is alleged, the "Earl" put in his own pocket. It was the prosecution's contention that this was Greig's method of satisfying the stockholders without the record of their subscriptions appearing upon the books of the company. One of these duplicates, originally issued to Sheriff George W. Weaver, for $200.00, was introduced in evidence.

During the assistant attorney general's examination of Simpson, the witness, several times, spoke of the duplicate certificates as "phony." This term Shanahan, counsel for the defendant, strongly objected to. "It is a stock registry," said he. "You can register a cow," Smith came back sharply, "but that doesn't excuse you from giving its pedigree." So slowly had the case progressed up until Wednesday morning, that Judge Sample warned the attorneys for both defense and prosecution that they must speed up, or he would be obliged to adjourn court for two or three weeks and return to his own district to clean up the calendar there. He also announced that evening sessions would be held, but this plan was subsequently abandoned.

A number of checks made out to Greig by various investors were presented as evidence. They bore his endorsement and the "Paid" stamp of an East Jordan bank on which the checks were drawn. One of these, the check of Charles A. Hudson, a shoe merchant of East Jordan, for $25.00, part payment on a stock subscription, bore the endorsement of "A. J. W. Greig" and underneath it was further endorsed, "Countess of Dunblane."

"Do you know of any business the 'Countess of Dunblane' had with the company that she should endorse its checks?" asked attorney general Smith. "I do not," answered the witness.

An audit of the company's books, made by Joseph Froggatt & Company, of New York, was brought in to the case. In the auditor's report comment was made on the salary contract which the company had made with Dayton W. Closser, of Detroit as general counsel. His salary, originally $5,000.00 a year, was increased later to $7,500.00 and a contract drawn up providing for a yearly increase to this figure of $1,000. Closser's resignation in February, 1921, four months before the Froggatt audit was made, voided this contract. The report of the audit contained these significant words: "The company is to be congratulated on its release from this exorbitant contract."

The Froggatt audit also showed that in nine months time the "Earl's" salary, as president, had been raised from $7,500.00 to $10,000.00 a year. Greig's contract, like that of Closser, contained a provision for a yearly increase of $1,000.00 thereafter. It also appeared that the company was in arrears to Greig on this salary account to the extent of $10,463.00.

The defense claims that the above named arrearage and $14,000.00 in addition was due the "Earl" on unpaid stock sales commissions and money advanced by him on office rent and furniture and that this total more than offset the amounts he is alleged to have misappropriated. In contradiction to this the prosecution pointed out a statement included in the auditor's report to the effect that Greig had "waived his claim for salary due and agrees it is not to be considered a liability against the company."

The distinctive feature of the trial in Thursday's proceedings was a dinner party for seven of the directors, held at the hotel Stader, in Detroit, on April 29, 1921.

During the testimony of Robert F.

Sloan, of Charlevoix, it developed that the dinner was held in the hotel room of George Curry, one of the directors, and that, during the affair, Scotch whiskey was served to the guests. Sloan is one of the directors of the Casualty Company and had an interest of $2,500.00 in the concern. He was also the prime mover in the proceedings instituted by the stock-holders to demand an accounting from the "Earl."

Cross-examined by Lisle Shanahan, counsel for the defendant, Sloan admitted the presence of the whiskey but could not say whether or not the bottles carried Greig's private crest. He denied any knowledge as to the truth of the allegation that the dinner and the whiskey were paid for out of the company's funds. His replies to Shanahan's questions were snappy and afforded the audience much amusement.

Mention of the crest gave Assistant Attorney General Ora I. Smith, who is conducting the prosecution, an opportunity to offer for the jury's inspection one of Greig's private envelopes, carrying his titular crest, which shows a lion rampant, crowned, surmounting an inscription in Gaelic, which the "Earl" translated to read, "Royalty is my race."

The witness testified that he had paid in $1,500.00 on his $2,500.00 subscription, but had received stock certificates for only $1,000.00. The checks with which his payments were admitted as evidence by Judge Sample, on the production from the witness's office here of one of their number, drawn October 11, 1921, on a Charlevoix bank, for $125.00, in favor of A. J. W. Greig, president. It was endorsed on the back by Greig as president, his personal endorsement. (Continued on Page 8.)

SKUNKS AND A LOST HORSE

DISTURB THE PEACE AT NORWOOD SUNDAY

Rescuers of the Lost Meet Them selves Coming Back Through Wilds of Canada Thistles

The usual quiet and sanctity of the eastern portion of Norwood, was seriously disturbed Sunday evening. Mr. H. K. Pierce started after dark to see where his horse, named Ned, had established himself for the night, the animal having failed to return home.

While near the Swartout premises, he heard boys shouting and a dog barking, and concluding that some hunters were lost in the woods, he started to the rescue.

Meanwhile, at the Pierce home, the members of the family concluding it was enough to have a horse missing without losing "Daddy" as well, had Frank Brown start out to find one or both of the errant members.

When in his turn, Frank reached the Swartout place, urgent appeals for assistance came to his ears out of the gloom and thinking that Mr. Pierce was in dire need, he dashed wildly through the almost impenetrable masses of Canadian thistles, plunging into holes and over banks.

Arriving on the scene of the out-cry, he discovered, Cecil Richardson and Robert Sarasin, who, with the assistance of the farmers dog, had unearthed a litter of skunks and were screeching to someone or somebody to "come, help and bring a crowbar, quick!"

It transpired that Mr. Pierce had found the boys and had gone to get Mr. Richardson, so Mr. Brown started that way and met Mr. Richardson coming to the party with various heartfelt comments on "that god-damn dog" and intimating that said dog's proficiency on this occasion was unappreciated.

Two skunks were dug out and dispatched, everybody went home, and the usual quiet descended once more.

GOOD RESPONSE HOSPITAL WEEK

DONATIONS EXCEEDED COMMITTEE'S EXPECTATIONS

Supplies Received Sufficient to Carry Through Winter—Light Delicacies Wanted

The appeal made to the public for donations during "Hospital Week" in this city met with a generous response from both town and country.

Letters were sent out by the committee to neighboring farmers soliciting gifts of vegetables, canned fruits, etc., and on last Friday men and trucks were sent to the outlying districts to collect the donations. The supplies brought in, together with the materials left at the hospital and at the Laeb farms office on Bridge Street, were amply sufficient to carry the hospital through the winter. Apples, carrots, squash, beets, chickens and canned fruits were in abundance, and the hospital board and staff desire through these columns to express their heartfelt appreciation for the gratifying results of their appeal, and thanks to the individuals who volunteered with their trucks to aid in the collection of the gifts. From the attitude of the people throughout this region, as reported to the committee, it is evident that were the hospital board forced to close the building through lack of funds or supplies the loss would be very keenly felt by the community at large.

To the townspeople and persons in the immediate neighborhood of the hospital, and to their country neighbors as well, we might say, in behalf of the hospital board and staff, that small individual gifts of luxuries and homemade dainties for the consumption of the patients and staff might be made from time to time at the will and convenience of the donors. Anything in the way of fruits, good coffees and teas, home-made condiments, salads, preserves, jellies, pickles, chili sauce or chowchow, cookies or fried cakes furnished from time to time would greatly help to vary the monotony of a heavier and more substantial diet.

The hospital board are preparing a brief report for the month of September, covering the activities and finances of the hospital, and a more detailed one for October. This will bring up to date a system of regular monthly reports to be made from now on, and which will appear in the columns of this paper, as issued.

GROESBECK, TOWNSEND, SCOTT AND PEARSON LEADING

Incomplete Reports Indicate That Charlevoix County Will Go Strongly Republican

Up to the time the count stopped coming in over the wires last night, the indications were that the Republican candidates were leading heavily everywhere in Charlevoix county.

At eleven o'clock, Tuesday night, eleven townships of the county had been heard from. Groesbeck was well in the lead of his Democratic opponent; Scott way ahead of Rayburn; Townsend showing a slight increase over Ferris and Pearson fairly swamping McCabe in the race for state senator. The vote on the amendments indicated that they carried comfortably in the county.

In greater detail—at the hour indicated above, ten precincts gave Groesbeck for governor, 366; Cummins 153. Six precincts gave Frank D. Scott, for representative in Congress, 227 against his opponent, Rayburn's 80. Ten precincts gave Townsend, for U. S. Senator, 289, against Ferris, 249. Seven precincts gave Pearson, republican candidate for state senator, 249 votes against 28 cast for his opponent, McCabe.

The vote by wards in the city of Charlevoix were as follows:

1st ward, Groesbeck 59, Cummins 17, Townsend 54, Ferris 23, Scott 59, Rayburn 13, Pearson 57, McCabe 14.

2nd ward—Groesbeck—160, Cummins 51, Townsend 128, Ferris 82, Scott 159, Rayburn 42, Pearson 158, McCabe 34.

3rd ward—Groesbeck 75, Cummins 131, Townsend 62, Ferris 46, Scott 76, Rayburn 25, Pearson 75, McCabe 25.

No outside figures have as yet been received, with the exception of reports from Emmet county, indicating that this county gave Townsend a majority of 700; and Cheboygan county, where Ferris won over his opponent by 500 majority and Groesbeck carried everything before him.

More complete figures will appear in our next week's issue. The vote, as given above, represents the information available at this time.

Under the fuel control law recently passed by the legislature.

This was the ruling of the attorney general's department in reply to William W. Potter, who sought an opinion in the matter.

The legal department also held that a farmers' co-operative elevator company, which purchases and distributes coal to its members, and a gas company, manufacturing and selling coke, come within the provisions of the act and must obtain licenses.

GREIG IS SUED FOR TEN THOUSAND

Detroit Parties Procure Summons
In Damage Suit

Another whack at the luckless "Earl!" As he lies languishing in the local hoosegow, along comes a Praceipe for Summons, forwarded by Ferguson & Ferguson, Detroit attorneys, spelling more trouble for A. J. W. Greig, the titled Scottish promoter, on trial for embezzlement of moneys paid to him for stock in the erstwhile Title Guaranty & Casualty Company.

This formidable sounding document was received Monday by County Clerk Richard Lewis and is simply an order to the clerk to issue summons and serve on Greig through the sheriff in the matter of a suit which has been commenced against the "Earl" by Peter Zubrigge and Otto Oderfer of Detroit, acting as co-partners, in an amount not to exceed ten thousand dollars. It is not known for exactly what amount suit is being brought, but ten thousand dollars is the outside limit, according to the summons of the court which accompanied the praceipe, or order for summons. The summons issued to the clerk will be served upon Greig immediately and it will be necessary for him to respond to same through his attorneys within a certain specified period or lose the suit by default.

This is the first time in the experience of Clerk Lewis that a summons sent to him has been accompanied by the Praceipe, or Order For Summons. Usually the summons comes alone, to be followed later by the Declaration, or statement of the case.

FINE PROGRAM BY ADANAC QUARTET

OPENING NUMBER OF SCHOOL
LECTURE COURSE GIVEN

Visiting Artists Entertain Large Audience With Solos, Quartets,
Duets and Feature Numbers

The Adanac male quartet, the first number of the high school lecture course, was greeted Tuesday evening, October 31, with the usual splendid attendance accorded the course in previous years.

The individual members of the quartet entertained the gathering with solos and duets and the ensemble selections were most heartily received. The applause given the quartet was only exceeded by that given the numbers by R. Ruthven McDonald, as he entertained the audience with songs, cantillations and funny stories.

A monologue, "Reminiscences of an Old Soldier," with the soliloquy, "The Old Shoe," with Miss Helen Smith at the piano, delighted the audience with their humor, intermingled with pathos. "The Foral Dance" was splendidly interpreted, and "The Chip of the Old Block" and "Bipity Bob" were met with peals of laughter.

J. O'Meara, baritone, made a strong appeal to his audience with the splendid rendition of his songs. The duet, "The Tenor and the Baritone," presented by Mr. O'Meara and Mr. Hallman, were especially well received, as were also a number of selections by Mr. Lightbown.

The quartet opened the program with "The Hymn of Action" and closed it with a quartet arrangement of the "Sextette from Lucin." Other numbers which proved exceptionally popular were "Annie Laurie," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" and "Deep River."

Miss Smith proved herself an able pianist and accompanist.

The personnel of the quartet is R. Ruthven McDonald, basso; J. Riley Hallman, second tenor; H. Lightbown, first tenor, and J. O'Meara, baritone. The first half of the program was given in highland Scotch costume.

FOX FARMING NEXT INDUSTRY

TWO RANCH PROPOSITIONS
NOW UNDER WAY

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Sears and Mrs.
Harry Nicholls Launching
New Enterprise

Charlevoix is about to add fox farming to her list of infant industries.

There are two projected enterprises in this field—one under consideration and the other already started. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Sears, who purchased a farm in Eveline township about a year ago, acquired at about the same time three pairs of breeding black foxes. These original pairs and their progeny now number thirteen—an increase of over one hundred per cent on their original investment.

Their property, which comprises 120 acres, situated on the west shore of South Arm, just south of Holy Island, and between the farm of Robert Morse and Eveline Orchards resort, was originally purchased with the idea of ultimately converting it into a fox farm. The location is ideal for the purpose and its desirability for fox breeding was passed upon, prior to the purchase, by an expert in her line, Mrs. Eva Gordon, of Traverse City, who is a recognized authority on the raising of the silver-black variety. She has studied the habits of these valuable beasts in Alaska, and is proprietress of one of the largest fox farms in the state, located at Traverse City.

The land is well removed from the main highway, but can be easily reached by a township road which bounds it on the south. Part of it is cleared, and this cleared portion will be devoted to cherry raising, while the thickly wooded section will be used for the fox pens.

The caretaker's home, an attractive bungalow of five rooms, measuring 24 x 28 feet, is now in process of erection, while the fences and pens will be put up next summer. In the fall, Mr. and Mrs. Sears expect to start fox "farming" in earnest.

Mrs. Harry Nicholls, of this city, is the promoter and backer of the latest development in what promises to be a flourishing regional industry. She intends to use the land held by herself and husband lying between the Loch farms and the city property on Pine lake as a fox farm and has enlisted the support of Dr. A. Mickelson, of Washington, D. C., who was here last summer and is enthusiastic over prospects for successful fox raising in this locality. Dr. Mickelson is now in Labrador, but will keep in close touch with the proposition. This latest project is now only awaiting the formation of an organization and the perfection of definite plans.

Silver fox fur is inimitable and cannot be reproduced by artificial means. The rapid destruction of our fur-bearing wild life is making all natural fur more and more valuable each year. Fox raising is not, therefore, likely to be overdone for many years and one large city like Chicago could easily absorb the entire output of all ranches now existing on this continent.

POMONA GRANGE MEET NOVEMBER 11

Prominent Speaker Will Address Grange Members

The meeting of Charlevoix Pomona Grange set for Saturday, November 11, with Maple Grove grange, gives every promise of being well attended by members of the order throughout the county.

Dr. Mumford, of the Michigan Agricultural college, will be present, and what he will have to say will be of great interest to agriculturalists. W. F. Taylor of New Era, one of the best posted and most prominent grange workers in the state, will also be present and address the meeting.

Both men are splendid speakers and after one hears them a new impetus is given, and renewed interest prevails in the work of the farm. Fall work on the farm must be well in hand by this time and a day off, mingling with fellow workers, will be a vacation of not only recreation, but also one of profit to those who attend this meeting.

Circulation counts—we have it.

A number of residents from this section attended the auction sale Thursday, at the Geo. Everts farm, near Phelps.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hanna and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner of Charlevoix, were Sunday visitors with relatives at Norwood.

Albert Holmes, wife and son, Ivan, and Kenneth Pierce, were Sunday guests at the H. Pierce home and attended church at Norwood.

The Rev. Mr. Mokma of the Cadillac circuit, filled the pulpit of the Norwood church Sunday and preached to a fair sized audience. A very pleasing vocal selection was rendered by Rev. and Mrs. Mokma and Rev. and Mrs. Frook.

The L. A. S. met last Wednesday at the school house, with Mrs. Cora Willis, and after listening to the splendid school work and noting the progress of the pupils, the regular business meeting was held. Light refreshments were served by the hostess, and the ladies departed declaring a most delightful afternoon.

A number of friends and neighbors met at the home of Mrs. Henry Carman last Thursday evening, to bid her farewell upon her departure for Winnetka, Wisconsin, where she will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Low Owens. The evening was spent in visiting and singing, and a special comb orchestra composed of the Mesdames Richardson, Pierce and Alward, rendered touching selections. After delightful refreshments the guests departed, wishing Mrs. Carman a pleasant winter and hoping to see her with us again in the spring.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

The evenness of performance so often remarked in Dodge Brothers Motor Cars is due, in no small part, to the thoroughness with which each unit is inspected during the process of manufacture and assembly.

A trained staff of 800 experts is employed in this work alone, and approximately 5285 individual inspections are made on each car.

So exacting and rigid are the standards applied to these inspections that the slightest variation either in workmanship or material is instantly discovered and rejected.

Dodge Brothers are almost over-scrupulous in their constant aim to make each car as sound and perfect as is humanly possible.

Conservationists Want to Know

Fifteen years ago there was a regular rule time over the question of "conservation." President Roosevelt backed Forester Pinchot in the latter's demands for conserving the natural resources of the country and in insisting that Congress provide methods for developing those resources for the benefit of the whole people. Mr. Pinchot and the men who fought, bled, died, and got on top of the political heap again, have been in Washington again very recently, and one of their number, Philip P. Wells, who served with Pinchot in the Forestry Service, has issued a formal statement giving notice to the foes of conservation that the old warriors are all on earth again, and that the specific and exact spot where they are to be found when "conservation" is at stake will be in the front line of fighting for the Federal Water Power Act. The names of James Garfield, Walter L. Fisher, John Barton Payne, Henry L. Stimson, Newton D. Baker, Lindsay M. Garrison, David F. Houston, Edwin T. Meredith, Henry J. Allen, Joseph M. Dixon, William Kent, and other prominent conservationists are listed in the new "national committee for the defence of the act." "It is significant," says Mr. Wells, "that the foes of the Federal Water Power Act do not appear to include the large group of interests which are the main investors in and developers of water power. These formerly antagonistic interests now, as a rule, admit that the Act is practicable and are willing to develop water power under its provisions." This statement is not at all strange since most of the great business interests of the country, including the railroads, Standard Oil, the public utilities, and financial groups have all been "knocked in the head" and found that it did them good since Pinchot and progressive politics were less than twenty years ago. It took a long time to convince these latter groups of the necessity for a certain amount of control of their affairs, but since they have been working under this kind of a system they find it very helpful to have a sort of clearing house that will adjust their relations with the client-public.

The new water power law was the culmination of one of the hard-fought struggles in political history. Under its provisions several hundred new power developments have been created in the United States. The progress has been so steady that it looks as though eventually perpetual water power might supplant annual coal strikes. But this act does not suit the convenience of everybody, and there are powerful movements in the country that threaten to undermine its great purpose.

Ford's Interference

Conservationists are united in the opinion that Henry Ford's proposals for Muscle Shoals violates every one of the principles of the Federal Water Power Act. The act fixes a half-century as the maximum period for the lease of a water power by the government. It took Congress many years to agree to so long a time as fifty years, but it is said to have taken Henry Ford three hours to decide to go into the Muscle Shoals proposition and to require Congress a lease for a hundred years. Further proof, that Ford works fast! "If this proposal were accepted," says a statement by defenders of the act, "every corporation which has, or desires, a water power privilege would demand a lease on Mr. Ford's terms." There are a few other little things that Mr. Ford would like to have that are not in the water power law, and among these trifles it is pointed out that Mr. Ford does not recognize that principle that the lessee shall pay the government an annual rental for the power privilege, and when it comes to regulation by the government of the state every spark-plug in his invention is missing. The question of any excess profit over a fair and liberal return, to be made good in lower rates to the public, does not appear to have been considered in Mr. Ford's proposals to the government, and the priority claims of states and cities in the matter of power is not in the reckoning.

The conservationists have no objections against Mr. Ford, but they do not find his interference in the established order for administering the water power act full of what Milton called "trouble-some diseases."

Doctoring by Radio

The U. S. Public Health Service has gone into partnership with the Seaman's Church Institute of New York, and the Radio Corporation of America, with the result that medical advice for ships at sea is now available by simply "calling" by wireless. For the first hundred years in America "going for the doctor" was one of the pet projects of writers of fiction and facts. Even George Washington died before his time because it took seven or eight hours to "get the doctor." Most of the smaller ships and a great many of the freighters on the high seas do not carry doctors, and medical attention in the past has been mostly prescriptions from the Captain of salts and calomel. But the onward march of radio communication has changed all that, and as a result of the activities in the opening paragraph each ship on the ocean is now being equipped with a standard medicine chest and a few instruments. When lives are to be saved and stomachs calmed, and there is no physician aboard, the wireless operator merely calls up one of the medical stations on shore, describes the condition, and a doctor sends back word just what to do. Enthusiasts in the Public Health Service in Washington declare that the time will come when they can supplement the method of looking at the tongue and taking the temperature of the patient no matter how far away on the water he may be.

"The Living Wage"

The Railroad Labor Board has been in the public eye a great deal during late months. Recently it has split very badly upon the determination of the relative merits of the "living wage." The board evidently has an internal scrap on hand that is worse than a church row, if its work is to be judged by the comments in one of the dissenting opinions of a member, who says "I was not permitted to see the majority statement. Now that I have read it I find that it is fallacious and contains untruths."

"The Living Wage" is a figure of speech around which the Railroad Labor Board has been constructing arguments to support the wages scales which they create, and which sometimes are respected, and which again merely lead to strikes. But the board, with all its slips twice "the cap and the lip" is evidently doing constructive work in arriving at what is, more correctly speaking, a proper wage, rather than "a decent wage" and "the living wage." Its reports have an important bearing upon the larger issues as to what an industry can stand in the way of wages, and what workmen actually earn and should be paid for their services. Naturally the answers to these questions are not apt to be definitely furnished by any board or group of students, since they involve pretty nearly every issue in the whole economic puzzle. But it does seem to have been found out by belated observers that workmen employed at machines that have a given capacity are doing eight hours work in an eight hour day, and not ten or eleven hours—as the elaborate enthusiasts have been telling us, since the speed of the machines with which they keep up has not been changed. It also seems to be sinking in on the public that the question of wages and hours of work should be judged by Christian standards rather than by arbitrary monetary necessities. The Railroad Labor Board has emphasized these principles, and there are many people who believe that its misfortune in making itself rather generally disliked are apt to rebound to the public good, since thoughtful people are inclined after reading its opinions to turn to Rockefeller, and Gompers, and Hoover, to get genuine intellectual nourishment.

Mind your business and it will mind you.

WORTH OF CHILDREN

The Omaha Bee recently offered some prizes for editorials from its readers. The one given below on "My Children's Worth" was winner of first prize in the amateur class, and it discusses an issue vital to all progressive and growing cities:

"My neighbor has prospered. His home is the last word in modern architecture and equipment. It is his hobby. He loves every board and block and nail in it. He surrounds it with grassy plots and shrubs and flowers, and adorns it inside and out according to his own sense of artistic grace and beauty. Not only is his home a source of pride and satisfaction to my neighbor, but by its beauty and grace and general attractiveness it sheds distinction and adds to the value of property around it.

"Now, my house is a modest affair. It needs paint and the roof does not cover it as well as the mortgage. What is meant for a grassy plot shows bare patches like the exposed portions of a little boy's trousers.

And, instead of graceful, flowering vines, my house is over-run by little rosy ramblers who clamber about, scrapping off the paint, and leaving muddy streaks in their wake. There are five of them, and all the hard work, sacrifices and care they mean to me is nothing compared to the pride I have in their clear eyes, clean minds and sturdy bodies. To the hope I hold in their future the present struggle to keep them clothed, housed and fed is a small affair. They represent my family estate. To them I hope to leave an inheritance of character, and courage. And to the world I shall bequeath, no large sums for charity, schools or hospitals, but a family of men and women equipped to take up the problems of life.

"But when my neighbor begins to talk about taxes I have an uneasy feeling, that according to his way of looking at it, I should have drowned these dimpled babies before their eyes were open. He has it figured out to a penny how much it is costing him to educate my children. Now, I am paying taxes, too, but for nine months of the year my children are under the supervision of trained teachers, men and women of unquestionable character and high ideals. It doesn't seem to me that they are receiving exorbitant wages. But my neighbor has no children. To him school is just a building that costs too much in the first place, is costing too much in the upkeep, and doesn't give back a profit to the town.

"I believe my neighbor is wrong. My children have a monetary value to the town. For their needs my earnings are spent. I buy from him such things as he has to sell, thereby adding to his riches. I go farther: I am not raising pigs for profit; nor cattle for the mart, but raw material for the nation of tomorrow. They are not mine alone. They belong to my neighbor as well. It's to his interest as well as mine that they become fit and useful citizens. As they are trained, as they are educated, they will develop. The community has a part in that development. My neighbor has no more right to spread propaganda for cheap schools, a big game system that will dwarf the future of my children, than I have to throw trash in his front yard."

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

Next Sunday evening, under the leadership of Mr. Ernest Peaslee, we will study the topic, "The Meaning of Church Membership." The scripture lesson will be found in Matt. 28; 18-20; Ephesians, 2:19-22; 1 Timothy 3: 14, 15.

We should like to see every member of our society present next Sunday evening and as many as possible endeavor to bring someone else.

Mr. Peaslee has asked that if anyone has any questions regarding church-membership that he would like to have answered, to write it on a slip of paper and hand it to him before or at Sunday school time, if possible, and he will answer or have it answered. Let us have a round-table discussion of this topic. We have interesting and instructive meetings, but our regret is that more of our young people do not attend.

Let everyone of our young people as well as others, make it a point to come and bring someone else with you next Sunday.

Prayer meeting is held on Thursday evening at 7:30. Bear this in mind and let us see you on next Thursday.

RURAL CARRIERS EXAMINATION ANNOUNCED

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held at Charlevoix, Michigan, on November 25, 1922, to fill the position of rural carrier at Ellsworth and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from that post office. The salary of a rural carrier on a standard daily wagon route of 24 miles is $1,800 per annum, with an additional $30 per mile per annum for each mile or major fraction thereof in excess of 24 miles. The salary on motor routes ranges from $2,450 to $2,600 per annum, according to length. Separate examinations for motor routes and wagon route are no longer held. Appointments to both positions will be made from the same register. The examination will be open only to citizens who are actually domiciled in the territory of the post office where the vacancy exists and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form 1977. Both men and women, if qualified, may enter this examination, but appointing officers have the legal right to specify the sex desired in requesting certification of eligibles. Women will not be considered for rural carrier appointment unless they are the widows of U. S. soldiers, sailors, or marines, or the wives of U. S. soldiers, sailors, or marines who are physically disqualified by reason of injuries received in the line of military duty. Form 1977 and application blanks may be obtained from the local secretary Mason H. Rose or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C. Applications should be forwarded to the commission at Washington, D. C., at the earliest practicable date.

W. U. RESUMES OVERSEAS SERVICE

Cable Letters for Next Day's Delivery May Be Filed Now

The Western Union Telegraph Co. announces the resumption on November 1 of the cable letter and weekend letter service to Great Britain and Ireland.

Cable letters may be filed at any time and are delivered the following day. Week-end letters may be filed at any time prior to midnight on Saturday and are delivered on Monday morning.

The rate for a cable letter to London and Liverpool will be one-third the regular cable rate and the rate for a week-end letter one-quarter of the regular cable rate, in each case with a maximum of twenty words including the necessary prefix placed before the address to indicate the class of service. To places in the United Kingdom other than London and Liverpool there is an added charge of two cents per word in both classes of service to cover the land-line transmission on the other side.

Both forms of service are designed for plain language, business and social communication which do not require instantaneous transmission but are still of sufficient urgency that they should not be subjected to delay incident to carriage by trans-ocean mail. Each has its own peculiar field of usefulness—the cable letter serving for such correspondence as is not of immediate urgency but should still be disposed of within a day or two and the week-end letter for communications of perhaps still less urgency but nevertheless sufficiently important to require their transmittal in quicker time than can be done by the overseas mail. Thus each in its own way supplies a distinct convenience of which the cable using public will no doubt be quick to take advantage.

Time Limit on Appeal for All Vocational Training

The U. S. Veterans' Bureau announces that all ex-service men who think they have a vocational handicap of service origin and wish vocational training must appeal for same before December 18, 1922. This is the limit of time allowed them according to the Sweet Act.

A Dental Examining Unit has been established in the Sub-District office of this territory. All U. S. Veterans' Bureau beneficiaries, claimants and other ex-service men of western Michigan who claim a dental disability of service origin should communicate with the local Sub-District office, address of which is given below.

Ex-service men should remember and take advantage of U. S. Government Life Insurance.

This insurance can be re-instated at very little expense, no matter how long ago it was allowed to lapse if a man is in good health. It can be converted into six of the different kinds of insurance carried by Old Line Companies. Any question in regard to any of the above subjects will gladly be answered if ex-service men will communicate with the Sub-District Manager, U. S. Veterans' Bureau, 190-192 Monroe Ave., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Boy Shot While Out Hunting
Oliver Pickard, son of Mr. and Mrs.
Isaac Pickard, was seriously injured
Wednesday afternoon of last week while hunting and as the result may lose an arm.

The young man, in company with Leon Dishrow were hunting on the Fred Washburn farm south of Central Lake and according to Dishrow who was near when the accident occurred, Pickard had laid his twelve gauge shot gun down while watching his dog chase a rabbit into a hole.
In picking the gun up again he took hold of the barrel and the trigger being caught on something caused it to discharge. The shot went into his right arm, tearing the ligaments between the hand and the elbow.

Hunter Kills Three Bears

When Bert Smith was hunting on the Grossman farm, in Bismarck township near Onaway, he spotted a good sized bear in the underbrush. Having only a single barrel shotgun and fine shot, Bert scouted the animal cautiously and in a short time located him again, but this time the bear had joined the main herd and all told Bert counted six of them. His single barrel shotgun and fine shot were not what he cared to use against six bears, so he hurriedly withdrew and went to the Grossman farmhouse for a rifle.

William Grossman was at home and got down his gun and the two went back to the scene.

The bears were located in nearly the same spot. Mr. Grossman spied a big one and while he could not locate the others, pulled down on the big fellow and downed him. The bears scurried in every direction at the shot. Firing five shots in all,
Mr. Grossman downed three of them.
Two were found dead and the third could not be located. The animal was hard hit but managed to get off.

ceedingly interesting. Mrs. Robert read us a chapter from "The Things

Walker, written in the interest of

DEATH A RELIEF FROM LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Jake Klooster Will Be Missed in the Community

(Too late for last week)

Sadie Ven Stralton was born in Chicago, Ill., on November 20th, 1895, and died at the home of her parents, two miles west of Ellsworth, on Wednesday, October 25th, at 9:30 a. m., following an illness of nearly two years.

She came to Michigan with her parents when she was about ten years of age and settled at the home where she died and from which place she was married to Jake Klooster on December 1st, 1915.

Two children, Cornelius, aged 5 and Kathryn, aged 3 years, were the result of this union, both of whom are living and who will face the world without a mother's guiding hand and loving care.

Mrs. Klooster has resided since her marriage either in Ellsworth or the immediate vicinity of Ellsworth and has been known and respected as a loving wife and a kind mother.

About six months ago her health having become so poorly that house-keeping was out of the question, she returned to her parent's home, where she has been since, with the exception of the different periods spent at Ann Arbor for treatment.

Funeral services were held at the Christian Reformed church, of which she was a member, at one o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday, October 28th, with Rev. Beate officiating. Burial took place at Boss cemetery.

She leaves besides her husband and two children, a father and mother, one brother, John, and one sister, Kate, of Ellsworth, as well as a host of friends, who unite in sympathy for the bereaved ones.

which was enjoyed by nearly one hundred and fifty guests. This hunt and supper, which was the second annual affair here was if anything, a more enjoyable occasion than the one of a year ago and in spite of the day of the hunt being one of the worst of the hunting season, a great plenty of game, both birds and rabbits, were in evidence and any guest who departed with the pangs of hunger unsatisfied, must place the blame only upon themselves.

Mrs. Albert Parson aided in the capacity of chef and the way the steaming platters of "pats" and "bunnies" disappeared was conclusive evidence that as a cook, she was "there."

A committee consisting of mesdames Peebles, Nelson, Ely, Russell, Bearss and Beuker had left nothing undone to make the hall and the tables attractive and salads, cakes and other goodies were there sufficient to feed an army.

The evening was enlivened by music by the band until the supper call and following supper toastmaster Clow inaugurated a short program of talks interspersed with songs by the male quartette which left no dull moments between "Levillie and Retreat" and the party broke up at a late hour and we understand that Mr. Clow is already laying plans for a comeback one year hence.

ment, that of his wife and the signature of J. J. Humphrey following. There were no endorsements of the company. This Sloan admitted.

Sloan's testimony also brought out the fact that Greig was present at a meeting of the stockholders of the company, held at the witness's office in Charlevoix last spring, at which the "Earl" read a statement, supposedly showing that the company's affairs were in good shape. It appears that Greig was questioned during this meeting by one of the stockholders present with regard to a payment which had been made by him for stock but for which no certificate had been received. He replied that a stock salesman of the company by the name of Watrous had collected the money but had sat in a poker game in Grand Rapids on his way to Detroit and had lost the money in play. Greig said that he had detected the fraud on the trail of Watrous, who had suddenly disappeared after this incident.

Miss Elizabeth L. McCarthy, of Detroit, Greig's former private secretary, who left for Pittston, Pa., before she could be subpoenaed as a witness, wired the prosecution Thursday that she would come to Charlevoix and testify in the case if her expenses were paid and she was notified to come. It is expected that her testimony will reveal some startling features of the case.

Friday, a new angle of the case developed. Mrs. Christina Greig, of Toronto, Canada, appears on the scene with the claim that she married the "Earl" in Atherden, Scotland, twenty-seven years ago, and had eight children from this union, the oldest being now twenty-three years of age, and that she is still his legal spouse, his marriage with the "Countess" Sara, being, it is alleged, illegal.

When the "Earl" read the interview with his first wife, an account of which appeared in Friday's Detroit Free Press, he appeared greatly agitated and made every effort to prevent the "Countess" from being questioned in regard to the matter. When asked by a reporter for the Detroit Free Press if he and the first Mrs. Greig had ever been divorced, he stammered something about their having had an understanding and that he didn't want to say anything further about it. Further questioning by the reporter led Greig to make the suggestive intimation that it might be well to look up the "status" of the other side. Asked if he meant the status of the "Countess" in relation with himself, he replied in the affirmative. He was referring to a contention which it is said he has frequently made to friends, which is to the effect that the "Countess" was ordered by the court not to remarry within two years time, when divorced from her first husband, a man named Dye, and that it was within this period that she married Greig at Sault Ste. Marie, on January 25, 1919. Her marriage to the "Earl" would, therefore, be illegal on this account, if no other point were considered, so he believes.

It seems to be the consensus of expert legal opinion, however, that this action in defiance of the divorce court's order would not void her marriage to the "Earl" in itself, but simply subject the "Countess" to the charge of contempt of court. From a statement made to the Free Press reporter by Lisle Shanahan, counsel for the defendant, the Countess believed what her husband told her—that he was divorced from his first wife prior to his marriage with Mrs. Sara Turngren Dye. The latter met a reference on the part of the reporter to the claim of the first Mrs. Greig with a defiant, "She's got to show me."

S. J. Turngren, the "Countess,"

father, a wealthy Chicago contractor, has finally come to the aid of his titled son-in-law, putting up $10,000.00 in bonds to guarantee attorney fees and other expenses of the trial. Greig and the "Countess" have a son, two years old and it is understood that she is expecting another child in a few months. At the time of their marriage, the "Earl" gave his age as thirty-six and that of his present wife as twenty-eight. The date of his marriage to Mrs. Christina Greig, of Toronto, and the age of his children by this union would, however, indicate that the "Earl" is actually nearing fifty years of age.

Judge Sample adjourned court at the close of Friday's session until a week from the following Monday morning, which will be November 13th. It is necessary, he stated, that he spend a few days in his own district of Ann Arbor on important business for that circuit.

It is expected that the defense will need a week longer for the presentation of their case. The prosecution rested their case Friday, after Major W. R. Oates, of the State insurance department, who was receiver of the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co., of which Greig was president, and E. B. Butler, 726 Penobscot Building, Detroit, a certified public accountant who had examined the company's books, gave their testimony. The defense stated their intention of calling a number of witnesses, last of whom will be the "Earl" himself.

FARMERS WILL HAVE HELP SAYS WALLACE

U. S. Cabinet Members Review Agricultural Legislation

Reviewing farm legislation enacted by the recent United States Congress, and discussing the future of the agricultural industry, Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture in the Harding cabinet, addressed thousands of farmers, business men, and college students on the campus of the Michigan Agricultural College last week.

"During the past eighteen months the needs of agricultural, both temporary and permanent, have had more sympathetic and intelligent consideration at the hands of Congress than during any other similar period in our entire history," said Wallace during his address. "In the end the largest responsibility rests upon the farmer himself, but there are some things which must be done by legislation and other things which must be done by administrative action, if the farmer is to have that free hand which is absolutely necessary for him to produce efficiently and continuously to feed our people at reasonable cost. These things the national government, and more particularly the U. S. Department of Agriculture, have been endeavoring and will continue to endeavor to provide for the farmers of the nation."

"An encouraging development of the last two years is the better appreciation by the general public of the national dependence upon a prosperous agriculture. Because of this it is going to be much easier for agriculture to be re-established upon a sound and enduring basis."

Cornerstones of M. A. C.'s two new buildings, a library and a home economics building, were laid on the morning of Wallace's visit to the college, with impressive ceremonies. Gov. Alex. Groesbeck, the State Board of Agriculture, President David Friday, Secretary H. H. Halladay and various other prominent state officials took part in the exercises.

ILLITERACY IN THE UNITED STATES

A Real Rural Problem—What The Census Figures Show

Illiteracy is slowly disappearing in the United States. The census of 1910 indicated there were 5,516,163 illiterates in the United States above 10 years of age; the figures for 1920 show a total of 1,831,905 illiterates in the United States above 10 years of age. The following table shows how this illiteracy is divided:

Per cent of total population illiterate above 10 years of age.....	7.7	6.0
Per cent of native whites of native parentage.....	3.7	2.5
Per cent of native whites of foreign or mixed parentage.....	1.1	0.8
Per cent of foreign-born whites.....	12.7	13.1
Per cent of Negroes.....	30.4	22.9

The above census figures are based upon inquiry merely. Persons who can write their names or a few words often consider themselves literate. Many authorities have long thought that a test of ability to use the language in a practical way would reveal a much larger number of illiterates in this country. The late Secretary Lane estimates that perhaps 20 per cent of the citizenship were illiterate. A practical test administered to a million and a half soldiers in the war revealed, to the amazement of many, that 25 per cent of them could make no practical use of written English. All thoughtful persons seem agreed that this appalling situation is a menace to the Nation's highest interests.

A serious accident was narrowly avoided last Monday evening when Mary Simmons, nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Simmons, was struck by a Buick roadster, driven by Frank Poole, escaping with a few minor bruises.

The girl was crossing Mason St. at the corner of Bridge, going south. Mr. Poole turned off from Bridge on to Mason and Mary, thinking that he was going around the policeman, did not step back in time to avoid being hit by the fender. She had presence of mind enough, however, to grab the fender and hang on, thus escaping a fall under the wheels.

BIG INDUSTRY IN NEW QUARTERS

BOOTH FISHERIES CO. OCCU-PIES MODERN PLANT

Enterprise of A-1 Proportions Has Been Developing For Many Years

We are not much accustomed to thinking of our neat little city of Charlevoix as an industrial town. In fact, we have quite a number of citizens who, when the subject is broached, are apt to bewail the fact that industry—spelled with a big I—has "passed us up."

Nevertheless, unsuspected by the many and only partially realized by the few, an enterprise of really first-class proportions has recently entered its new quarters on the shores of Round Lake and this move has served to bring to light the true extent of the operations which the concern in question—the Booth Fisheries Company, has been quietly carrying on for many years.

For a considerable time, the Booth Company officials have recognized the fact that their rapidly growing business in this region demanded newer and more commodious quarters, a more accessible location and more up-to-date equipment than they possessed. The expiration of the lease on the old plant, held by Captain Patsy Flanagan, on November 1st of this year, furnished the excuse which they needed for taking the necessary steps. Work was commenced on a new building to be used for ice house and storage rooms in November, 1921 and the structure, which stands on the south shore of Round Lake, was completed in the following January. That portion of the new plant that houses packing-room, office and further storage room, was completed in September of this year. The property acquired by the company for the erection of a new plant includes a one hundred and sixty foot dock frontage on Round Lake and runs back along this front from the lake-edge to Belvedere Avenue. The docks where the fish are unloaded have been lowered along their entire length and replanked. The buildings are painted an attractive yellow, trimmed with red—the Booth standard color scheme which is carried out throughout all their branches, even to the boats they operate and the tools used in their different plants.

State and Federal inspectors, who have visited the new plant since the commencement of operations on November 1st, are all agreed that this is the most complete and modern fish-packing plant they have found anywhere on the Great Lakes.

When the catches are landed at the docks, the fish have already been cleaned; this work being performed on the return trip from the fishing grounds. The heads are left on. A fair day's catch for a fish tug is anywhere from 1,500 to 3,000 pounds of fish. They are carried from the boats in boxes to the big weighing, freezing and packing room on the first floor of the main building, where a gang of men are waiting to sort, grade and weigh them. The weigher is a very busy chap indeed. Some days, the total of seventy thousand pounds passes over his scales. Here, the heads are removed from the largest fish and then, together with the smaller sizes or "mediums," the heads of which are left on, they go to a big bin, occupying almost the entire side of the packing-room where, packed in galvanized iron freezing pans, they are buried in a great mass of crushed ice and rock salt and remain there from ten to fourteen hours until frozen so stiff that one could hardly dent them with a chisel. From the freezing bin, the fish go to the "operating" table, where they are dipped in ice water to form a thin coating of ice on them before they are stored away. Next, they are stacked in the storage rooms in piles according to sizes.

These storage or freezing rooms of which there are three, are also located on the first floor of the main building and are built with a double wall, the space between the partitions being tightly packed with mill shavings and lined with heavy insulating paper. The doors are built in the same manner, only cork is used for insulation instead of shavings. Next to cork, which is the best but most expensive, these shavings represent the most efficient non-conductor of heat known to science for practical commercial purposes.

Lining the inside walls of these storage-rooms are wedge-shaped containers, called ice cans, filled with crushed ice and salt which maintain a fairly even temperature within the rooms of from fourteen to eighteen degrees above zero, Fahrenheit. This keeps the stored fish properly preserved until time for shipment. The ice cans have openings at the top in the second floor. Through these openings they are filled with the ice and salt mixture.

When a shipment is to be made up, the fish are selected from the piles in the storage rooms and packed in wooden boxes, filled with the all-important mixture of ice and salt. The boxes are weighed separately and then the contents; the net weight of the fish is stenciled on the sides of the box, covers are nailed on and the consignment is ready to leave the plant.

The material of which the shipping boxes are constructed is brought from the Beavers and they are put together in a carpenter shop on the second floor of the plant. Cedar is principally used for this purpose.

The ice storage room is two floors deep and has a capacity of twelve hundred tons. A full year's supply was put up last winter. At the present time, this storage room is filled with the frosty cakes to a depth of eight feet.

Adjoining the ice storage room on the second floor is a space devoted to the ice crusher and elevator. (Continued on Page 8.)

Thanksgiving Day Proclamation

By the Governor

"Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise; be thankful unto Him and bless His name."

We have come again to the season of the year when, in accordance with the devout custom established by our fathers more than three centuries ago, we formally set apart a day of thanksgiving and praise to almighty God for all His mercies and blessings.

We have every reason for thankfulness. Our fields and orchards and vineyards have yielded richly of their products. Our people have been sober, industrious and steadfast. Industry and enterprise have translated the varied and unlimited resources of our commonwealth into wealth and happiness for all who have had the initiative and the capacity to do and achieve. While we face a new day big with many perplexing problems, may our faith in the integrity of American institutions be rededicated to the government which has always symbolized the best that has been achieved since the struggle for representative government began.

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Michigan, I hereby join the President of the United States in designating Thursday, November 30th, 1922, as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this tenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, and the Commonwealth the eighty-sixth.

By the Governor:
Charles J. DeLand
Secretary of State.

Alex J. Groesbeck
Governor.

FAMOUS GREIG TRIAL RESUMED

Monday Sees Opening of Final Legal Battle

Court opened Monday noon in the trial of A. J. W. Greig, titled stock promoter, adjourned from Saturday, November 4th. Most of the counsel and witnesses were on hand early Monday morning, but the judge and the county prosecutor were late in arriving.

Little took place Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning, save the identification of certain records germane to the case. Tuesday afternoon Greig was called to the stand and examined by his counsel, Shanahan. Wednesday morning, assistant attorney general Ora L. Smith, who is conducting the prosecution, put the "Earl" under a severe grilling, in the course of which he admitted having sent one of Mrs. Miller's checks to his wife, one of R. F. Sloan's, paid to him for stock, and one of Charles A. Hudson, of East Jordan, which he had received for the same purpose. Greig's defense is that the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co. owed him money and that the endorsement of the checks in question over to his wife saved him the expense of a draft and at the same time cancelled the company's debt to him to that extent.

Woman's Auxiliary Meets

A regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion will be held Monday evening, November 20th, seven-thirty o'clock, at No. 230 Bridge Street. Business of importance is to be transacted and every member is urged to be present.

AUTO OWNERS MUST HAVE TITLE

State Reports Many Owners Fail to Get Certificates

Approximately 50,000 Michigan automobile owners are going to be "out of luck" when it comes to get their 1923 automobile licenses, unless they obtain a certificate of title for their cars before Jan. 1, 1923.

Secretary of State Charles J. DeLand estimates that there are that many motorists who have failed to obtain certificates of title as provided in the law passed by the 1921 legislature.

Automobile owners must show a certificate of title for their cars before they can get their 1923 license.

John Haller, chief of the title division of the state department, declared that an average of three cars a week are recovered as a result of the title law. Each application for a title is checked against a list of stolen cars of Michigan and all other states. If the engine number of a car given on an application corresponds with the number on one of the stolen cars lists, the person making application for the title is held for questioning.

ATLANTA HUNTER ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Gun Explodes Striking Him in Abdomen

William Kood was accidentally and fatally wounded Friday afternoon at four o'clock, when a shot, gun in the hands of Leroy Babcock formerly of this city exploded.

The two men, who are neighbors, living one mile east of Atlanta were hunting rabbits. They had flushed a rabbit and it had taken refuge in the bridge which approaches the barn on the farm of Byron Blood near the Smith farm gravel pit owned by Mr. Blood. Mr. Babcock told his companion to stand upon one side of the bridge while he stood upon the other and to shoot the rabbit when it came out. He then proceeded to loosen the planking of the bridge with his right hand while holding his gun with his left. The gun is of the hammerless type and it is presumed that the safety device was pushed up accidentally while Mr. Babcock was engaged in removing the planks. In some unaccountable manner the trigger fired and the gun exploded. Mr. Kood was in direct line of fire and received the full charge in the abdomen the shot tearing a hole two inches in diameter.

Mr. Babcock ran immediately to Atlanta, where he summoned Dr. McKinnon, who immediately went to the scene of the tragedy. Arriving, he found that he was powerless to do anything for the unfortunate man, who expired a few minutes after he arrived.

TEACHERS HOLD MONTHLY MEETING

MANY INTERESTING ADDRESS-ES WERE GIVEN

Miss Cole Urges Formation of New Literary Society—Miss Burkland
Chairman Next Meeting

The regular monthly teachers' meeting, which should have been held Thursday night, was postponed until Monday night.

All members of the Charlevoix faculty were present, excepting those who were excused on special duty. The general spirit of the meeting indicated more interest and enthusiasm than has been displayed at any previous meeting during the school year. Several interesting and helpful talks were given, among which we mention the following:

Miss Burkland gave an explanation of a definite seating or rating scale.

Miss Oliver, the music and art instructor, brought to light some very interesting suggestions in regard to her department.

Miss Boley, the county normal principal, gave a lively talk on County Normal Work.

Miss Cole, of the North Side school, urged the formation of a new literary society in the high school.

Supt. Hamilton concluded the program by emphasizing the value of being a member of the N. E. A. and appointed Miss Burkland to succeed Mr. Roe as chairman of the next meeting.

These meetings of the teaching personnel of our schools are a great assistance in carrying on the work of education in the city. They provide a forum for the presentation of valuable ideas in a practical form, the adjustment of difficulties and the explanation and introduction of new methods and theories. They are to the school organization what a board of directors is to a corporation, and are held by the superintendent and his staff to be of the greatest importance. Separate meetings are held each month for the grade and high school teachers.

COUNTY GOES REPUBLICAN

FERRIS WINNER—GROESBECK SWEEPS STATE

G. O. P. Holds Supremacy in Congress by Narrow Margin—Democrats Roll Up Big Vote

The result of the election on Tuesday, November 7th, seems to be a vindication of the Republican party in the state, notwithstanding the fact that Ferris led his Republican opponent, Townsend, by something like 17,000 majority. The Republican senator's defeat may be directly attributed to Newberryism, and is counterbalanced by Governor Groesbeck's 125,000 majority.

The tremendous Republican Congressional majorities of 1920, however, have dwindled to such a narrow margin that Republican control on much important legislation is certain to be jeopardized. The senate stands 52 Republicans, 43 Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor; the house 218 Republicans—an exact majority of the 435 members; 312 Democrats and two Farmer-Labor.

Those figures would insure the Republican nominal control of the house organization, carrying with it the speakership and chairmanship of committees. But the working margin would not insure passage of Republican administration measures if there should be many absentees or even a mild break in party ranks.

In Charlevoix county the vote was overwhelmingly Republican, as usual. We give below the total final vote, as it appears on the records of the clerk:

Governor—Alex J. Groesbeck, Repub., 1551; Alva M. Cummins, Dem., 698; Benj. Blumenburg, Soc., 34; Belden Crane Hoyt, Prohib., 18; Edward R. Markley, Soc. Lab., 7.

World's Giant Radio Vacuum Tube Had Its Genesis In Tiny Telephone Switchboard Lamp Development

1. Extremes in vacuum tubes. In the center, the new 100 kilowatt Bell tube, the biggest tube in the world and on the left a little "peanut" radio receiving tube whose filament can be heated by a single dry battery. 2. Mr. W. G. Houskeeper of the Bell System Research Laboratory holding the new 100 K. W. vacuum tube. 3. The inside of the new Bell tube. To heat the filament inside requires six kilowatts of energy and a current of 51 amperes.

By R. W. Kimo

Every radio enthusiast knows what a vacuum tube is. He may not always be able to explain just how it works but he knows that it is a marvelous little evacuated bulb that will detect and amplify radio signals and that in some way or other it is used in the transmitting apparatus of all radio broadcasting stations.

The vacuum tube with which the radio amateur is most familiar is about the size of an ordinary incandescent lamp and in appearance is somewhat more complicated in structure. Compare a tube of the size with the large cartridge-shaped tube shown in one of our illustrations. It is nearly three feet long and between four and six inches in diameter and at first glance might almost be taken for the shell of a four inch gun. The container of the tube instead of consisting entirely of glass is mostly of copper. To this a glass portion is fused and the lead wires are brought in through the glass. The large copper thimble or tube forms the "plate" of the tube and within it, and placed concentrically, are the filament and grid. Circulating water is allowed to flow around the outside of the copper thimble for the purpose of cooling it. The need of water cooling is evident from the fact that these large tubes operate at ten thousand volts or more and are capable of generating as much as 100 kilowatts of high frequency energy. Two of these tubes form a power unit as powerful as the largest alternator in operation, and 10 of them would be equivalent to the largest arc station. Although they are without doubt the largest vacuum tubes ever constructed, their size is nevertheless very small compared to the alternator and the arc and the prediction has been made that they will, before long, very largely displace the alternator.

It is natural to inquire what the secret of these enormous vacuum tubes is. According to the engineers who have developed the tube this secret consists of special means for sealing large copper wires and tubes through glass in such manner that the seal will hold indefinitely the best obtainable vacuum. In spite of their enormous size these 100 kilowatt tubes are of the "hard" type which means that the air has been so completely exhausted from the working space of the tube that it plays no part in the operation. The tubes have been developed by the Bell Telephone System in its Research Laboratory in New York City and the telephone engineers pointed out that the copper-to-glass seals which form the keystone of these large vacuum tubes were originally developed in an effort to cheapen the manufacture of the tiny switchboard lamps, thousands of which are used in every large switchboard.

The significance of this high-power water-cooled tube development to the radio art can scarcely be overestimated. It makes available tubes in units so large that only a very few would be necessary to operate even the largest radio stations now extant with all the attendant flexibility of action which accompanies the use of the vacuum tube. From the standpoint of radio telephony, the development of these high power tubes makes possible the use of very much greater amounts of continuous high frequency power than have ever been readily available before.

GOVERNMENT GOSSIP

Employment in Selected Industries

The United States Bureau of Labor Statistics has issued a report concerning the volume of employment in September, 1922, from 2,653 representative establishments in 42 manufacturing industries, covering 1,354,162 employees, who received $40,794,816 in wages. Comparing the figures for September 1922, with those for identical establishments for August, 1922, it appears that in 31 of the 42 industries there were increases in the number of employees, while in 11 there were decreases. The greatest increase, 45.8 per cent, appears in car building and repairing. Cotton finishing shows an increase of 11.3 per cent and woolen of 11.0 per cent. The greatest decreases appear in agricultural implements, 4.4 per cent, lumber (mill work), 3.7 per cent, and hosiery and knit goods, 3.2 per cent.

Twenty-nine of the 42 industries show increases in the total amount of pay roll for September, 1922, as compared with August, 1922, and the remaining 13 show decreases. The greatest increase, 20.6 per cent, appears in car building and repairing. Cotton finishing and woolen show increases of 15.6 and 11.4 per cent respectively. The greatest decreases appear in agricultural implements, 9.1 per cent, automobiles, 5.7 per cent, and chewing and smoking tobacco, 5.0 per cent.

The retail food index issued by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, shows that from August 15 to September 15, 1922, 21 articles on which monthly prices are secured decreased in price, and that 10 articles increased in price. For the year period, September 15, 1921 to September 15, 1922, the percentage decrease in all articles of food, combined, was 9 per cent. Thirty-four articles decreased in price during the year. Nine articles increased in price. For the 9-year period, September 15, 1913, to September 15, 1922, the increase in all articles of food combined was 36 per cent. Increases are as follows: Leg of lamb, 92 per cent; ham, 72 per cent; hens, 62 per cent; pork chops, 60 per cent; bread, 55 per cent; flour, 48 per cent; sirloin steak and fresh milk, 47 per cent; round steak and cheese, 45 per cent; bacon, 44 per cent.

Americans Moderate Consumers of Dairy Products

The United States is one of the largest milk, butter, and cheese producing nations in the world, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, although it is not one of the largest exporting countries in any one of these three products, nor are Americans great eaters of dairy products. Sweden, which has only one-eighth of our population, uses 69 gallons of whole milk per capita; and Denmark, with about three-fourths as many cows, uses 68 gallons; while the United States uses only 43 gallons.

Steam and Electric Railroad Cars

The Department of Commerce announces that the census reports show a decrease in activities of establishments engaged in the manufacture of cars for use on steam and electric railroads during 1921, as compared with the year 1919.

In 1921 there were 105 establishments engaged in the manufacture of steam-railroad cars and the total value of their products amounted to $314,394,867, as compared with 99 establishments for 1919 with a total value of products of $538,232,831. The decrease in the total value of products was $223,837,964, or 41.6 per cent.

During this same period there were 10 establishments engaged in the manufacture of electric-railroad cars and the total value of their products was $14,856,068 as compared with 7 establishments for 1919 with a total value of products of $18,441,976; showing a decrease in the value of products of $3,585,908, or 19.4 per cent.

Cotton Spinning Industry

The Department of Commerce announces that there were 37,075,407 cotton spinning spindles in place in the United States on September 30, 1922, of which 33,296,513 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 32,499,324 for August, 31,975,269 for July, 31,874,496 for March, 33,797,380 for February, 34,457,509 for January, and 33,874,620 for September, 1921.

Sand, Lime, Brick

Census reports show considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of sand-lime brick during 1921 as compared with the year 1919. The total value of products reported amounted to $1,116,797 in 1921 and to $1,663,052 in 1919, a decrease of 32.8 per cent.

Wool Shoddy

Census reports show a considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of wool shoddy in the year 1921 as compared with 1919. The total value of products reported for 1921 amounted to $6,761,345 and for 1919 to $23,254,398 a decrease of 70.9 per cent. These statistics relate to the operations of establishments manufacturing shoddy as their final product and do not take into account quantities made and consumed by mills producing woolen and worsted goods, felt goods, carpets and rugs, etc.

Horsehoes

Census reports show a decrease in the activities of establishments engaged in the manufacture of horsehoes, during 1921 as compared with 1919. Twelve establishments reported products to the value of $1,931,812 in 1921 as compared with 20 establishments with a total value of products of $3,367,001 in 1919. These figures do not include the value of horsehoes manufactured in steel works and rolling mills, which in 1921 amounted to $6,031,887 as compared with $8,420,052 in 1919.

Cotton Lace

Census reports show a general decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of cotton lace during the year 1921 as compared with 1919. The total value of products reported for 1921 amounted to $25,805,023 and for 1919 to $29,396,853, a decrease of $3,591,830, or 12.2 per cent.

Photographic Apparatus

Census reports show a considerable decrease in the activities of the establishments engaged in the manufacture of photographic apparatus during the year 1921 as compared with 1919. The total value of products reported for 1921 amounted to $5,444,744, and for 1919 to $9,384,050, a decrease of 42 per cent.

Coal Production

Transportation remains the limiting factor in the current rate of coal production, according to the Geological Survey, which asserts further that since the first of September no other causes have appreciably restricted the rate of output. Production of bituminous coal in the third week of October was 10,200,000 tons.

Public Lands

About 200,000 acres of land in New Mexico, Washington, and Wyoming were classified under the stock-raising homestead law and were designated for entry in tracts of 640 acres or less, by the Geological Survey during September. Much of the acreage classified, however, is included in original entries or in applications which confer a preference right. A little more than 60,000 acres in Montana were included in formal orders designating land as non-irrigatable under the homestead acts and to that extent subject to entry as homesteads of 320 acres or less. Most of this area, however, has already been classified as the stock-raising homestead type, that is, 640-acre homestead land. This action, therefore, has little significance to prospective homesteaders. Nearly 40,000 acres of land in Idaho were classified as power-site lands and more than 600 acres in Oregon and Washington previously included in power-site withdrawal were restored to entry.

Prospecting for Oil and Coal

During September, the Geological Survey reported upon the structural relations of 369 applications for prospecting permits under the oil sections of the leasing act of February 25, 1920, thus bringing the number of such reports rendered since the passage of the act to 15,103. Over 500 such applications were pending in the Survey September 30, 1922. During the month reports were rendered on 34 applications for coal prospecting permits and 29 applications for coal leases, making a total of 704 coal permits and 224 coal leases reported on since the passage of the act.

The Federal Waterpower Act

The motion of the Federal Government to dismiss in the United States Supreme Court the case brought by the State of New York challenging the constitutionality of the Federal Waterpower act of 1920 will be given a hearing immediately after the New Year.

The government bases its motion on the ground that the State had not brought the suit against the proper Federal officials; had not presented a concrete controversy over which the court had jurisdiction; had not shown any cause of action against the Federal officials named, and was without equity.

Decline in Automobile Production

The Bureau of Census figures show a marked seasonal decrease in the production of both passenger automobiles and trucks in September. The total production of passenger cars in September was 186,562, compared with 249,225 in August, while truck production in September amounted to only 18,843, as against 24,200 in August. The September production is the lowest since last March, but is considerably above the figures for September, 1921, when the total production was reported as 114,669 passenger cars and 13,648 trucks.

Candle—Though the local Michigan Potato Growers' exchange is handling about 25 carloads of potatoes a day, it could ship many more if cars were available. The delayed movement of potatoes, however, is seen as a factor in the farmer's favor. He will receive more for his product when it is eventually shipped, it was stated.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By J. E. Jones

Women's Wage

Regardless of the differences that may exist concerning the rights of men and women in the political world on election day, the judges of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals have sought to level the ground through their decision covering the minimum wage for women. Congress periodically resolves itself into a sort of common council for the city of Washington, and on a certain "District Day" the good soldiers thought it time to put a stop to starvation wages paid to ribbon-counters, clerks, the girls in five and ten-cent stores, and the employees in many of the office and business places in the district. They argued that the war workers who came to Washington to "win the war" received from $100 to $150 a month; and their logic told them that it was a burning shame for Uncle Sam to provide these girls and women with plenty of money for furs in the sum-merit, and sheer silk hosiery for the winter months while at the same time the "poor girls" and women of the city struggled along on meagre wages paid by stingy employers. Investigations intervened, and in accordance with the official reports a minimum wage law was put through Congress. This law fixed the lowest weekly wage at $16.50. The people of Washington apparently felt well satisfied with the measure. But, as their logic told them that it was a burning shame for Uncle Sam to provide these girls and women with plenty of money for furs in the sum-

TIMBER A CROP

Timber used to be regarded as a "natural resource." Thus it was classified with coal, oil and ore supplied by nature to be drawn upon by man until exhausted. That view was largely responsible for the rapid depletion of forests.

Now there is a wholly different view, well expressed by Secretary Wallace in a recent address. Timber is a "resource" only in the sense that wheat or corn or cotton is a resource.

"Timber is a crop; one of crop cultivation; it must be protected from fires, from plant diseases, from insect pests, just as other agricultural crops are protected. That requires the services of the horticulturist, of the entomologist, of the plant pathologist and of the forest specialist, all of these men being trained in their own line, working together with the closest co-operation."

Let the "crop" idea once find firm lodgment in the public mind, and there will be no further difficulty about our timber supply.

A NATIONAL PROBLEM

The plight of the farmers was the general subject for consideration at a recent meeting of business men held in Chicago. It was agreed that the farmers are not getting as much as they ought for their products in view of the general price level, and president T. E. Howard, of the Farm Bureau Federation, declared that they had not even received the cost of production for the last three years.

The explanation offered for that fact by Julius Barnes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is inadequate transportation, and in support of that proposition he pointed out that while recent advances in grain prices in this country amount to about 10 cents, the jump in Europe has been as high as 40 cents.

Current information as to the supply of box cars in this country strongly support that theory. A recent review of the situation showed that the west is simply clamoring for cars, while more than 1,000 county elevators are full of grain and closed because there are no cars in which to load their contents. This difficulty is intensified by the strong eastern demand for cars caused by great activity in manufacturing and that activity is itself hampered by the car shortage.

It is obvious then, that the farmer's problem cannot be solved by slight of hand. Passing laws will not do any immediate good and no palliative measure will take the place of a settled policy under which the roads can make good the shortage of cars and locomotives and give the country the service it must have.

A number of congressional candidates, particularly in the west, are running for office now on a program which breathes nothing but ill wind toward the railroads. They propose to tear down the laws now in existence, not for the purpose of strengthening the roads, but to set the legislative vise even more firmly upon them. They would in fact like to go back to the era of unmitigated state regulation, but they are on the wrong track. The problem is national, and calls for a constructive national program.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK

Schools and libraries and book concerns will make the most of Children's Book Week—Nov. 12 to 18. Home interest should not be lacking.

The world is full of good things, old and new, for children to read. A very little study of the subject will put elders in a position to direct the reading wisely. Some of the stuff written expressly for children is poor judged by the standards of literature, interest and suitability. Some of it is good. Some of the books written for adults are beloved by young readers. The business of selection will help to establish good reading standards among children as well as among the children.

Children's Book Week can be of great value in stimulating general interest in reading in the home. It would be a good time to start reading aloud as part of the family life for the winter evenings.

Children never forget such evenings. A love of good books, the happy, harmonious atmosphere in which the reading is done stay with them as a wholesome influence in their own lives and a precious heritage to be passed on to their children.

HOT AIR COUGHS

The hot air cough is with us again, according to a prominent physician, who conducts a newspaper health column. This is the cough which attacks those persons who cling to register or radiator or stove from the earliest signs of winter to its final departure. They not only keep their rooms or houses too warm, but they keep themselves continually in an atmosphere too dry and devoid of good oxygen. An observant person might notice for himself that he is chiller or an artificial dry heat of 75 degrees than a moist heat of 65 or 70 degrees.

The mucous membrane of the breathing passages is irritated by the dry heat and bronchitis and winter coughs result.

The best medicine for this condition, says the doctor, is "two miles of oxygen on the hoof three times a day" regardless of weather. A person wholly unaccustomed to much walking would have to work up to that six-mile dose by easy stages. But for the sedentary worker or the house-bound it is well worth the effort.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The students of Charlevoix High School always look forward to Monday morning chapel service, for they are sure to lose that "blue Monday" feeling, and gain enough pep to last the whole week through. Supt. Hamilton began the services Monday morning by reading from the Bible, the twenty-fourth Psalm, and hereafter such readings are to be a part of the Monday chapel exercises. The seventh grade furnished the remainder of the program, which consisted of songs, recitations and interesting dialogues. The student body is unanimous in proclaiming the fast number a fine conclusion to an excellent program. In a few words, the number represented an informal meeting by a few of the students, presided over by a fiery chairman, who had a voice and used it. C. H. S. at this time discovered that in its midst was talent undreamed of.

Dr. Claffin of Olivet college, gave an interesting address to the High School assembly, Tuesday morning, on the standards of American schools. He told us how Olivet College was founded, where it is, and also of its merits as a college.

Friday afternoon at 2:30, in the High School assembly, we shall have with us a well known poet, McClain Ossiner, better known as the Hills-bie County Poet. Mr. Ossiner speaks and dramatizes works of his own, and of Riley and Field. His readings will be both entertaining and instructive. He has been well received throughout the state, by Clubs and Societies. As it is seldom that we have a man of such merit with us, we hope for a large attendance.

Hopes for victory were high in C. H. S. before the game Saturday—especially during the rousing mass meeting held Friday at 3:00 p. m. The school seemed to fairly vibrate with the old fashioned "peptism" and it seemed as if the old team must surely bring home the bacon, although one of our able yell leaders has succumbed to the call of the fish, the High School succeeded in sending a few sound waves drifting among the hallways of our antiquated domicile of human learning.

We fear that Saturday's game will be a sort of "sore spot" in our memory; yet we can assure anyone that Charlevoix has everything to be proud of in their team. Our boys fought to the end and nobly upheld the honor of C. H. S. Yet, it seems as if our team, as all through the football season, was destitute of the slightest bit of luck. Never has the greater strategy or flight of an opposing team crushed us in defeat. We hope our team will not become discouraged or disorganized for the game with East Jordan next Saturday, for we do not wish to put a blemish on that old record—East Jordan haven't defeated us in football for seven years.

HELEN WAGGONER.

Helen Waggoner, gifted dramatic interpreter, is an entertainer of wholly individual charm. With discriminating genius she presents a panorama of vivid impersonative sketches.

She is exceptionally skillful in these character interpretations. They stand out with startling vividness. "Aunt Charlotte," an amusing Southern negro; an Italian street vendor; a crafty Jewish merchant; each of these and many other types, re-created by her art, become clear-cut impersonation portraits.

In her program Miss Waggoner usually combines a series of short sketches with the complete production of a one-act play. In the play she finds opportunity to cover an entire cycle of the emotions—humor, pathos, anger, love—each presented with the sure skill of a true dramatic artist and with the sympathy of a keenly understanding individual.

Miss Waggoner is an experienced entertainer—whose work is characterized by brilliance and dramatic fire. It has called forth praise, both from the public and the press in every part of the country.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

For Sunday, November 17th, our discussion will be based on the topic, "The Hand of God in Modern China." Miss Madge Kibbe will lead.

"One fourth of the human race lives in China and more than two millions of adherents to the teachings of Confucius have failed to lift the masses from the depths of spiritualism. Fear holds the individual in bondage. Buddhism and Taoism and other great religions of China are equally enmeshed with fear and superstition. But China is rapidly learning that Christianity is the one religion that works for redemption and regeneration in every walk of its complex life. In no country in the world is learning more highly honored than in China, and therefore the Christian missionary, the bearer of the best philosophy of life, is gaining the hearing and obedience of the people."

Our meetings are full of enthusiasm and inspiration and if you have not been attending, you are missing something worthwhile. Come, and be a part of a real, live, young people's society.

We also invite you to attend our mid-week prayer service, on Thursday evening at 7:30.

Tuesday, November 21st, is the date when J. Leach, the optometrist, will be here for the last time this winter, as he leaves for the west on November 26th to spend the winter on his ranch in southern Idaho. Up until then, his home office will be open each Friday and Saturday. Phone 650 Petoskey for appointments. Adv. 4611.

and finally issued a somewhat lengthy opinion, in which it was decreed that "the constitutional limitations upon Congress involve fundamental principles of human rights reserved to the whole people, and not any favored class of citizenship." This "joke" in the court decision assumes that the sexes are now entirely equal, because of the other quip in the constitution through which women were given the vote. Women, we are told, have been accorded full equality with men in the commercial and political world, and therefore it is deemed "class legislation" when Congress interferes to differentiate between the sexes. One of the judges admits that "a number of states have enacted similar laws and they have generally been upheld by the state courts, but that by no means forecloses consideration of the present case." In explaining its position the district court makes an argument that "would grace the debates heard in industrial conferences, and this decision taken in connection with those of the state courts which have viewed the matter in a different light, constitutes a veritable fund of information and misinformation upon the subject of the minimum wage.

The lower courts having had their say the United States Supreme Court will likely soon be called upon to tell the country which of the judges guessed right. For judges are not like doctors that disagree, because the courts have a final tribunal to pronounce the last word.

Farm Credit

A good deal of fault is being found with the policy by which the government started during the war—and which it has since continued, of organizing methods of credit for farmers. Opponents of farm credits that are fostered by the government have a good deal to say about "too much money," and "inflated currency," "greedbacks" and that line of talk. Credit, they assume, should be left wholly to the discretion of the bankers. The evils of government interference through the operations of the War Finance Corporation are pointed out as having led to "overloaning" in the agricultural regions of the country. Now, all this sort of objection might be worth considering except for the undisputed fact that it comes from large financial centers where quick credits are vital to the continued prosperity of large commercial and financial interests. In recognition of this very necessity Congress gave to the country the Federal Reserve Act, through the operation of which it is possible to move a few carloads of money from one city to another overnight, should the public become uneasy and start a "run on the bank."

The farmers believe it more important to move crops than to sustain the stock markets; and so it came about that they organized farmers' associations, a "farm bloc" in Congress, and other effective political machinery, designed to make money and credits available in their communities. The political candidate who wanted to "make New Jersey as wet as the ocean" has nothing on the organized farming interests of the country who propose to make credits and money as "elastic" in their own communities as it is in Wall Street. Now it may be, as some have claimed, that there is too much money in circulation, but even so, the class of people remain undiscovered who do not want all they can get of it for their particular uses. It is all the same, no matter whether it is in the corn belt, the land of cotton, the orchard country, manufacturing New England, or the grain-production sections.

When Congress Meets Again

Most of the time between now and Christmas will be devoted by the politicians in Congress in explaining "how it happened." The sands of life and the tenure of Congressmen run swiftly. An hour glass empties its bulb in an hour. Congress empties the political bulb every two years. In the intervals between explanations of the recent political mystery the administration proposes to push the ship subsidy bill and a number of other matters of unfinished business. Sentiment concerning the subsidy bill is greatly divided, and there is little probability of a bill going through Congress until weeks, and perhaps months of time, is spent upon it. Just now there is the usual talk about freeing the country of the "burden" of Congress next spring and summer. But nobody need take that kind of prophesy seriously; since it has unquestionably become a necessity for the legislative bodies of the nation to remain in session eight or ten months every year in order to keep up with the growth of the public business.

Reducing Their Rates

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company has asked permission to reduce telephone rates to 18,000 Washington subscribers, each of whom will receive benefits amounting to about six dollars a year. The company says that the return on its capital stock has increased and it wishes to give the public the benefit of improved business by lower rates. Naturally the public is not going to object.

Another instance of big reductions in rates to electric current users has been made by the Alabama Power Company. This company is a competitor before the government for the acquisition of Muscle Shoals, and a facetious individual wants to know whether the rate cut is intended to keep up with Henry Ford, who recently made a reduction in the price of his rough-riders.

Peddling Blue Sky

Peddlers of shares in oil wells, gold mines, fearless and fearless automobiles, rubber stock, and such-like marvels, have been meeting with remarkable success in talking dollars out of government clerks. The failure of a large number of brokerage houses in New York and other cities is thought to have accelerated ed the boom in the free-lanceing of stocks. The big stock exchanges, aside from the fact that they have experienced wide fluctuations, have usually protected those who bought stocks for them. But the exchanges for unlisted stocks have been less successful, and brokers plying through them have brought woe to widows, orphans and morous. In Washington, there have been a good many indictments of blue-sky salesmen; and the authorities have sound-ed frequent warnings to the public to refrain from buying unknown stocks about which the purchasers knew nothing. One prosecutor in the national capital criticizes the man who said that "a sucker is born every minute" because he didn't count them all.

A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills bought at Metcalf's drug store fixed me up in a fine way." 60c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

and finally issued a somewhat lengthy opinion, in which it was decreed that "the constitutional limitations upon Congress involve fundamental principles of human rights reserved to the whole people, and not any favored class of citizenship." This "joke" in the court decision assumes that the sexes are now entirely equal, because of the other quip in the constitution through which women were given the vote. Women, we are told, have been accorded full equality with men in the commercial and political world, and therefore it is deemed "class legislation" when Congress interferes to differentiate between the sexes. One of the judges admits that "a number of states have enacted similar laws and they have generally been upheld by the state courts, but that by no means forecloses consideration of the present case." In explaining its position the district court makes an argument that would grace the debates heard in industrial conferences, and this decision taken in connection with those of the state courts which have viewed the matter in a different light, constitutes a veritable fund of information and misinformation upon the subject of the minimum wage.

The lower courts having had their say the United States Supreme Court will likely soon be called upon to tell the country which of the judges guessed right. For judges are not like doctors that disagree, because the courts have a final tribunal to pronounce the last word.

Farm Credit

A good deal of fault is being found with the policy by which the government started during the war—and which it has since continued, of organizing methods of credit for farmers. Opponents of farm credit that are fostered by the government have a good deal to say about "too much money," and "inflated currency," "greenbacks," and that line of talk. Credit, they assume, should be left wholly to the discretion of the bankers. The evils of government interference through the operations of the War Finance Corporation are pointed out as having led to "overloading" in the agricultural regions of the country. Now, all this sort of objection might be worth considering except for the undisputed fact that it comes from large financial centers where quick credits are vital to the continued prosperity of large commercial and financial interests. In recognition of this very necessity Congress gave to the country the Federal Reserve Act, through the operation of which it is possible to move a few carloads of money from one city to another overnight, should the public become uneasy and start a "run on the bank."

The farmers believe it more important to move crops than to sustain the stock markets; and so it came about that they organized farmers' associations, a "farm bloc" in Congress, and other effective political machinery, designed to make money and credits available in their communities. The two boys in Griffin's car were coming into town from the south. "A La Oldfield" when just north of the John Dent farm the car left the road and turned turtle, spilling both passengers. They were lucky to escape as easily as they did for when the machine had ceased to buck jump it was lying with wheels up and headed back south a total wreck.

The machine which was a Ford built into a racing model was hauled into town the next day and sold to L. O. Isman, where it is being dismantled.

BANKS TOWNSHIP LOSES OLD SETTLER

Mrs. George Lord Passes Away
Thursday Morning

Banks township lost one of its respected and much loved pioneer settlers in the death last Thursday morning, November 10th, of Mrs. George Lord, at the age of sixty-nine years. The end came following a short illness of three weeks duration, a hard cold aggravating heart weakness.

Jane Bilow was born in Ellenburg, N. Y., in 1853, living there until her marriage to George Lord in 1876, when the couple removed to Grand Rapids, Michigan, some forty-four years ago, where they remained for four years. They then came to Atwood, where they have lived for the past forty years.

Six children were born to the deceased, four of whom are living and with her husband keenly mourn their loss. The children are Mrs. John Resignol, of Petoskey; Mrs. Colin McKenzie, of Charlevoix; Mrs. Merrill Richardson and Irving Lord, of Atwood. There are twenty grandchildren and one great grand child.

The funeral was held on Saturday, November 12th, from the St. Mary's church, Charlevoix, of which she was a member. Rev. F. L. Wegmeyer officiating. The remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery at Charlevoix.

Cord of Thanks

We want to thank our neighbors and friends for the beautiful flowers they gave and the help offered to us during the illness of our late beloved mother, and at the time of her death.

WHAT TO EAT

Peaches are called the children's fruit, as it does not disagree with most of the little people.

The ripe, juicy fruit sliced and served on the breakfast table makes a dish that the little folks like. Peaches and cream with hot baking powder biscuits, will satisfy the most exacting.

He is indeed favored who can pick and eat the delicious fruit right from the tree; then its melting sweetness is at its best.

Peach ice cream is one of the most delicious frozen dishes. It is possible to make. Cut up peeled ripe peaches and put through a sieve, enough to fill a pint measure, add the juice of a lemon and one and three-quarters cups of sugar, turn into a freezer and add three cups of thin cream, or rich milk will do. Freeze as usual, remove and pack in a brick mold. Serve unmixed, sprinkled with pistachio nuts and garnished with sliced peaches. Peaches are delicious baked and served with sugar and cream.

Peach Whip.—Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, add three tablespoons of powdered sugar and beat until smooth, add six ripe peaches which have been pressed through a sieve, beat until thick. Serve in tall sherbet glasses with a sprinkling of lemon juice over each.

Peach Canape.—Cut rounds from sponge cake, place on small plates and put a halved peach on each; cover with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with almond. Sprinkle with chopped blanched almonds and serve.

Peach Pie.—Bake a rich pastry shell and fill with sweetened sliced peaches. Cover with a meringue and dot with marshmallows. Set in the oven to brown the meringue and serve cold.

Another similar dessert which is most delicious is prepared thus: Cut cake baked in sheet in oblong or diamond shapes, cover with peaches sliced and sweetened, or cut very fine, top with a meringue and brown in the oven, or top with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

Death Rate Already Too High.

The death rate for the first quarter of 1922 among Metropolitan Life policyholders was higher among white policyholders by 53 per cent and among colored policyholders by 63 per cent than for the same quarter of 1921. This was due very largely to the effects of epidemic influenza. There are, nevertheless, many favorable trends in the figures for the quarter. The outstanding one is the continued low mortality from tuberculosis. The unfavorable developments, in addition to the much higher rates for influenza and pneumonia, are the increases for organic heart disease, cerebral hemorrhage and chronic nephritis. A higher rate was also registered for automobile accidents.

Art and Beauty.

A collector and his wife visited a picture gallery. They came to some photographs of classic art, and seeing one more striking than the rest, they asked what it was. "That," said a visitor standing by, "is a photograph of the famous Venus de Milo, the perfect woman." The collector gazed at the photograph for some time, and then, glancing at his wife, he said: "By gum, Lizzie, they made a mess of that!"

tor. The blocks are fed into the crusher as rapidly as they are received from the storage piles and the ice, crushed to suit requirements, is carried by the elevator to chutes leading to the freezing bin on the first floor and to the mixing pan, which is located in another second floor room immediately over the three cold storage rooms, where the crushed ice and salt are mixed for the ice cans.

Chutes both of galvanized iron and of wood are used at different points throughout the plant and are proving themselves great labor and time savers. Besides delivering ice and salt to the places where they are to be used, the frozen fish are conveyed from the piles in the storage rooms to the packing-room floor by this method. These devices, together with the elevator, make it possible for the Booth company to double the tonnage handled in the old plant with about the same amount of floor space. The remaining space on the second floor is devoted to the salt bins and the storage of the wooden shipping boxes that are piled ceiling high.

To get some idea of the magnitude of the business that is being carried on daily at this plant, one must learn that since November 1st of this year forty tons of rock salt, of a grade a little coarser than ice cream salt, and four hundred and fifty tons of ice have been used up to the present time. The territory covered by the Charlevoix branch of the Booth company includes Charlevoix, the Beavers, Northport, Leland, Petoskey and Harbor Springs. For Booth Fisheries alone, this district has produced over a quarter of a million pounds of fish during the last two weeks. Eleven craft are engaged in the industry out of Charlevoix alone; five at Leland; ten at Northport and about forty at the Beavers. The principal catch is lake trout. These fish form the backbone of the business. Other varieties caught at different seasons of the year are white fish, perch, chubs, menominee and herring.

The Booth company in this district are buyers and packers only and operate no fishing boats. Their shipments are almost exclusively of fresh fish. A portion of their product is smoked, but in the last six months this portion has been so small as to be negligible. It is a side line, merely.

Contrary to popular local conception, the fish packed and shipped from this point do not find their way to Chicago. This was true in the past, but of late years Michigan dealers have absorbed the larger portion. The balance is widely distributed, recent shipments having reached Pittsburgh, Denver, Duluth and Memphis.

The Booth Fisheries Company absolutely stands behind its products and guarantees every pound of fish shipped. The catches are carefully inspected and fish found dead in the nets, or otherwise imperfect and below standard, are discarded. Visitors are welcome to look over their plants at any time and will be afforded every opportunity to acquaint themselves with the interesting and instructive features of the work.

A peculiar and rather humorous phase or side-issue of the business has to do with the discarded heads cut from the larger fish before they are stored. These heads are put into barrels and set outside of the plant. Small boys with a thrifty instinct and an eye for business surround these barrels daily, cutting out the cheeks from the heads. They carry home or sell to the local butcher for enough to outfit the home ball team or provide a pair of skis, new mittens or skates. Little goes to waste. Even the entrails are used by neighboring farmers for fertilizer (though the gulls, flying far inland, are said to interfere largely with this practice). As in pork packing, nothing is lost but the—but then, fish don't squeal.

CROP REPORT FOR THE STATE

SHOWS ALL CROPS UP TO THE AVERAGE

Low Prices Offset Increased Yield—Harvesting Completed With Ideal Weather

As in the case of the early-harvested crops, the late fall crops are generally above the ten-year average. The only exceptions are buckwheat and sugar beets, which are slightly below. The price of potatoes, most of the grain crops, and of fruits are relatively low so that the large volume harvested this fall does not represent as large an income for farmers as the production would normally indicate, is pointed out in the November crop report released lately by John A. Duell, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Ideal weather prevailed during October and a large amount of harvest work was accomplished. The portion of last year's crop still on farms November 1 is estimated at 7.5 per cent.

Corn: The corn crop is of excellent quality and the yields are mostly up to expectations. Drought shortened the crop in a few southern counties and in local areas elsewhere, but on good soils in the other counties the yield is good. About 35 per cent went into silos, six per cent was cut for forage, and three per cent was grazed or hogged down. The estimated average yield per acre is reported by correspondence to be 34.8 bushels as compared with 39 bushels last year, and would aggregate 60,448,000 bushels.

Potatoes: The potato crop, based on reports of yields, is placed at 37,856,000 bushels or about one and one-half per cent more than the estimate derived from last month's condition figure. The crop is very spotted; there being some poor yields in southern counties and occasional places elsewhere. On the whole the crop is above the average in both yield and acreage. The quality is very good except for some blight in northeastern counties, and various diseases in southwestern counties. The weather has been favorable for digging and the most of the crop is harvested. A few were frozen in the ground in some northern counties.

Beans: A special report furnished by bean growers throughout the state indicates that the average pick is 8.5 per cent, and also confirms the estimated yield of 10.5 bushels per acre published last month. This includes the package which, if deducted, would leave a commercial crop of about 4,121,000 bushels. The report also indicates that 90 per cent of the crop is white varieties, five per cent red kidneys, two per cent soys, one per cent lines, and two per cent others.

Buckwheat: The buckwheat yield is estimated at 14 bushels per acre. The frost damage was light—but many fields did not fill as well as usual. The total crop is estimated to be 538,000 bushels as compared with 624,000 bushels last year.

Clover Seed: The reported yield of 1.6 bushels per acre is less than the figure based on condition last month, but considerably better than the yields in most of the important clover states. The average for June clover is around 1.25 bushels, the state average being increased by the greater yields of mammoth, alsike and sweet clover. From present prospects, the total production will be around 230,000 bushels as compared with 166,000 bushels last year.

Sugar Beets: Ideal weather for harvesting prevailed during the greater part of October. The yields are variable, being poor in some sections because of blight, and very good where conditions were favorable. The condition as reported on November 1 was 85 per cent as compared with 82 per cent last month and 87 per cent, the ten-year average.

Fruits: The final report on apple production shows a total of 75 per cent of a full crop as compared with 40 per cent in 1921. There was considerable scab and much inferior fruit, also much fruit of good quality in orchards that have received proper care. Early maturity has lowered the keeping quality to some extent and caused considerable dropping before picking could be completed.

The grape crop proved to be a full one. While there was some loss and the quality lowered by rot, mildew and the berry moth, the healthy vines made a large growth and produced a crop that was only limited by the capacity of the vines and the system of pruning used.

Pears are estimated to have been 96 per cent of a full crop. The quality was better than usual being rated at 95 per cent as compared with a ten-year average of 88 per cent.

ALLOW FOR FUTURE TRAFFIC

Count of Automobiles on Number of Roads in Tennessee Shows Surprising Fact.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. In building a road liberal allowance should be made for future increase in traffic, says the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. A traffic count conducted by the bureau in cooperation with Tennessee officials on a number of roads in Davidson county, in which Nashville is located shows surprising facts when compared with a similar count in 1916. During this period automobile registrations have doubled, while the number of motor vehicles on the roads is five times as great as in 1916. In 1916 horse-drawn and motor vehicle traffic were almost equal in volume. In 1921 horse-drawn traffic had increased only slightly in volume and constituted 16 per cent of the traffic, motor vehicles constituting 84 per cent.

Observations in this and other counties lead to the conclusion that volume of traffic has increased in rate, greater proportion than the number of motor vehicles, and will also depend to a large degree on the condition of improvement of the road and on the economic conditions in the adjacent territory.

ROADS IN FEDERAL-AID PLAN

System Designed to Serve Whole Country and Will Be 193,000 Miles in Length.

The chief of the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture will personally inspect all of the system of federal-aid roads provided for by the federal highway act and for which initial appropriations have been made.

The system is being designed to serve the whole country and will be approximately 193,000 miles in length. It should be made an inspection, traveling at the rate of 30 miles an hour, 8 hours a day on all working days and not go over any mile twice, it would require nearly two and one-half years to complete the job.

Benefits of Good Roads. Fresh food is made available for the city children, better schools and wider social opportunities are provided for the country boys and girls, through improved highways and motor transportation.

Deflation of Prices. Prices of dairy and poultry products suffered the least in the rapid deflation of prices of farm products which began in 1920 and continue through 1921, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

To Escape Envy. A little girl ten years old declared she would be the prettiest in the country, "because then I shouldn't see a lot of people having a lot of things I can't have."

Difference in Misrepresentation. A lie is a statement which is thought to be false by the person who utters it and is intended to deceive while perjury is a statement made under oath.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

By B. O. Hagerman

Waste of Manure is Costly

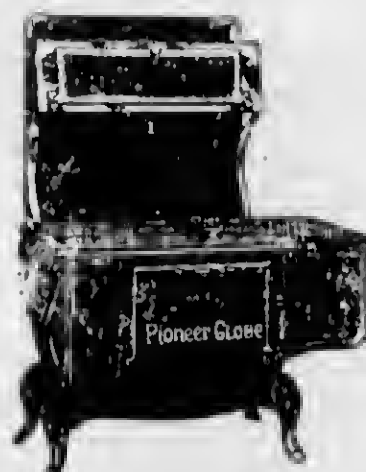

In a time of narrowing margins between cost of production and prices, economy of production is of prime importance. When endeavoring to cut costs, the first move should be to eliminate wastes from farm operations. A waste of considerable size is the loss occurring to part of our supply of "plant food," the farm manure.

This loss is due mainly to failure to save the liquid excrement; burning or fire fanning, and leaching.

With the coming of winter when the stock is kept in the barn a greater portion of the time, necessitating the handling of this valuable farm by-product, the following few remarks may be well worth considering.

First, use enough litter to absorb all liquid manure. This, with a tight floor, will prevent the first loss, which is often large, since as a conservative estimate, at least half the nitrogen and potassium is in the liquid excrement. This is a form readily available to plants, and also readily leached away. It has been found that a concrete floor pays for itself in a few years from the greater value of the manure as shown by crop increases.

When possible, haul the manure directly from the stable to the field, and spread. This is sometimes not practicable, because of weather conditions, nor is it advisable on a hilly farm, where much "plant food" may be washed away in the spring while the ground is frozen. The worst possible practice is to pile the manure in small heaps in the field.

If manure cannot be hauled out at short intervals, a place should be provided for storage. This may be a shed with a concrete floor, or simply a concrete pit without a roof. A roof is desirable, however.

Manure piled in the open suffers loss by leaching and fire fanning. In fire fanning, much nitrogen, the most expensive plant food element in manure, escapes into the air as ammonia. To prevent this loss, tramp and pack the manure thoroughly when stored in a pit, and keep moist enough to keep out air, for although the manure pit prevents loss by leaching, manure loosely piled in a pit makes conditions ideal for fire fanning. If the livestock have the run of the pit there is little danger from this.

Various preservatives may be suggested. Floats or rock phosphate is to be recommended for this purpose, since it supplies phosphorus, the element in which all animal manures are deficient, in addition to its preservative action. Scatter it on the manure at the rate of about two pounds daily per animal.

GREIG GETS ONE TO FIVE YEARS

THE "EARL" TAKEN TUESDAY TO JACKSON PRISON

Sensational Trial Ends Saturday Night, Greig Un-nerved—Wife Faints at Verdict

A. J. Walker Greig, on trial in the court here on the specific charge of having embezzled and appropriated to his own use $1,000 paid to him by Mrs. Mary E. Miller for stock in the now defunct Title Guaranty & Casualty Company, of which Greig was president, took the stand again last Wednesday morning and, sitting unassisted in his seat, endeavored to parry the telling thrusts delivered by Assistant Attorney General Ora L. Smith, in his vigorous cross-examination of the witness.

The questions of the prosecution had to do with the "Earl's" various activities in Canada and the United States and in particular with the latter's relations to the affairs of the late Casualty Company. During the course of his testimony, Greig asserted that others connected with the company besides himself had an opportunity to dip into its funds.

S. C. Smith, of this city, was placed on the stand and testified regarding stock subscriptions declared by Greig to be assets of the company and which according to Smith's testimony, had been paid in full.

Items of expense and letters from stockholders were introduced and from these it was shown that Greig had disregarded his attorney's advice in attempting to get around the rules of the securities commission of Michigan in regard to terms of sale. A dinner given by Greig to his friends at the Hotel Statler in Detroit, costing $8.00 a plate, was also brought to light. Opposing counsel wrangled bitterly during the day over the admission of certain items of evidence.

In accordance with his practice maintained throughout the trial of giving short addresses to the courtroom spectators at the close of each session, Judge George W. Sample addressed a group of Boyne City high school students who were attending the trial in a body. Among other things, the judge plead with his listeners "to stand by the union and our original forms of government which have been tested for over a century and to frown down all attempts or teachings against our various branches of government."

The "Earl's" domestic affairs came in for a general raking over Thursday morning and that afternoon the history of his family in Scotland and England, and his claim to the earldom of Dunblane was taken up, followed by searching questions regarding his operations in this country and the Canadian cities of Toronto, Edmonton and Moose Jaw.

After having steadily maintained, since being placed on the stand that the Toronto woman, Mrs. Christina Greig, was not, as she claims, his first wife, he admitted, on being confronted with a letter which he had written to her in the jail here and smuggled out to the post office, that she was his wife. In this letter, he mentioned his children (whose existence he had previously denied) and about his efforts to obtain funds to secure his release on bail. This letter was addressed to Greig's private secretary in Toronto, who had orders to mail it or deliver it to the "Earl's" first wife.

On the same day, he is alleged to have written a letter to the "Countess," reproaching her for neglecting him and urging her to procure his speedy release on bail. Both letters contained endearing terms. A letter to one of his brothers in the east was also introduced as evidence. In this letter, the "Earl" stated that he had fallen a "prey to vultures," that his difficulties were many and great, but expressed faith in his own ability to clear himself. He complained to his brother that his son, Alfred, was in trouble of one sort or another most of the time and that he, (Greig), was paying out considerable sums to get him out of it. The "Earl" also referred in this letter to plans for his daughters and expressed the hope that they would not soon marry. He also wrote that he had $1,000.00 invested in the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co. and that he had several thousand back salary coming to him from that concern. He also asked his brother to see his first wife and see if she would help to get him out of jail but not to tell anyone else what a predicament he was in. In explanation of this latter request, the "Earl" explained to his relative that he intended settling in the East when he left the jail and did not want the people there to be prejudiced against him. He asked that the reply to his letter be sent to his attorney, who would smuggle the letter into the jail as his had been smuggled out, so that the authorities would not learn where his relatives were located. The several letters above referred to were written last August.

Letters introduced by the prosecution—one written from Moose Jaw, Sask. and the other from Ottawa, Man., disclose the fact that Greig was arrested in western Canada, December 16, 1914, charged with the theft of certain securities and his trial was scheduled for March 23, 1915, but that the "Earl" jumped his bail and escaped. The titled promoter admitted his arrest but denied that his criminal identification was placed on record at that time or that he had jumped bail.

Greig, it seems, has large property interests in Canada. He admitted the ownership of ten thousand acres of northwestern Canada prairie land, which is now worth about $100,000, six hundred acres of growing wheat crops near Edmonton, (Alberta), and residential property in that and other sections of the Dominion.

ALL HAIL NOW TO KING CRIBbage

GENIAL GAME TO BE MONARCH OF INDOOR SPORTS

A Six Team League Picked From the City Lodges with Fifteen Games Scheduled for Each Team

A six-team cribbage league was organized recently, made up of two men teams from the Odd Fellows, Maccabees, Masons, American Legion, Knights of Pythias and Carpenter's Union.

A series of three games with each team was scheduled, making a total of fifteen games for each team to play to complete the schedule. The first nine games were played Friday evening, November 10th, and the last six on Tuesday evening, November 14th, in the club rooms at the Masonic temple.

The roster of "Big Leaguers" was as follows:

Maccabees—Andrew Ross and Albon Smith.
Odd Fellows—Rufus Ross and John Curtis.
Masons—L. E. Benton and C. E. Hanshaw.
Legion—W. W. Mitchell and Frank Poole.
Knights of Pythias—Frank Courcier and Gus Bergman.
Carpenters—John Bugbee and A. Richardson.

With Friday evening's schedule completed, the Legion and the Masons were tied for first place, with seven games won and two lost, with the Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and Carpenters following in the order named. On Tuesday evening the Odd Fellows stepped in to first place by making a clean sweep of six games won, three from the Carpenters and three from the Legion. The Maccabees tied the Odd Fellows for first place by taking three straight from the Masons and winning two out of three from the Knights of Pythias. The tie was played off with the Maccabees the victors, winning two out of three games.

Captain P. D. Auce substituted for Gus Bergman with the Knights of Pythias team Tuesday evening and Gus Gergman substituted for A. Richardson with the Carpenters.

Cribbage fans take note: Get in touch with the committee from your lodge as, undoubtedly, another tournament will be held sometime in December.

MORE ENGINES FOR P. M. ROAD

INCREASING BUSINESS MAKES THIS NECESSARY

Five Hundred Automobile Box Cars Building to Be Ready in the Fall

Twenty new switch engines have been ordered by the Pere Marquette railway to take care of the additional traffic which the coming year is expected to bring to Michigan's intimate, home, railroad. These locomotives which are of the eight-wheel type, will cost approximately $40,000 each, representing an aggregate outlay of $800,000. They are being built by the American Locomotive company at the Patterson (N. J.) plant, and delivery will start about January 1st.

The total weight of engine and tender will be 330,000 pounds, the engine weighing 204,000 pounds and drivers. Each engine will have a tractive effort of 45,200 pounds and will be equipped with superheaters and power reverse gears. They represent the last word in designing and construction.

The cylinders will be 22 inches by 28 inches. The tender has a capacity for 7,000 gallons of water and ten tons of coal.

500 Automobile Cars
Delivery of the 500 automobile box cars, which were ordered some time ago, will be started this month. Shortage of material experienced by the manufacturers has been responsible for the delay. These automobile cars, which cost about $1,700 each, represent a further outlay of $850,000. The plans call for 80,000 pounds capacity, with a 40 1-2 feet inside measurement. They are double sheathed inside.

These automobile cars were manufactured by the Western Steel company at their Hegewisch (Ill.) plant, and delivery which is expected to start within a few days will go on at the rate of about 25 a day.

Tracks in Good Shape
Commenting on the results of the inspection trip over the entire Pere Marquette railway lines, which was made recently, A. L. Grandy, assistant to the president and general manager, and H. A. Cassil, chief engineer, state that "conditions were found highly satisfactory, particularly where the new rails were laid and the new ballast spread this year, and this was likewise true of where the regular maintenance only was carried on."

The trip also enabled the general officers to plan an extensive program for the coming year designed to increase the capacity of the road, and to reduce the time of trains, between Chicago and the Niagara frontier and for other improvements and betterments generally.

CHILD'S CONSERVATION LEAGUE MET FRIDAY

Kindergarten Children Present Interesting Demonstration

The first meeting of the Child's Conservation League was held at the home of Mrs. C. Cooper, Friday afternoon. The important feature of the program was the demonstration work of the kindergarten children, conducted by Miss Herrington. The work gave the mothers present an idea of the assistance they may be to the schools this year. Their plan is to co-operate with the schools in order to best carry out their welfare work. Some of the children are in need of milk at the recess period; others need more recreation; and some more rest.

The next meeting will be held Friday evening, November 24th, in the training room in the Central School building. Miss Burkland will conduct a regular school program, with the third and fifth grade pupils. The parents will have an opportunity of comparing the present day methods of teaching, reading, spelling, and arithmetic with the past methods, and will thus be enabled to learn the correct methods of giving a pupil proper help at home.

Every parent who is interested in the children's work, whether the parent of children in that particular room or any other room are welcome. An admission of ten cents will be charged. The money will be placed in the Central School fund, to be used in buying milk and victrola records.

STRUCK BY RACING CAR

LEROY SAUNDERS OF EAST MARION THE VICTIM

Accident Occurred Thursday Night on Horton Bay Road—Injured Lad Was Driving Cattle

Leroy Saunders, thirteen years of age, whose home is three miles out of Charlevoix on the East Jordan road, met with a serious accident last Thursday night when a racing automobile struck him, broke his collar bone, fractured his skull and inflicted a number of minor injuries.

Leroy and another lad, James Novotny, his chum, were hired Thursday morning by Mrs. W. E. Dodd, of East Marion, to drive some cattle to Charlevoix for her. Leaving the schoolroom where they had been working on their lessons when they were sent for, the boys proceeded on their errand. They arrived in Charlevoix with their charge later in the morning and were persuaded by the dealer to whom the cattle had been assigned to assist in driving them, together with a flock of sheep and some other cattle, to Boyne City. Though they were fairly tired, they agreed to this and started out again with their troublesome herd.

At about seven o'clock that evening the darkness was so intense that it was difficult to distinguish the cattle and sheep from the shadows thrown on the road by trees and bushes. Leroy, James and one of the men whom the dealer had sent along with them, were walking and two other herdsmen were riding ahead of the flock on horseback. A car, speeding along the road, ran into the sheep and killed three of them. This was the first casualty of the evening and the leaders of the party decided to leave the remainder of the sheep in a nearby barn-yard while they went on with the cattle, some thirty in number. When they reached a point on the Horton Bay road between the farm homes of G. M. Stutzman and Pat Harris, three cars, evidently racing, bore down upon them from the rear. The one in the lead was driven by John Dunn, of Boyne City; right behind him came Edwin Anderson driving with the Boyne City superintendent of schools, W. L. Fuehrer. The driver of the third car is unknown. They had been attending the Greig trial in this city and were hurrying home.

Dunn saw the cattle and set the brakes. Anderson saw them and tried to stop but his speed was so great that he swerved from the road, shot over a three foot embankment and plowed along the ditch, striking the Saunders boy, who had gotten clear off the road when he saw the cars approaching, so hard as to dash him to the ground inflicting serious injuries. Superintendent Fuehrer took the unfortunate lad into the car and the party went on to Boyne City, where he was taken to a doctor's office. He remained unconscious until midnight, when he was removed to the Charlevoix hospital and X ray pictures were taken Friday morning disclosing the extent of his hurts. Friday noon he recovered consciousness and, although still in a serious condition, has a fair chance of recovery.

BAD BLAZE AT THE CEMENT PLANT

Potoskey Concern Loses Machine Shop, Office and Laboratory

Sunday afternoon, a serious fire nearly wiped out the office, machine shop and laboratory at the Potoskey Portland Cement plant.

Defective wiring in the office ceiling caused the fire, it is believed. It started at five o'clock and it was late in the evening when the firemen brought it under control.

The business of the plant is being continued and it is probable that its regular operation will not be interfered with by the work of repair.

SAM HAMILTON WINS HIS WAGER

Footed It to Potoskey and Back in Nine Hours and a Quarter

Last Wednesday Sam Hamilton walked from this city to Potoskey. Now, there is nothing remarkable about walking to Potoskey. "Many Charlevoix people," as the ad. says, have probably done this same stunt without arousing any particular comment.

But this was different—Sam walked on a wager and against time. Some time ago, he offered in the presence of a few friends to put up fifty dollars that he could walk to Potoskey and back inside of ten hours. His friends took him up on this and thus it is that Wednesday morning, Mr. Hamilton, equipped in light marching order, started out at eight o'clock and walked, his objective being the Mitchell Street bridge over Bear Creek, which everybody knows is near the centre of our neighbor city.

His progress was observed at certain points along the route, which as near as can be estimated is about thirty-four miles. Sam got back to Charlevoix at half past five, having completed his task in just nine hours and a quarter, averaging nearly three and a half miles per hour, over the total distance. A large and admiring crowd of citizens met him at the swing bridge and escorted him to the stakeholder, who handed over the money.

MANY STUDENTS WORK THEIR WAY

LARGE PROPORTION AT U. OF M. ARE SELF-SUPPORTING

Both Men and Women Willing to Tackle Anything from Pop-Corn Selling to Teaching

About one-fourth of the men students of the University of Michigan do some kind of outside work to defray living and other expenses, according to Mrs. Mary L. Stewart, who is in charge of the employment bureau. "Those who seek work receive monthly allowances from home ranging from ten to sixty dollars," she said. "Many of our students are entirely self-supporting. The money earned from odd jobs, together with the small monthly allowance received by some students from home, helps to pay living expenses."

Applicants for work are willing to do almost any kind of task from working with a street gang or operating a popcorn machine to teaching in a private school or corresponding for some newspaper. The most popular form of student employment seems to be manual labor; the least popular is canvassing and selling.

Approximately 200 out of a total of 1,650 women students work their way through the University of Michigan. House work, including cooking meals and taking care of children, is the most popular form of employment for women, while positions as teachers, stenographers, and secretaries are relatively scarce.

Students Eat Carefully

Toasted rolls, stews and ham and eggs rank very high in demand by the students of the University of Michigan, according to the proprietor of one of the thirty odd lunch-rooms adjoining the campus. The main item for the scholastic breakfast is toasted rolls, with wheat cakes running a close second. At noon it is mostly stews and short orders, while in the evening the old fashioned "ham and" is the favorite dish. Sandwiches are sold at all hours of the day. Toward evening there is an increasing demand for pie.

Though a student rarely complains of the quality of food served him, he is very particular about what he eats, and will stay away from the place that displeases them in any respect. It is usually only the decreasing amount of cash receipts that the owner of a lunch room knows of dissatisfied patrons.

CARS CRASH AT THE CORNERS

ACCIDENT OCCURS IN HEAVY SNOW FLURRY

Ford Driven by Frank Hamlin Side-Swipes Studebaker Tearing Off Wheels on Both Cars

Sunday night, just after dusk, in a driving snow storm, two cars crashed together at Godbold's corners, almost in the same spot where the Cheboygan party came to grief with such fatal results several weeks ago. Again, as in the former instance, a Studebaker figured in the disaster.

Frank Hamlin, of Antrim Street, coming towards town from Potoskey, in a whirl of sleet and snow, failed to see the big Studebaker, owned by R. C. Korth and driven by his brother, Carl, until nearly upon it. Korth was going north and had just passed the intersection of the Potoskey road with the one he was travelling when the Ford driven by Hamlin struck him. The latter evidently lost his presence of mind for the moment, as the proper move for him would have been to swing to the left and pass the rear of the big car. He swung the wheel sharp to the right, however, just at the turn of the road, and struck Korth's car a side-swipe that jammed in the running board and tore off the right front wheel of the Studebaker. When the cars brought up standing, the Ford was completely across the north and south road in the corner of the lot, with both front wheels off and the body nearly torn from the chassis. Korth had swung sharp to the left and off the road to avoid the other car and managing somehow to make the turn on three wheels brought his machine to a standstill facing the direction in which he had come.

Hamlin, who was thrown completely out of the car by the collision, was unconscious when picked up. He was rushed to the local hospital in a passing car and there was revived and examined for injuries. Beyond severe bruises and the shock of the experience, he was found to be all right.

A wrecking car from Erickson & Olmstead's garage brought the Studebaker in for repairs, while the Ford was left where it lay until later, and was inspected by the sheriff and chief of police Weikel on a visit to the scene of the accident, shortly after it occurred.

This is only one of a number of serious automobile accidents that have occurred in this region in the past few weeks and have been reported in these columns and those of other newspapers of the county. Government statistics on automobile accidents, as published in the last issue of the "Literary Digest," give the terrific total of over ten thousand lives taken by automobiles during the past twelve months, and this does not take into account the vast number of accidents that do not result fatally, like the one described above. It is hard to prescribe a remedy. Even with increased penalties for infractions of the speed laws, reckless drivers will still take chances. And where the question is not one of law-breaking, but merely a matter of nerve and a cool head, the solution becomes still more difficult. The lowering of this terrible yearly mortality figure seems to rest with the individual driver and the development on his part of a keener sense of responsibility to public safety. It is a significant fact that in this part of the country, the majority of serious accidents occur on the country roads. This would seem to indicate that the action of the legislature of Michigan in raising the maximum rate of speed on all roads and highways outside of incorporated towns and villages to thirty-five miles an hour was a grave mistake. Most people drove thirty-five miles an hour when the limit was twenty-five miles an hour. It might be well to take this ten mile margin into account when the traffic laws of the state are next revised.

ISLANDS LEGALLY IN PAWN

Orkney and Shetland Were Pledged to Scotland by King of Denmark in 1471.

The islands of Orkney and Shetland are legally "in pawn," says the Detroit News. They were pledged to Scotland by the king of Denmark on the occasion of the marriage of the Danish Princess, Margaret, to James III of Scotland, in 1471. These island groups were then Norwegian territory, and had been so since the close of the Ninth century.

At the time of their being pawned the king of Denmark was also sovereign of Norway and Sweden, and hoped that the marriage of the Danish princess would help to effect an alliance with Scotland—then a separate kingdom from England.

To help matters on the Danish king agreed to fix the princess' dowry at 20,000 ducats (about $120,000)—10,000 ducats to be paid before the lady left Denmark, and the islands of Orkney to be given in pledge for the remainder. But at the last moment the king could only pay his lands on 2,000 of the 10,000 ducats, and was obliged to pledge the Shetland islands for the balance.

The pledge has never been redeemed, and though Denmark has made several attempts to get back these islands all the negotiations have come to naught.

WILL MAKE GAS ON THE FARM

Flivver Fuel Can Be Manufactured by the Farmer From His Waste Products.

In a few years many kinds of farm waste will be converted successfully into liquid or gasoline fuel, writes Floyd W. Parsons in the World's Work. For some time alcohol has been manufactured in large quantities from "blackstrap" molasses, but now we find that it is possible to obtain 150 pounds of petrol from each ton of this low-grade molasses, in addition to the liquid fuel. During the war the price of petrol averaged as high as $1,000 a ton.

Federal chemists have found it possible to obtain gas by the distillation of wheat, oat and rye straws. It is not too much to expect that one day straw gas and gas made from cornstalks, and other vegetable matter will be used by farmers to supply light and heat for their houses, power for their stationary engines and fuel for their tractors and automobiles.

Fifty pounds of straw will produce 300 cubic feet of gas—an amount sufficient to drive a light roadster 15 miles. The next step in this experimental work will be the perfection of a method of reducing the gas to liquid form so that it may be carried conveniently as a motor fuel.

Pleasantries at an Operation.

Dr. T. Victor Keene, Indianapolis physician and surgeon, once was being prepared for an appendicitis operation. He was a fellow among those whose loving hands were to gas him out and carve him up. So they were making grim humor about the cutting party. So pleasant did the occasion become that to this day Doctor Keene doesn't know whether he was placed under the influence of an anesthetic or whether he was just simply scared into unconsciousness and did not come to until after the operation. They began regularly enough to give him the gas and then he heard the following pleasant little remark—and heard no more until after it was all over:

"Hey, be careful there with that ether. Don't you know he's a nervous devil? Look out! Say, you'll snuff him out!"

Needed Help.

Standing on the slippery pavement of a small Southern town one rainy night, like sailors on a reeling deck, they were discussing a member of their party who had to retire from the scene of action. The principal speaker in the group appeared to be having some difficulty in keeping his footing on the swaying pavement. The buildings on either side bowed and rocked. The telephone poles did some sort of contortionist stunts and even his voice was a bit thick.

"Where's Sam?" another member of the group asked him.

"We took him home," the first speaker informed him between hicoughs. "Was he drunk?"

"Drunk? It took three of us to get him but in the car."—The Argonaut.

In it are compiled the opinions of prominent lawyers, physicians, engineers, business men, clergymen, and educators in regard to the benefit to be derived from a study of the old classic, Latin and Greek. These statements from men who know whereof they speak, help greatly in proving that Latin is far from being a "dead language," and is of practical value to a large percentage of students today. The young people who have these pamphlets in their possession, will be glad to loan them to anyone interested in knowing the many answers to the question, "Why Should We Study Latin?"

Basket ball teams, both girls and boys, are being organized and as soon as possible practice will be scheduled times.

The kindergarten children entertained their mothers, Thursday afternoon, in the kindergarten room, with a short program of the daily work.

Miss Burkland gave a very interesting talk on the "Proper Care of Children" and as a result it was decided to have milk in the kindergarten every day. The children are weighed once a month. Superintendent Hamilton was very pleased to find so many mothers interested in the work. The rest of the afternoon was given over to Miss Oliver and Miss Wilson. Miss Oliver sang a solo, Miss Wilson with three of the girls from the domestic science department served tea.

Our foot ball team was defeated at East Jordan last Friday, the score being 27-7 in favor of East Jordan. Charlevoix obtained their seven points at the first of the game and East Jordan completed it by obtaining their twenty-seven points. Therefore East Jordan has the class B championship.

Let's have a more successful season in basket ball. What do you say?

Tommy Smiles

Tommy is by turns the delight and the bane of his teacher's life; but even when he has pulled Frances Mary's pig-tail and "lost" three marbles down the center aisle, she wouldn't trade him, not for fifty straight-spined little boys.

It isn't quite an ordinary school-room where Tommy goes. Sometimes there are twenty boys and girls there; sometimes almost twice as many; but afterwards, half of them, perhaps, must rest on their cots; and never do any of them miss taking "tamp" twice a day.

They are all pupils in the school at the state tuberculosis sanatorium at Howell, and each of them must fight months or years for his chance of life and strength and future usefulness.

Tommy, for instance, has bone tuberculosis, and his head is sunken between his shoulders, and his twisted little body crooked for all time. Nine years old, he is scarcely the size of a well-developed youngster of six.

But sympathy? Not for Tommy, who smiles at the world all day long! He hasn't a home, hasn't had one for years, but since he has come to Howell, he has made friends in every department of the sanatorium. He is happiest of all in the school-room, for he has never before been able to go to a real school with desks and black-boards, and classmates to play with, and a teacher to love and torment.

Sympathy for Tommy, who must pay in suffering and deformity for the ignorance and neglect of the grown-up world?

They do not ask for sympathy, Tommy and his schoolfellows, and the less fortunate youngsters in Michigan, for whom, tuberculosis though they are, room cannot be made in the overcrowded sanatoria. All of them front disease and deformity with a smile. But can you and I and the rest of us comfortable people, who let them contract a cruel and preventable misdeed, smile too?

Christmas Seals Fight Tuberculosis. formity with a smile. But can you and I and the rest of us comfortable people, who let them contract a cruel and preventable misdeed, smile too?

After-Care Needed to Bring Permanent TB. Recoveries

"Rest and good food, fresh air and freedom from worry," this sanatorium superintendent told John Rolley, when he gave him his final chest examination.

John was not cured, of course, but he was so much improved that the superintendent believed that he might complete the cure in his own home.

But at home John Rolley had three children and a frail wife, and rest, on which the doctor had laid so much emphasis, was a prescription he could not follow except at his expense. Ten days after he left the sanatorium he went to work at his old job on the section.

Last week, in answer to a letter of inquiry, he wrote this account of himself to the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

"We were laying rails this summer and the boss put me to flagging or I couldn't have stood it. I haven't had any examination since I left the sanatorium. I have lost some in weight and I have been having some pleurisy pains in my right lung for the last month."

Philfully little is the Michigan Tuberculosis Association able to do for him. He is not a pauper; he told with pride that he had a house and lot on which he had paid six hundred dollars.

Given a chance to take proper care of himself for a few months longer, he might reasonably look forward to a normal life-span. But if he must struggle through days of pain and weakness now, in the hopeless effort to do the work of a well man, the end of John Rolley's story is certain and near at hand.

After-care of consumptives should be provided in Michigan. Tuberculosis Christmas seals will help to meet the need.

The Sanatorium Graduate Speaks

Had the con? You bet, and beat it. You can, too, so don't you worry! Takes some grit, I'll grant, to meet it. And you won't win in a hurry.

But old Doctor Rest will do it. Rest and air and food, I'll say; Lie by, now; you'll never rust it. You'll get life and health for pay.

And a curious thing about it. Just because it lets you feel Other folks'll help you rust it. When your lagoon's slow to heal, You'll get courage—never doubt it. Looking at the Christmas seal.

GOVERNMENT GOSSIP

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15, 1922. Social Amenities in Latin American Business

When a commercial traveler goes to Latin America he should take his dress clothes and frock coat with him according to Ernst B. Filsinger in the new edition of the "Commercial Travelers' Guide to Latin America." They are indispensable accessories to the proper carrying on of business.

Looks For Bonus Victory
Confidence that a soldiers' bonus bill would be enacted by the Congress which comes into existence after March 4, is expressed in Washington by legislative representatives of the American Legion, who say that the election clearly demonstrated that the sentiment of the country was behind compensation legislation. With the new House 8 to 1 in favor of the measure, Mr. Taylor said, sixty-nine Senators would support the legislation, giving bonus proponents a safe margin in the Senate over the number needed to override a presidential veto. Mr. John T. Taylor, representative of the Legion asserted that of nineteen Senators up for re-election, who voted in September for the compensation bill, thirteen returned to the Senate. Fifteen of eighteen new Senators, he added, favored the proposal.

World Shipbuilding
Shipbuilding returns for the quarter ended September 30, 1922, show a decrease of more than 500,000 tons from the total during the preceding quarter, 300,000 tons of which represents the decline in British yards, according to Lloyd's Register of Shipping, quotes the "Commerce Reports." This decrease lowers the amount of tonnage under construction to 2,702,556 tons, as compared with 3,235,430 tons on June 30, 1922, and 3,679,622 tons on March 31, 1922. At the end of the third quarter American shipyards had the same tonnage on hand as at the end of the second quarter (150,623 tons)—an increase of 9 per cent over the total at the end of the first quarter.

Land-Grant College Association
Representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture have interested themselves in the annual convention of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges in Washington, D. C. The purpose of the Association is to promote "closer and more intimate association of the different land-grant colleges and other research and educational institutions with the Department."

Reclassification
Prospects for pushing the Lehlbach-Sterling reclassification bill through the Senate appear particularly bright for the coming session of Congress, according to Luther C. Stewart, president of the National Federation of Federal Employees. President Stewart feels that the recent election has brightened prospects to get the reclassification bill put into effect. The members of the council, here from all parts of the United States, also will take up other matters in regard to the welfare of government workers.

Hope for Philippine Independence
The outcome of the recent election forecasts the granting of Philippine independence by the next Congress, in the opinion of Philippine Resident Commissioner C. de Yeyra. "I have very carefully analyzed the returns," stated the Philippine Commissioner, "and I am satisfied there will be sufficient votes in the newly elected Congress to pass a Philippine independence measure through both House and Senate. Therefore, the 11,000,000 inhabitants of the Philippines hail the result of the elections with the greatest enthusiasm and gratitude. Practically every progressive Republican favors the granting of our independence, while the Democrats are almost a unit for it."

"If the election indicated anything, it indicated the American people desire progressive measures and legislation. The Philippine independence bills are progressive measures. They involve the principle of the keeping of faith by a powerful nation with weaker and aspiring peoples. America championed the principle of self-determination during the world war, and the American people will expect Congress to itself practice what it preached to the rest of the world."

Defends Tax Exempt Securities
Mr. Calvert Tawney, broadly known in connection with his leadership in electrical engineering affairs, takes a position quite different from many of our leading business men, regarding the proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit the continued issuance of tax-exempt securities. In his statement Mr. Tawney says:

"We have had tax exempt securities for the early beginnings of this nation. They include those issued by municipalities, states sub-divisions of states and the United States. Nobody has ever objected to their issue over all years until recently. Why not?

"Outside of the ethical reason that it is not equitable for a debtor to agree to pay a given rate of interest to his creditor and then take some of it back in order to help him pay that interest, which reason may or may not appeal to the man on the street, according to his point of view on Government and business affairs, there is a very obvious economical reason that money can be obtained at a lower rate of interest if the lender can keep all the interest than if he has to give up some of it. Inasmuch as the wherewithal to pay interest on Government obligations comes out of taxes, the fact should not be lost sight of that everybody who pays any taxes at all will have them increased if this rate of interest is raised and I do not suppose any one will dispute the obvious truth that if the income from Government securities is taxable, they will lose all their preferred position in the money market and will have to return a higher yield. This is a point which I have never seen mentioned much less stressed in any of the outbreaks appearing in the press against tax exempt securities."

"In framing the present income tax laws our legislators in their wisdom (?) have asked the fellow with the large income, I believe it to be generally conceded that the heavy super-taxes on large incomes are not only unjust but economically unsound, but the lawmakers seem to care very little for this fact because the people who receive these abnormal incomes are comparatively few in number and therefore have a correspondingly small number of votes, and for the reason that as every one is more or less jealous of the fellow who is better off than he is, they are not as a class particularly popular."

"Of course if a citizen is called upon to pay out from 25 per cent to 50 per cent of his income in taxes he can well afford to buy tax exempt securities at a considerably lower rate of interest and still be ahead of the game and that is of course why such a ready market for tax exempt securities at such good prices has developed. Federal, state and municipal authorities knowing this have not been slow to institute public expenditures on a large scale with the result of the great increase in the volume of such securities which has caused the present discussion. Obviously, money put into public improvements, once it has been expended, is dead money, i. e. it is not productive or at least nowhere near as productive as if the same amount were put into commercial enterprises, and in just so far as the funds available for the country's development are restricted. To my mind, however, that cure for the evil is obvious and is not to stop the issue of tax securities. It is to modify our ridiculous income super tax schedules as to re-establish the proper balance and remove the incentive for our very wealthy people to invest in tax exempt securities. In other words, don't cover up the dirt with paint and perfume,—wash."

"I am very confident if the general public, particularly our office holders are brought to realize that if they abolish tax exempt securities for ever after they will have to pay higher rates of interest on all money borrowed for public improvements that tax exempt securities will never be abolished. I may be wrong in this conclusion but I hate to see anything put over on an unsuspecting public and therefore I should like to see the real facts properly advertised."

Ship Subsidy

The ship subsidy bill will be the backbone of the legislative program in the House of Representatives during the coming weeks. Members of Congress had their way in keeping the subsidy legislation out of the way prior to election. It is now stated at the White House that the power of the administration has been enlisted in support of ship subsidy, and despite all opposition, preferential rights are demanded for the bill in the House. What the fate of the measure will be no one can tell; but in some of the states a good deal of attention was given to this subject during the campaign, and the burden of talk in a number of the "progressive" states of the mid-west and the far west indicated tremendous opposition. There are political prophets and some of prophets in Washington, and their predictions are freely given with reference to all political topics. These Wise Aeres foresee "defeat" or "qualify," or "doubtful," when the fate of ship subsidy is up.

The United States government is operating very extensive shipping business, and with not very good success. Because it is constantly running behind, it is proposed to sell all ships, and to give certain bonuses, or mail contracts, to private owners who will operate ships. A subsidy arranged in this manner will be as expensive to the government as the payment for the present losses in public operation. The hope of success for the subsidy scheme is that private ownership will develop a great export and import business that will result to the benefit of the United States. Members of the administration point out that the government cannot use competitive methods that are essential to getting a full share of business for United States ships; and the many restrictions, including the seaman's wage laws, prohibition, etc., are indicated as placing the present method of ship operation to a distinct disadvantage as compared with private operation.

The ship subsidy legislation naturally originates in the House, because that branch of Congress has the first say regarding bills freighted with appropriation provisions. It is not likely that the House will divide entirely along party political lines on the ship subsidy question, since it may be regarded to a large extent as an economic question. Should its friends succeed in getting it through the House it is hard to say what its fate may be in the Senate, where a lack of political unity and the very nature of the bill would most likely prevent the drawing of strict party lines.

It is calculated that a ship subsidy would tax the federal treasury about $50,000,000 a year. This is the sum that the shipping board is now running behind in operating the United States boats.

The "Hurry Season" for Congress

There are a lot of people around Washington who are having dreams that Congress will "hurry up" with the budget and the appropriation bills and pass them all before March 4, at which time the session will adjourn until the fall of 1923.

Measures besides the appropriation bills to come before Congress will include the soldiers' bonus, the proposed constitutional amendment for tax-exempt securities, farm credit legislation, possible consideration of impeachment proceedings against Attorney General Daugherty, and many other things that are time-consuming. Proposed amendment of the Esch-Cummins railroad law looms large on the Congressional horizon, and if railroad legislation comes up, there is bound to be a long fight. There is no reason to suspect that Congress will move any faster this year than in other years, or that it will have less to do. This points very plainly to the inevitable continuing of Congress until at least the last of June. More probably political problems, including the prohibition issue, will hold Congress in session most of next summer.

Business Forms a World Court
Political governments fiddle and fuss about problems of a world court, arbitration of international disputes, shipping, booze and labor laws, the league of nations, disarmament and treaties.

In striking contrast to all this is interesting to note how the business and financial interests of the world get together on vital international matters. During the early part of this month the International Chamber of Commerce perfected a plan for a board of arbitration of business disputes. Twenty-seven countries are participating, and each country will have members on the board. There are nine from the United States, and they are headed by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company.

The plan of this movement is simple. The commercial interests of many lands, with many tongues, and many interests, fail to function normally because of confusion and misunderstanding due to race methods and principles. Chambers of Commerce and business men's associations presumably stand for the best business methods in all countries. These chambers throughout the world are to be brought into agreement through a board of arbitrators, whose membership is wholly international, but in which there is a common understanding that awards will be promptly made in all disputes.

"Because the United States, of all countries, offers the best promise of a more human life to the masses, it is strong enough to answer the Bolshevik challenge," says Col. Raymond Robins, of Chicago, expert sociologist. He adds:

"The present social order of our country is able to meet this challenge because of a certain confidence and trust in our political, economic and religious institutions. But it cannot be met by any nation in the Old World."

These are facts worth calling freshly to mind every time some excitable patriot raises a new cry of alarm regarding some radical menace or other.

Anyone who calmly studies the political history and social tendencies in the various countries of the world usually concludes that the United States is the steadiest country in the world. Even England, with "its freedom broadening slowly down from precedent to precedent," is more radical than America—that is, its political and economic evolution moves faster. And this American steadiness is not one class only; if it were it would be dangerous. It permeates all the classes except a fringe of radiant extremists so small as to be of little influence.

America is liberal; but our liberalism is what almost any European country today would call conservatism.

The reason for this national conservatism is plain enough, as Col. Robins suggests. Americans know when they are well off, and don't lightly take any chances of changing for the worse, in sudden hope of a millennium. That is why the reds, of any type, never have a chance here.

ARTIC WARMING UP

Maybe there is something, after all, in that French story about the Gulf stream being diverted from Europe by the filling of channels by the Florida East Coast railroad. To the French stories of abnormal cold experienced in western Europe lately are now added stories of abnormal heat in the Arctic region.

Dr. Hoel of the University of Norway reports finding warm water and hardly any ice within nine degrees of the north pole, where there is usually much ice and very cold water. A sea captain who has sailed the eastern Arctic for 50 years, declares that the weather has been growing steadily warmer since 1918, and the Arctic today is hardly recognizable as the same region it was from 1868 to 1917. This year at many points well-known glaciers have entirely disappeared, and where there were formerly great masses of ice and snow there are now only heaps of earth and stones. There are corresponding changes in the flora and fauna, with seals and fish shifting farther north.

All this may be accidental, the result of three or four winters in succession made warmer than usual for purely natural reasons. It will take ten years' observation, say scientists, to prove any fundamental change. Yet the idea of the Polar regions warming up is full of interest, for many reasons. Recent explorers have directed American attention particularly toward the Arctic, as a place for profitable enterprise and human habitation. Geology reveals the fact that the Arctic formerly had a semi-tropical climate before the last great ice age, and seems destined to have one again. This natural process of warming up, however, would take many thousand years.

Is it possible that an accidental bit of work done by man should give the far North Atlantic, with all its frozen lands, the heat which has made life so tolerable in western Europe, and give England, France and other mild countries the climate of Labrador? And if so, what can we do about it?

DRY CALIFORNIA

California was expected to "go wet" this fall if any state in the Union did. Yet it voted for an enforcement law which, by the testimony of the liquor advocates themselves, is more strict in its provisions than the Volstead act. This result is as interesting economically as it is morally.

California is the greatest grape state in the country. Its prosperity was built to no important extent on its wine industry. Californians not only produced wine but liked wine. They feared the ruin of the grape industry by prohibition. Yet the vine yards have been more prosperous than ever. Raisins and fresh grapes and unfermented grape juice have brought and are bringing far more money than wine ever brought.

That fact certainly had a great deal to do with the majority given for strict enforcement on Nov. 11. And in Ohio, also a big grape state, the same kind of vote was cast on the same day. All moral questions aside, it has been found in both states that prohibition pays in other ways than those usually urged by reformers.

SPORT FOR TOMORROW

A writer on western life declares: "The average American is not a conservator but a destroyer. He wants to get at the game as fast as he can. He cares nothing at all for tomorrow. A study of 50 years of American field sports will convince any man that sport and democracy are two entirely inconsistent and irreconcilable propositions.

Perhaps thoughtful citizens will have little hesitancy in choosing democracy in preference to sport, if only one of the two is to survive. It is true that the spread of civilization westward has greatly reduced the wild animal and bird life. Much of it has been killed or frightened away by mere contact with man. But the homesteader and city-builder cannot be blamed for it all. The sportsman, greedy for slaughter rather than sport, has done more than his share of game destruction.

Civilization cannot be halted to allow birds and beasts to retain full possession of all their native haunts. But with civilization should go the doctrine and practice of conservation.

There are few regions where game once abounded which do not possess some areas of land unsuitable for human cultivation but amply qualified to harbor wild game. These places should be maintained as animal or bird sanctuaries, protected by state and federal authority. Game laws which safeguard the game itself as well as the sport of hunting and fishing should be more widely established and enforced. Under such conditions sport and democracy should cease to be irreconcilable.

MARKS AND FRANCS.

French currency has been slumping lately, after holding up pretty well for the last couple of years, and France is scared.

The cause is fairly plain. It is the collapse of German currency and the consequent inability of Germany to meet reparation payments. German paper inflation seems to have started in a wild effort to provide the wherewithal to buy gold to meet such foreign payments. It has continued until it defeats its own purpose. France has built her hopes of reconstruction on German money. The more thought of the franc following the mark down toward zero gives French statesmen heart-failure.

The alarming situation, however, has at least one good result. It enables the French people, as well as their leaders, to see at last that German ruin would drag France down to ruin and that French survival depends on German survival.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES WILL AID HOSPITAL.

Met Tuesday Afternoon and Appointed Various Committees

The ladies of Charlevoix, at a meeting Tuesday afternoon, voted to organize a Ladies Aid to the hospital. Committees on nomination of officers, constitution and by-laws were appointed by the chairman, Mrs. W. H. Miller, to report at a meeting Tuesday afternoon, November 28th, at 300 Dixon Avenue. A plan for securing the co-operation of all ladies to make surgical dressings and sew is to invite ten members of each of the following societies to serve one Tuesday afternoon, as the names of the various societies come in order, alphabetically: American Legion Auxiliary, Baptist Ladies Aid, Dickens Club, Episcopal Women's Guild, Hospital Auxiliary, Lady Macdonalds, Mother's Club, Mary Brewster Circle, M. E. Sewing Circle, O. E. S., Rebekahs, St. Mary's Altar Society, Shakespeare Club, W. C. T. U., W. R. C. This is fifteen clubs and societies. If each will serve one Tuesday afternoon out of fifteen weeks, the work will not demand a great amount of extra time from anyone and will be a service that will be appreciated by the hospital board and staff of nurses.

Any lady who is not affiliated with any of these societies can join the Hospital Auxiliary. It is hoped that each organization will have one or more representatives at the meeting next Tuesday afternoon, as questions of importance will be presented, that all should have a share in.

A dress-stuff shaver will be given for the hospital next Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. E. E. Cross. All ladies wishing to contribute, will please bring them to the meeting at 2:30.

The Barnard Ladies Aid are also members of this organization, but will hold their own meetings on account of the difficulty of meeting in a body at Charlevoix. Their meeting date is the second Wednesday in each month.

The Queen Esther girls of the M. E. church will hold a baked goods sale at the office of the Sanitary Engineering Co. Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock.—Adv. 4711.

SHALL WE REFER THIS TO HARDING?Deadly Feud Rages in Our Midst—The Cause Economic Not Social

We have heard of tong wars among the Chinese, fierce vendettas in Sicily and deadly feuds in the Cumberland Mountains of Tennessee, but Charlevoix has produced a species of feuds all its own—a fish check war.

The moving impulse in this disturbance is industrial in nature and tearfully bloody in results. Between the little group of youthful traders who salvage the fish checks from the discarded heads of lake trout at the Booth Fisheries plant and the rival outfit similarly engaged at the Robbins, Inc. station, there exists a state of war—red and (as we said before) bloody—especially as to noses.

It seems that the Robbins group of boy traders have been cutting their prices to the local butchers lately and this dire treason to the calling or profession has aroused the rival outfit to the employment of rough and brutal methods of coercion. In fact so serious has the matter become that the Sherman Anti-Trust act is likely to be involved and the National Guard called out to preserve order.

Numerous fights have occurred and when the members of the rival gangs are down town o' nights the cautious progress of the numerically weaker group from store to store—haven of refuge to haven of refuge—with the attacking party waiting outside for their next move, like a wolf-pack after a sheep, is pitiful—not to say humorous to witness.

Here is rare opportunity for a mediator, though who will step forward to brave the storm?

COLE'S BOAT A DERELICT AGAIN
Cylinder Bursts in Heavy Sea—Drifts Three Days

Saturday night, the engine went wrong in Garret Cole's boat, the "J. C. Cole," a cylinder bursting, while the little craft was off Gill's pier at Leland.

Repeated efforts to make land failed on account of the heavy weather and sea prevailing and the boat drifted lakeward with her crew of two men. Cole, himself, was not on board. They continued to drift all Saturday night and Sunday until Sunday night, when the coast guard on North Manitou island put out in their life boat and attempted to make a line fast, but their efforts were fruitless. They succeeded in getting the crew off, however.

The derelict was watched, and Tuesday she was picked up by Wilson's fish tug, the "Star" and brought to this port, in a nearly sinking condition due to the opening of her seams in the rough sea. The North Manitou crew of coast guards came along to man her.

The rescuers beached her on the north side of Round Lake, just south of the old Booth plant, until this morning, when she was towed to the city dock for repairs.

and that those who submit their cases will be in honor bound to abide by the decrees.

It does not take a very long program of principles to grasp the meaning of this attempt of business men to do for themselves in a straightforward simple manner, the things that the governments of the world have been unable to bring about, though they have been trying to evolve plans and schemes for international co-operation and advancement for centuries.

Are We Provincial Diplomats?

The President of Mexico has extended a fine welcome to 125 business men from the United States who are visiting his country. Press reports commenting on the visits of this and other groups of business men and financiers to Mexico are agreed that President Obregon is making a success of his rule over the Mexicans. Apparently he is kind and gentle with his people, and progressive in his methods of government. But Mexico is still isolated from the world because the United States government continues to withhold official recognition, and in the dilemma created in Mexico's international affairs certain money-sharks in New York have gone to the extreme of attempting to attach the public funds of Mexico as a means of collecting private debts. Some years ago when revolution rocked Mexico the people of the United States poked a good deal of fun at the term "watchful waiting" part of which is still in cold storage at the American State Department. The friends of Mexico insist that a country that borders on our own is deserving of better treatment inasmuch as it has succeeded in extracting itself from the mess that existed when Obregon took the presidency.

Bold Bootleggers

Riot guns, heavily armed patrols, and a system of admission only by cardboard passes, is included in the order of events and procedure at "dry enforcement" headquarters of the United States Government at Washington. Bootleggers have threatened to burn the building in order to destroy the damaging evidence it contains. Another reason for apprehension on the part of the authorities is due to information that powerful bootlegging interests of the country have been planning to swoop down upon the building and seize the great stores of confiscated booze that is housed there. All the wartime precautions have been restored at this branch of the internal revenue bureau. The officials declare that the bootleggers are becoming more aggressive than ever, and they do not minimize the fact that they believe the situation in Washington and elsewhere is filled with dangers. The situation in New York is likewise acute, and the Federal authorities find it necessary to constantly "re-organize" the dry forces in the metropolis in order to maintain an efficient organization.

A coward is known by the excuses he makes.

GASOLINE TAX WOULD ADD UNFAIR BURDEN ON AUTOMOBILE OWNERS

Proponents of Scheme Working to Force a One Cent a Gallon Penalty Through Next Legislature—Motorists Already Paying More Than Just Share of Taxes.

By Colonel Sidney D. Waldon, President, Detroit Automobile Club.

Michigan motorists will soon be paying the equivalent of 8.13 per cent per annum in taxes on the valuation of their motor vehicles if the proponents of the proposed gasoline tax have their way and force that measure through the 1923 Legislature in January.

Figures furnished the Detroit Automobile Club by oil companies dealing in gasoline within the State of Michigan indicate that the total percentage of taxes will reach this unusually high figure with the gas tax added.

These figures are predicated on records and expert estimates for the year 1921. It is interesting and rather surprising to note that real and personal property, according to these figures, paid only 2.90 per cent of the assessed valuation in that year, while the motor vehicle paid 5.12 per cent of the full, fair market value. The proposed gasoline tax would add 3.01 per cent to the latter figure, making it 8.13 per cent in all.

Use 333 Gallons Per Car.

Experts have estimated that the motor vehicles in operation in the State of Michigan on December 31, 1921, numbering 477,037, were worth $131,814,863.84, the average price per car being $276.32. All of these vehicles used a sufficient amount of gasoline to bring the average per vehicle to 333 gallons. At one cent per gallon this would be $3.33 per car and the total for the 477,037 vehicles would be $3,975,308.03. Taking this latter amount, $3,975,308.03, and comparing it with the value of the cars, $131,814,863.84, we find that it equals 3.01 per cent of the total value.

Charles J. DeLand, secretary of state, in his report for 1921, showed that Michigan's 477,037 vehicles paid into the State Department a total of $6,751,924.51 in fees of all kinds. This amount equals 5.12 per cent of the estimated fair market value of Michigan's motor vehicles.

Adding the $6,751,924.51 to the estimated gasoline tax of $3,975,308.03 we find that motorists on this basis will be paying the State of Michigan, using 1921 records as the key through which to arrive at a fair conclusion, $10,727,232.54, or 8.13 per cent of the whole fair market value of the property.

It would appear to be manifestly unfair to the owner of this kind of property to be charging this amount to him each year as his share of the public taxes when a little further investigation shows that real and personal property in the State of Michigan is paying only 2.90 per cent on the assessed valuation.

Think Motorists "Easy"

The figure 2.90 per cent is arrived at from official records of the State Board of Equalization. That body found real and personal property within the confines of the state to be worth $5,483,535,114.00. It also fixed the tax rate at $28.74, which brings the state's revenue to a total of $158,388,666.57 for the year. This latter amount equals just 2.90 per cent of the assessed valuation.

The "experts" who are shouting vociferously for a gasoline tax so "motorists may pay their fair share of building and keeping up the highways" evidently have not delved very deeply into figures. They seem to have gone far enough to find that the State of Michigan needs more money with which to extend and maintain its highway system. This fact ascertained, they have reached the conclusion that the best way to get the money is to take a few dollars out of the pockets of each of the one-half million motorists in the state. Apparently they believe that the motorist is still the "easy money" person he was a decade or more ago. But he isn't. He is standing on his rights now and while willing to pay his fair share of the public debt he is not going to be singled out and plucked freely without letting everybody know.

GAS TAX HURTS AUTO INDUSTRY

Every time a new tax is added to the heavy burden the motor vehicle is now paying another blow is struck at the automobile industry. Michigan's greatest and one of the largest of America's industries, if tax "experts" are going on and on thinking up new taxes to impose upon the motor vehicle the time is coming shortly when the effect upon the automobile industry will be noticed. Production will be curtailed because individuals cannot afford to buy motor vehicles and pay the excessive taxes assessed against them. Then some people Michigan will realize that the mobile, like the camel, must crack under the strain.

cause a notice of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Courier and circulating in said county, and that such publication be continued therein at least once in each week, for six weeks in succession, or that he cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said non-resident defendant, at least twenty days before the time above prescribed for her appearance.

A Mutual Discovery

By CORONA REMINGTON

Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Guess you'd better get out here, Mary, and I'll drive around to the barn and unhitch."

Quickly the girl picked up her suitcase and, jumping out of the buggy, started for the front gate.

"Where's mother?" she wondered. "Maybe she didn't hear us drive up."

At the click of the gate a neat, plump figure appeared hastily in the doorway, a little child in a brand new gingham dress and in shoes that sparkled beneath the weight of its burden.

"Land! How'd you get here, Mary? It ain't a minute since I looked out the door and you weren't in sight."

"Oh, mother, it's so good to be home!" The girl kissed the smiling old face and noted in one glance of satisfaction the healthy glow in her mother's cheeks and the sparkle of happiness in her eyes.

"You're looking a little bit peaked, yourself," remarked Mrs. Allen, picking up the suitcase and starting in doors.

Mary was glancing about at the old familiar home. She saw the new front steps, so white and slipshod, and the little strips of new flooring that had been slipped in here and there along the outer edge to replace the ones that had succumbed to the endless drip, drip of the rain. The whole place had the sleeked-off appearance of a home that has recently undergone a general-together cleaning, and Mary recognized with a throbbing heart the little signs of welcome.

"Think of it, mother, a B. A. college graduate, full-fledged and running over! I never dreamed I'd get there."

"But you did, and now I won't have to be worrying all summer about your going away—in the fall. Lay off your hat, Mary. It's awful pretty. How much did you give for it? I'm going to pull off these shoes; they're killing my left foot. Then we'll go to the kitchen. I was just flin' to roll out the pie crust."

Mrs. Allen tried to hide her excitement by talking rapidly.

"Bob was over this morning," she went on. "Got back Wednesday. Guess you know more about him than I do, though, him? He's probably been writing to you most every day. He graduated with honors, the paper said. I told him you was coming home today, and he said he'd be over after supper. Reckon you two youngsters'll be glad to see each other again. He seemed kinder glum; didn't say much of nothing, and Bob generally carries on so much foolishness. Don't know what's the matter."

Mrs. Allen sat on a hassock in front of the upholstered couch and drew two eminently comfortable, flat-footed old shoes from beneath it. With a sigh she carefully removed the others, and pulling her stockings on at the toe, slipped on her shabby old friends.

"That's better," she said, rising. "Now I'll be able to get around. It's most supper time. We'll have to hurry. Land, Mary, what makes you so pale? Nothing! I said frightened you, did I?"

The girl tried to conceal her emotion with a laugh.

"No, not frightened, mother. Just a dread something, somehow."

"Pshaw! You're not botherin' about what I said about Bob, are you? He's all right; lookin' fine and a heap stouter than he was when he left last fall."

The supper somehow felt flat. Nobody had much to say; Mary was not in her usual spirits and Mrs. Allen felt disappointed. For a week she had planned that one meal, and the menu included Mary's favorite dishes, yet there had been no enthusiasm. "Tired and sort of let down from the graduation and the trip and all," Mrs. Allen concluded. "As they were clearing the dishes away together a knock sounded on the front door."

"There he is, Mary. You run on; I can finish this."

Mary, now quite pale again, stood beside the table and fumbled with the knives and forks in her hands.

"He's knocking again. Hurry up and take off your apron."

Mrs. Allen deftly jerked the strings behind her daughter's back and pushed her toward the door. Mr. Allen, who had been waiting in the hall, and not Bob himself, came in.

"Oh, don't, Bob!" she said, backing away from his open arms. "I can't—we mustn't. Oh, it's terrible. Come into the parlor and let me get over with it."

Hastily she led the way into the stiff little room to the right of the front door, talking all the time.

"I—I don't know how to tell you; I can't. I hate myself, and I know you'll hate me, too, but it's the old, old story. When we became engaged I was in love with you, as I thought, but merely in love with love. I see now that I would probably have loved any other man that had brought me flowers and said nice things to me at that time. I wanted to write to you about it, but I simply couldn't. It seemed so impossible that I could be tickled and get interested in some one else when I was engaged to you. I know I'm not worth killing, and if you hate all the women on earth it's all my fault. I never despised any one so much in my life as I do myself today, but what can I do? It's all over, that's all."

With a convulsive little jerk she doubled up in a heap on the sofa and shook with sobs.

"Listen, Mary," Bob almost yelled, his hand on the girl's shaking shoulders. "I've been so stunned by what you've told me I couldn't speak. Don't cry, don't cry. Don't you hear, I'm happy—too happy to talk even. I'm in the same fix and have been nearly crazy the last six months wondering what to do about it. A fellow's in a worse mess than a girl when he finds out he's made a mistake."

For a second Mary looked up incredulously. "Ah, you're only trying to make me feel better. It's nothing but your soft heart."

"I'll swear it isn't, Mrry. Let's walk down to the telegraph office and I'll let you see me send the wire asking her to marry me."

"It can't be true! It can't be true!" "But it is, and I tell you I've been through purgatory these last months."

"Then I'll send a wire saying 'yes' to, mine," she bubbled.

"Grant I shake, Mary, dear, and psis forever, eh?"

"Sure, and long live the memory of our boy and girl love affair."

Actor Who Could Not Write.

The true story of "Joe Miller's Joke Book" is an interesting bit of literary history. Truth is that Joe Miller never read a joke in his life, and therefore could not have compiled a book of jokes. For Joe Miller could not read.

He was an ignorant actor, who achieved great success in 1714, at the Drury Lane Theater in London, and the only way that Joe Miller could memorize the lines of his parts was to have them read and recited to him until he was able to repeat them, the duty of thus droning dialogue and cues into the comedian's mind being entrusted to a wife, whom he had married for the purpose.

Off the stage or on, Miller was not a wit or humorist. But a year after his death a pamphlet appeared in which 247 jokes were given, of which only three were ascribed to Joe Miller. They had been compiled by a man with the appropriate name of Mottley. By the middle of the Nineteenth century the number of jokes had been increased by successive compilers to 1,540.

Power in Silence.
The proper value of the power of silence is probably best expressed in the scriptural reference to the various convulsions of nature, the wind and the earthquake, followed by the still, small voice. Coming down to a more recent period and a less renowned authority, we are reminded of the man who advised his son to keep his mouth shut so that people would not know he was a fool. This advice is still good for the great majority of the human race. It is the individual his relative unimportance in the universe of matter, but to be left alone, far from any human habitation, in a vast silence will probably accomplish the same.

Employer Paid for Nut.
A curious point in workmen's compensation has been settled by the English Court of Appeal. A collier, who did not drink or smoke, was in the habit of carrying a nut in his mouth, apparently for much the same reason that some people carry chewing gum. One day while at work he slipped and fell; and the nut was jerked down his windpipe suffocating him. The court held that the accident was "in the course of his employment," and entitled his widow to recover.

Poor Mule!
"That," said the city man, "is what I call downright brutality. That man ought to be reported to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

"Why? What's he doing?" "What's he doing? Can't you see how fast that mule has to walk to keep out of his way when he's pushing the plow?"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

GOOD THINGS TO "PUT UP"

It is pleasant to try some well-recommended recipes, without slighting the family. Here are some which have long been used in the family, for sometimes we find one which we like so well that it is added to the sacred family cook book.

Plum Catsup.—Take one-half peck of blue plums, one pint of vinegar, half the weight of the plums in sugar—less if liked less sweet. Add a tablespoonful of cloves, cinnamon and allspice, tied in a muslin cloth. Boil together, strain through a colander and boil again until of the right consistency.

Apple and Pepper Sauce.—Cut nine ripe, tart apples in thick slices, place in layers with sliced green peppers, using one-half dozen peppers to one dozen apples; and over each layer sprinkle salt, using one-half cupful. Tie in a muslin cloth one teaspoonful of crushed cloves, three peppercorns and mustard seed, one cupful of sugar and three pints of vinegar; pour boiling hot over the apples six mornings. Then seal.

Chili Sauce.—Boil together five cups of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of salt and one cupful of sugar, then add twenty-four large ripe tomatoes, three red peppers, and seven onions, all put through the meat grinder. Cook one hour, bottle and seal.

Green Apples and Onions.—Slice green apples, using a dozen apples to three good-sized onions, cook the onions in a little fat until somewhat soft, then add the apples unpeeled; cook until nearly done, then add a little sugar, salt and a dash of cayenne. Serve as a vegetable with pork chops or steak.

Besides admitting that he had two wives and children by both of them, the "Earl's" case was further complicated by the production in court of a certified copy of the marriage certificate that he swore to on the occasion of his marriage with the "Countess," in which he made affidavit under oath that he had not been previously married and that his age was thirty-six years, whereas, according to subsequent statements he was forty-eight years old at the time. This document shows his signature as "Earl of Dunblane," although he has previously testified that he had not used his title in any way.

Assistant Attorney General Ora Smith, when asked his reason for requiring the "Earl" to testify on matters apparently irrelevant to the charge on which he was arrested and brought to trial, replied, "I just want to show the general character of the man and some of his past activities."

Thursday forenoon, Lisle Shanahan, counsel for the defendant, questioned the latter in an effort to prove that the company's bookkeeper, W. J. Noonan (who was later its secretary) and D. J. Closser, formerly of Detroit and now located at Alpena, former attorney for the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co., were primarily to blame for the financial difficulties in which the concern had become involved, and that Greig, himself, was a victim of persecution.

It appears that Greig is somewhat dissatisfied with the fare afforded him at the county jail. In one of his letters to the "Countess" that was made a part of the evidence, the "Earl" complains that he had had only a bowl of cold porridge and black coffee, without sugar or cream for his breakfast and had sent to a restaurant for a further supply.

One of the amusing incidents of Friday's session was an explosion by the "Countess," who was quite buffy over her ejection from the ladies rest room at the court house, to which the "Earl" had secured the key and which they both had been using for private confabs. Sheriff Weaver saw the "Earl" take the key and unlock the door after a recess from the proceedings and put an end to their privacy. The "Countess" (who in that moment betrayed her humble origin) said she hoped "the Charlevoix trash would get their fill so that they would not be back in court again." She had been left in blissful and uninterrupted occupation of the rest room all Thursday afternoon and most of Friday forenoon and her peevishness was possibly somewhat excusable. The "Earl" and his counsel had also been in the habit of retiring to this room at recess time.

Greig was asked to explain, during the course of his cross-examination, why he had turned in expense accounts and claims for commissions amounting to many thousands of dollars following his forced resignation from the office of president of the Title Guaranty Company, and with these claims a long list of stock sales not previously reported to the company. He was also asked why he requested the company to reimburse him for money used to buy office furniture after he had paid for this furniture with checks drawn on the funds in the St. Ignace bank which he had claimed all along were moneys belonging to the company. Liberty bonds, he testified, accepted in payment for stock, were sent to Detroit through the mails without being registered.

It appears that Miss E. L. McCarty, Greig's private secretary, kept Greig fully advised of the company's affairs during his temporary sojourn in Canada following his hasty flight from this country in August. A letter written by the "Earl" and addressed to her at No. 1506 McDonald avenue, Detroit, advised her to "stick to the job and look out for our interests."

The "Earl" admitted that many of these sales had been used to defray overhead expenses. A good deal of such expense, he said, had been handled in that way. Greig claimed that Noonan was fully aware of all of these transactions.

The first evening session was held on Friday, the "Earl" still occupying the stand. The judge ordered the counsel for the defense and the prosecutor to speed up the proceedings so that it might be brought to a close Saturday evening.

This strange and pitiful example of perverted abilities who forms the central figure of the now famous trial has woven an almost inextricable web of guilt about himself since the beginning of the case by his numerous false statements. In Friday evening's proceedings, he repeated edly reversed former statements that he had made under oath at various times during the trial, admitting their falsity. On perjury counts alone, it is likely that he could be sentenced for the balance of his life. A check received from R. F. Sloan, of this city, for $250.00 which he had previously testified to having deposited in a Boyne City bank, he finally admitted had been used to purchase a draft for the "Countess's" sister in Chicago. The draft was cashed at the Marshall Field store. He also admitted having travelled in Canada under an assumed name after earlier denying this in Friday's proceedings. He seemed incapable of giving a straight "yes" or "no" answer to any question. D. J. Closser, of Alpena, former attorney for the Title Guaranty & Casualty Co., in his testimony, produced letters written by himself to Greig containing instructions diametrically opposite to those that the "Earl" had testified, under oath, Closser had given him in writing and on which he had acted.

Most of Saturday was consumed by the gathering up by both sides of the loose ends of the case and Saturday night at the evening session the counsel for the defense and the prosecutor made their able pleas, following which the case was turned over to the jury by Judge George W. Sample.

At about midnight, they returned to the court-room and rendered a verdict of guilty, the specific charge being the embezzlement of Mrs. Mary E. Miller's $1,000.00. The notes for this amount, which the latter gave the "Earl" in part payment for stock in the late Title Guaranty & Casualty Company were, according to the evidence, converted by him to his own use, but the Liberty bonds turned over to the titled promoter by the complainant in further payment for stock have not been discovered.

Judge Sample, in pronouncing sentence, said he was sorry that the law restricted him to the sentence of one to five years at hard labor, with a recommendation of two and a half years, and that he would make it heavier if he were able. He scored the prisoner severely, recommending to the Assistant Attorney General, Ora L. Smith, that his department proceed to try Greig on a number of other charges when he has served his first sentence.

After the sentence, Greig maintained his composure manfully while in the court-room but broke down later in his cell, following the intense nervous strain of the week's proceedings. It had been his idea all along that he would be acquitted. Sunday, he implored the sheriff to let him make the trip to Jackson prison unhandcuffed, but this the sheriff was not disposed to do, fearing to take the chances of his escape.

The "Countess" entering the jail after midnight, shortly after sentence had been pronounced, fainted at the news and was carried to the rooms of Sheriff Weaver in the jail. Her condition improved Sunday and she spent the greater part of the day with her husband in the jail. She still maintained the contention that the "Earl" was innocent of the charges against him, both as to the embezzlement and the offense of bigamy. She believed, she said, that the "Earl" had divorced his first wife before he married her.

Mrs. Greig's sister, Miss Bertha Turngren, called for her sister at the jail Sunday afternoon and the two returned that evening to Cheboygan, where the "Countess" will remain there at their palatial home for the remainder of the winter.

The letters still in the possession of the prosecution, which Greig wrote to his first wife in Toronto and to his brother will be shown to Mrs. Greig in an effort to convince her of the true status of the "Earl" in his matrimonial affairs. This statement was made on the sheriff's authority Saturday night.

Mrs. Mary E. Miller, of this city, on whose complaint Greig was arraigned, expressed herself as being entirely satisfied with the outcome of the trial.

Greig issued bogus stock certificates to many investors. It is estimated that he fled the company of which he was president, out of between $65,000.00 and $100,000.00.

The trial has proven an expensive proposition for the county, but if it results in checking, even to a slight degree, the operations of the stock and blue-sky shark in this part of the state, the people should be satisfied.

THIRD ANNUAL FOX SHOW

BY BREEDERS' ASSOCIATIONS
AT MUSKEGON DEC. 6-7

Michigan is Leading State in This New Industry With Muskegon County To the Fore

The Third Annual Live Silver Fox show to be held by the National Fox Breeders' Association of America, at Muskegon, Michigan, December 6-7 promises to be the largest and best that has yet been held. Entries are being received from fox breeders in all parts of the northern United States and there no doubt will be some from Alaska.

The annual meeting of the association is held during the convention, and the various officers are elected for the following year.

Interest in this new industry is growing rapidly and is spreading to all parts of the United States that are adapted to the raising of these animals that produce the most beautiful and exclusive of furs.

A few years ago bankers and other prominent business men were skeptical about the business and considered it a gold brick scheme, or a bubble that would soon burst, but to-day these same men have begun to realize that the silver fox industry is a good sound business proposition that is far more profitable and no more hazardous than the majority of other lines of business.

Michigan is the leading state with Muskegon county as the center of the industry in this country. At the present time this county alone has 40 silver fox farms with a total of approximately 4,000 foxes, or nearly as many as all the rest of the United States combined.

Good breeding stock that will pass advanced registry requirements is selling for $1,500 to $3,000 per pair and raw pelts from animals of this quality bring from $400 to $1,000 each on the auction sales, although inferior skin from cull foxes very often bring a much lower price.

RACED LIKE THE GREYHOUND

Botafogo, Most Famous Horse of Argentina, Was Known to Turf Followers Throughout World.

The most famous race horse that the fine studs of Argentina ever bred was probably Botafogo, for he was renowned among turf followers the world over. He died near Mar del Plata a short time ago, being only eight years old. Not particularly fortunate in his pedigree, as great racers usually are, he nevertheless became a phenomenon of the track. At two years he sold for $25,000 at auction, although he was never good looking.

When he raced the horse stretched himself out like a greyhound. He made his debut in 1917, and all the classics fell before his amazing speed. One day when he was not in form and lost to Gray Fox the event was regarded in Argentina as quite a national catastrophe. In a subsequent "revenge race" he defeated his conqueror with perfect ease before the greatest crowd that ever assembled at the Palermo tracks.

Big and Little. The largest animal that ever trod the earth has passed, but the smallest is still very much alive and flourishing, says the May Mentor magazine. The largest was the Brachiosaurus, a dinosaur, which in prehistoric times stood 40 feet high and trailed a body 100 feet long. The smallest animal is the Pleurodonus Juchensis, a member of the Protozoa family, ten of which placed end to end could be contained on the surface of a hair. The Pleurodonus lives in water.

OUR HOSPITAL— ITS HISTORY

A CORPORATION UNDER MICHIGAN LAWS

Fourteen Local Business Men Found the Money and Started the Bell Rolling in 1917

On several occasions, since the Charlevoix Hospital was opened to the public, articles on various phases of its work have appeared in the columns of the Courier, but there is reason to believe that the story of how Charlevoix came to have a hospital and who originally fathered the movement, what its purposes are and how it is conducted is not as widely known as it should be, nor as clearly defined. To this end, a brief history of the institution since its early beginnings may not be out of place.

For some time prior to the year 1917, it was felt by a number of our local residents and a few of our summer visitors that Charlevoix needed a hospital of its own. At that time, such facilities as the town afforded for the care of its sick and injured were meagre, indeed, and consisted mainly of first aid, more or less efficiently administered (according to the appliances and surgical and medical supplies available) in the offices of the city's various physicians, or some treatment, with its wide range of sanitary conditions, care, and financial ability to meet the demands of illness, making for or against the recovery of the patient, as the case might be.

In the summer of 1917, the little group of townspeople who had become leaders in the movement which had for its end the establishment of such an institution in the city, found themselves in possession of a sum of money, raised by subscription among themselves and augmented by the gifts of some of their resorter friends, sufficient to purchase the property on which the hospital building now stands completed. Articles of incorporation were applied for on March 5, 1919, the Charlevoix Hospital was officially recognized by the State of Michigan as a corporation under its laws.

The fourteen local business men who applied for the incorporation of the new hospital were Harry Oldham, Harry Nichols, Jacob L. Crane, William Finucan, Ira A. Adams, Lyle Shanahan, Albert F. Bridge, Alvah D. Crimmins, W. Herschell Miller, A. A. Swinton, Robert F. Sloan, F. M. Glassford, L. S. See and R. C. Hammett.

The property selected as the site of the new institution consisted of lots 66 to 69, inclusive, Upright and Huribut's addition to the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, situated on West Huribut avenue, near the intersection of Grant Street, and was acquired by cash purchase, outright; lots 67 to 69 from Robert N. Chamberlain and wife, of Detroit, and lot 66 from Fred H. Thomas and wife, of this city. The purchase of both parcels was consummated in the summer of 1917, in the name of the newly formed hospital organization.

The articles of incorporation were drawn up according to the provisions of Act 242 of the Public Acts of Michigan, for the year 1893, which is entitled, "An Act for the Incorporation of Hospitals or Asylums in Cases Where Valuable Grants or Emoluments Have Been Made to Trustees for Such Purposes."

From these articles it appears that "said hospital shall not be operated for the purpose of making a profit for the services rendered, but shall be operated, primarily, for the welfare of the permanent or transient residents of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, and such other person or persons as may apply."

MADE ONE SPEECH KISSED 2 OLD MAIDS

The kissing of "two old maids" and the near joining of church were among the items in the expense account of a defeated candidate for sheriff of a southern Michigan county, filed last week. After stating that he spent $27.50 in the campaign, the candidate itemized some other accounts:

"Gas and oil; drove car 1,000 miles; walked 900 miles; nine blow-outs and seven punctures; gave away nine yards of cotton flannel, three hairnets, and two pair of silk hose; was bitten by dogs twice; told 10,000 lies; got kicked off two farms; kissed 62 babies and two old maids; attended one barbecue; came near joining church for policy's sake; made one public speech, and if I had made another I would not have received a single vote."

ated for the purpose of making a profit for the services rendered, but shall be operated, primarily, for the welfare of the permanent or transient residents of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, and such other person or persons as may apply."

According to the By-Laws, drawn up shortly after receipt of the articles of incorporation from the Secretary of State, a meeting of the original incorporators was held on the first Wednesday of August, 1920, at which meeting nine of their number were elected to act as a board of trustees, empowered to undertake and transact all affairs of the hospital, financial and otherwise.

Among other provisions of the by-laws is one permitting any person to become a member of the hospital association upon the payment of $5.00 or more, such membership entitling him to a vote in the election of the board of trustees at the annual meetings of the association.

At the annual meeting of the hospital association in August of this year, a revision of the by-laws was made which affected the election of the board of trustees in the following manner:

Instead of electing the full quota of nine members to serve for three years, three members were elected (continued on page eight)

AUTO LICENSES READY DEC. 1ST

CHARLES H. EMREY WILL ISSUE THEM AT COURT HOUSE

Owner Must Present Certificate of Title Together With Sworn Application Form Filled

County clerk-elect, Charles H. Emrey will handle 1923 auto licenses for the Charlevoix county branch and will be prepared to issue licenses December 1st.

Any bank, garage, auto sales or business-house desiring a supply of applications will receive them promptly upon request thereof.

Be sure and send money order or bank draft with your application as the State does not recognize personal checks. A draft or money order will insure you early delivery of your license.

Have your application properly made out and your signature thereto acknowledged before a notary public before applying for your license.

1923 license plates cannot be procured unless you can show title to the car that you wish to license. In other words, the State requires that you present the title of your car to the person you apply to for a license and under no other conditions can you procure a license for a car that has ever been licensed in previous years.

In the case of a new car, however, it is necessary that you make application for title at the same time you make application for your license. This can be handled at the Charlevoix branch.

Where licenses are to be mailed; six cents in stamps must be enclosed with your application.

In order to obtain a license for a truck the truck must be weighed on any standard scales and the weight bill attached to the application.

If you have 1922 application blanks on hand, kindly destroy them as 1923 blank applications must be used because of changes made recently.

If you are planning on using your car in January, it would be well to apply early for license plates, as the law will not allow 1922 license plates to be used after the first day of January.

The method of figuring the price of license plates is the same as in 1922, namely, twenty-five cents per horse-power, and thirty-five cents per hundred.

ONLY SEVEN- TEEN DAYS MORE

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION ROLLS CLOSE DEC. 1

Applicants May Write Bureau Offices But Better Apply in Person If It Is Possible

"The Rehabilitation Act which provides for the vocational education of certain classes of disabled veterans has a provision which states that applicants for vocational education must be made prior to December 16, 1922," declared Col. Charles F. Forbes, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

"This provision of the Rehabilitation Act means that those who have delayed making application for any reason whatsoever must make this application prior to December 16th or lose the opportunity of receiving this government aid," Colonel Forbes continued.

"There are several ways in which this application for vocational training can be made. Application may be made by writing a letter to any one of the Bureau offices expressing a desire to apply for the training which the government offers. It should be remembered that it is necessary for the applicant to sign his name so that the Bureau may consider the application as made by the man himself. Wherever it is possible it is best for the applicant to make his application in person at one of the district or sub-district offices of the Veterans' Bureau. Application forms may be obtained at any of the Bureau offices or from the American Legion, American Red Cross, The Disabled American Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other co-operating agencies. These forms should be signed, filled out, and forwarded to one of the Veterans' Bureau offices," Colonel Forbes said. "If a form is not available, a letter will be accepted as an application."

Where the post mark of the letter of application or the forms forwarded on an application show that it was made on or before December 15th, the application will be considered; and where the man enters the office before the close of the working day on December 15th, the application will be considered. However, applications mailed later than this date will be too late and persons so applying will have lost the privilege of taking advantage of vocational training provided under this Act.

The U. S. Veterans' Bureau has called this provision of the Rehabilitation Act to the attention of veteran organizations and have requested them to inform all ex-service men of the necessity of making early application. Persons who are in doubt as to whether or not they have a valid application on file should take steps immediately to ascertain from one of the offices of the Bureau the status of their application. The government is anxious that all ex-service men who are entitled to the benefits of the Act should take advantage of this opportunity. All applications received will have the fullest consideration and if the facts presented are sufficient to meet the provisions of the Rehabilitation Act, the claimant would be awarded such benefits as are provided under the Act.

"BRUCE'S" AID WAS REFUSED

COAST GUARD DETERMINED TO "GO IT ALONE"

Astounding Conditions Revealed in Attempt to Get Cathead Light On The 'Phone

In last week's paper, we published an account of an accident to Garrett Cole's boat, the "J. M. Cole," which occurred off Leland a week ago Saturday.

Certain features of the incident were not available last week and, as they are of semi-public interest, we are supplementing the story in this issue.

It seems that Mr. Cole appealed to the captain of the "Bruce," lying at Northport at the time, for assistance in recovering his abandoned craft, and his request met with prompt response. When the "Bruce," steaming around Cathead light, arrived off Leland Sunday afternoon, she found that the life-savers from North Manitou station already had a line on the derelict. The captain of the mail boat offered his aid, which was refused by the officer in charge of the coast guard, who preferred to make a try with the life-boat, stating that he would tow the disabled vessel to Traverse City. As is now known, his efforts failed until the tug, "Star" from Northport, finally succeeded in making fast many hours later.

The captain of the "Bruce," seeing that his services were not desired and that the coast guards were evidently determined to make the attempt alone, started back to Charlevoix where he was due, according to schedule, at half-past one, Sunday afternoon. Much time had been consumed on the trip to Leland, however, and late Sunday evening, the "Bruce" not having appeared here, the owner, Harry L. Oldham, became anxious for the safety of his boat in the heavy seas and attempted to get into communication with the light-house keeper at Cathead to ascertain if anything had been seen of the "Bruce," and received the astounding information that the light-house at Cathead was regularly cut off from telephone service every Sunday from noon until five P. M., on account of the closing of the Northport office, which is a private exchange, maintaining connection with the Bell system at Traverse City.

To say nothing of the surprising attitude of the coast-guard officials in refusing that aid proffered by the captain of the "Bruce," it is remarkable that a point so important as the Cathead light should be regularly cut off from telephone service for a full half day each week, when connection might be transferred to the Traverse City exchange, and this, too, during the period of open navigation on the lakes. This would seem to be a weak spot in our system of coast and water-way protection and, if conditions similar to those in question exist at other points on the Great Lakes, it is high time for investigation by the persons to whom the government has entrusted the protection of lives and property on the lakes.

CHARLEVOIX AS A LEMON REGION

Harry L. Oldham Grows Them As Large As Grape-Fruit

We reprint the following from a recent issue of the Decatur (Ill.) Morning Herald—just goes to show one of the many possibilities of "Charlevoix, the Beautiful."

"Mrs. Edgar Bachrach received Friday two lemons so large that they resemble grapefruit rather than lemons. They were sent to her by Harry Oldham, former Decatur man, from Charlevoix, Mich., where they had been grown by him on a small house tract only 18 inches high. Mrs. Bachrach spent the summer in Charlevoix and watched the fruit form from the blossom and grow to their present size. They obtained their size by the time she left in the late summer, but have just ripened. She took such an interest in watching them that Mr. Oldham sent them to her when they finally did turn from their deep green to yellow. The two lemons are now in the window of The Herald office."

This is "handling 'em lemons" with a vengeance.

The ladies of the St. Mary's church will hold a Baked and Fancy Goods sale on December 9th at the Charlevoix Cafe, one door north of the Charlevoix Hotel. Adv. 4614.

"PHENOM CAR IS AT LOCAL GARAGE

Much Advertised "Star" Auto at the Brown Garage

The prospective car purchaser, who has in the past doubted that an automobile equipped with the last word in appliances, self-starter, one-man top, demountable rims, Timkin bearings throughout, could be sold for $495.00 received a rude shock the other day when one of Durant's much advertised Star autos was driven on the floor at the Benj. Brown garage.

The little "bus" is a beauty, and no hot air or misrepresentation has been made in its description. And speed—she has it. Quick on the pick-up, a fiend for hills, the little "Star" is right there with the goods every minute.

Mr. Brown was fortunate in securing this car. Agencies all over the country are anxiously waiting for them. Five huge factories have been erected for their construction and more will be built to supply the demand.

It is well worth your time to look at this little speed wagon over and Mr. Brown will gladly explain the details of its mechanism.

MICHIGAN 2ND IN POTATOES

RAISES 7,756,000 DURING THE PAST SEASON

Ranks Third in All States in Quality—Price at Lowest Level

Michigan produced 10,565,000 bushels more of potatoes this year than in 1921, according to figures made public lately by Verne H. Church, federal agricultural statistician.

The production this year was 37,856,000 bushels, compared with 27,200,000 bushels in 1921.

In total production this year, Michigan ranked second in potato producing states of the country. Wisconsin was first with 39,360,000 bushels. Other large potato producing states this year were Minnesota, with 36,360,000 bushels, 36,701,000 bushels for New York, and Maine with 20,250,000 bushels.

Maine, fifth in rank this year, was the largest producer last year, whereas Michigan, second this year, ranked fourth last year. The largest producing states in 1921 in order of rank were:

Maine, 37,152,000 bushels; New York, 33,990,000; Minnesota, 27,525,000; Michigan, 27,200,000, and Wisconsin, 21,420,000.

In quality of production, Michigan this year ranked third, with a percentage of 89, one per cent better than in 1921, when Michigan also ranked third in quality among the five largest producing states. Wisconsin was the leader in quality this year, as well as production.

The percentages for the five leading states were: Wisconsin, 92; Maine, 90; Michigan, 89; Minnesota, 88, and New York, 85.

Price per bushel received for the spuds this year was much less than in 1921. Michigan farmers received an average of 35 cents per bushel on November 1, 1922, as compared with $1.04 per bushel in 1921, according to figures of the United States department of agriculture. The reduction in price was correspondingly the same in other potato producing states.

PLAN BIG ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

EXTENSIVE PROJECT LAUNCHED IN GRAND RAPIDS

Program Includes New Folders, Maps, Information Booths and Newspaper Advertising

A meeting was held at the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce rooms last Wednesday, at which members of the Wholesalers' executive committee, the retailers' division, the Automobile Dealers association and the Builders and Traders' exchange assembled.

The purpose of this meeting was to consider plans for a $20,000.00 subscription drive in behalf of the Michigan Tourist and Resort bureau's 1923 advertising of the northern Michigan resorts.

The total sum to be raised for this purpose is in excess of $45,000.00, of which $20,000.00 is Grand Rapids' share, the balance to be apportioned among the various resort districts of the region. Only four branches of Grand Rapids' powerful commercial organization were represented at the meeting mentioned above, but the sentiment expressed clearly indicates that the majority of business men in the Furniture City are in favor of the movement.

The "drive" will probably take place some time before Christmas. Committees will be appointed by each of the twenty odd divisions of the Association of Commerce whose duty will be to endeavor to raise a certain quota within the membership of the division.

The projected plan is the most comprehensive ever attempted along the lines of advertising the "nation's playground." In partial detail, it includes the distribution of 50,000 new folders containing maps, a complete road guide and virtually an encyclopedia of tourist information; a working agreement with a map publisher, the largest in the world, which has the contract for preparing the maps, to use the names of all hotels, resort and garage members of their stock-maps of this section, which will number 250,000, in hotel directories to the number of 250,000 and in 5,000 wall maps; and the equipping of three information booths at the three most important gateways into Michigan, these booths each being equipped with a 12 x 12 foot billboard map of the resort territory.

The new folder is to be printed in three colors. It will contain eighteen panels and have a map spread of 12 x 26 inches. It is a practical guide book, containing everything the tourist wants to know about western Michigan; a folder that will be preserved as a permanent source of information—not read and cast aside.

All railroads, boat lines and trunk highways are shown in colors on the folder maps. Improved county roads are also indicated. Now numbers in red will mark the names of every hotel, garage and resort member. One set of maps will show the tourist how to reach western Michigan from Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and the other important centers through which most of them pass. Other maps show all routings in western Michigan.

Names are given of all cities, villages and towns, together with populations and other information needed by the tourist, such as fishing and hunting laws, location of golf grounds, kind of course, etc. Distance between towns in miles is also shown.

The information booths and billboard maps will be set up near New Buffalo, on M-11, near White Pigeon on M-13, and somewhere on the Ohio-Michigan line where important trunk lines come together near Toledo.

In addition to the above features, extensive newspaper advertising in the territory from which Michigan draws her resorters will be undertaken.

Ladies Aid Will Meet

The annual meeting of the Congregational Ladies Aid will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Miller next Wednesday, December 6th. Reports of the last year's work will be given and officers elected for 1923.

The children in the primary room made some new spelling booklets and put cut-out designs on them.

We have been studying local geography in the fourth grade, and last week we made weather charts.

After Thanksgiving we will start thinking of Christmas. In fact, some of the children have already brought things to be enameled as gifts.

The primary children have been learning a new Thanksgiving song entitled "I Just Took a Look in the Pantry."

The first graders are reviewing their readers and will be ready to start in supplementary reading before Christmas.

The fourth and fifth grades are combined in language work and are trying to learn the fundamentals in sentence writing and paragraphing.

The poems learned last week were "The Stars" and "The Man in the Moon."

BURGESS SCHOOL NOTES

Miss McCalmon spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Chew.

The fourth grade is making picture frames.

The eighth grade has just finished studying the poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

Our Glee Club is progressing rapidly. Mrs. Scott proves to be very good as a teacher.

Some very good compositions have been written in all grades from the fourth up.

The fifth graders are very good artists. They understand exactly how the heart works, from the fine drawings that they handed in.

The second, third and fourth grades' contest is over. Eunice Scott gets the prize in the second grade, Emma Kane in the third grade and Nelson Baker in the fourth grade.

The fifth grade have a very nice Pierim village constructed. It is hard to tell which are the most interested in playing in the sand box, the eighth grade or the first grade. They all enjoy it.

Miss McCalmon—Where am I? (Meaning what class came next.)

Fifth grader—"I guess you are on your feet."

We are all enjoying the snow.

HAVE NOT 'TAMED' LIGHTNING

Boast Not Infrequently Heard Is Not Borne Out by Facts Concerning Electrical Control.

When we wish to speak figuratively of our achievements in electricity we are accustomed to boast that we have "tamed the lightning," or something of the kind. But in reality we have done no such thing. Lightning is a well-known natural electrical phenomenon; but the electricity that we use is drawn from another source—it was "tamed" to start with. To catch a lightning discharge and reduce its voltage so that it may be utilized is a different matter. It may be suggested that the result might not be worth the trouble.

Ever since Franklin's famous kite was sent upon its flight certain optimistic individuals have thought that this pretty experiment was the key to untold power and wealth. The tumult caused by a severe thunderstorm has evidently led them to believe that vast quantities of electricity are "tumbling about" in the upper air, and to render these available to man needs only some method of tapping the invisible reservoir. Now, it has been said that the quantity of electricity taking part in a flash of lightning could be collected on a ribbon; but the handling and restraining of this thimbleful of electricity present a problem which few electrical engineers would care to undertake. It is a great achievement to use the water at Niagara to drive a dynamo; but most of us would hesitate at the thought of employing a stream of rifle bullets for the same purpose. —Kansas City Star.

Mistral

Mistral—last of the veritable Troubadours—was truly gifted in that he was an erudite philologist who possessed a rare creative sense of poetic form. His name had become greater than any direct appeal of the output of his pen; for only to the learned few does the bent of his labors mean anything. It was to the credit of this not ungrateful or ungenerous age that he reaped all the rewards of fame from a public which understood practically nothing of his work. While he humbly pushed away accolade honors from himself, they only crowded the more thickly about his brow. The very nature of his undertaking disarmed criticism. There was none of his compatriots who really cared to say him nay, though he persisted in not using the national language except in translating his own books. —Stuart Henry, in "French Essays and Profiles."

Alimony Includes Loaf of Bread

The Turkish girl is wedded with a great ceremony to a man she has never seen. The lady is escorted to his house by her friends and she is accompanied by a couple of loads of furniture which comprises a part of her dower. After entering his house the friends leave her alone with her husband and he is then privileged to remove the "fer-edge" or national veil, and then he sees the face that he must look at daily for some little time. The veil is being discarded now and is used only in the more remote sections of the country. Divorce is somewhat easy and in this case her part of the alimony is a daily loaf of bread.

Embarrassing Moments

There come to all people horrible tongue-tied moments when they can think of nothing to say, and feel like a walrus on no ice doe, heavy, melancholy, ineffective. —A. C. Beeson.

Striking a Stride With Polly

By JACQUELINE RUSSELL

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Well, that settles it!"
Polly's tone was sure, even a bit discouraged.

From his stronghold as chief constant and butt of all Polly's moods, Ned Turner listened, amused. Ned was almost 25, and at 25 he was privileged to look at youth, in the person of Polly, with a patronizing air that was almost benign.

"Settle what?" he inquired lazily.
To hear her "rave," her brown eyes earnest, her curly head vehement in her gestures, was worth sacrificing even a quiet reading, he decided. With Polly near he was certain to be disturbed sooner or later, anyhow; as well the sooner.

"It's this article," she explained.
"Advice to Young Authors," written by Mary Ray George. Listen to this bit: 'I should counsel beginners to attempt only the simplest stories, teeming with action. Later, when they have "struck their stride," they can work out more complex plots and psychological character portrayal.'"

Ned cocked his head on one side with just the right shade of careful consideration.

"It sounds all right," he ventured, finally.

She pounced upon him in a verbal whirlwind.
"You don't understand," she wailed.
"Of course it's all right! That's the trouble! But tell me, how can one ever manufacture plots teeming with action when one's experience is hedged in with tenebris and other people's babies? I wish father had been a detective, or a policeman, or even a second-rate actor, instead of a suburban mislister with a strong sense of duty!"

Ned's sobriety deserted him. A mental picture of placid dignified Mr.
Mayo in the role of a barn-storming actor was too much. His gale of laughter woke a spark of fire scorn in Polly's eyes.

"Of course you wouldn't be expected to understand what my writing means to me," she commented, her tone dramatic. "I am cramped, Ned. My experiences are so limited, yet I know

I could do so much."
He was immediately all contrition.
"I'm sorry, Polly," he said, gently.
"How shall we go about getting you this experience which you crave?"

She was instantly friendly again, won by his conversion to her cause.
Her eyes were shiny with eager light.

"Would you, Ned—would you help me?" she begged, breathlessly.

His caution evaporated before the fire of her impatient fervor. He knew, from past experience, that the adventure was sure to be a mad one, for Polly had an uncanny way of doing the least expected thing. Yet the thought of championing her through unknown experience gave him a warm rush of feeling as he promised.

She lowered her voice at her own boldness.

"I want you to take me to the night court," she announced.

Ned was shocked, protesting, but with the helpless sense of one who is sure of being worsted. Once determined, Polly was a resolute little tyrant.

"How can I ever write of people who suffer and sin if I never meet them?"
she argued, all seriousness.

Ned had certain theories that the sinners should be as far removed as possible from the path of any nice-girl—especially if this one—and hinted as much; but Polly snuffed derisively.
After all, this theory of sheltering women was obsolete, wasn't it? She much preferred the enlightened modern woman to her snapper, shielded predecessor. So Ned, with many misgivings, took her to night court, to steep her literary soul in the sordidness that she expected to be her inspiration.

A drunkard with a foul breath and a fouler vocabulary was just being removed when they arrived. For the hundredth time Ned regretted their coming, during the tirade which the incensed reprobate delivered to the weary attendant; but Polly did not flinch. She bustled herself with her notebook and showed a brave interest in the proceedings.

There was the usual assortment of cases—mostly of drunkards, disorderly in their besotted condition, many of them old offenders; and one or two depraved creatures whose sole claim to femininity which they may once have had lay in their staring, detached stitches of rouge on their ugly, wasted faces. They, too, were known to the judge, and were disposed of in short order, their whining oaths of innocence falling on ears long since weary of such pleas.

Ned watched his companion anxiously, feeling like a beast for having brought her. Her notebook lay idle in her lap now and she was staring, fascinated, at these strange creatures of another world. Suddenly, she seemed to have seen enough. Quietly she asked him to take her home.

"I didn't know that life was like that," she whispered, shuddering, when they were once more in the street.
"It isn't, 'Peggy,'" he assured her.
"Life—real life—is the everyday extension of ordinary people. It's home, and love, and good purpose. Extraorinary, dramatic things, such as you are seeking, are artificial. They may be life to a certain few, but the majority find their experiences in simple, everyday content."

"The mission of the author should be to picture life through his own understanding," she asserted. "And I suppose the greatest thing in life is love?"

"It certainly is," Ned was emphatic.
"Why, 'Peggy'—love is everything!
Without it no one can interpret the meaning of life! With it, fate is as simple as A B C—a series of episodes leading up to one great event which is to direct the whole future."

"Then I shall have to write of love,"
Peggy decided suddenly.

"Why not find it for yourself, instead, dear? I love you so much!"

The words rushed out of their own volition, and Ned was suddenly fired by the revelation of how true they were. He had always loved her!

Peggy paused for a moment, hushed by his earnestness. Then, suddenly mischievous, she smirked against his sleeve.

"Gosh," she scolded him. "I never expected to learn about my subject in any other way!"

Men and Women Not Seen Together.
Unlike the women of some other Spanish-speaking countries, the women of Montevideo go out in the streets.
They go about in groups together, but not in the company of men. The Montevidio woman doesn't even go out with her husband. If she wishes to dine in a public restaurant she cannot sit in the main dining room with her lord and master. If she wishes to enjoy his society, they are obliged to engage a private room and thus maintain their dignity. This custom is carried to such a degree that in the theaters there are separate galleries for the men and the women.

Fresh Air Camps Put T. B. To Rout

Five weeks at the fresh air camp maintained by the Tuberculosis Society of her county brought Dorothy ten pounds increase in weight and changed her listless pallor to rosy, joyous vigor. With continued care and wholesome living,
T. B. will no longer be a specter in Dorothy's path. Christmas seals won this victory.

BEFORE JEFFERSON HAD A SAN

(Names of places and persons, for obvious reasons, have been changed in this story, but the incident happened as narrated.)

Dr. Merritt, fresh from the U and new to Jeffersonville, answered his telephone promptly. It was Burroughs, the hotel-keeper, a vast, jovial fellow whom the doctor saw on the hotel porch daily, who was calling.

"Gosh, doc," said Burroughs, "I wish you'd come over. Fellow from twenty miles out in the jack-pines just drove in here and left his boy on the steps, and asked me to send for the doctor, and before I could say 'Hoo,' he hit the horse a crack and he was gone. And the boy—he ain't much more'n a kid—looks as if he was dying now."

Dr. Merritt's patient was still waiting for him on the hotel porch when the young doctor ran up the steps; a good-looking lad, if he had not been so wasted with fever. He was in the most advanced stage of tuberculosis, dying, as Burroughs had said; but since T. B. kills its victims by tortured turbes, Dr. Merritt foresaw that it might be weeks before death came.

"Edgar Robinson," the young man whispered in reply to the doctor's inquiry as to his name.

"How long have you been sick, Robinson?" inquired the doctor, cheerfully as he could.

"Why, I've been in the house since January; but Dad can't pay doctor's bills, and 'twasn't much but a bad cold, I thought, anyhow. So I just stayed in and kept warm; haven't bad much appetite, you know, but I haven't been really sick. There's eight of us in the family, though, and Dad couldn't keep a loafer, any longer, I didn't think, and so I told him, if he'd bring me into town, maybe somebody—" Edgar's eyes glist-ened hopefully.

Burroughs beckoned the doctor to the end of the porch. "Gosh, I wish I could keep him," he rumbled regretfully. "But I got a duty to the public."

"If there was a hospital—" began the doctor.

"Ain't any within thirty miles," answered Burroughs. "And that's always full. If there was one of those T. B. sanatoria in Jefferson county now—"

"If there was a sanatorium," said the young doctor fiercely, "this never would have happened. That boy could have been saved, six months ago. As it is, I suppose it's the poor farm."

In the end it was not even the poor farm, for the poor commissioner held that he couldn't take care of contagious diseases. So young Merritt and the kind-hearted hotel-keeper built a little shack out in the woods back of the hotel, and between them cared for the forlorn young patient, until, three weeks later, he died.

"And I'll stay here," vowed Merritt, the night Robinson went. "I'll live Jefferson county with a san, or they run me out."

Jefferson—or whatever its real name is—has a "san" now; already it has done good work, and a field of unbounded usefulness is before it.

But in all Michigan there are for its 36,000 con-sumptives only 2,000 beds. A proportion of the Christmas seal money will be used by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association in the campaign for more of the life-giving sanatoria that save incipient cases of tuberculosis from drifting into the plight of Edgar Robinson.

"serial," and took all the installments of his story to the newspaper office, drew his emoluments and went off on he turned up the files of the journal to see how his work looked in print.

And to his amazement, discovered that, owing as it was found, to the installments having been wrongly arranged in the editorial pigeon hole, the editor had begun his story at the end and printed the serial backwards. "It made no difference," the editor blamably assured him, when he went to pro-

Effect of Graft From Scalp.
The case of a wounded soldier who had to have frequent haircuts inside his month was described recently by Dr. Percival Cole, surgeon of the Seamen's hospital, Greenwich, in a lecture at the Institute of Hygiene, London. He had lost part of the minous membrane of his mouth, and this was replaced by a graft of skin from his own scalp. It did not give him much trouble, but it grew so many hairs that he had to have haircuts inside his month almost as frequently as he shaved.

MAKING SPEEDERS UNDER-STAND
A Michigan judge is offering something different as a cure for speed bugs.

Not content with imposing fines and jail sentences on speeders, after the court session, he personally conducts the offenders through the hospitals where traffic accident cases are being treated.

The speeders see little children crippled for life, old people, who have been turned from feebleness to helplessness, and the mainstays of families become dependents, every one because some driver, perhaps one of the inspecting party, was heedless. Almost without exception the offenders end their journey in tears of shame and sorrow. Indifference and defiance vanish as they realize the sort of havoc their kind of selfishness creates. Like Thomas, having seen the wounds, they believe.

Such a lesson lasts. "Men are only boys grown tall." Adults are just like children. It is seldom enough simply to forbid, or to administer abstract punishment. The false ideal must be replaced with a true one before lasting reform is accomplished.

NEXT AUTOMOBILE LICENSE GREEN

Owners Cannot Obtain New Plates Until After Dec. 1.

Green—that's the color of the new license plates for 1923. A deep green with white figures, matching the color scheme of the various automobiles well, and being readable at quite a distance, are features which are claimed for the new plates.

Auto owners will not be able to secure the plates until about December 1st, and the proper time to "break out" with a new license on your car is the morning of January 1, and you better have the license plate on the car too, for the usual order will prevail to arrest all autoists who do not display the tag of the new year.

This year there will be a little more red tape in securing a license. Every applicant for a license for an old car—and cars bought during 1922 are so classed—must have a certificate of title or else he will not be granted a license for the machine. And then, too, this year, one must furnish the number of your operator's license, or you will have trouble getting by.

Charlevoix county car owners, after December 1st, can buy their 1923 licenses of County Clerk Lewis the same as heretofore. The tags have already been received by that official.

Have you ever considered what it costs to have your washing done at home? Add the cost of meals, carfare, soap, supplies, and gas to what you pay your laundress—and the total is surprising.

Women who are now using our modern laundry service find it a great deal more saving. It costs less and the life of their clothes is conserved because we wash without rubbing, in pure, soft, sudsy water.

Let us introduce you to this better, more economical way. Your bundle will be called for and returned promptly, sweetly fresh and clean—a delight to your eye.

Just step to the phone and have our representative call this week. He will explain our various services.

On next Saturday we will be located in our new quarters in the old Courier building on Van Pelt Place. Come in and pay us a visit.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

"We can all be thankful this Thanksgiving," observes the Pontiac Press, "that moths don't eat as much as alligators."

"Any kind of overcoat imaginable may be seen on the streets this winter," an observer at Traverse City says. Even—since the prices came down—even occasionally a new one.

An Ann Arbor man who struck his wife with a beer bottle has been sent to prison. Rather a severe sentence, so far as we can learn, the beer bottle since it is practically as good as ever.

The theft of 12 trukeys from a farm near Emmet, is thought to indicate that, otherwise, one is intending to depend upon the ducks he can kill to furnish his Thanksgiving dinner.

A New Haven man, known as the "king of the bootleggers," has been fined $500 and sent to jail for 40 days—on the theory, probably, that "the king can do no wrong" if he is watched closely enough.

The testimony of license clerks is that the number of women hunters who go into the woods can be expected to increase steadily, unless knickerbockers, Robin Hood hats, and other weapons go out of vogue and a closed season on men hunters is declared.

Motor vehicles are given credit for helping out the railroads the past year in such a way as to save industry from collapse. Since one good turn deserves another, perhaps some time in the future the railroads will do something to the help the motor vehicles.

One of the candy stores at Three Rivers is making a "unique and appropriate display," consisting of barracks, fortresses and cannon constructed of candy. An appropriate addition, consisting of a torpedo or Maine, 37,152,000 bushels; New depth bomb, made of mince pie, will be installed a little later, we are informed.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Everyone was very much disappointed because the Hillsdale poet did not arrive Friday afternoon, but all are hoping he will be here in the near future, because we feel that everyone will be interested as well as benefited by hearing him.

After two weeks of very hard practice for the cross country run, which was held at East Jordan, Saturday the 24th, the boys had the misfortune to lose, but most of the men who ran will be here for another year and we hope they will have much better luck next year.

bert, we would have been without a French teacher, but through good fortune we have Mrs. Rose, who has taught the French I class every day, and we are making very successful progress. Marguerite Brown has charge of French II.

The boys of the Charlevoix high school who have earned their letters have organized a "C" club. The members of this society will be men who have earned their letters in some sport in high school. The alumni are also included. The following men have been elected as officers: President, Edward Shanahan; Vice Pres., J. C. Marshall; Secretary, John Nordrum; Treasurer, Gordon Todd. The members chosen to draw up the constitution were: J. C. Marshall, chairman; John Burns, Joe Hamilton, Ariel Cooper, and Gordon Todd.

When the Hillsdale poet did not arrive Friday afternoon, Mr. Hamilton read a portion of the pamphlet entitled "It's Up To You," by Parlette. In chapel Monday morning, he finished the article which was very interesting as well as helpful. Mr. Hamilton also read the 91st Psalm.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

Words that help—Good words—Bad.

Come to B. Y. P. U. and think of words.

December 3, "Better Speaking," Prov. 10:10-21, 31, 32.

Better speaking in this case does not mean that we are to learn the art of public speech, but that we are to exercise care in our private conversations. As a recent writer states, "Some people have sharp teeth on their tongues", in other words the faculty of saying unkind things.

Words have wings. Phrases fly. Then let us give flight to the truth, the good, the constructive, the helpful.

CAN GROW NEW TUSK IN YEAR

Discovery Is Made That the Walrus May Prolong World's Vanishing Supply of Ivory.

A remarkable discovery at the seal rookeries on Pribilof Islands may prolong the world's vanishing ivory supply.

Last summer an enormous bull walrus was hunted by government seal-keepers—and in the fight one of his long tusks was broken off. This spring the same magnificent animal returned, and to the surprise of both natives and attendants the tusk had grown out five inches, the end still showing the ragged edge of the break.

It is now believed that an annual crop of this excellent ivory can be harvested by cutting off one-half of one tusk each year from the bull walrus. The one left intact is used by the animal in digging clams and sea food. In a year the stub would have grown out enough to serve as a pickax, so the other tusk could be sacrificed for the fancies of man.

Walrus ivory is in great demand in China and Japan, where it is utilized for small carvings.

Plain Duty of Citizenship.

I have ever considered it as the indispensable duty of every member of society to promote, as far as in him lies, the prosperity of every individual, but more especially the community in which he belongs.—John Hancock.

They Hear You Coming.
Frogs and toads are gifted with a remarkably acute sense of hearing.

Mind Conquers Matter.

Have you heard the latest Cane story? A man with badly legs called to see the great practitioner of healing by suggestion.

"After an examination, the doctor said: 'Yes, they can be cured. Massage them every night and before you go to sleep say, 'My legs are getting less and less bandy' a hundred and fifty times."

Full of hope, the man went home. That night he carried out the massage treatment, but he could not remember just how many times he had to repeat the magic words. He knew it was something and fifty, so, to make sure, he recited the phrase three hundred and fifty times.

Next morning he found that he was knock-kneed!

CHURCH FOR YOUNG PERSONS

Indianapolis Minister Successful in Operation of Branch for the Boys and Girls.

A Junior church, the membership of which is limited to persons between six and sixteen years old, with the preacher the only adult present, is being successfully operated in Indianapolis. The plan was inaugurated by Rev. N. S. Stierman of Grace Presbyterian church, that city.

According to Doctor Stierman, there are 60 children ranging in age from six to sixteen years who are members of the Junior organization. They have their own room for services, which are of 30 minutes' duration, and have their own officers. The plan was put into operation in January and Doctor Stierman is so pleased with the results that he expects soon to double the membership.

Doctor Stierman said the idea of forming a Junior church developed from his experience in church while a boy.

"My people came from Holland and settled in a neighborhood of Hollanders in a small Michigan town," he said. "The church I attended as a boy also used the Dutch language and the sermons sometimes lasted two hours or more. I well remember how tired and restless I would get as the time dragged on, for the sermon, while appealing to adults, was not such as would appeal to the child."

"It was this experience which gave birth to the Junior church idea, and last January I started the organization."

Graphite and Siberia.

Extensive deposits of graphite exist in northwestern Siberia, on the left bank of the River Kureika, near the junction with the River Yenisei, 90 miles from the mouth of the latter river. The graphite area forms a horizontal plateau, the elevation of which varies from 20 to 50 feet above the normal level of the River Kureika. The plateau contains two layers of graphite, which is of a solid steel-gray color, soft and of an excellent quality for the manufacture of pencils. It is believed that in the future these graphite will supply Russian demands and that large quantities will be available for export. The chief sources of graphite have been Ceylon, Bohemia, Germany, France and the United States. The annual world production has been approximately 120,000 short tons.

PITY —THE— BLIND MAN

Some days you'll see him, slowly, hesitatingly, feeling his way. At other times he has a guide who quickly leads him where he wants to go.

When you shop without advance knowledge of where to go to get the best, you are feeling your way.

The advertisements in the newspapers are guides. They will tell you where to go to get the best—quickly.

And they are a guarantee of satisfaction. The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they'll satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

Read the advertisements and buy the advertised products. Don't spend your money blindly. Get dollar's worth for a dollar by buying products that have proved their worth under the glare of publicity.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

It is necessary to plan our meals, if possible, a week in advance, if we furnish our tables with a variation from day to day.

Banana Soup.—Select six ripe bananas and rub them through a sieve, adding twice as much cold milk by measure as bananas, sweeten to taste, add a pinch of salt, the grated rind of a lemon and place it on the stove. When the boiling point is reached add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, mixed smooth in a little cold milk and stir into the boiling mixture. Cook for eight minutes, stirring all the time. Remove from the heat, add two tablespoonfuls of strained lemon juice. Serve well chilled in bouillon cups.

Parisian Peas.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add a quart of green peas, mix well, then pour in enough boiling water to barely cover them. Add salt, pepper, the heart of a head of lettuce, finely minced, one-half of an onion minced fine and a sprig of parsley, also minced. Simmer until the peas are tender, then stir in the yolks of two eggs, well beaten, after taking from the heat. Return to the heat and keep hot, but do not allow the eggs to curdle.

Chicken Baked in Cream.—Wash and prepare a fowl for frying. Roll the pieces in seasoned flour and place in a heated pan with three tablespoonfuls of butter. Sprinkle well with salt and pour a cupful of cream over the chicken. Cover and place in a hot oven to bake until tender. Remove and cover before taking from the oven and brown the chicken. Serve with a highly seasoned sauce.

Nut Sauce for Ice Cream.—Roll until it threads, a pound of maple sugar and one-third of a cupful of water, add one-half cupful of almond or walnut meats, coarsely chopped, and serve hot poured over vanilla ice cream. Maple may be used with brown sugar if the maple sugar cannot be obtained.

Green Diamonds in Africa.

Two discoveries of green diamonds have recently been reported from South Africa. The first, found in the Bloemfontein district, was a 3 1/2 karat stone, black and opaque, which, on cutting, exhibited a head of 1 1/2 karats of an emerald-green shade. It has been appraised by London experts at about $5,000, or about 100 times the price of a water-white diamond, says the Engineering and Mining Journal Press. The second green diamond was washed out at Paris, a short time ago, and was of ten karats weight. It has been sent to a government valuator at Cape Town. One of the most celebrated green diamonds is the "Dresden Green," in the Saxon Crown jewels, which weighs about 40 karats and is apple-green in color.

The Modern Girl.

If the modern girl is freer than her predecessor, she is, like her brother, more self-possessed. Her range of experience and of information is wider and her desire to know greater. She has seen more of the world and heard more of it, if not directly, then by the vicarious efforts of scores of agencies. She has no doubt broken through many irrational taboos, but she is trying hard to replace them with standards more suitable to the complexities of life in this generation. And if it is put to a male vote whether she is to return to the dress, manners, temperament and mental outlook of her eighteenth or even nineteenth century ancestor, there will only be an insignificant minority to vote against her as she is—half-American.

Father Love vs. Mother's.

Among some fishes the male assumes all the care and anxiety of parenthood. And this is true of at least one or two families of birds. The male ostrich hatches the eggs and looks after the little ones. The greatest enemy of the eggs and young of the stickleback fish is the mother herself. She not only has no affection for them whatever, but would eat every one of them if she weren't prevented from doing so by the father. In very few species of fish do the females care anything for either the eggs or the young. Among fishes, therefore, the instinct to save the young is not the wonderful mother instinct found in the human or other higher species, but the father instinct.—Detroit News.

GREAT AID TO MICHIGAN STATE POLICE FORCE.

Official Recites Number of Cases of Record and Tells How They Were Worked Out

Can the perpetrator of a crime actually be traced and his guilt established to the point of conviction or confession on the evidence of finger prints alone?

Officers of the Michigan state police are willing to say he can, and more than that have the evidence in their records to prove it. Since the establishment of the identification bureau by the state police there have been a number of cases in which there was no other evidence connecting the criminal with a crime except the finger prints left at the time of the commission of the crime, and the list of cases in which conviction has been secured or confession obtained is growing all the time.

In one case a short time ago not only was the efficacy of the finger print record maintained in state police headquarters in Lansing was thoroughly demonstrated.

In this case a harness shop in St. Johns was burglarized, a sum of money being taken from the cash register. There were no suspects and there was no evidence except finger prints left on the glass of a rear window which was broken by the burglar to obtain admission to the place.

No arrests were made at the time, because there was no clue to point to anybody. The finger prints were carefully photographed, however, and filed in the identification bureau at Lansing. Three weeks after the burglary Stanley Pietkiewicz was arrested by the sheriff of Clinton county on a forgery charge. His finger prints were taken and a copy sent to Lansing in accordance with the system inaugurated by the state department for co-operation by local officials. Comparison showed that the finger prints of the forgery suspect were identical with those taken from the glass in the rear window of the robbed store and when confronted with the evidence Pietkiewicz confessed to the burglary.

In the Big Rapids robbery case a club and a private residence had been robbed at about the same time. A bunch of young fellows were suspected, although there was no evidence to connect them with either crime. Comparison of finger prints taken at the club connected one with the robbery of that place and finger prints taken from a cash box in the residence which had been robbed connected another, and one of the gang confessed enough so that complete confessions were secured and the loot taken from the two places recovered.

In still another case a butcher shop had been robbed, the front door being pried open and the safe opened by somebody who knew that the butcher was in the habit of leaving the safe so that a single turn of the knob to a certain number would open it. Finger prints of the butcher, his assistants and three sons were found on the safe, together with some others. A process of elimination showed that none of the family or store employees could have done the robbery. Then it was found that a younger son had been in the shop several times after hours with boy companions. The extra finger prints were of the young friends of the butcher's son and they were questioned and confessed.

Sometimes the finger prints tell a story which is too embarrassingly true to be comfortable to the man who was robbed. State police are laughing yet over the incident of a man who complained that his store had been robbed. Finger prints examined proved that a woman had been in the store and at the safe. The store owner was questioned and in great embarrassment withdrew the complaint. Subsequent investigation conducted by the state police for their own satisfaction, showed that the store owner had been entertaining a woman friend in the store clandestinely on the night of the robbery and that she had taken advantage of her presence in the store to help herself to money from the safe.

But whether the story is humorous or tragic, the state police are willing to vouch for the fact that the finger prints tell the truth. And they have the convictions and confessions to back up their faith.

The Lady Maccabees will give a baked goods sale and serve lunches Saturday afternoon and evening at Jacob's store for the benefit of the Nurses Home of Charlevoix Hospital.—Adv. 4811.

WISE GUYS MAKE GOOD ON BEETS

Two Local Farmers Clean Up Fancy
Sum On Their Crop

Just to show what can be done by the farmer, who is wise enough not to put all of his eggs in one basket, witness the success of Ernie Falting, on Rural route No. 1, who on less than two acres of land has grown thirty tons of sugar beets this year, representing at present market prices a cash return of $210.00.

Frank Nekvasil, on route Two, raised seventy-five tons of beets for which he will receive $525.00. The tops alone are worth $5.00 a ton as fodder for cattle.

The Holland-St. Louis Sugar Co., of Holland takes the crops of both these gentlemen. Mr. Nekvasil claims that his beets saved him from a forced sale and retirement from the farming game. One of his near neighbors, who like so many others pinned his faith to potatoes, had to do this and left a fine farm to work by the day.

Nekvasil says if we had a small cannery here, he could make his fortune. Such an enterprise could absorb a large portion of the cherry crop grown between here and East Jordan that now goes to other points, where canneries are available.

We wonder if herein lies the secret of some of the farmer's difficulties in this region. Whenever a certain locality gets a reputation for any particular kind of crop, everybody plunges into the raising of it and soon there is an unsalable surplus. Probably what we need is more diversified farming and stock raising for a while.

ADDITIONAL SCHOOL NOTES

To create interest and arouse enthusiasm in a crusade to eliminate tardiness and diminish absences, Mr. Hamilton the present superintendent of school of the city of Charlevoix had a beautiful bright crimson banner made, bearing the words "Banner Room," which were of a pure white hue. This banner's appearance portrays the worthy Charlevoix colors in each room in which it is displayed and it further is an inspiration and honor to have it adorn the walls of any one of the rooms of the grade school in that it represents the room having the least absences and no tardiness. The first month the much desired banner was won by the fifth grade under Miss Burkland. The second month it was removed to the seventh-grade room where it now is radiating the merits which it so nobly indicates. The record upon which the latter grade secured this banner was: Total attendance, 620; total days absence, 14; total tardiness, 0; average daily attendance, 91.3; percentage of attendance, 98.

CITIZENS MEET AT CITY OFFICE

MATTERS OF MOMENT THOROUGHLY DISCUSSED

Taxes, Bonds, Light Rates, Resort Advertising, New Plants and Industries Were Subjects

The public session of the city council held Monday evening at the chambers of that body in the library building was well attended and resulted in a better understanding among the representative citizens present, of the problems of the council and the measures that have been effected in the public interest through its instrumentality. Quite a few of the ladies were present and the spirit was one of keen interest and willingness to lend a hand in the discussion of the matters presented for consideration.

Possibly, the meeting should not be termed a public one specifically, as every session of the city's governing body is open to the public, without special invitation necessary. Monday evening's proceedings demonstrated very clearly what a mistake the citizens of Charlevoix are making in not more regularly attending these meetings to give their support and oftentimes valuable suggestions to their elected officials.

Mayor Bergeon started the ball rolling with an explanation of the council's purpose in inviting the public's attendance—namely, to give the people an idea of how their money was being spent and afford an opportunity for the individual to express his views and aid the council in their work by his suggestions.

The mayor followed up his introductory remarks with a little talk on taxes. The winter taxes, he explained, were expended for state, county and school purposes. Of the 14 1-2 mill summer tax, it appears, the council has the use, for the purpose of meeting regular current running expenses of the city, only 11 1-2 mills or $11.50 on each $1,000.00 of assessed valuation, the remaining 3 mills (or $3.00 on a thousand) going into a sinking fund for the periodic retirement of various outstanding bond issues. Mr. Bergeon explained the difference between a seven or eight mill tax for running expenses and the refunding or renewing of the several bond issues as they fell due, and the new way of taking up the old issues at their expiration, replacing them with new bonds in series to be retired at the end of each year out of a sinking fund created exclusively for that purpose. This method, he said, had been employed for the past four years and all new issues of bonds during that time had been made in series.

The economy of this plan is plain. If we owe a note, payable in a year, it is better business to pay off a portion of the principal at the end of that time and renew the note for the balance, thus reducing the interest, than to renew the principal for another year and pay it up in full at maturity with interest on the total amount for the entire period. It is the same way with a bond issue. Furthermore, with the serial plan, interest charges are more equitably spread over the entire period and instead of laying a crushing burden on the next generation of taxpayers, it divides the expense of public improvements among all who enjoy their benefits.

Reports were read on the construction and operation of the new electric light plant, the new water plant, the maintenance of the bridges over the east and west channels, and the fire and highway departments by the councilmen respectively responsible for each department. Comparative figures were given for 1922 as against previous years, which showed a healthy condition of affairs with indications of excellent management. Figures read by councilman Robert Bridge show that the city's bonded indebtedness—in round numbers $207,000.00—is considerably less than that of the average city of Charlevoix's size.

It was brought out in these reports that the electric light plant is self-sustaining and that the bonds issued for its construction will be paid from the earnings of the plant. In the case of the water plant conditions are somewhat different. To illustrate, a case was cited by the mayor, in the course of his remarks, where five property owners, living in a somewhat isolated district of the town, wanted water. Mains were put through to supply this demand at an expense of some seven hundred dollars. The revenue to be obtained at regular rates from these five consumers will amount to less than thirty dollars a year. Yet, it is true that, being tax-payers, they are as much entitled to water as those living in the more thickly settled parts of town. Similar conditions prevail at other points in the city. In view of this fact, it is a question whether the water department will break even and retirement of the bonds without assistance from the sinking fund is, of course, out of the question. When tax-payers complain of high taxes, especially those who ask for special extensions of water, light or other service to remote sections of the city, they are apt to overlook the disparity between expense and revenue. The "shot" must be paid somehow and if the department's regular income won't meet it, taxes will be increased to cover the difference.

The mayor's audience was gratified to learn that it will be possible to get water from the new plant as soon as the mains are connected, which will take only four or five days for accomplishment. The use of chlorine can be done away with entirely from the start, as an up-to-date system of filter galleries of some three hundred feet in length delivers the water to the mains without a suggestion of taint. The water has been tested at repeated intervals all summer and found O. K. It will be carefully tested after the plant (Continued on page six)

CALENDAR FULL FOR DEC. TERM

DESERTION CASES ARE ON THE INCREASE

Criminal Section Includes a Little of Everything; Nothing Extra Seasonal

The circuit court calendar of the Thirteenth Judicial District for the December term of 1922, indicates that the term will be a busy one for Judge Mayne and the jury.

The criminal section covers everything from rape to violation of the liquor laws, with wife desertion cases predominating—always a pretty good barometer of industrial conditions. Men, as a rule, do not desert their families when business is good. Quite a few of the divorce cases are old ones; hang-overs from previous sessions not cleaned up by the attorneys. The details follow:

The People vs. Wilbur Martin—Violation of liquor law.

The People vs. Park Vincent—Desertion of wife and child.

The People vs. John Richard—Statutory rape.

The People vs. Norman Sloop—Statutory rape.

MEN, NOT PARTY DECIDED RACE

PEOPLE BECOMING MORE INDEPENDENT THAN EVER

Have Been Searching Records of Individual Office Holders Before Making Choice

The alibi and the postmortem are the order of the day among the "jame ducks" who were "winged" in the congressional elections.

"How did it ever happen to me?" they have been asking themselves. The answers are interesting, and they point a moral to politicians who are trying to profit by the mistakes of 1922, so that they will not fall in 1924.

Examination of the causes underlying the defeat of some of the veterans who had long occupied places of prominence in the senate emphasizes, first of all, the new independence of American voters.

Before the election it was apparent that the public was not following national issues. After the election it was clear that national issues were almost wholly neglected and that men stood or fell almost entirely upon their records and their political personalities.

In Ohio, Pomerene, a Democratic senator of the highest standing and recognized ability, was snuffed under despite a Democratic state victory. Union labor did for Pomerene. He displayed great independence toward organized labor, and labor in turn got independent when it came to voting for senator. The "radical dyes" also apparently voted against him.

In Nebraska, the dry bent Senator Hitchcock, another Democrat, against whose senatorial record there seemed no blot. Nebraska, too, elected a Democratic governor. In New York, Al Smith was elected governor over Nathan L. Miller largely because "Al" projected his personality so strongly that the voters could not resist him. The New York Campaign was based on state and national issues.

Primary the Issue

Senator Borah's Idaho campaign, though it did not involve his seat in the senate, was another example of the way the voters this year followed men they believed in. Borah freed the organized opposition of his party leaders in an effort to get the senatorial primary restored. In place of the convention system, so potent was his appeal to the voters that it became evident long before election day that no matter what the complexion of the next legislature, Idaho would have a primary law. And the Republican gubernatorial candidate was forced, in the end, to recant his opposition and to agree, tacitly, that he would sign the primary law.

Senator Lodge ran into the new independence of the voters in a way startling to him. Gov. Channing Cox was re-elected governor by 50,000 or more. Lodge barely got through. In the old days, Lodge nearly always led the ticket. But this year the voters made up their own tickets, and didn't just put a cross under the party emblem, accepting the selections of party leaders.

In Indiana, the alibi which Harry New and A. J. Beveridge can offer is that "somebody knifed me." Indiana is rapidly becoming an unpleasant state for a politician to inhabit. New was "knifed" by one set in the primaries and now Beveridge's friends charge New's supporters "knifed" Beveridge in the election. And both sets of knife wielders are getting ready to use their blades on "Jim" Watson when he comes up for re-election.

In Michigan, Townsend lost because of the Newberry case. His friends blame Henry Ford. In New Jersey, Frellinghuysen's dry record and his Newberry vote tell why he got beaten.

In Kansas, J. M. Davis, Democrat, beat W. Y. Morgan, Republican, for governor, because of Henry Allen, the present governor. Allen's industrial court was distasteful to many citizens, including organized labor.

Nearly everywhere the same thing was true—it was men and not great national issues which made up the voters' minds.

SCOUTS ARE TO TRAIN LEADERS

NATIONAL COUNCIL READY TO PROCEED WITH WORK

Membership Campaign Has For Its Goal 100,000 New Members. Ends in February.

The national council of the Boy Scouts of America, carrying out its program of expansion, has announced its purpose of opening four big national centers for the expert training of scout executives.

Immediate plans are on foot to establish the first of these centers near New York and the council is already seeking ground for that purpose. It is hoped to establish other centers, probably one in the middle west, one in the far west and one in the south. This "headquarters in the field" will furnish an opportunity to concentrate experimental work as well as furnish an excellent training center, especially for courses in "How to Train Scoutmasters." If it is not practicable to bring the executives to the centers for training along these lines, it will be possible to move the head faculty to different parts of the country.

The scout executive is the salaried official in a big city, or community, who makes scouting his business, and directs the volunteer leadership of the movement. For many years there have been available in different parts of the country, various training courses for scoutmasters. The scoutmaster is the volunteer leader who takes charge of a unit called a troop.

Mortimer L. Schiff, who has served as vice-president of the national council, has recently been appointed international commissioner of the organization. He will devote his time to the international affairs of the Boy Scouts.

4,777 Have Eagle Badges.

Since the beginning of scouting in this country over 12 years ago, a total of 4,777 eagle badges, the highest rank in scouting, have been issued. Of this number 1,477 have been allotted since the first of the present year.

It is considered remarkable that such a large proportion of these marks of distinction should have been given out in the past 10 months. In order to attain this much coveted eagle badge the scout begins as a tenderfoot and climbs until he becomes a second class and then a first class scout. It is at this point that the boy begins to do his real climbing which calls for training along the special lines.

After he is a first class scout he may become a life scout and then a star scout and then comes the highest rank, which is eagle. Eleven of the merit badges the scout must obtain to become an eagle are specifically in the fields of first aid, life saving, personal health, public health, cooking, camping, civics, bird study, path finding, pioneering and athletics or physical development.

From now until next February the scout organizations will conduct a campaign for more members. It is hoped to increase the enrollment by 100,000 scouts or 25 per cent of the present membership.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE IS STARTED

Annual Campaign for Aid in Fighting White Plague Under Way

With the indorsement of Governor Alex J. Groesbeck and other prominent state officials, church leaders and social and professional organizations, the Michigan Tuberculosis association has opened its fifteenth annual sale of Christmas seals. The Christmas seal sale, which is carried on all over the United States from Thanksgiving Day until Christmas, finances the organized tuberculosis work of the country.

Forty-two million, five hundred thousand seals have been ordered for Michigan. In most countries local tuberculosis societies will conduct the sale.

Where there is no county society, seals will be sold through the mails by the state association.

A sale averaging 5 cents per capita for the state is the goal set for 1922. Competition for sales records between counties is keen this year, owing to the announcement of the new Leland trophy which will be awarded for the first time this year to the county making the greatest gain in per capita sales over last year.

The trophy, which will be cast in bronze, is the gift of Frank B. Leland, of Detroit. Paul Honore, of Detroit, will design it.

NEW MANAGEMENT FOR BOOTH PLANT

EVERS NORDRUM AND FAMILY WILL LEAVE CHARLEVOIX

Popular Local Business Man Connects With Michigan Mutual Liability Company of Detroit.

Residents of Charlevoix will be sorry to learn that Evers Nordrum, who for the past three years has been manager of the Charlevoix branch of the Booth Fisheries Company, has severed his relations with this concern, and expects to locate with his family in the southern part of the state.

This well-known and much liked and respected young man has secured a very advantageous connection with the Michigan Mutual Liability Company and will make his temporary headquarters in Detroit. It is possible that he may later be transferred to Kalamazoo. It has not yet been definitely decided when Mrs. Nordrum and the children will join him.

Mr. Nordrum has been connected with the Booth Fisheries Company for the past seventeen years. About three years ago, he came here from the Soo branch to take the position vacated by his father, Oluf Nordrum, when the latter removed to Chicago to become production manager for the company. During his incumbency, the extensive improvements in the Booth plant in Charlevoix were effected and Mr. Nordrum deserves much credit for the up-to-date and efficient organization which he has helped to create.

R. B. Dory, who took Nordrum's place at the Soo when the latter was transferred to this station, comes to Charlevoix to manage the local branch. He has spent six years in the employ of the company and it may be confidently expected that under his guidance the concern will continue to progress and to maintain the high standards which it has fostered in the past.

Mr. Nordrum has lived in Charlevoix since boyhood and is a graduate of our schools. Several years ago, he married Miss Lila Campbell, a Charlevoix girl. They have two children.

Mr. and Mrs. Nordrum have been socially active and have been consistent supporters of the best elements in our community life. They have a host of friends here who, while they regret to have them go, join with the Courier in congratulations and sincere wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.

CRANBERRY BOG BEST IN STATE

WALTON JUNCTION NOTED FOR QUALITY OF FRUIT

Produces From 1,000 to 1,800 Bushels of Holiday Fruit Each Year

Thanksgiving dinner without cranberries is about as absurd as a Christmas without Santa Claus, yet few persons realize the part Michigan plays in supplying this important fruit of the holiday season. They almost always associate the cranberry with Cape Cod, yet the Wolverine state ranked sixth in the production of the beautiful berry.

One of the most successful cranberry bogs in Michigan is located near here where it is owned by the Walton Cranberry association and managed by C. A. Babcock, a native of Wisconsin, who learned the business in some of the most successful bogs in that state.

The production of cranberries is an industry very distinct from any other type of fruit growing and, according to Mr. Babcock, is one not well adapted to the experience or means of the average farmer. In planting a cranberry bog a flat muck area is located which has no marl or lime deposits near it but has a stream of water running through it which is capable of being dammed for irrigation and flooding purposes.

In the Walton association bog the upper half of the marsh area is cut off by a dike and used as a reservoir to collect water. Below this a tract of 25 acres has been scraped and leveled and ditches four or five rods apart dug over the entire area. On the land between the ditches the young cranberry plants were set more than 13 years ago by hand and allowed to grow for about three years before picking commenced.

In the spring and fall when the frost danger is acute the flood gates in the dike are opened and the marsh flooded and the danger to either the young blossoms or ripening fruit is prevented. The marsh is also flooded at intervals through the year to drown out and destroy the insect pests common to the crop and at other times if dry weather makes it necessary. No cultivation is necessary and so far no fertilization has been practiced although some experimental work will be done later to determine the value of commercial fertilizers as an aid to nature.

The 15 acres of bog now bearing, has produced as high as 1,800 bushels of cleaned berries per season, but the average is nearer 1,000 bushels per season or about 66 bushels per acre.

Following the picking, which is done while the berries are still green, they are taken to a low diked shed where they are decked in trays and allowed to cure and take on color for about six weeks when they are cleaned, sorted and shipped to market to fill a demand which now is felt long before and long after the Thanksgiving turkey is roasted.

Michigan people consume all the berries produced in the state and many more and the fruit seems to be increasing in popularity each year but due to the heavy first cost of starting a bog all muck crop authorities of the state feel that present market prices are not attractive enough to make cranberry growing a safe venture for the average farmer unless he is favorably located to a swamp where wild cranberries already are growing.

The Seals You Buy Change Misery to Health and Sunshine

Tb. Convalescents Need Occupational Training

"Can't I make a tray?"
"There's a basket I believe I could make."

"Do we have to stop at four?"

One of the happiest rooms in the Michigan State Tuberculosis Sanatorium is the occupational therapy room, popularly known as the O. T. room. It represents the delight of self-fulfillment, absorbing occupation, and a chance for pocket money to the lucky patients whose temperatures allow them to enroll for instruction in real work, radio, or the various other crafts taught there.

Occupational training for consumptives is still in its infancy. Apart from its curative value in giving variety to monotonous days, it may be used to help the convalescent back to a foothold in the wage-earning world.

Inquiries made by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association have disclosed the fact that many patients, on their discharge from a sanatorium, are confronted by acute financial problems. Few are able to return to their former employment at once, and some must permanently change their occupation.

Next year the Michigan Association will put the Christmas seals you buy at work upon this problem. Michigan must not desert her consumptives at what is often the most crucial point in their restoration to life and usefulness.

Christmas Seals Take Care of Marjorie

Marjorie has been her father's housekeeper ever since her mother's death three years ago. When her cough and lassitude declared themselves in no uncertain terms last summer, her plight was pitiable. There was no room for her at the sanatorium, and her father could not afford to pay a nurse.

The doctor prescribed rest in bed until her fever was down, but Marjorie, toiling and fretting while her father was at work all day, had little chance to reduce a temperature. Neighbors were kind, but tuberculosis nursing was to them a sealed book. Then came Miss Gibbs, the visiting nurse. She gave Marjorie skilled care every day, taught her how she could hasten her own cure, and how to make sure that infection from her disease did not menace her father or others who came into the house. Today Marjorie takes the cure contentedly, happy in the daily visits of her new-found friend, and sure that health is once more on its way to her.

Christmas seals made Miss Gibbs' visits possible. Christmas seals which finance work of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association will care for as many Marjories next year as you will allow them to. All they need is your pennies helping them.

GOVERNOR ENDORSES SALE OF TB. CHRISTMAS SEALS

Shortening days, chilly nights, and falling leaves warn us of the approach of winter, and with winter comes the glad Christmas season, heralded by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association's annual sale of Christmas seals.

The proceeds of this sale will be used in the fight against the tuberculosis scourge and will gladden many a heart with the thought that someone does care.

The salesmen receive no remuneration. Their work is a labor of love. "Buy Christmas seals and save human lives."

CHRISTMAS SEALS HELP TO SAVE THE CHILDREN

Flora-Jessie Jane is chasing the cure in the children's infirmary at the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium. She has her rest periods twice a day, and takes her "tomp" every afternoon; and she is beloved of every small maiden in the girls' infirmary.

Seventy children are now being cared for in the children's infirmaries at Howell. Tuberculosis is a deadly menace to childhood. Christmas seals, which make possible the work of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, fight to keep children healthy and strong that they can throw off the effects of the omnipresent infection.

Christmas Seal Sale for 1922

Another year has rolled around and again we are reminded that one of the various organizations toward which we are called upon to contribute is making its plea to us. It is hardly necessary to ask our people to respond to this. They will do so very generously as they have done before. So this is only to remind us of the fact that the campaign for the sale of seals is well underway and will open Thanksgiving Day and continue until Christmas Day.

REVENGE VS. REDEMPTION
After weeks of saturation in the sordid details of the trial of the late departed "Earl," we are now treated to a sequel depicting in vivid terms his sufferings in bondage.

"Nothing is left out; from the lone potato that the Warden promised him for breakfast, to be washed down with meagre portions of black coffee, unsweetened and unskimmed, to the gratifying news (dwelt upon in fiendish glee by the delighted raccoons) that his "Lordship" is to be set at the menial and unknighly task of shoveling coal.

All of which goes to show our staunch American hatred of titles and special privileges and the perfect misconception on the part of many of our good citizens of the pur poses and aims of penitents for violations of the laws of the land. We seem to hear a strange echo of medievalism in this rather unlovely exaltation in the misery of a fellow-human, and are tempted to wonder, if the news had drifted back from Jackson that Greig had been treated to a dose of the rack, the thumb-screw and the wheel, if the popular pleasure thus engendered would have been any the less keen. We are told, with gusto, that the sheriff refused the fearful pleadings of his prisoner to be allowed to make his final journey unhindered, not because of perfectly reasonable precautions to be taken in the transportation of a capital criminal, but because of the fact that the sheriff lost some money through the "Earl's" illegal operations. We are well enough acquainted with the sheriff to refuse to impute such unworthy motives to his decision. No public officer, fit to hold office, will allow personal considerations to influence him in the discharge of his duty.

Repeated sneers at the dilapidated condition of the "blue blood" claimed by the "Earl" have blinded those who glory in his downfall and humiliation to the fact that the fluid that runs in their own veins is not of the purest crimson and is certainly not tinged with that essence (supposedly an inheritance of all true Americans) commonly known as "sportsmanship." Fair play has long been a boast of the Anglo-Saxon race, and one of its chief tenets is not to "hit a man when he's down." We are inclined to think that the warden of Jackson prison was "kidding" the "Earl" when he outlined his daily diet, as men do not shovel coal for a great while on a regimen of a single potato, black coffee and a slice of bread. However, that may be, it is the way in which the news was received here and not the fact itself that calls for reprobation. If true, it is no cause for satisfaction but for investigation and punishment of officials who would permit such an outrage against humanity. If not true it is a thing unworthy to be dwelt upon by mature minds.

This is no slobbering, soft-hearted appeal for leniency to an arch-criminal. If half of the evidence developed at the trial is true, as we have no reason to doubt, the "Earl's" sentence of two and a half years is none too severe. But he has commenced to serve this sentence and that should be sufficient to salve the outraged feelings of the public, particularly as it is because of their indifference to affairs of government and failure to hold their state officials more strictly accountable for enforcement of the laws that Greig was enabled to commit the crimes with which he was charged.

According to the testimony of its highest officials, the Michigan Securities Commission had been suspicious of Greig and his operations in other fields for a long period. Why, then, did they permit him to carry on his illegal manipulations unwatched and unchecked until, after the absorption of some ninety thousand dollars of the people's money, he was finally brought to book, not by the Securities Commission, but, through the energy and initiative of one of his dupes? Are we being taxed to maintain a securities commission in this state to "lock the barn after the horse is stolen" or to protect us from just such situations as we have been confronting? Then, too, is this the first experience that Charlevoix people have had with the type of rascal Greig represents? Once stung is twice warned—has that been true in our case? Contributory negligence is a real criminal offense—recognized under the law, for contributory negligence makes possible things that otherwise could not occur. Possibly some of us who fell under the influence of the "Earl's" winning personality and allowed our desire for quick returns to befuddle our heads should shoulder a part of his blame. It is too easy and too self-gratifying to make a goat out of an individual, albeit it has been done in all ages of the world's history.

Revenge is not the proper motive behind the punishment of the law-breaker but rehabilitation. The keynote of the Old Testament may have been "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" but the inspiration of the New is salvation. A system of penology that seeks to revenge society upon the criminal will delay the millennium for ages.

BRIDE WELL KNOWN IN CHARLEVOIX

Miss Helen Pearson Married in Boyne Falls Thursday

Miss Helen Pearson, daughter of Senator and Mrs. William Pearson, of Boyne Falls, and W. Herbert Seals, of Walling, Tenn., were united in marriage Thursday evening, Nov. 30, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. W. A. Shepard, of Port Huron, reading the marriage service. The bride was charmingly gowned in white Canton crepe and carried bride's roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Marvel Pearson, who wore a dainty green organdy frock and carried pink roses.

George Parrish, of Reed City, acted as best man.

Master William George Stephenson, carried the ring in the heart of a rose and little Miss Evelyn Auble was the flower girl.

As the bridal party proceeded to the altar, Miss Aelsah Meyer played Mendelssohn's Wedding March. Following the ceremony a delightful solo was sung by Mrs. G. C. Conkle, of Boyne City.

The home decorations consisted of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Seals was born in Charlevoix and has lived most of her life in northern Michigan, where she has a wide circle of friends, who are extending congratulations and best wishes.

Why is it that with the first fall of snow, both adults and school children seem to forget that sidewalks were made to walk upon, and persist in cutting corners, and tramping over private property. Signs of "Please Keep Off" have no significance to them however. The lawn at the city library is a fair example of this practice. Seems to us that this habit could be stopped. We suggest that adults keep to the walks and by cautioning the school children, they will follow the example set.

Myer Levinson, reporting on the highway department, called attention to a saving of some ten to eleven hundred dollars effected in the purchase of cheaper oil for laying dust on macadam roads. The city formerly paid 12 cents a gallon for its oil, against a price for this year of 7 3-4 cents. He also expressed high commendation of the present street commissioner and his economical methods of upkeep.

Councilman J. J. Hallett told his audience that the new siren on the fire house had been purchased by the "laddies" from the proceeds of their various entertainments, plus $50.00 donated by the city. The appropriation this year, he said, for the fire department was $2,000.00. Actual expenditure for fires during 1922 totaled $240.00 up to date. A portion of the appropriation has been used for the purchase of new coats, boots, smoke masks and fire hose. The fire chief is paid by the year and the assistant by the month.

Various phases of our summer resort business were next discussed. A very excellent suggestion was made by Mrs. Louise Elston, recommending that comfortable benches be located along the main boulevards of the town, and at other points frequented by our summer visitors, particularly along Dixon avenue between the Inn and Lake Michigan. She had heard, she stated, many comments on the lack of such resting places from these people.

C. R. Bellinger made a strong plea for the improvement of our water front and the cleaning up of rubbish and unsightly spots, particularly along the shores of Round Lake. The mayor supplemented Mr. Bellinger's remarks with a suggestion to the ladies to include Charlevoix among the subjects of their study in the various literary societies where Russia, Ash Minor and other remote regions are discussed. He urged the formation of a civic league to clean up the city, pointing out rather humorously that the men had evidently failed miserably along this line and that it was a matter falling naturally within woman's sphere. H. A. Craig, later, added something more to the subject, relating the difficulties that had attended his efforts at various times to get the government to clean up the dock and the strip of land on the north side of the channel, west of the Argo mill.

The subject of discriminative rates for electric light service was the cause of a rather spirited debate, led by Dr. Armstrong, who contended that it was manifestly unfair to charge the summer visitor 20 cents per kilowatt hour and the townsman, occupying his residence the year around, 10 cents for the same service. This was not the way, he asserted, to cement the bonds of good feeling between the resorter and the people of Charlevoix. In further support of his argument, City Clerk D. S. Payton rose to show the gross unfairness of penalizing the resorter who buys property here for a summer home and is immediately charged the 20 cent rate, although he has become a tax-payer and thus loaded with a double share of the burden of maintaining light service. Others present offered their testimony to the prevailing dissatisfaction in our summer colony at the present system of charges. Consensus of opinion seemed to favor the uniform assessment of an average rate throughout the entire year on all consumers alike, at a figure that would produce the same revenue as the present discriminatory rates.

C. R. Bellinger believed that our bathing beaches and facilities for the public use of our water frontage available for bathing should be developed. In this he had the hearty support of the mayor, who pointed out that there is now no provision for public bathing along our shores. Dr. Armstrong spoke again—this time in favor of developing winter sports in Charlevoix—a Michigan St. Moritz in miniature, naming Mt. Me-Sauha as an ideal spot for a ski and toboggan course. Many of our younger summer people, he believes, could be induced to come here for the winter months as well, were the proper attractions offered.

George W. Priest brought up one of the most important matters of the evening—the establishment of a first class free auto camp in or near the city, similar to those now becoming so popular in Traverse City, Cadillac and other Michigan points and in Florida. Such a camp, he thought, would be better advertising for Charlevoix, if properly equipped and conducted, than reams of printed advertising, although he did not decry the value of the latter form of publicity in which, as Mayor Bellinger pointed out, we should follow the example of St. Petersburg and Miami, who are heavy advertisers in the big daily papers and with signboards placed at conspicuous points along the Dixie Highway, urging the tourist to stop and enjoy their hospitality. The mayor spoke of the efforts in this direction that had been made by Alonzo Powers, who, on his recent trip to Florida, had placed similar signs advertising Charlevoix along his route.

Mr. Priest's argument was seconded by A. J. Usher, who pointed out that Charlevoix, was rapidly developing the reputation of being an exclusive "millionaire resort" thru our neglect of the average tourist and his needs. He maintained that every effort should be bent towards the purchase by the city of the property west of town, now used as a public park, originally selected by the council for the site of a free tourist camp, but which a cloud on the title had prevented their securing at an earlier date. This difficulty, Mr. Usher felt, might be removed and he urged that no time be lost in effecting the purchase and adding a "sure thing" to our list of attractions for the tourist. Like Mr. Priest, he stressed the importance of making the camp up-to-date and first class in every respect, as otherwise it would fall widely of its purpose and be more of a detriment than an asset.

The Michigan Tourist and Resort bureau next came up for discussion, it being seemingly doubted by the speakers as to whether the yearly sum of three or four hundred dollars paid to this organization by the city had been productive of real results. In response to questions put by the mayor, several people present who rent cottages in the summer expressed themselves as dissatisfied with the replies received from the bureau to their communications and with the kind of people who were recommended to them by the bureau.

Dr. W. W. Mitchell asked for closer co-operation between the chamber of commerce and the people of the city. He outlined some of the work being performed by this body, particularly mentioning the information bureau, conducted by Miss Adeline Holly at her gift shop. Even now, well into the winter months, Miss Holly receives frequent telephone requests from nearby towns for information regarding train schedules and hotel accommodations.

Mrs. Armstrong spoke on the subject of the city park, warning against denuding the ground of its larger shrubbery, thus exposing it to drifting sand with the consequent total destruction of plant life. She also objected strenuously to any attempt at "improvement" that would destroy the natural beauty of the park.

The mayor introduced the subject of obtaining new industries for Charlevoix, one of his hobbies, it seems. This started a lively discussion in which several of the councilmen and the citizens present took part.

L. P. Adams voiced his belief that there were enough honest people left in Charlevoix, despite our sad past experiences with promoters and blue-sky "artists," to finance and make a success of a cement plant on the site of the old Rock Product Company.

H. A. Craig spoke for a canning factory for Charlevoix and was supported by Dr. Armstrong (who, by the way, found time to prescribe for ailing infants and dyspeptic grown-ups over the phone at ten or fifteen minute intervals and still make some of the snappiest speeches of the evening.)—The doctor said that in his opinion we could have a successful canning factory provided it was of the "home-grown" variety and not controlled by outside parties to the extent of fifty per cent or more of the stock. He said we had been stung so often by parties who wanted a bonus to come in and start something for us that now, if anybody said "factory," all the rest of us grabbed our cash boxes and hunter-convenient holes (or words to that effect.)

Lyman Benton talked on the trials of our infant industries and put the brakes on any excess enthusiasm that might otherwise have run wild over the project of attracting industries to Charlevoix by citing the various instances in which we had been done to a frazzle by the wily promoter.

Archie Livingston mentioned the cheese factory, regarding which the rumors have been rife lately, intimating that at least ten thousand dollars that he knew of was restively champing the bit and awaiting the signal to become engaged in such an enterprise should somebody start it.

His query, addressed to R. F. Sloan, naively inquiring if the latter "knew anything about promoters," provoking the big laugh of the evening, in which the gentleman in question joined heartily. Mr. Sloan was asked for his views, based on his experience as a stock-raiser on a large scale, as to the feasibility of organizing a cheese factory for this region, and replied that to his way of thinking such an enterprise was absolutely essential if big producers like the Loeh Farms, the Orchard Bay Farm, Elmer Ingalls, and others were to stay in business. He disclosed the startling and lamentable fact that tons of milk that might be used for cheese, representing in a year's time many thousands of dollars, were now being fed to the hogs or wasted. He further stated that the organization of a cheese factory, backed by some of the larger local interests was now under way and although he was not at liberty at this time to go into detail, he could assure the people of Charlevoix that no one, not a bonafide resident of Charlevoix or a farmer in the adjoining districts, would be permitted to hold a dollar's worth of stock in the new concern. He made an earnest plea for more meetings of the kind then in session, better support by the people of their mayor and council and a stronger spirit of co-operation among all classes of our citizenry, without which, in his opinion, nothing really worth while could be accomplished. Questioned further in regard to the projected cheese factory as an employing agency, he admitted that only some fourteen or fifteen people would be needed to carry on its activities but stressed the fact that while it possibly would not amount to much as a wage payer, the revenue produced for Charlevoix would be enormous, as it would be a co-operative proposition.

The balance of the evening was devoted to questions by members of the audience on various phases of the subjects that had been discussed. The meeting was adjourned at ten-thirty and those who were in attendance departed with a better knowledge of city affairs and an awakened enthusiasm in the welfare and progress of our fine little city.

SOME BEST RECIPES

For an inexpensive cake that is easy to prepare and delicious in flavor the following is recommended:

Spanish Bun.—Soften two-thirds of a cupful of butter, add two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of sour milk, four well-beaten eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of cloves, two of cinnamon, with one cupful of chopped raisins. Bake in a large flat tin. The baking powder with the sour milk gives the cake its characteristic flavor.

Chicken Pie.—Cook the chicken as usual, stuffing with an onion or a hove of garlic. Lay the chicken, well-seasoned, in the dish, removing the onion, or garlic, cover with the broth and place the small baking powder biscuits closely together over the top. Just before serving pour into the dish a cupful of good rich cream. This will make the cream of chicken pies.

Roll Jelly Cake.—This is a cake when well made everybody asks for. Take three eggs, beat very light; add one cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Stir in gradually one cupful of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in a deep-dish pan in a moderate oven. Grease the pan and when the cake is baked turn out on a towel wrung out of cold water. If the edges are at all crisp trim them after spending the jelly. Roll with the towel while still warm.

Peach Marmalade.—Boil twelve pounds of peaches until reduced to a pulp, adding a small amount of water, then put them through a sieve and add a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit. Boil, stirring almost constantly until thick. Put away in glasses or jars for winter use.

Calves Hearts en Casserole.—Fry no onion with a little salt pork fat, roll four calves' hearts in seasoned flour and brown them all over, turning until well browned. Put them in a hot casserole, add a cupful of stock, a shredded pepper and one-half teaspoonful of mixed spices. Cover and bake for two hours. Serve garnished with curled bacon.

CENTRAL DRUG STORE

NO MIRRORS IN BARBER SHOP

Tonsorial Parlors for Bobbing. M-lady's Hair Are Now Without Looking Glasses.

Speaking of the play of Hamlet without the Dane, what do you think of the mirrorless barber shop? Surely as an egregious thing, revolutionary and rather alarming, almost a contradiction in terms. Yet it has arrived. It flourishes. It proves itself an answer to a need of the hour.

But not for men. No, no! The barber shop without mirrors is for the hobbling of women's hair, remarks the New York Sun. It seems that women are too emotional to watch the amputation of "woman's crowning glory" without raising a fuss interfering with the work of the hair surgeon. They twitter and fidget, and get excited and give directions, and make the operator so nervous that he is sometimes prevented from turning out what he considers a neat job.

The idea of mirrorless surgery for the mutilation of female heads seems to have originated up Boston way. When the leading cruise first struck New York barber shops were fitted up for women with a special eye to abundant and brilliant illumination of mirrors. Indeed, the mirror, woman's friend, was looked upon as the supreme attraction in the new style of shearing parlor. But it was found the reflection of the victim after her tresses received their first slash was so unnerving to her, and stimulated her to so many criticisms, warnings and ultimatums that it was soon seen that the mirrors would have to go. And now mindfully must learn to take her shearing like a sheep.

TO MAR ST. MICHEL'S BEAUTY

Sitting Up of the Bay is Causing Much Anxiety to the People of Normandy.

The steady sitting up of the Bay of St. Michel is a cause of much anxiety to the good people of Normandy. It threatens to spoil the beauty of the famous Mont St. Michel's, which at present is linked to the mainland only by an artificial causeway. Formerly the Mont, which in the course of the centuries has been by turns a Druidical shrine, a Benedictine abbey, and a state prison, and which, since its restoration by Viollet-le-Duc, is fondly preserved as an historical monument, was as inaccessible at high tide, except by boat, as its Cornish counterpart, St. Michael's Mount still is. But the causeway enabled a light railway to run to the very foot of the Mont, and this causeway is stated by experts to be one of the great causes of the sitting up, which it is predicted, will eventually make the Mont just part of the ordinary coastline.

Electric-Lighted Handbag.

The latest novelty from London—not Paris—is a lady's handbag equipped interiorly with an electric light. Just as if it was necessary for a woman to need a light to empty her purse! Nevertheless, the novelty handbag is about the cutest thing to arrive this season from the other side. One that was a gift to a young matron was the sensation of a section of the lower floor in a theater. Raymond G. Carroll recently wrote from New York to the Philadelphia Ledger. She opened the handbag, a function which automatically flooded the inside of the bag with light from a tiny electric bulb, located about half an inch below the clasp, and fed from a miniature storage battery covered with oil skin, fastened at the bottom of the bag.

Tangled Tongues.

Spoonersisms, like the poor, we have always with us. Two new and rather good ones came to our attention recently. The other day a Chicago woman, testifying against her husband in her divorce suit, declared: "He leads me, his awful wife, a 'lawful life'."

There was a loud titter in the court, and blushing with embarrassment she hastened to correct herself.

The other concerns a young woman who was dining at a strange house. On the table was a dish of boiled onions, and when her hostess was serving these and remarked that, of course, she liked them, the young woman remarked enthusiastically: "Oh, yes, indeed; if there is one vegetable I like it is boiled onions." Just think if her hostess's husband had been a chiropodist.—Boston Transcript.

WHAT SHOULD EDUCATION MEAN

SUPT. CHAS. HAMILTON GIVES HIS VIEWS

Believes the Character of Great Men to Be the Greatest Inspiration to the Young

All of us who indulge at all in what is sometimes termed, nowadays, the "luxury of thought," have our ideas, more or less valuable, about matters of consuming public interest. Among these is education. In the discussion of this subject, the angle most generally approached is that of the kind of education necessary to develop the best elements in the characters and abilities of our growing boys and girls.

The Courier has the opportunity, this week, of giving to its readers the views of a specialist in his line, our superintendent of schools, Chas. Hamilton. It is seldom that a clearer statement of the aims and ideals of our public school system is presented, or one that is more completely in accord with the unspoken beliefs of most laymen. The article follows:

"I believe an education to be the inherent right of every American boy and girl today.

I believe in the type of education which makes for American citizenship—not blind, unthinking obedience but a clear understanding and intelligent interpretation and appreciation of the term we so fondly refer to as democracy.

I believe in ideals and that in school life they are tremendously worth while. Life may not be as wo-read of it from books or we picture it from the class room but we can only approach perfection as we have ideals to follow; standards to guide along the way.

I conceive good citizenship to be—not only an ardent love for the American flag and the country it represents—a love so strong that when danger threatens we are willing to follow that flag in battle, if need be, but interpret it to mean (and we aim to teach) respect for property, respect for the rights of others, the intelligent use of the ballot, the sacredness of the Sabbath, the ability to recognize every man as our neighbor and to treat him as such, the brotherhood of all mankind.

I believe a high school course should make one proficient in the use of the mother tongue and should develop an appreciation for the best literature. The "reading habit," formed in school, not only should embrace magazines and newspapers, but books—the biographies of great men, the stories of enterprises that have been the means of shaping destinies of individuals and of nations.

A course in high school should acquaint one with the history of the rise of mankind and its development and causes underlying same, keeping in the student's mind, that in all cases right has finally triumphed, that the nation that has forgotten to deal honestly has gone down to obscurity and that thus, history repeats itself in both individuals and nations. So citizenship should be taught in connection with history and being not forgetful, most of all our own glorious history and the conditions and events that have contributed to make us great.

I believe if we did nothing else but show the boys and girls the character of our great men, we would even yet justify our existence as an institution.

Our school course should teach enough mathematical computations that we can intelligently transact business in a bank, mercantile organization, or in whatever circumstance we find ourselves, as well as forming a ground work for higher education.

Any boy or girl who has had a high school course should be able to get up on both feet and express in good English his views on any subject, in a clear, concise manner; to write in a legible hand these sentiments, or if it be of a business nature, to write a correct business letter, with proper spelling and punctuation.

I believe the school should teach punctuality, being on the job and on the minute, dependability, working well and honestly whether watched or unwatched by one in authority.

Initiative, the power of leadership and the willingness to assume responsibility, should surely be among the products of a high school course.

We should develop in school, a group consciousness and a loyalty and love for the great institution, the American public schools.

Then the school should point the way to higher education and the advisability of attaining it both for personal enrichment of life and to make society better, we must emphasize the equality of man, and the dignity of labor whether with pen or spade, and that all labor becomes dignified as we make it so, that each pupil as he gets out in life, may feel that his particular work is for him, most important, and that being so, it demands his best efforts.

The school should teach the child to appreciate his home and the parents who work hard that he may enjoy the benefits of an education.

When we realize that the teacher is 85 per cent of the whole education program, and that buildings and equipment, and all the rest amount to the remaining 15 per cent, has not the teacher a real job?"

There is one sentence in Mr. Hamilton's little essay (it might almost be called a creed) that we believe calls for more explicit definition. It touches on one of the most delicate points in the group of basic principles. (Continued on page 16)

THREE APPEALS TO SANTA CLAUS

LITTLE TOTS OF THE MODEL SCHOOL WRITE HIM

They Didn't Forget the Poor Children in Telling the Old Fellow What They Wanted

Here are some letters the kids in Miss Burkland's model class at the county normal wrote to Santa Claus last week. We'll venture a bet that the old saint will visit these little girls if he has to pull some bricks out of the chimneys to squeeze through.

Dear Santa Claus:

We had a Thanksgiving party Wednesday. The Normal girls gave the party. We played games, and had our fortune told. We dressed up like Indians. The Normal girls dressed like Pilgrims. We had a very good time.

Be sure to stop at my house on Christmas eve. I would like a pair of ice skates, a new hat and coat, some books to read, a tooth brush, some games to play, a record to play on the victrola, a sheet of music, and some presents for mother and father. Santa dear—I'll let you judge us to how many of these things I can have.

I know some children who are very poor, and they have to make their own living. I wish that you would call at their house and give them plenty of warm clothes and many good things to eat.

Lovingly yours,
Helen Smith.

Dear Santa Claus:

We had a Thanksgiving program last Wednesday afternoon. The Normal Training teachers invited us to their Thanksgiving party. We learned an Indian war whoop. It was "Big Indian, Little Indian, Chief and Squaw. Pappoose hanging on a limb, Wah! Wnh! Wnh! Then we sang two Thanksgiving songs. The third grade had a recitation. There were strings with card-board, on which said, "wind me up." At the end of my string was a stick of candy.

I would like you to remember the poor little children of the slums in the big cities. You know they haven't any money with which to buy Christmas gifts. We ought to be thankful that we are not some of those poor children. Tell Mrs. Santa Claus to make them some warm clothes.

For Christmas I would like a sled, a doll, a doll cab, a pair of ice skates and the series of "The Bobbsey Twins." I think that is all I want for Christmas this year. Merry Christmas to the family.

Your friend,
Jane Simlow.

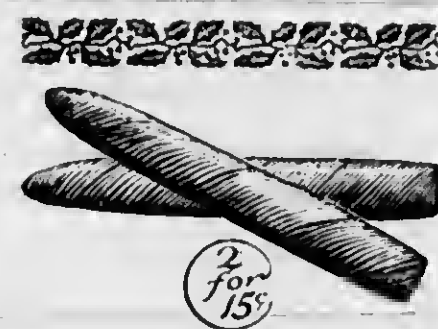

Dear Santa Claus:

This morning when I got up, everything was white with snow. I suppose at the North Pole there is loads of snow by this time. When I came to school the side-walks were so icy I could hardly stand up.

There are many things I would like for Christmas, for instance, a doll, games and books.

There are poor people living in Charlevoix. I would like to give some of my presents to them. If you know where they live and they need presents more than I do, give my presents to them.

Your friend,
Dorothy Mae Hadsell.

BOLD HIGHWAY- MAN WAS FOILED

JAMES WHITLEY WRESTS GUN
FROM ASSAILANT

Nervy Local Barber Captures Bad
Man Single-Handed After a
Fierce Struggle

While Charlevoix citizens are already minutely acquainted with the details of the daring hold-up that occurred last Saturday evening, it may not be amiss to say something about it here, as we haven't had any deeds of heroism to talk about since Captain Peter Anee's exploit of some weeks ago.

At about half past eight Saturday evening, James Whitley, of this city, on his way to make a friendly call on Harry Widdifield, cut across the corner back of Orlovski's store and emerged on Upright Avenue. His attention was held by a tall figure standing in the shadow of a telephone pole across the street opposite Widdifield's house. A moment later, the mysterious stranger crossed the street and approached Mr. Whitley, as the latter turned into the yard, accosting him with, "Say, brother, can you tell me the name of this street?" Whitley, suspecting something wrong, did not answer him directly, whereupon the man stepped up, shoved a gun in his face and said, "brother, I want your money."

Whitley, with great presence of mind, feigned deafness and stepping closer to his questioner, asked "what?" Taking another step, as if to hear his reply, Whitley grasped the muzzle of his assailant's gun with his right hand and turned it skyward, gripping the man's wrist with his other and exclaiming, "Don't shoot me, shoot the man in the moon." The fellow struggled fiercely and finally succeeded in breaking away from his captor, leaving the gun in the latter's hands. Whitley gave chase and, as he wore rubbers while the other fellow had no "non-skids" whatever, rapidly gained on his man and grappled with him again before he had run but a few feet, catching him by the coat collar.

Alternately jerking his victim and bouncing him in the jaw with the hard and generous fist firmly anchored to the coat collar, Whitley managed to subdue the bad man sufficiently to drag him to the entrance of Orlovski's store, which he entered willingly enough, seeing that the game was up. Just inside the door, he whispered an offer to his captor to take his wad and let him go free, but Whitley was obdurate and held on to his man until the sheriff was located on the phone and arrived a few minutes later to handcuff the man and take him away.

When first captured, the man had given his name as George Clark, but papers he had managed to throw away while he was being taken to the jail, which were afterwards recovered, showed him to be George Mutton, of Lansing, on probation for the non-support of a wife and three children in that city. He gave his age as twenty-eight. He stands five feet, eleven inches and weighs one hundred and eighty-five pounds, a pretty husky gent for anybody to tackle.

"At the jail, he told the sheriff that he had come from Petoskey with a 'lady friend' with whom he admitted spending the previous night at the Park House in that city, where they were registered as 'Mr. and Mrs. George Clark.' Further questioning developed the fact that the young woman's name is Violet Simmons, whose home is in Alba, Michigan. Mutton told the sheriff that she was stopping in town at the home of her brother, Pearl Simmons, the bridge tender. The sheriff promptly went after the woman and brought her to the jail where she was closely questioned. She claimed that she had been married and that her husband had divorced her. The truth of this statement has not yet been substantiated. Mutton had already told the sheriff that he and the girl had planned to be married soon. She disclaimed the knowledge of the hold-up, and succeeded in convincing the sheriff of her innocence in connection with it. She is being held however for further investigation. When the sheriff called at the Simmons' home to get her, she told him that she and Mutton hailed from Toledo and, knowing the somewhat notorious reputation of that city as a rendezvous for criminals of all descriptions, he was influenced to take her into immediate custody.

Sheriff Weaver, having been advised that a lone highwayman had held up two men in Petoskey Friday night, got into communication with the authorities there, and Thomas Travis, one of the victims, who had given up nine dollars at the point of a pistol, came to Charlevoix Sunday with Chief of Police Wolff of Petoskey, and had no difficulty in identifying Mutton as the man who had robbed him on Friday night. Another Petoskey man, Foley, by name, lost $22.00 in this manner, on the same night.

Chief of Police Wolff said he believed Mutton was on probation from a Lansing court for wife desertion and that he had only recently again deserted his family. Mutton and Miss Simmons said they had come to Petoskey from Flint and admitted having lived together as man and wife. The robber is said to have purchased a new cap in Petoskey shortly before coming here and it is also said that he talked with other guests at the Park House about the robberies he had committed.

The gun with which Mutton had threatened his victims proved, on examination, to be merely a toy pistol, new and shiny; a very good imitation of the real thing, however. This fact, though, does not palliate the seriousness of his crime in any way and he is likely to receive a stiff sentence.

He was examined Tuesday morning by Justice Henry Cooper of this city and bound over to circuit court, to be brought before Judge Mayne on Thursday.

It is believed that Mutton had a confederate in the affair of Saturday night, as persons in the Orlovski store noticed a strange man enter the store a few minutes before Mutton was brought in by Whitley. When someone said, the sheriff is coming, this fellow ducked out and though Whitley and others spent some little time looking for him, their search proved fruitless. The sheriff, however, is not inclined to believe that anyone else but Mutton was connected with the crime.

Broke His Leg

Forrest Fowler met with a painful accident last Monday while working at the Waller farm. He slipped on an icy patch of ground, breaking one of the bones in his right leg below the knee and spraining the ligaments. The broken bone cannot be set for a week, on account of the sprain and it is likely that Mr. Fowler will be laid up for some time.

SCHOOL NOTES

The regular work of the chemistry class is mixed with all sorts of delights, one of which is the importance of "Home Training." About all that has been so far accomplished is dish washing.

Three members of the faculty attended the debate at Central Lake. Report rough roads—lost two chains and three tempers.

The debate season promises to be as interesting as any athletic season. The affirmative team of C. H. S. carried off the honors at Boyne City, last Friday evening 4 to 0. The speakers for C. H. S. were Kathryn Gaskin, Albert Widdifield, and Raymond Faulkner.

No speed limit in the typewriting room. Clayton Trimble and Margaret Brown are startling examples. Clayton—three minutes, one word. Margaret—one minute, thirty-five words.

An interesting game was played between the alumni of C. H. S. and the varsity, at the rink last Saturday evening. The score during the first few minutes favored the alumni, but at the end of the first half the score rapidly climbed for the varsity, the final score being 30 to 12 in favor of the varsity. There was no "hero," the honors were divided, because everybody did his best.

Anyone wishing to develop his mind is cordially invited to visit the chemistry class. We are sure Mr. Attenberg would rather preach to filled seats.

And they wonder why spelling should be taught—Section taken from an exam in correspondence: "It will be good slay ridding and we can slide in that big hill of yours. How are giting along in school? There goes the bell—"

Mr. Attenberg must be more careful in the future—he has taught the chemistry class the art of distillation—quite a dangerous undertaking in the present day.

An interesting book, entitled "Studies in English Literature," containing typical selections of British and American authorship from the time of Shakespeare to the present time, has been presented to the high school library by Edith Crandall of the junior class.

Last week being Educational Week, we had a program on Friday afternoon. The program was very interesting and we wish to have another similar one in the near future.

The French I class has purchased a game, "As we Dine" written in French. In this way we hope to make use of our vocabulary besides having the fun of playing the game.

Doc Todd—"Say Charlie, do you know how they sound the fire alarm in the deaf and dumb asylum?"

Charlie Dagwell—"No, how's it done?"

Doc—"They ring the dumbbells."

Vera B.—"John, that was a good joke you told me last week, I was laughing over it yesterday."

John B.—"So soon?"

The sign "COMING" that was posted on the bulletin board some time ago, has aroused the curiosity of not a few students, and some of them are wondering if it was only a prediction of the snow-storm that gave us that "stay at home" feeling Tuesday morning.

Seventh Grade

It was agreed by the members of the seventh grade that each would subscribe for the little newspaper called "Current Events." We arrived at the conclusion, said Mr. Roy, that this paper supplies the much needed link connecting school studies with real life. It furnishes fresh reading matter, supplementary and sight reading, each week. It improves English and the power to express thoughts. It aids greatly in the training of a generation of good citizens and helps to equip them for a successful life. Current Events not only arouses interest in current topics, but in all correlated studies; as geography, history, biography, science and civics, all of which become more interesting when taken into connection with the current news of the world.

Educational Week, from December 3 to December 10, was faithfully observed by all members of the seventh grade.

The words of "America" and Michigan, my Michigan" are now being memorized, and they will be asked to reproduce a perfect copy of each song in the near future.

Arrangements were made last week providing for a Christmas entertainment to be given some date before Christmas Day.

Mr. C. E. Attenberg rendered a very valuable address in the form of a lecture to the seventh grade, on the topic "The White Plague—Tuberculosis."

Kentnor Bennett, of the seventh grade, demonstrated and gave a twenty minute talk on the "Schaefer Method of Artificial Respiration," Monday afternoon.

County Normal Notes

Mr. Long spoke to the County Normal on "Religion in the Schools." Mr. Long said we should use our schools to the greatest advantage for an education. Some persons may be learned, even skillful, but not educated. One is not educated unless he is able to use his skill in a religious way. The three points under education are religion, morality and behavior. The talk was very helpful and interesting.

Mr. Hamilton spoke to the County Normal last Monday on "Personal-ity." He brought out the fact that the teacher counts 85 per cent of the schoolroom. The pupils and room counted only 15 per cent.

The evening session of the kindergarten, Friday evening, December 22, will be given in the kindergarten room, instead of the high school, at 7:30.

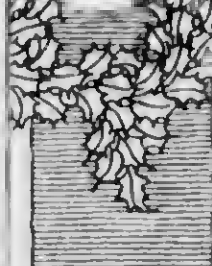

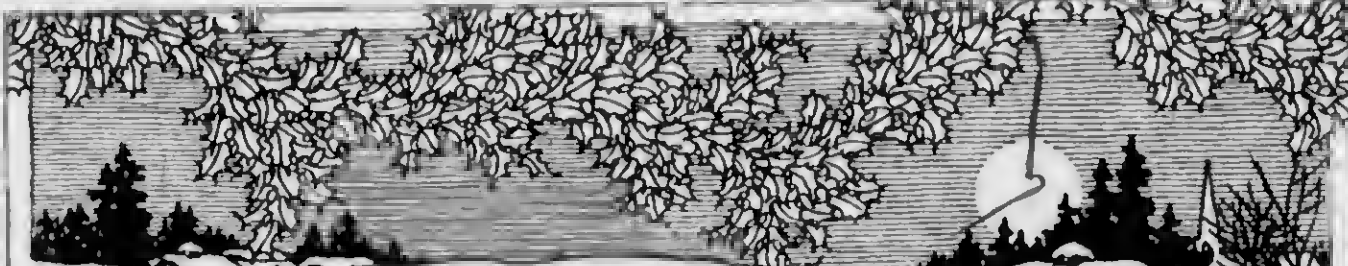

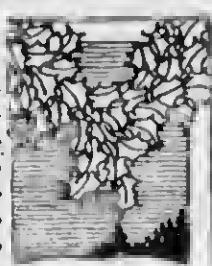

Miss Vaughn, the State Critic, spent Friday in the County Normal and training rooms.

The fifth grade children in Miss Milner's room, observed Thanksgiving in a somewhat different manner than the rest of the children in the central building. They gathered 22 jars of fruit, pickles and jelly during Thanksgiving week. These were taken to the hospital.

The children of the central building enjoyed their first assembly of the Educational Week, Friday morning. 275 children were gathered in the lower hall of the building. The children furnished the music and readings.

Monday, December 11th, the Camp Fire Girls met in the fourth grade room for the purpose of organizing the club. We also elected our officers. They are as follows: Virgin-

BEUTEL FISH CO.
HAS A GOOD YEAR
Three Boats Produce Upwards of Twenty-three Tons

The exceptional catches of lake trout and whitefish this fall have been the source of much satisfaction in the fishing industry, all of the local enterprises in this line reporting banner production figures.

The Robert Beutel Company, with stations at Charlevoix, St. Ignace, Tawas City and Black River, is no exception to this excellent showing.

Three boats fishing out of Charlevoix for this company, operated by Louie Bourseau, Cross brothers and Kenneth McClain, have brought in respectively, since the opening of the season, eight, three and twelve tons of trout, or a total of twenty-three tons for this station, and despite the fact that the whitefish season, which is now on, opened fifteen days later than in previous years, catches are expected to be fully up to the previous season's figures—at least from present indications.

Manager Dave Eekinger and his crew of three men figure on being quite busy for some time yet, packing the shipments that go to all points in Michigan and a wide territory outside.

Notice to Marlon Tax-payers
I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank, Charlevoix, for the collection of taxes for the township of Marlon, Saturday, December 23rd, from 9:00 a. m. to 3:00 p. m., and at home the balance of week.

Things That Old Kris Brought

The King of the Hill

By Christopher G. Hazard

THE long hill glistened in the winter moonlight like a cake. The road that ran down it like a silver ribbon, reaching across the railroad track and on through the valley, lost itself in a shimmering haze of snowy whiteness. The wind, as if afraid of awakening the sleeping town, had hushed itself into stillness, waiting along the way and under the shadows of the quiet trees for the signal of dawn. The scene was an invitation to a sport now largely displaced by rushing motor cars, but then one of the chief delights of the Christmas season. The hobble of those days and nights was the pride of owners and the prize winner of competitions. The annual of the Slater Hill race course registered triumphs as real and momentous as those of any race track. The moon had watched with an expectant eye until ten of the clock and was about to retire under a passing cloud in disappointment, when the clamor and shouting of an approaching crowd renewed its spirit. From a side street they came, merry lads and lasses, with those of later years who had not forgotten how to be young. Soon the head of the hill was crowded with competitors and the air rang with the bustling preparations for the first race.

The sleds of that time were no ordinary affairs. Large enough to hold from four to six passengers, they rejoiced in significant titles and all the beauty and comfort that their makers' art could put into shape, paint and upholstery. When loaded and on a steep and icy road they were swift enough to distance the wind, and, uncontrolled by bit and bridle, they could not be stopped before reaching the foot of the incline. There was thus enough of adventure in their trips to furnish the thrilling excitement that kept out the winter cold. The good-natured rivalry, too, gave interest to the sport.

This year there was a special reason for the gathering, for Tom Atkins, having received a Christmas present of a sled of the latest style and named

"The King of the Hill," had been boasting that the title was a just one and arousing all the determination that the others had to prove him wrong. The "Fast," the "Racer," the "Dauntless," the "Peerless," and others as glorious were eager to hear the married and vaunting newcomer.

The first race was inconclusive, for Atkins got a false start and tipped his load over into a snow bank. The second and the third races gave the laurels to the "Fast" and the "Peerless," respectively, and left Atkins' heart in his boots; but the fourth attempt ended with "The King of the Hill" a prod ahead and with his owner's chin protruding and upturned. Then there went by with varying fortunes until the concluding and deciding contest. It was agreed that the winner of this final should be crowned the king of the hill indeed, with none to dispute his right.

And the children of these last arrangements no one had heard the distant whistle of "The Peerless," as the night express for Boston was called, and the competing sleds dashed away down the long descent without a thought of day or night until half past midnight. Atkins' sled, however, was not so fortunate. Its front end, pushing against the snow bank, stopped the crossing, and a short distance away, and a ladder and threatening glare. The other sleds, however, in the race, were scooped into the roadside snow or left to take care of their sledges as their riders rolled off, but "The King of the Hill" is a fact, in spite of the ignorance of the imminent collision. No need the warning blasts of the engine whistle seemed to startle him into action did Atkins move to save himself and his sled. Then, with a wrench of his steering gear and a sturdy leg-sweep, he brought his sled about, throwing it overboard its side and upon its frightened head as the train swept by, almost brushing them on its way.

It was what the barber called "a close shave," and what Atkins called "as good as a fall," but the boys called it a victory and rode Atkins home on "The King of the Hill" with their full endorsement of the title.

The old hill is still there. It glitters yet in Christmas moonlight. But the boys and girls of the hobble time have grown old, the later generation has new toys, and the glorious fun of Slater's Hill is but a memory. A pleasant memory it is, though, and that is a brave, bright spot in it that registers the night when Tom Atkins got a double score in beating both the racers and the train on his "King of the Hill."

CHRISTMAS FEAST FOR BIRDS

Feathery Tribe in Bosnia Not Forgotten—Food Placed Near Nests and Shelters.

CHRISTMAS is not merely a festival celebrated by and for man alone. Among the folklore of other countries are several quaint stories in which animals and birds give evidence of their adoration. A well-known Bosnian legend offers a version of world-altruism. They claim that on the holy day "the sun in the east bowed down, the stars stood still; the mountains and forests shook and touched the earth with their summits, and the green pine tree bent; the grass was bedewed with the opening of blossoms; incense sweet as myrrh pervaded upland and forest; birds sang on the mountain tops and all give thanks to the great God."

In Bosnia on Christmas Day a sheaf of rice is put near birds' nests and bird houses for the birds' Christmas.

An old Indian legend says that on Christmas night all the deer in the forest knelt in adoration before the Great Spirit. Woe to him, however, who tries to spy upon them. He is punished with perpetual silencing of the knees.

Many people of the old World claim that on Christmas night animals are lifted with speech, but none must trespass or eavesdrop.

Many and many have been the tales which account for the robin's red breast. In great many parts of Europe he is called the Saviour's bird, and a story is told that when the Christ was crucified the robin, unable to stand his suffering, ventured to pluck the thorns from his head. In doing so, the blood stained the robin's breast, which sign he wears today.

USE OF CHRISTMAS STOCKING

Custom Comes From Sunny Italy Where Poor, First Used Long Knitted Purse.

THE custom of hanging up stockings on Christmas Eve comes to us from a land far across the ocean—from sunny Italy.

In the city of Padua, long ago, good old St. Nicholas used to go about the streets after dark and throw through the windows of the homes of the poor people long knitted purses, tied at both ends, and containing much needed coins. These purses were made of yarn, and when untied looked not unlike a footless stocking.

Finally, as time went on, the poor people, hoping thus to remind the more fortunate of their needs, used to hang these empty purses out of the windows on the night before Christmas, so that a gift might be placed in them.

In the north country, where the weather is cold at Christmas time, the purses were hung by the chimney place in the hope that St. Nicholas would drop his offering down the chimney.

When the purses went out of fashion stockings as the thing most like them were used in their stead, and that is why we today still observe the practice and the custom.

HEADQUARTERS FOR HOLIDAY SHOPPERS

Uncle Santa Claus

By Christopher G. Hazard

"TELL us a story, Uncle Peter," said the children, as they climbed over their kindly relative one Christmas eve. "A story," repeated Uncle Peter, affecting surprise, but willing to draw upon his inexhaustible stock; "well, have you ever heard of Uncle Santa Claus?" "Oh, you mean Uncle Santa Claus," exclaimed Jack. "No, I don't," said Uncle Peter. "I mean the old man with the plug hat, the blue swallowtail coat, the striped breeches; the old man with eyes like stars and a smile that never comes off excepting when somebody is treacherous or somebody else; the old man with the striped bag, whose headquarters is up in Alaska; the biggest Santa Claus there is." "All right, then," answered the children, "tell us about him."

"Well," said Uncle Peter, "he has his hands full just now and is doing all he can to fill the hands of others. The air is so noisy with wireless cries and clamors, there are so many hands reaching out over the sea, that he is almost distracted. Ever since he got back from the great war he has been repairing its damage and renewing the prosperity that it spoiled. And long before that he was in the Christmas business. He surprised China by refusing to accept the great sum of the Boxer indemnity. He let the Cubans have Cuba when he had made them free, and many thought that he had a right to take that fair island for himself. He is working hard at his task of making America truly American, a sober, industrious, enlightened, prosperous happy, Christmas nation."

"I'm glad I'm one of his American children," said Agnes, when Uncle Peter had concluded with which sentiment all the rest agreed.

A little cloud of doubt had arisen on the Christmas sky, however, as

"I'm Glad I'm One," Said Agnes.

Uncle Peter had spoken of Uncle Santa's invisibility in far countries Edith voiced it when she wanted to know if it would be of any use for them to expect anything that Christmas, whether or not they were to hang up their stockings. "You'll put your foot in it if you do," said George. "No, she won't," said Uncle Peter. "I have had a special delivery letter from Uncle Santa, saying that he has had his eye on this house for the last twelve months, and that this will be one of his stopping places because from it so much of service for others has been going out. He says that you are his gardeners, and that you have planted so many seeds of kindness that a lot of beautiful things will be sure to come up. That is always the way, he says; in fact, it is the way in which he got rich himself."

This was a very pleasant assurance for the children. It made them think of a happy mistake that one of them had made when they were having war gardens all over the town. A certain Mr. Rose had been appointed by the mayor as inspector of gardens for the whole place, and one day Betty pointed him out to a friend with whom she was walking. "There goes Mr. Rose," she said. "He's an expert of gardens!"

When the children had been reminded of Mr. Rose they also remembered what Betty had done at their last Christmas party; stalking heavily and pompously down the room, she had said: "I'm Mr. Alice, who holds up the world." So one of them stood on tiptoe, threw back her head and threw out her arms and said: "I'm Uncle Santa Claus, who holds up the world." "Well done!" cried Uncle Peter; "that's just it!"

"There wasn't any disappointment in the house the next morning. 'Did you get all that you wanted?' asked Uncle Peter. "Yes," said Mary. "Were you at all disappointed?" "No," said Mary. When Mary said "Goodness," her mother said, "You shouldn't say 'goodness,' Mary." "Gracious!" said Mary. But Mary was too excited to have a care for her expressions. In describing the situation afterwards she said: "I was in a perfect stupor of excitement."

Uncle Peter had no present, however. After all the rest had been made happy Agnes brought out a parcel, and when Uncle Peter opened it there were two big books that told over again the story of all that America had stood for and accomplished. This made him very glad indeed, and he asked them to write his name on the fly leaf and to say that it was from his Young Americans. Then the Christmas party ended with a verse of our national anthem, heartily sung and followed by all the other verses, with a hurrah for Uncle Sam instead of an amen.

LOEB SCHOOL TO GIVE A PROGRAM

Plays, A Wand Drill, Recitations To Be Features

Everybody is invited to attend the Christmas entertainment at the Loeb school on the evening of Friday, December 22nd, at 7 o'clock standard time. The program will be given by the pupils, each of whom will have a speaking part. There will be three little Christmas plays, a wand drill, recitations, and class and community singing. There will be a great Christmas tree, organ music, and a general good time conducted by Santa Claus in person, who will distribute presents and goodies to such pupils of the school as he approves of after looking over all the report cards.

The fine community spirit in the Loeb district, and the co-operation of teachers and parents, indicate that this will add one more to the fine list of good times that have been enjoyed at the school house. Other entertainments will follow during the winter. There will be a valentine entertainment in February, at which February's great men—Lincoln, Washington and Longfellow—will be featured, an illustrated lecture, and a musical and literary evening.

"BROWN", BIG FREIGHTER ASHORE

Men Lashed to Life Boats Attempt Rescue

The freighter J. J. H. Brown, owned by the Brown Steamboat company, of Buffalo, ran ashore yesterday in a blizzard at Point Nichols, Bois Blanc Island, just out from Cheboygan, and had a big hole stove in her side. Three lifeboats, with men lashed to them, were sent out from Walker Point.

The Brown, which is valued at $500,000, carried a $100,000 cargo of coal and was bound from Buffalo to Chicago. The boat is one of the largest on the lakes being 600 feet long.

Captain Richard Herline at Walker Point coast guard station, states that this is the worst storm on the waters in 15 years.

DOUBLE SHOOTING AT KALKASKA

Eighteen Months Child Meets Death by Hands of Brother

Kalkaska had a double shooting tragedy on Saturday before Thanksgiving. Nile W., the eighteen-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Soper, was killed by a shot from a small rifle in the hands of his brother, four years old. The rifle belonged to Kenneth Riley, the ten-year-old son of a neighbor who had left it standing in the house while he played with the other children about the yard. Following the accident, Kenneth Riley went home with his gun, and soon after was found dead in his yard with a bullet in his forehead. It is supposed that he shot himself because of remorse over the shooting of the young child of the neighbor.

LOREN HART IS RADIO ENTERTAINER

Farmer Local Boy Attached to Station W-H-A-C

A clipping from a recent issue of the Waterloo (Iowa) Tribune, tells of the success in musical circles of a former Charlevoix boy, Loren A. Hart, well-known to our readers. We reproduce the extract below:

"L. A. Hart, Cedar Heights, assisted by Miss Elsie Byvank and Mrs. H. O. Chapman, gave the radio concert last evening at the Cole Brothers-Tribune station, W-H-A-C. The numbers given were of a variety of excellent selections which would be hard to duplicate. The reports from people in this city and vicinity telephoned the station saying that the concert was being received very nicely and without much hither from static.

The concerts, which have been secured for the coming week, will bring much of the desired talent in the city to the station and many a treat is promised the radio world in general."

The Courier wishes to congratulate Mr. Hart on his well-earned success and trust that on some occasion when station W-H-A-C may be "connected up" with our local receiving outfit at Wood Brothers', we may have the pleasure of "listening in" on some of his selections.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

Attractions for the Coming Week

SATURDAY and SUNDAY, DECEMBER 16-17—Priscilla Dean in "Conflict." This play was taken from the famous "Red Book" story by the same name. Here is a stupendous picture of the great North woods. There are many wonderful and sensational acts of bravery and enough real thrills to make your hair stand on edge. We also have a very good St. Johns comedy, "The Village Sheik." Don't miss a good show.

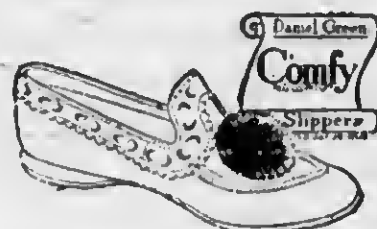

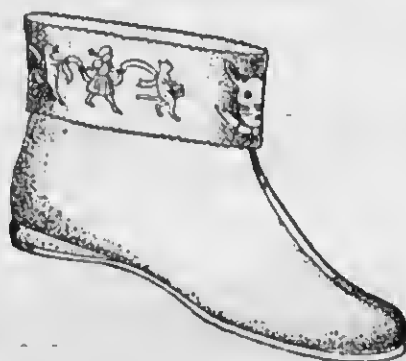

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 19—Corinne Griffith in "The Single Track." Here is a railroad play that will bring back the old days of railroading. It is of a girl who drives a train many miles to save a right of way. On this night we will also have "Squoba & Squobbles."

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 20—Dustin Farnum in "Strange Idols." He won her in the city and lost her in the wilds. In other words, the romance of a man of the open and a beauty of the cabaret. See how the lumberman and cupid hold their own. Also episode 13 of "The Adventures of Tarzan."

NEXT SATURDAY and SUNDAY, DECEMBER 23-24—A very big special. Rudolph Valentino in "Blood and Sand."

The Flute Player

By Christopher G. Hazard

OF ALL the Christmas gifts of past years but one remained. It seemed surrounded by a charm that was all its own and that was unaffected by the atmosphere of the bare and dingy room as a light in a dark place. The old schoolmaster took it up, looked lovingly upon it and replaced it upon the shelf. Then, advancing to the window, he looked out upon the lighted star in the church steeple that was proclaiming Christ's birthday and listened to the shouts of the merry-makers in the streets as they rose upon the snowy wind.

The old man's mind was busy with happier days. In the picture gallery of his memory visions of home cheer and gladness were upon the walls. Faces looked out from their frames with old glances of love, and figures passed before him full of the beauty of young life. Again he was in the midst of joyous and successful activities, companioned and enthusiastic. Then, as memory's mirage faded away and left but two receding images before him, he looked once more upon one who had gone to some unknown land, the son who had so mysteriously disappeared from the home fellowship and kea, and he saw again the form of her who had set out for the land that is beyond the stars, but not before she had placed in his hand the precious vase with the pictured flute-player upon its side.

At the time he had not fully noted the significance of the happy urchin in the red robe as he held his flute to his lips. Pleasures and pursuits pressed upon him and left the musician unnoticed through the days and nights. But the boy had never ceased his playing, and now with some remembered melody, then with some new adventure in the world of harmony, he seemed to be waiting for the recognition and appreciation that he knew would come. A steadfast and inveterate optimist, he played on; to weariness and loneliness he played a hopeful song; for bidding dejection and despair, he became a prophet of better days to come. In solitude and uselessness he was as an only but changeless friend. To him the old man turned as to an oracle. Poverty had taken one after the other of his possessions, but had never been able to separate him from this merry genius, this incorrigibly persistent promiser.

If the prelude does not get discouraged fortune is likely to admire it and introduce the performance, and this turned out to be the reward of the industrious hope of the flute player. He did not hear the step upon the stair or the knock upon the door, and he did not see the amazement with which the schoolmaster listened to the tale of his lost son as he embraced him and tried to realize that he had indeed come back and brought good fortune with him but even more eagerly and merrily he played in the dance with which these two were to go down the future.

Habits are strange things. One can get so far into a habit of gladness as to be unable to get out of it. A face can set so used to smiling as to have no light there. A boy can become so committed to finding us to be unable to stop. It was so with the flute player; to this day he plays and does nothing else. He sits upon another and a letter shelf, but not idly. He is among happy people, but busy sending joy out into all the neighborhood. He has played the old schoolmaster young again and fixed his thought upon a life that never grows old.

Indeed, the flute player has even encouraged the schoolmaster to begin teaching again. The scholars are his grandchildren. They are not having a hard time, for they slug on their way to lessons. They are not unhappy scholars, for one of them threw a kiss to the last Christmas moon. Last summer another of them became a poetess and composed the following appreciation of nature:

A star is shining fair,
Its gentle beams awaken
The young men sleeping there.

Again in songs of angels
The birth of Christ is told;
The young men go to greet him
With richer gifts than gold.

The flute player is setting this to music. This scholar has already learned to write. She has proved that by producing an invitation to one of the school sessions in this form:

Dear Aunt Fanny:
Please come, Friday, if you can, and if you can't come, don't come.

She is not a dabbler, however, when she said one day, "Grandpa, you don't look a bit over twenty."

JELLY-ROLLS WERE SCRAMBLED

Mingle With Cup Cakes and Buns at Foot of Hill

A hungry tramp with a weak heart would have perished miserably last Saturday night, had he witnessed the destruction of dainties that took place when John McCann's bakery delivery rig went over the cliff-side above the life-saving settlement.

About half past five, Lawrence Taylor, arriving in the car (a Chevrolet) accompanied by Richard McCann, finished his deliveries in the life-saving colony and started up the steep hill to Park avenue, trying to make it "in high." When nearly to the summit of the rise, his engine "killed" and Taylor let the car roll back across the road until the rear wheels rested against the low curb, which with the sidewalk and the steep declivity behind it, was sheathed with ice. He got out to crank her up, leaving young McCann in the car.

Somehow, in his efforts to start the engine, Taylor bore his weight too heavily against the radiator and the rear wheels, mounting the icy curb, the car started to roll back over the edge of the bank, which at this point is just about straight up and down for some fifty feet.

Seeing that the car was going to go over the edge, McCann jumped out—so act that in all probability saved his life, as she tumbled turtle twice before hitting the bottom.

The solid side-wall of William Kibbe's garage stopped her further progress, but the mess was awful to behold. Fenders, windshield and body were splintered only and her toothsome freight was scattered far and wide. Some of it could be saved but much was a total loss. Some of the bread-stuffs, not rendered unfit for consumption, was given away to persons in need. The repair bill for the car will be heavy, but Richard McCann is to be congratulated on his narrow escape.

Call at C. R. Bellinger's jewelry store and look over the stock of ladies' wrist watches in white, green and yellow gold cases of the latest styles. Prices from $12 to $40, each and complete line of Christmas gifts. Adv. 501t.

McLEAN FAVORS CANNING FACTORY

Holland-St. Louis Head Offers to Take Stock

Joseph Cooper, of this city, is in receipt of a letter from Sears R. McLean, general manager of the Holland-St. Louis Sugar Company, at St. Louis, in which Mr. McLean makes the statement that, if Charlevoix gets a canning factory started here, he will, personally, take a large block of the stock.

In his opinion, the factory should not be located on the outskirts of town, but erected at a point close in. The reason for this is that women are largely employed in the canning industry and, in order to maintain their highest efficiency in the somewhat exacting and confining demands of the work, they should not be forced to walk great distances between the factory and their homes. Mr. McLean sees no difficulties in the way of establishing a successful canning factory in this locality and his offer to become interested in the enterprise in a financial way is sufficient earnest of his confidence that it would be an excellent thing for the development of this region. It is probable, also, that the control of a large portion of the stock by a practical man in a field closely akin to the canning industry would lend that stabilizing influence to the project which has been so sadly lacking in similar attempts of past years.

The ladies of the W. R. C. will give a six o'clock dinner at the Baptist church, February 12, for the benefit of the Legion boys. More notice later.—Adv. 501t.

ACCIDENT VICTIM IS CONVALESCENT

LeRoy Sanders Leaves Hospital to Return Home

LeRoy Sanders, eighth grade pupil in the Lech school, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sanders, of East Marion, who was dangerously ill at the Charlevoix Hospital for several weeks, has been taken to his home. On the way the car was stopped at the school so the invalid might get his books to make up lost work while convalescing, and his classmates flocked out to congratulate him on his improved condition.

LeRoy, who was unconscious most of the time for a week after being struck by a rapidly moving car on the Horton road several weeks ago, while driving cattle to Boyne City, hopes to be back in school after the Christmas vacation. At the time of the accident he had stepped away from the road when he saw rapidly moving cars approaching from the rear, and, when the foremost auto stopped short to avoid the cattle, the one just behind ran into the ditch to avoid striking it, and hit the boy.

ples which were laid down as the foundation of American citizenship in our country's constitution and embodies an idea, which, if misinterpreted, can do incalculable harm to our coming generation of citizens.

In the third from the last paragraph of his article, Mr. Hamilton affirms, "we must emphasize the equality of man." The trouble with this statement is that it is not qualified and may mean any one of three things—physical, mental and moral equality which is absurd and contrary to nature; equality before the law, which is an established theory, but more largely theory than fact (due, however to the shortcomings of human nature and not because of any inherent defect in the principle itself) and equality of opportunity, which is a true and healthy interpretation, worthy of acceptance, and the one most likely to prove an inspiration to our young men and women on life's threshold.

The first interpretation is capable, if widely held, of wrecking our entire social fabric. This erroneous conception is the seed of our "red" agitations and a good part of our labor troubles. It is a sure breeder of disrespect for law and authority, encourages envy and extravagance, destroys happiness and, if carried to its logical conclusion, ends in anarchy and confusion. It is said that "nature abhors a vacuum." It is equally true that she has little use for a dead level. Nowhere in her works can anything approaching equality be found. If biological equality were a fact, progress would be impossible. Such institutions as the Loeb Farms, engaged in the breeding and development of fine cattle, would be throwing away their money and time on a "will o' the wisp." There is no more mental and moral equality between a Jack Dempsey and an Abraham Lincoln or a rag picker, and Henry Ford than there is equality between a scrub Red Pole and a thoroughbred Holstein prize winner. Every man has his natural limitations and he is wise who recognizes them and makes the best of his opportunities within the sphere allotted him. Outside of it he will find little happiness.

The second concept is well enough, and one of our fundamental national principles, but we do not see much of it. We are getting so accustomed to the wealthy offender getting "soaked" when he should be cleared and getting off "scot-free" when he should be given the limit to the pretty-murders-hypnotizing the jury or pleading the damnable "unwritten law" and getting by with it that we are apt to forget that there should be equality under the law. As a matter of fact, it is really difficult to apply this principle in some cases. How about the poor man who steals to aid his starving family and the wily promoter who deliberately robs the w. k. widow and orphan? Should they stand before the bar of justice on an equal footing and be meted out the same sentence? Why not, as a matter of theory—they both committed larceny? These are difficult problems and not lightly to be disposed of.

The third aspect of Mr. Hamilton's statement seems to present the most inspiring and attainable ideal. Equality of opportunity! No matter what a man's talents or handicaps, if he may start on the "scratch" line with his fellows, his failure to win the prize will be chargeable to no one but himself; if he succeeds his right to the fruits of victory will stand unchallenged. It is in this respect that American life has most nearly approached the state of equality among men and women. Even here, we fall far short of perfection and opportunity will not be equal for all of our young people until we find some way of removing the profiteer, the grasping landlord and the unscrupulous employer, the Wall Street manipulator and the corrupt public servant. It must be the duty of the new generation to get rid of these obstacles and insure to all the equality of opportunity which the founders of our nation wrote into the constitution of the United States.

ANOTHER QUARTER HEARD FROM

BEETS ARE BOOMED BY CHARLEVOIX FARMER

Isaac Mills Says New Farming Will Be an Endless Chain with Beets at One End—Cash at Other

Here's a letter from a practical farmer of this region who liked our account of the citizens meeting at the Council Chambers a week ago Monday and has a little something to say about the beet question. It is quite a while since we have had the pleasure of printing a communication of this kind and reproduce it below for the benefit of our readers:

Charlevoix, Dec. 9, 1922.
"Editor of the Courier,
Dear Mr. Editor:

I am very much interested in your write up of the citizen's meeting at the council chambers, especially in regard to new industries. The cheese factory sounds good.

When Jack Means was married in Indiana, away back when Congress land was selling for $1.25 an acre, he got $600.00 along with his wife and she, in relating it to the Hoosier Schoolmaster, said she advised Jack to buy land with the $600.00 and while he was getting, to get a plenty. And that is my advice.

While we are getting a cheese factory and a canning factory, let's get a sugar factory. To my mind, there is nothing that will develop the farming interests as that will. It is well known that Charlevoix beets have a very high percentage of sugar and a few farmers still persist in raising beets, despite the many handicaps. Beets also have a very big percentage of water and we pay freight on a great many tons of water. We also pay freight on a great many tons of limestone that we have an abundance of and if we had a factory here, the limestone is already ground to haul and apply on our land, after serving its purpose in the manufacture of sugar. Then there is the pulp at our door, than which there is no better stock feed, and in the beet tops we also have a great amount of feed. All this goes to build up the dairy industry and along with that, hog raising.

Sugar beets are a cash crop. Hogs are a cash crop. Dairying is a continual cash income. Don't you see—beets are the foundation of a successful farm? Beets, dstrying, hogs, fertilizer, alfalfa, clover, corn. More beets, more cream, more milk for your hogs. More hogs, more fertilizer, more alfalfa, more clover, more corn, more cash. There are hundreds of Loeb, Fords and Couzons who have millions of dollars that are "restively champing the bit" and waiting for such an opportunity as a sugar factory at Charlevoix would offer.

It was the greatest calamity that ever befell Charlevoix when the old factory was moved. Farmers were just beginning to understand the business and the benefits derived therefrom, and I believe that no one regretted the move more than the ones who moved it, for they made a harrel of money the last season's run and most of the beet raisers were intending to increase their acreage the next year and others were going to start.

I believe that if capitalists understood the situation they would be offering a bonus instead of asking one and there would be no shares to sell and no promoters required.

We have a county agent who is anxious to build up the interests of the county and I would suggest a community meeting in every grange hall or school house and boost the beet business, beginning at the Barnard Grange Hall with an all day meeting and I will guarantee a packed house.

Nuff sed. Isaac Mills. This sounds like good, common horse sense to us. Lets hear from somebody else on the subject next week.

WHAT SHOULD EDUCATION MEAN

SUPT. CHAS. HAMILTON GIVES HIS VIEWS

Believes the Character of Great Men to Be the Greatest Inspiration to the Young

All of us who indulge at all in what is sometimes termed, nowadays, the "luxury of thought," have our ideas, more or less valuable, about matters of consuming public interest. Among these is education. In the discussion of this subject, the angle most generally approached is that of the kind of education necessary to develop the best elements in the characters and abilities of our growing boys and girls.

The Courier has the opportunity, this week, of giving to its readers the views of a specialist in his line, our superintendent of schools, Chas. Hamilton. It is seldom that a clearer statement of the aims and ideals of our public school system is presented, or one that is more completely in accord with the unspoken beliefs of most laymen. The article follows:

"I believe an education to be the inherent right of every American boy and girl today.

I believe in the type of education which makes for American citizenship—not blind, unthinking obedience but a clear understanding and intelligent interpretation and appreciation of the term we so fondly refer to as democracy.

I believe in ideals and that in school life they are tremendously worth while. Life may not be as we read of it from books or we picture it from the class room but we can only approach perfection as we have ideals to follow; standards to guide along the way.

I conceive good citizenship to be—not only an ardent love for the American flag and the country it represents—a love so strong that when danger threatens we are willing to follow that flag in battle, if need be, but interpret it to mean (and we aim to teach) respect for property, respect for the rights of others, the intelligent use of the ballot, the sacredness of the Sabbath, the ability to recognize every man as our neighbor and to treat him as such, the brotherhood of all mankind.

I believe a high school course should make one proficient in the use of the mother tongue and should develop an appreciation for the best literature. The "reading habit," formed in school, not only should embrace magazines and newspapers, but books—the biographies of great men, the stories of enterprises that have been the means of shaping destinies of individuals and of nations.

A course in high school should acquaint one with the history of the rise of mankind and its development and causes underlying same, keeping in the student's mind, that in all cases right has finally triumphed, that the nation that has forgotten to deal honestly has gone down to obscurity and that thus, history repeats itself in both individuals and nations. So citizenship should be taught in connection with history and being not forgetful, most of all our own glorious history and the conditions and events that have contributed to make us great.

I believe if we did nothing else but show the boys and girls the character of our great men, we would even yet justify our existence as an institution.

Our school course should teach enough mathematical computations that we can intelligently transact business in a bank, mercantile organization, or in whatever circumstance we find ourselves, as well as forming a ground work for higher education.

Any boy or girl who has had a high school course should be able to get up on both feet and express in good English his views on any subject, in a clear, concise manner; to write in a legible hand these sentiments, or if it be of a business nature, to write a correct business letter, with proper spelling and punctuation.

I believe the school should teach punctuality, being on the job and on the minute, dependability, working well and honestly whether watched or unwatched by one in authority.

Initiative, the power of leadership and the willingness to assume responsibility, should surely be among the products of a high school course.

We should develop in school, a group consciousness and a loyalty and love for the great institution, the American public schools.

Then the school should point the way to higher education and the advisability of attaining it both for personal enrichment of life and to make society better, we must emphasize the equality of man, and the dignity of labor whether with pen or spade, and that all labor becomes dignified as we make it so, that each pupil as he gets out in life, may feel that his particular work is for him, most important, and that being so, it demands his best efforts.

The school should teach the child to appreciate his home and the parents who work hard that he may enjoy the benefits of an education.

When we realize that the teacher is 85 per cent of the whole education program, and that buildings and equipment, and all the rest amount to the remaining 15 per cent, has not the teacher a real job?"

There is one sentence in Mr. Hamilton's little essay (it might almost be called a creed) that we believe calls for more explicit definition. It touches on one of the most delicate points in the group of basic principles.

THREE APPEALS TO SANTA CLAUS

LITTLE TOTS OF THE MODEL SCHOOL WRITE HIM

They Didn't Forget the Poor Children in Telling the Old Fellow What They Wanted

Here are some letters the kids in Miss Burkland's model class at the county normal wrote to Santa Claus last week. We'll venture a bet that the old saint will visit these little girls if he has to pull some bricks out of the chimneys to squeeze through.

Dear Santa Claus: We had a Thanksgiving party Wednesday. The Normal girls gave the party. We played games, and had our fortune told. We dressed up like Indians. The Normal girls dressed like Pilgrims. We had a very good time.

Be sure to stop at my house on Christmas eve. I would like a pair of ice skates, a new hat and coat, some books to read, a tooth brush, some games to play, a record to play on the victrola, a sheet of music, and some presents for mother and father. Santa dear—I'll let you judge as to how many of these things I can have.

I know some children who are very poor, and they have to make their own living. I wish that you would call at their house and give them plenty of warm clothes and many good things to eat.

Lovingly yours,
Helen Smith.

Dear Santa Claus: We had a Thanksgiving program last Wednesday afternoon. The Normal Training teachers invited us to their Thanksgiving party. We learned an Indian war whoop. It was "Big Indian, Little Indian, Chief and Squaw. Pappoose hanging on a limb, Wah! Wah! Wah! Then we sang two Thanksgiving songs. The third grade had a recitation. There were strings with card-board, on which said, "wind me up." At the end of my string was a stick of candy.

I would like you to remember the poor little children of the slums in the big cities. You know they haven't any money with which to buy Christmas gifts. We ought to be thankful that we are not some of those poor children. Tell Mrs. Santa Claus to make them some warm clothes.

For Christmas I would like a sled, a doll, a doll cab, a pair of ice skates and the series of "The Bobsey Twins." I think that is all I want for Christmas this year. Merry Christmas to the family.

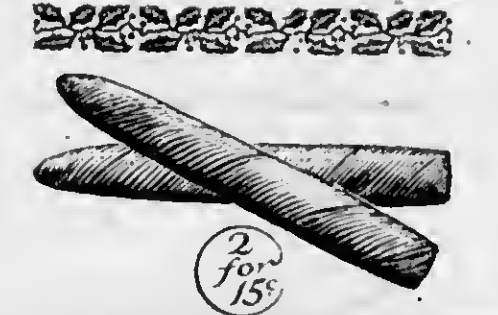

Your friend,
Jane Siminow.

Dear Santa Claus: This morning when I got up, everything was white with snow. I suppose at the North Pole there is loads of snow by this time. When I came to school the side-walks were so icy I could hardly stand up.

There are many things I would like for Christmas, for instance, a doll, games and books.

There are poor people living in Charlevoix. I would like to give some of my presents to them. If you know where they live and they need presents more than I do, give my presents to them.

Your friend,
Dorothy Mae Hadsell.

BOLD HIGHWAY- MAN WAS FOILED

JAMES WHITLEY WRESTS GUN
FROM ASSAILANT

Nervy Local Barber Captures Bad
Man Single-Handed After a
Fierce Struggle

While Charlevoix citizens are already minutely acquainted with the details of the daring hold-up that occurred last Saturday evening, it may not be amiss to say something about it here, as we haven't had any deeds of heroism to talk about since Captain Peter Aace's exploit of some weeks ago.

At about half past eight Saturday evening, James Whitley, of this city, on his way to make a friendly call on Harry Widdifield, cut across the corner back of Orlowski's store and emerged on Upright Avenue. His attention was held by a tall figure standing in the shadow of a telephone pole across the street opposite Widdifield's house. A moment later, the mysterious stranger crossed the street and approached Mr. Whitley, as the latter turned into the yard, accosting him with, "Say, brother, can you tell me the name of this street?" Whitley, suspecting something wrong, did not answer him directly, whereupon the man stepped up, shoved a gun in his face and said, "brother, I want your money."

Whitley, with great presence of mind, feigned deafness and stepping closer to his questioner, asked "what?" Taking another step, as if to hear his reply, Whitley grasped the muzzle of his assailant's gun with his right hand and turned it skyward, gripping the man's wrist with his other and exclaiming, "Don't shoot me, shoot the man in the moon." The fellow struggled fiercely and finally succeeded in breaking away from his captor, leaving the gun in the latter's hands. Whitley gave chase and, as he wore rubbers while the other fellow had on "aon-skids" whatever, rapidly gained on his man and grappled with him again before he had run but a few feet, catching him by the coat collar.

Alternately jerking his victim and battering him in the jaw with the hard and generous fist firmly anchored to the coat collar, Whitley managed to drag him to the entrance of Orlowski's store, which he entered willingly enough, seeing that the game was up. Just inside the door, he whispered an offer to his captor to take his wad and let him go free, but Whitley was obdurate and held on to his man until the sheriff was located on the phone and arrived a few minutes later to handcuff the man and take him away.

When first captured, the man had given his name as George Clark, but papers he had managed to throw away while he was being taken to the jail, which were afterwards recovered, showed him to be George Mutton, of Laasing, on probation for the non-support of a wife and three children in that city. He gave his age as twenty-eight. He stands five feet, eleven inches and weighs one hundred and eighty-five pounds, a pretty husky gent for anybody to tackle.

At the jail he told the sheriff that he had come from Petoskey with a "lady friend" with whom he admitted spending the previous night at the Park House in that city, where they were registered as "Mr. and Mrs. George Clark." Further questioning developed the fact that the young woman's name is Violet Simmons, whose home is in Alba, Michigan. Mutton told the sheriff that she was stopping in town at the home of her brother, Pearl Simmons, the bridge tender. The sheriff promptly went after the woman and brought her to the jail where she was closely questioned. She claimed that she had been married and that her husband had divorced her. The truth of this statement has not yet been substantiated. Mutton had already told the sheriff that he and the girl had planned to be married soon. She disclaimed the knowledge of the hold-up, and succeeded in convincing the sheriff of her innocence in connection with it. She is being held however for further investigation. When the sheriff called at the Simmons' home to get her, she told him that she and Mutton hailed from Toledo and, knowing the somewhat notorious reputation of that city as a rendezvous for criminals of all descriptions, he was influenced to take her into immediate custody.

Sheriff Weaver, having been advised that a lone highwayman had held up two men in Petoskey Friday night, got into communication with the authorities there, and Thomas Travis, one of the victims, who had given up nine dollars at the point of a pistol, came to Charlevoix Sunday with Chief of Police Wolff of Petoskey, and had no difficulty in identifying Mutton as the man who had robbed him on Friday night. Another Petoskey man, Foley, by name, lost $22.00 in this manner, on the same night.

Chief of Police Wolff said he believed Mutton was on probation from a Lansing court for wife desertion and that he had only recently again deserted his family. Mutton and Miss Simmons said they had come to Petoskey from Flint and admitted having lived together as man and wife. The robber is said to have purchased a new cap in Petoskey shortly before coming here and it is also said that he talked with other guests at the Park House about the robberies he had committed.

The gun with which Mutton had threatened his victims proved, on examination, to be merely a toy pistol, new and shiny; a very good imitation of the real thing, however. This fact, though, does not palliate the seriousness of his crime in any way and he is likely to receive a stiff sentence.

He was examined Tuesday morning by Justice Henry Cooper of this city and bound over to circuit court, to be brought before Judge Mayne on Thursday.

It is believed that Mutton had a confederate in the affair of Saturday night, as persons in the Orlowski store noticed a strange man enter the store a few minutes before Mutton was brought in by Whitley. When someone said, "the sheriff is coming," this fellow ducked out and though Whitley and others spent some little time looking for him, their search proved fruitless. The sheriff, however, is not inclined to believe that anyone else but Mutton was connected with the crime.

Broke His Leg

Forrest Fowler met with a painful accident last Monday while working at the Waller farm. He slipped on an icy patch of ground, breaking one of the bones in his right leg below the knee and spraining the ligaments. The broken bone cannot be set for a week, on account of the sprain and it is likely that Mr. Fowler will be laid up for some time.

Mrs. Silas Alcox was elected president of the organization. A complete list of the other officers and superintendents will appear in a later issue of this paper.

A pot-luck supper was served at five-thirty p. m. To this the men were invited and a good program of music and speeches was carried out. The subject of prohibition was discussed from four professional standpoints—that of the lawyer, the minister, doctor, editor. Parn C. CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The regular work of the chemistry class is mixed with all sorts of delights, one of which is the importance of "Home Training." About all that has been so far accomplished is dish washing.

Three members of the faculty attended the debate at Central Lake. Report rough roads—lost two chains and three tempers.

The debate season promises to be as interesting as any athletic season. The affirmative team of C. H. S. carried off the honors at Boyne City, last Friday evening 4 to 0. The speakers for C. H. S. were Kathryn Gaskin, Albert Widdifield, and Raymond Faulkner.

No speed limit in the typewriting room. Clayton Trimble and Marguerite Brown are startling examples. Clayton—three minutes, one word. Marguerite—one minute, thirty-five words.

An interesting game was played between the alumni of C. H. S. and the varsity, at the rink last Saturday evening. The score during the first few minutes favored the alumni, but at the end of the first half the score rapidly climbed for the varsity, the final score being 30 to 12 in favor of the varsity. There was no "hero" the honors were divided, because everybody did his best.

Anyone wishing to develop his mind is cordially invited to visit the chemistry class. We are sure Mr. Altenberg would rather preach to filled seats.

And they wonder why spelling should be taught—Section taken from an exam in correspondence: "It will be good slay ridding and we can slide in that big hill of yours. How are giting along in school? There goes the bell—"

Mr. Altenberg must be more encephalic in the future—he has taught the chemistry class the art of distillation—quite a dangerous undertaking in the present day.

An interesting book, entitled "Studies in English Literature," containing typical selections of British and American authorship from the time of Shakespeare to the present time, has been presented to the high school library by Edith Crandall of the junior class.

Last week being Educational Week, we had a program on Friday afternoon. The program was very interesting and we wish to have another similar one in the near future.

The French I class has purchased a game, "As we Dine" written in French. In this way we hope to make use of our vocabulary besides having the fun of playing the game.

Doc Todd—"Say Charlie, do you know how they sound the fire alarm in the deaf and dumb asylum?"

Charlie Dagwell—"No, how's it done?"

Doc—"They ring the dumbbells."

Vera B.—"John, that was a good joke you told me last week, I was laughing over it yesterday."

John B.—"So soon?"

The sign "COMING" that was posted on the bulletin board some time ago, has aroused the curiosity of not a few students, and some of them are wondering if it was only a prediction of the snow-storm that gave us that "stay at home" feeling Tuesday morning.

Seventh Grade

It was agreed by the members of the seventh grade that each would subscribe for the little newspaper called "Current Events." We arrived at the conclusion, said Mr. Roe, that this paper supplies the much needed link connecting school studies with real life. It furnishes fresh reading matter, supplementary and slight reading, each week. It improves English and the power to express thoughts. It aids greatly in the training of a generation of good citizens and helps to equip them for a successful life. Current Events not only arouses interest in current topics, but in all correlated studies; as geography, history, biography, science and civics, all of which become more interesting when taken into connection with the current news of the world.

Educational Week, from December 3 to December 10, was faithfully observed by all members of the seventh grade.

The words of "America" and Michigan, my Michigan" are now being memorized, and they will be asked to reproduce a perfect copy of each song in the near future.

Arrangements were made last week providing for a Christmas entertainment to be given some date before Christmas Day.

Mr. C. E. Altenberg rendered a very valuable address in the form of a lecture to the seventh grade, on the topic "The White Plague—Tuberculosis."

Kentnor Bennett, of the seventh grade, demonstrated and gave a twenty minute talk on the "Schaefer Method of Artificial Respiration," Monday afternoon.

County Normal Notes

Mr. Long spoke to the County Normal on "Religion in the Schools." Mr. Long said we should use our schools to the greatest advantage for an education. Some persons may be tenured, even skillful, but not educated. One is not educated unless he is able to use his skill in a religious way. The three points under education are religion, morality and behavior. The talk was very helpful and interesting.

Mr. Hamilton spoke to the County Normal last Monday on "Personality." He brought out the fact that the teacher counts 85 per cent of the schoolroom. The pupils and room counted only 15 per cent.

The evening session of the kindergarten, Friday evening, December 22, will be given in the kindergarten room, instead of the high school, at 7:30.

Miss Vaughn, the State Critic, spent Friday in the County Normal and training rooms.

The fifth grade children in Miss Milner's room, observed Thanksgiving in a somewhat different manner than the rest of the children in the central building. They gathered 22 jars of fruit, pickles and jelly during Thanksgiving week. These were taken to the hospital.

The children of the central building enjoyed their first assembly of the Educational Week, Friday morning. 275 children were gathered in the lower hall of the building. The children furnished the music and readings.

Camp Fire Notes

Monday, December 11th, the Camp Fire Girls met in the fourth grade room for the purpose of organizing the club. We also elected our officers. They are as follows: Virginia

BEUTEL FISH CO. HAS A GOOD YEAR

Three Boats Produce Upwards of Twenty-three Tons

The exceptional catches of lake trout and whitefish this fall have been the source of much satisfaction in the fishing industry, all of the local enterprises in this line reporting banner production figures.

The Robert Beutel Company, with stations at Charlevoix, St. Ignace, Tawas City and Black River, is no exception to this excellent showing.

Three boats fishing out of Charlevoix for this company, operated by Louie Bourseau, Cross brothers and Kenneth McClain, have brought in respectively, since the opening of the season, eight, three and twelve tons of trout, or a total of twenty-three tons for this station, and despite the fact that the whitefish season, which is now on, opened fifteen days later than in previous years, catches are expected to be fully up to the previous season's figures—at least from present indications.

Manager Dave Eckinger and his crew of three men figure on being quite busy for some time yet, packing the shipments that go to all points in Michigan and a wide territory outside.

Notice to Marion Tax-payers
I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank, Charlevoix, for the collection of taxes for the township of Marion, Saturday, December 23rd, from 9:00 a. m. to 3:00 p. m., and at home the balance of week.

Things That Old Kris Brought

The King of the Hill

By Christopher G. Hazard

THE long hill glistened in the winter moonlight like a silver cake. The road that ran down it like a silver ribbon, reaching across the railroad track and on through the valley, lost itself in a shimmering haze of snowy whiteness. The wind, as if afraid of awakening the sleeping town, had hushed itself into stillness, waiting along the way and under the shadows of the quiet trees for the signal of dawn. The scene was an invitation to a sport now largely displaced by rushing motor cars, but then one of the chief delights of the Christmas season. The boldest of those days and nights was the pull of owners and the prize winner of competitions. The annual of the Sinter Hill race course registered triumphs as real and momentous as those of any race track.

The moon had watched with an expectant eye until ten of the clock and was about to retire under a passing cloud in disappointment, when the clamor and shouting of an approaching crowd renewed its spirit. From a side street they came, merry lads and lasses, with those of later years who had not forgotten how to be young. Soon the head of the hill was crowded with competitors and the air rang with the bustling preparations for the first race.

Competing Sleds Dashed Away.

steep and icy road they were swift enough to dislodge the wheel, and, uncontrolled by bit and bridle, they could not be stopped before reaching the foot of the hill. There was thus enough of adventure in their trip to furnish the thrilling excitement that kept out the winter cold. The good-natured rivalry, too, gave interest to the sport.

This year there was a special reason for the gathering, for Tom Atkins, having received a Christmas present of a sled of the latest style and name,

"The King of the Hill" had been boasting that the title was a just one and arousing all the determination that the others had to prove him wrong. The "Dart," the "Racer," the "Dumtless," the "Peerless," and others as glorious were eager to beat the married and unmarried newcomer.

The first race was inconclusive, for Atkins got a false start and tipped his load over into a snow bank. The second and the third races gave the laurels to the "Dart" and the "Peerless," respectively, and left Atkins heart in his hands; but the fourth attempt ended with "The King of the Hill" a rod ahead and with its owner's chin protruding and uplifted. Then time went by with varying fortunes until the concluding and deciding contest. It was agreed that the winner of this final should be crowned the king of the hill indeed, with none to dispute his right.

Avoid the lullaby of those last arrangements no one had heard the distant whistle of "The Flyer," as the night express for Boston was called, and the competing sleds dashed away from the long descent without a word of danger, not until half way down, did any danger appear, but then the locomotive's headlight flashed around the curve and upon the crowd. Now, but a short distance away, and a fatal and threatening glare. The other sleds, some had in the race, were steered onto the roadside snow or left to take care of themselves as their riders rolled off, but "The King of the Hill" kept on, in seeming ignorance of the imminent collision. Not until the warning blast of the engine whistle seemed to strike him did Atkins move to save his sled and his load. Then, with a wrench of his steering gear and a sturdy leg-sweep, he brought his sled about, throwing it over upon its side and upon its frightened load as the train swept by, almost brushing them on its way.

It was what the barber called "a close shave," and when Atkins called "as good as a mile," but the boys called it a victory and rode Atkins home on "The King of the Hill" with their full endorsement of the title.

The old hill is still there, it glitters yet in Christmas moonlight, but the boys and girls of the boldest time have grown old, and the glorious fun of Sinter's Hill is but a memory. A pleasant memory it is, though, and that is a brave, bright spot in it that registers the night when Tom Atkins got a double score in beating both the runners and the train on his "King of the Hill."

CHRISTMAS FEAST FOR BIRDS

Feathery Tribes in Bosnia Not Forgotten—Food Placed Near Nests and Shelters.

CHRISTMAS is not merely a festival celebrated by and for man alone. Among the folklore of other countries are several quaint stories in which animals and birds give evidence of their adoration. A well-known Bosnian legend offers a version of world-adoration. They claim that on the holy day "the sun in the east bowed down, the stars stood still; the mountains and forests shook and trembled the earth with their shudders, and the green pine tree bent; the grass was beflowered with the opening of blossoms; incense sweet as myrrh pervaded upland and forest; birds sang on the mountain tops and all give thanks to the great God."

In Bosnia on Christmas Day a sheaf of rice is put near birds' nests and bird houses for the birds' Christmas. An old Indian legend says that on Christmas night all the deer in the forest knelt in adoration before the Great Spirit. Woe to him, however, who tries to spy upon them. He is punished with perpetual stiffening of the knees.

Many people of the Old World claim that on Christmas night animals are gifted with speech, but none must trespass or eavesdrop.

Many and many have been the tales which account for the robin's red breast. In great many parts of Europe he is called the Saviour's bird, and a story is told that when the Christ was crucified the robin, unable to stand the suffering, ventured to pluck the thorns from His head. In doing so, the blood stained the robin's breast, which sign he wears today.

USE OF CHRISTMAS STOCKING

Custom Comes From Sunny Italy Where Poor First Used Long Knitted Purse.

THE custom of hanging up stockings on Christmas Eve comes to us from a land far across the ocean—from sunny Italy.

In the city of Padua, long ago, good old St. Nicholas used to go about the streets after dark and throw through the windows of the homes of the poor people long knitted purses, tied at both ends, and containing much needed coins. These purses were made of yarn, and when untied looked not unlike a footless stocking.

Finally, as time went on, the poor people, hoping thus to remind the more fortunate of their needs, used to hang these empty purses out of the windows on the night before Christmas, so that a gift might be placed in them.

In the north country, where the weather is cold at Christmas time, the purses were hung by the chimney place in the hope that St. Nicholas would drop his offering down the chimney.

When the purses went out of fashion stockings as the thing most like them were used in their stead, and that is why we today still observe the practice and the custom.

"Who Said There Ain't No Santa?"

The Flute Player

By Christopher G. Hazard

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

OF ALL the Christmas gifts of past years but one remained. It seemed surrounded by a charm that was all its own and that was unaffected by the atmosphere of the bare and dingy room as a light in a dark place. The old schoolmaster took it up, looked lovingly upon it and replaced it upon the shelf. Then, advancing to the window, he looked out upon the lighted star in the church steeple that was proclaiming Christ's birthday and listened to the shouts of the merry-makers in the streets as they rose upon the snowy wind.

The old man's mind was busy with happier days. In the picture gallery of his memory visions of home cheer and gladness were upon the walls. Faces looked out from their frames with old glances of love, and figures passed before him full of the beauty of young life. Again he was in the midst of joyous and successful activities, untroubled and enthusiastic. Then, as memory's mirror faded away and left but two receding images before him, he looked once more upon one who had gone to some unknown land, the son who had so mysteriously disappeared from the home fellowship and ken, and he saw again the form of her who had set out for the land that is beyond the stars, but not before she had placed in his hand the precious vase with the pictured flute player upon its side.

At the time he had not fully noted the significance of the happy urdlin in the red robe as he held his flute to his lips. Pleasures and pursuits pressed upon him and left the musician unnoticed through the days and nights. But the boy had never ceased his playing, and now with some remembered melody, then with some new adventure in the world of harmony, he seemed to be waiting for the recognition and appreciation that he knew would come. A steadfast and inveterate optimist, he played on; to weariness and loneliness he played a hopeful song; for bidding dejection and despair, he became a prophet of better days to come. In solitude and uselessness he was as an only but changeless friend. To him the old man turned as to an oracle. Poverty had taken one after the other of his possessions, but had never been able to separate him from this merry genius, this incorrigibly persistent promiser.

If the prelude does not get discouraged fortune is likely to admire it and introduce the performance, and this turned out to be the reward of the industrious hope of the flute player. He did not hear the step upon the stair or the knock upon the door, and he did not see the amazement with which the schoolmaster listened to the tale of his lost son, as he embraced him and tried to realize that he had indeed come back and brought good fortune with him, but even more merrily and merrily he played in the dance with which these two were to go down the future.

Habits are strange things. One can get so far into a habit of gladness as to be unable to get out of it. A face can get so used to smiling as to have no sight there. A boy can become so accustomed to smiling as to be unable to stop. It was so with the flute player; to this day he plays and does nothing else. He sits upon another and a better shelf, but not idly. He is among happy people, but busy sending joy out into all the neighborhood. He has played the old schoolmaster young again and fixed his thought upon a life that never grows old.

Indeed, the flute player has even encouraged the schoolmaster to begin teaching again. The scholars are his grandchildren. They are not having a hard time, for they sing on their way to lessons. They are not unhappy scholars, for one of them threw a kiss to the last Christmas noon. Last summer another of them became a poetess and composed the following appreciation of nature:

A Star is shining fair,
Its gentle beams awaken
The young men sleeping there.

Again in songs of angels
The birth of Christ is told,
The young men go to greet Him
With richer gifts than gold.

The flute player is setting this to music. This scholar has already learned to write. She has proved that by producing an invitation to one of the school sessions in this form:

Dear Aunt Fanny:
Please come Friday, if you can; and if you can't come, don't come.

She is not a flatterer, however, when she said one day, "Grandpa, you don't look a bit over twenty."
